Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HIS RIDE FOR LIBERTY.

BOLD ATTEMPT AT TRAIN ROBBERY IN NEW YORK.

In Jesse James Style.

The shooting of an express messenger on a Central Hudson train; the rifling of a valuable safe; the flight of the robber on the engine of another train, from which he drives the crew at the point of a revolver; a running fight from the engine for miles followed by another engine filled with railway men; and the final capture of the desperado by a sheriff's posse in a swamp, after a wild pursuit across the country, are some of the sensational features in the most desperate attempt at train robbery in the history of the Central Hudson Railway, and which cast in the shade as an exhibition of coolness and nerve the famous exploits of the Jesse James band or other outlaws of Western fame.

Says a Rochester, N. Y., telegram: Train No. 31 on the Central-Hudson is known as the American Express Company's special. It runs every day in the year between New York and Buffalo, and carries only goods and property shipped by that company. The train leaves New York at 9 o'clock each evening and is due in this city at 7:05 in the morning. Nearly all the cars are run through to Chicago and contain the most valuable express matter. One car is known as the "money" car and in it is sent the specie from the United States Treasury for Western banks, as well as the money in process of exchange between the banks of New York and the West.

Daniel T. McInerney was in charge of the money car on the trip Saturday night. The train was made up of eight cars and one day coach for the accommodation of the regular train crew. When the train was near Weedsport the conductor, who was in the coach with his two trainmen, thought he heard the air whistle sound very faintly. It was enough to arouse him to the belief that something was wrong on the express car.

Going out on the platform of the coach, he climbed onto it, and, looking through the hole which the bell cord comes through, he saw the upper part of a man whose face below the eyes was concealed by a red flannel mask. The messenger he could not see, and he went back, set the air brakes, and called his two trainmen. The three stood leaning out from the platform looking forward along the sides of the express car. Suddenly a form appeared at the side door of the express car. Revolver bullets whistled past their eyes, and a voice was heard commanding them to signal the engineer to go ahead or take the consequences. The trainmen were unarmed. The conductor told one of his men to jump off, run back to Jordan, and telegraph along the line to Rochester that they had a train robber on board.

This was done and the conductor signaled the engineer to go ahead at full speed, thinking that the robber would not dare jump and would be captured at the next stop. The train went to Fort Byron. Here the brakes were set again and the conductor and trainmen went to the express car.

The car showed signs of a desperate struggle. Money packages and jewelry were lying scattered about, everything stained with blood, and Messenger McInerney was lying bleeding from several wounds and almost unconscious. The robber was nowhere to be seen and was supposed to have jumped and made good his escape. McInerney wanted to be brought on to Rochester, and the train went on to Lyons, the next stop. The news had spread all along the line by this time, and the station at Lyons was alive. Among others in the crowd was a well-dressed young man wearing gold eyeglasses and carrying a sachel slung over his shoulder. Now, it happened that the trainmen had noticed the young man at the station at Syracuse before the train had started out. An attempt to arrest him was made, but he pulled two revolvers, held the crowd back, and backed across the yard until he reached a coal-train, the engine of which had steam up ready to pull out for the West. He pulled the pin holding the tender to the first car, climbed over the coal into the cab, drove the engineer and fireman out with his revolvers, pulled open the throttle and started the engine.

Conductor Laas and one of the switchmen procured a shotgun, freed the engine of the express, and, with the fireman and engineer, started in pursuit of the fugitive. The Central-Hudson is a four-tracked road, and the engines, though they were going west, were not on the same track. The express engine soon overtook the robber, who suddenly reversed his engine and let his pursuers pass him, pouring pistol bullets into the cab as his pursuers went by. Then the pursuers stopped and the pursued went ahead. About seven miles further on the robber found his steam going out of his engine. He dropped off at a cross-road and started across the country. He managed to terrorize a farmer into letting him have a horse, and rode on about two miles farther south, where he procured another horse. The party in the express engine had returned to Lyons, where the Sheriff of Wayne County had organized a posse, which, under command of Deputy Sheriff Collins, started in pursuit. Meantime the farmers along the robber's line of retreat had also turned out, fully armed, in pursuit.

The robber was sighted about five miles south of Newark. The roads are very bad and he had made very poor speed. He abandoned his horse and ran across lots to Benton's swamp, but the swamp proved to be too full of water to be penetrated and the fugitive took up his station behind a stone wall and faced his pursuers. After some parley he surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Collins. He was taken back to Lyons and lodged in jail. He gave the name of William Cross; said he was from New Mexico, and had been boarding in Syracuse for some time. He admitted he was the man who attempted the train robbery to Chief of Detectives Hayden of this city. He is believed to be the much-wanted Oliver Curtis Perry who robbed Express Messenger Moore near Utica last fall. The story of the attempted robbery, as far as can be gathered, is this:

The express messenger will not talk. Cross boarded the train when it pulled out of Syracuse and climbed on top of the express car. He was provided with a hooked rope. Fastening the hook in the slight cornice of the door on one side of the car he let himself down onto the other, and resting his toes on the ledge that runs across the car, he looked in the glass of the side door and saw the express messenger in front of one of the safes, which was open, making up his bills. He smashed the glass with his revolver, covered the messenger, and shouted to hold up his hands.

Instead of doing so McInerney reached for the signal cord with one hand and for his revolver with the other. A bullet smashed the hand, but not before the signal had been given that aroused the conductor. Then McInerney fired on the robber and put a bullet through his coat. Then the robber shot the messenger twice—once in the right leg and once in the left leg. He climbed into the car and a desperate struggle took place which did not end until the train was stopped for the first time, near Weedsport. It is evident that the robber had climbed on top of the cars and remained there until the stop at Lyons. So far as can be learned the robber secured absolutely nothing.

NEGRO ROASTED ALIVE.

Horrible Punishment Meted Out to An Arkansas Criminal.

Five thousand people stood on the public street this afternoon, says a dispatch from Texarkana, Ark., and with sullen faces, unmoved by anything savoring of pity, watched while Ed Coy, a negro, was burned to death for criminally assaulting Mrs. Henry Jewell last Saturday. Mrs. Jewell is the young wife of a respectable farmer living two miles south of town, and since his crime Coy succeeded in eluding the officers until this morning, when he was discovered at the home of Ed Gaines, colored, four miles north of here. He had a mistress at the home of Gaines, and it was she who disclosed his hiding place, fear for the safety of herself and family acting as the incentive. The posses in search of Coy suspected that he was being harbored by Gaines, and two or three times this week a rope was put around the latter's neck to make him give information. He was also assured that death would certainly be his portion should he fail to notify the posse upon the first appearance of the hunted man.

This morning early the mistress of Coy went to the house of A. B. Scott, a white neighbor, living near by, and told him that Coy was at the house of Gaines. Scott at once sent a message with the news post haste to town, and a posse immediately went out to arrest the negro. Meantime, however, Coy had left Gaines' house, but was apprehended and taken in charge by Mr. Scott and two sons, who held him until the arrival of the men from town. The latter immediately brought their prisoner in, and, placing him in a carriage, conveyed him to the Jewell farm, where Mrs. Jewell, without hesitation, identified him beyond all doubt as the man who assaulted her. The trembling wretch was then returned to town, where the leaders, after a consultation, decided to hang the negro to a telegraph pole on Broad street, at the State line, the most public place in the city. Coy was accordingly marched to this point with a view to carry out this programme, but when the crowd saw the rope and divined that hanging had been decided upon there were thunders of protests.

"Away with the rope! Hanging is too good for him! Burn him, burn him!" was the shout that went up from 5,000 throats.

Coy was strapped to the body of a tree with iron fastening and coal oil was poured over his entire person in liberal quantities. There was a moment of silence and then another shout went up: "Let Mrs. Jewell, apply the match! Let Mrs. Jewell set him off!"

Walking slowly, very pale but collected, the woman emerged from the crowd. Her appearance before them set the crowd wild and a mighty cheer went up that almost shook the ground on which they were standing. The crowd fell back at her approach, making a pathway for the brutal negro's victim, who, leaning on the arm of a male relative on either side, walked unhesitatingly forwarded to where the negro stood pinioned, struck a parlor match, and with the utmost deliberation fired the negro's clothes in two places. In a second the poor wretch was one mass of flames, but even then his wonderful nerve, exhibited ever since his arrest, never forsook him, and while suffering the tortures of fire he actually called to the men of the assembly and in a clear voice requested of tdem: "Move back so that the ladies can see." He referred to the negro women, a large number of whom witnessed the execution. Death came in twenty minutes.

The excitement over the horrible affair having largely subsided, the people are coming to their sober senses, and general regret is expressed. That Coy should have been hanged or shot is generally admitted by everybody, but burning the poor wretch at the stake was a shock to civilization. The mob was mostly composed of young railroad men who lost their reason in their thirst for revenge. There is strong talk among influential citizens of calling a mass meeting to denounce the burning of Coy as barbarous. The citizens feel that unless some such step is taken the affair will result in the permanent injury of the town.

A Strange Animal.

Miss Hannah Bascomb, a native and resident of Huckleberry, was one of those people who have a firmly rooted objection to displaying or even admitting their ignorance on any point whatsoever. She always held that "folks that had good sense could gen'lly make out t' get along 'thout lettin' on what they wa'n't quite as you may say, downright cert'in 'bout, in matters that they hadn't took no special 'count of."

This belief of Miss Bascomb's occasionally involved her in difficulties, and often led her to make amusing mistakes; but as she was happily unconscious of this latter fact it did not in the least disturb her theory, or her peace of mind.

At one time she was making a visit to her niece, and took the niece's little 8-year-old daughter to the Art Museum on a tour of inspection.

Her comments and criticisms on the various works of art displayed there had at least the merit of originality. At last she stopped before the sculptured figure of the "Dying Gladiator."

"Well, Mattie," she said, addressing her grandniece, after some minutes of silence, "this is the greatest piece o' oversight I've found here yet. I persume t' say these art things have come in so fast the committee have grown keerless; for I persume likely there is a committee t' look after 'em as they come in!"

"What's the matter, Aunt Hannah?" asked Mattie.

"Matter!" said Miss Bascomb, indignantly. "Matter enough, I sh'd say. Here's this piece o' sculpin' called 'The Dying Gladiator,' an' there aint no sign of a gladiator in it! The man that sculped it must 'a' been tryin' t' play a joke on the committee, an' a pooty poor joke I call it."

"What is a gladiator, Aunt Hannah?" asked the little girl, doubtfully.

"Somethin' very much the same as an alligator, child," replied her aunt. "Jest about the same as an alligator; you've got the picter of an alligator t' home, you know, in one o' your books!"

Can't Choose a Name.

In the language of the millions of China and Japan there is no term that corresponds with our God. Every student of missions knows well the abiding difficulty in China over the question of a term for God. Both the native Christians and the foreign missionaries are divided among themselves over this perplexing question.

THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

WORK OF OUR NATIONAL LAWMAKERS.

Proceedings of the Senate and House of Representatives—Important Measures Discussed and Acted Upon—Gist of the Business.

The National Solons.

On the 18th inst. the House went into committee of the whole (with Mr. Bynum of Indiana in the chair) on the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Peel made the opening speech and explained the bill's provisions. After an animated debate the committee rose. In the Senate Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported back favorably the joint resolution introduced by Mr. Perkins requesting the President to return to the Republic of Mexico twenty-one battle-flags, which were captured by the army of the United States during the late war with Mexico. The resolution was passed. A bill increasing the limit of cost for public building at St. Paul, Minn., to $1,400,000, was passed, as was also one increasing to $800,000 the appropriation for a public building at Omaha.

Senator Palmer of Illinois spoke in the Senate on the 18th on the subject of an alteration of the Constitution of the United States which shall provide for the election of Senators in Congress by a direct vote of the people of the several States. In the House the free coinage bill was discussed at some length. Mr. Bland, of Missouri, spoke enthusiastically in favor of the bill, while Mr. Harter, of Ohio, as vigorously opposed it. Mr. Harter, in the course of his talk, said he would like to pay members of Congress with the 70-cent dollar and see how they would like it. If anything should be made a legal tender it should be the corn of Kansas and not the silver of Colorado. Silver was then laid aside for the nonce and the consideration of the Indian bill was resumed. Mr. Smith, of Arizona, criticising some of its features, especially the appropriations for the Carlisle school. The Indian appropriation bill was generally discussed until adjournment.

Owing to the fact that the Congressional excursion to Chicago was to start early in the afternoon of the 19th few Senators were present, and the Senate adjourned early. A bill appropriating $400,000 for a public building at Tacoma, Wash., was passed, as was also one granting the right of way to the Duluth and Manitoba Railroad Company across the Fort Pembina Reservation in North Dakota. In the House the announcement of the purpose to call up the tariff question about the first of March was made in the Ways and Means Committee at a brief session of the full committee. Republicans did not object. Mr. Bland offered a resolution providing for a reprint of the silver bill and for printing 10,000 additional copies of the majority and minority reports. Both Senate and House adjourned until the 23d.

Snubbed.

Tennyson has been accused of a certain surliness in his manner of receiving visitors; but who can wonder at that, when four-fifths of the number are lion hunters or newspaper people in search of facts? One of these double-barrelled bores has been so foolish as to write an account of his interview, telling just how he was snubbed by his patient host. This is his description of the beginning of the affair: "He laid down the book he was reading and eyed me through his glasses with a searching, scrutinizing glance, as he is extremely short-sighted. Then he nodded. 'Pray sit down,' while his frail white fingers toyed absent-mindedly with the paper-cutter. 'Have you also taken the trouble to come out here, simply to tell me that I am a great author? Pardon me; but be assured that the honorary visits of a grateful public can reach incredible dimensions.' The beginning of our interview was not very encouraging." Quite undismayed by this palpable fact, the unwelcome visitor remained and teased the old poet with questions. The report continues in this strain: "I thought it time to leave, and rose. 'I hope I have not disturbed you.' 'Not in the least, but you will oblige me by leaving now,' he replied. 'Would you allow me to call again?' 'You will be welcome if you have anything particular to communicate to me, but otherwise it would, most likely, be unprofitable to both of us. Do you think you can find your way? Oblige me by ringing the bell.' Then a dapper servant with a set smile and faultlessly brushed hair noiselessly made his appearance. 'Show this gentleman the nearest way to the railroad station.'" Like Mark Meddle, this "gentleman" will not be satisfied until he has received the kick he courts.

A Straight Man.

A chap who plumped off the wharf at the foot of Randolph street, the other day, was promptly pulled out by three or four men who witnessed the action, and when the victim was safe on the planks one of the men remarked:

"Did you fall in?"

"No, sir; I jumped in."

"Did you intend to commit suicide?"

"No, sir."

"But you must have been tired of life to take that leap. Tell us your troubles, and perhaps we can assist you."

"Gentlemen, said the stranger, after swallowing a glass of whisky which a boy had run for, "I'm a man of straight business principles. I've jumped off the docks along here some six or seven times this spring. I'm always sure of being pulled out, of securing a big drink of whisky, and the cash collection runs from 75 cents to $3."

"Well, you won't get no cash out of this crowd," said one of the men.

"I realized that as soon as you pulled me out and I sized you up," replied the stranger, "and I may as well add that the whisky you sent for is the poorest stuff I ever drank. Take it altogether, I'd have made more to faint away or had a fit in a saloon.—Detroit Free Press.

In the midst of the black forest, says an Oregon traveler, where the pines rose in close files on either side to a height of 100 feet and more, shrieks and shouts were heard, and then the lights of a south-bound stage appeared. A chorus of wild songs came from the passengers that filled the inside and top of the coach, and as they reined up in the narrow place and the driver accomplished the delicate feat of passing on that crooked corduroy our Jehu explained that the revelers were gamblers and saloon-keepers, moving from the end of the track over to Siskiyou mountain to establish their dens in anticipation of the legion of workmen soon to follow them. For a small bit of border ruffianism, the scene was satisfactory, and as we caught one another and said "Bret Harte," a dozen pictures by that matchless writer came up. They were all there—the gentlemen from Siskiyou, the Outcasts of Poker Flat, Jack Hamlen, the Duchess and the rest, changed slightly to view by these latter-day fashions, but still the same as those wild, lost souls that made the old mining camps of '49 the scene of gay, reckless and terrible deeds.

Lady Mandeville, as every one knows, was the beautiful Miss Yznaga, of New York, who created a sensation in London and other foreign cities as the famous American beauty. She has two twin girls who are as much alike as Girofle and Girofla, and have to wear different colored ribbons that they may be distinguished apart. On one occasion, the Queen, desiring to see Lord Mandeville's twins, arranged that they should be brought to Windsor Castle. The children were told to be very respectful, to bow low and kiss the Queen's hands and were thought to be proficien in their lessons. But the little lassies were not awed by the presence of royalty—what 4-year-old is?—and as they were presented one rushed to the Queen, put her arms around her neck, and gave her a hearty hug and a kiss. The story goes that the child stood beside Queen Victoria, and, pulling her dress, said: "Say, Queen, won't you give me a bun?" Victoria was delighted, and enjoyed the scene more than those who had spent their time in training the little minxes.

On the Way to Paradise.

Let us hope that the people who habitually disregard their health will reach that desirable place, and avoid the locality which is less desirable as an eternal residence on account of the heat and surroundings generally. But while we tarry in this vale of tears, why should we voluntarily endure the tortures of dyspepsia when a systematic use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rid us of the atrocious malady which—unless physicians are very much at fault—tends to shorten the term of our existence. Heartburn, billiousness, constipation almost always accompany this complaint and are symptomatic of it. These are all extinguished by the Bitters, which also conquers completely malaria, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. Since the appearance of "la grippe" it has shown a singular mastery over this formidable complaint that has carried off so many of our brightest and best.

The Zest of Hunting.

You can never know the zest of hunting or fishing until your dinner depends on your success; you have never attained the sublime in cookery until you have spitted your fish or meat on a freshly peeled stick, rubbed the salt in with your fingers, and boiled it over a woodland fire, you watching it jealously lest it get ablaze, and all the time that meat is browning you grow hungrier and hungrier; and every time it sputters in the glow you catch watts of fragrance, until you feel that you have the capacity of a dozen starving men, and wonder whether a single haunch of venison can supply your wants.—St. Nicholas.

Hibernating Birds.

A few years ago the owner of a riverside farm in Southern Indiana published a report which seemed to prove that, for a few weeks, birds of certain species are apt to hibernate, like bats and squirrels. A number of laborers had been clearing a patch of wood at the river shore, and came across several martins or chimney swallows that had taken refuge in a hollow sycamore tree and appeared numb or half dead with cold, but on being brought to a warm room revived and fluttered about the windows as if nothing had happened.

The disagreeable operation of forcing liquid into the head, and the use of exciting snuffs are being superseded by Ely's Cream Balm, a cure for Catarrh and colds in the head.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for ten years; could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does all that is claimed for it.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

THERE is a very strong dislike to the bat among the peasants of South Germany. A feeling of disgust and fear takes possession of the farmer who finds bats in his chimney, not only because he believes the creatures will feed upon his pork that hangs in the smoke, but because bats are regarded as unlucky and bring poverty and misfortune.

CORRESPONDENCE

WATERLOO.

J. C. Loveland has returned from Toledo.

Thursday last Eugene Trout, of Auburn, was in town.

Within the week Mr. Emerson, of Kendallville, was in town.

Ab Kelley and Sam Rickel are both improving in health. Mrs. Kelley has the quinsy.

Last Thursday afternoon Mrs. J. A. Denison entertained the missionary society of the U. B. church at her home.

The meetings at the M. E. church still continue with somewhat added interest. Rev. DeWeese expects to have assistance this week.

Meetings are held every evening in the Uniontown school house, conducted by a Free Methodist minister. The attendance is good and accessions are made nightly.

Last Friday a race against time from Auburn to Waterloo occurred, George Foltz was allowed twenty-five minutes for the journey, driving a pony. Word was sent by telephone when he started. He made the trip in less than twenty minutes.

Your correspondent was misinformed in regard to Miss Sylvia Daniels. She disclaims any ability to develop other mediums, neither does she charge the usual fee to those attending her seances. When, with the majority of mankind the one aim and object in life seems to be, "get money honestly if you can, but get it," this seems a pretty good proof of Miss Daniel's sincerity.

Talmage's last published sermon is on the much discussed question of the creed of the Presbyterian church. Everybody should read it. He also gives his views of the creed as it was, and is now, and gives his creed as he wrote it out in his memorandum book six months ago, short, simple and comprehensive. Here it is: "My creed," The glorious Lord, to trust Him, love Him and obey Him is all that is required. T. DeWitt Talmage.

He is An Artist.

Raphael, Murillo and San Diego Silvas de Valesquez, were great artists in their day, whose excellent skill secured for them such reputations as are rarely possessed by men. The second of these great masters was employed by the people of his country, while the third was employed by the Crown, to paint for the Royal Family. At length a controversy arose between these two great men, and competition ran sharp and dangerous, but Murillo's jealousy was more or less quieted by the fact that Velazquez attracted unbounded attention through the production of his matchless picture of Christ upon the Cross, as he appeared in a few minutes after His death. The competitive spirit which marked in characteristic letters the action of these ancient children of artistic fame, is manifested to-day. The sensitively delicate taste for the artistic is as high toward it meridian as it ever was, and people, instead of investing their money in expensive pictures of the Chief Executives of our nation, employ artists to make pictures of themselves and friends, which they cherish with the fondest hopes of American pride and human love. It is a matter of no small concern or mean importance to find a picture man, who, from careful study, long experience and natural qualities, possesses the ability to get up something that will please fastidious customers. The competition in this line of business is so strong and scruples at such a low premium, that the artist who attempts to excel in quality, quantity and price, has no small task on his hands: it is only by persistent effort and close application, and perhaps a hard struggle against the blighting influence of poor work and cheap John amateurs, that he breasts the surging tide of public opinion and gains the confidence of the masses. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," and a perfect likeness of the human form and face is a thing that appeals to the most delicate tastes and appreciative instincts of modern minds. Those who wish to know what is to be at Auburn, in the line of finely finished photographs, will find as beautiful a display of instantaneous process pictures as are to be seen in northern Indiana, by going to the art studio and exhibition rooms of J. G. Clapp, north side of public square. He is an artist of no ordinary skill, who thoroughly understands his business, and people generally are beginning to realize it. He does not affect his work because of the incessant changes in prices so common now, but holds his rates up to the standard, so that he can afford to put out a quality of goods that stand the test of close inspection and sharp criticism, and many persons who have formerly gone to Ft. Wayne, and other large towns to get their pictures, are now patronizing a home institution with satisfactory results. The success of this manipulator of the brush, pencil and camera, is due more or less to the fact that he will not suffer an inferior grade of work to leave the studio, and although he may charge a little more than the cut rates he proposes to have his productions stand upon their own merits, to which he invites a careful inspection.

LETTER FROM HONDURAS.

PORT BURCHARD, HONDURAS, Central America, Feb. 1, 1892:—Kind Sir, I am still luxuriating in this tropic clime. Today I dined on bird soup, fish, various kinds of fruit and cabbage that grows on the top of tall trees, and bread fresh from the bread fruit trees. Everything here is lazy, people not excepted. A native will do about as much in one week as an American will do in one day. They manage to work just as little as possible and live like all semi-civilized people; they manage to shift all their work upon the gentler sex. They are immoral and virtue is at a low ebb. This colony is composed entirely of northern people mostly from Chicago. Two of our men got drowned last week, one of them was a minister, and owing to the difficulty of making arrangements for burial the funeral did not take place until dark, and as we had no lanterns with us, therefore it was neccessary to proceed slowly. As the last mellow twilight was fading in the west and darkness was settling over the land, the ghostly procession moved out upon the river. Three boats carried the coffins and burial party. There were no mourners and no minister and as we neared the newly plotted cemetery the boats were drawn to the shore and relieved of their ghastly burden. Another young man and myself carried the coffin of the minister, each taking one end of the coffin, I walking backward with my end, in the darkness, tumbled and fell, the coffin of the dead minister falling on top of me. After some hard work we reached the spot selected as a burial site on a sandy bluff overlooking the Carribean Sea. The sand was so very fine that the grave caved in as soon as any one came near, and we found it necessary to hoist the dead out of the graves, several times, in order to do a good job of the first burial of Port Burchard. During a recent trip to the coast, five of us discovered a paradise in the shape of two of the most entrancingly beautiful and lovely islands ever explored by civilized man. Ebon Lagoon is an inland water of about eight miles in length by six in breadth, and surrounded by a strip of cocoanut covered sand on the north, which divides the lagoon from the sea, and on the south, by a verdant range of mountains. In the center of this sheet of water are situated some very pretty isles. The main island contains about two hundred acres; the other is smaller but equally beautiful. They are covered with dense flower vines, wild Bermas, immense rubber trees and thousands of curious plants, for which, I have no name. We then and there determined to pre-empt the two islands in a few years, when we expect to sell them to Chicago millionaires.

Yours Truly,
JAS. A. SHADE.

A Bad Citizen.

Joe Hartman, who resides in the south part of Jackson township has for some time been considered a tough citizen, at least when drunk, which often happened to be the case. He has at times, had trouble with various people, especially making himself obnoxious to his wife's folks, her brother, Simeon Maurer, in particular. He is the same man who handled Tom. Somers so roughly a year or so ago. For a time, off and on, he has been very rough in his family, and when in liquor, very abusive and brutal. Last week, on Wednesday, his wife went to see her mother, who lives with Simeon Maurer, and Joe was to come with the team and bring her home that evening. But he did not come till the next evening, Thursday. Then he came to Maurer's at dark, with his team, a very wild team of ponies, and ordered his wife to get ready and go home with him. As it was quite dark, and she was afraid to ride after the team, and as he was plainly drunk, she objected. But he would not be put off, and she finally concluded to leave the oldest child at Mr. Maurer's and take the other, a babe along, and go with him. On getting to the wagon, she asked him to turn around before she got in, as she was afraid the team would upset them in turning. This seemed to anger him, and he began cursing her, and calling hard names, telling her to get in, or he would "paralyze her." This frightened her, and she started back, meeting her brother at the door, who told her she did not have to go if she did not choose. This enraged Joe, who started for Maurer, swearing he would "kill him," "cut his d—d heart out," etc. Mr. Maurer got away from him, and kept out of sight at first, but finding there was going to be trouble, he went over to a neighbor's, and got help. Three men, were soon there, Mr. Ervin, Mr. Hobel and Mr. Sponhower. As Hartman was so violent, the women were afraid of him, they, Mrs. Hartman and a sister of Mr. Maurer, locked themselves in one of the rooms, and Mrs. Maurer was there a part of the time. Knowing Hartman's dangerous character, and in view of the threats he had made, Maurer concluded to have him arrested. So leaving the three men to protect the women, he came up to Auburn, consulted deputy-prosecutor Garwood, went before 'Squire Walborn, and swore out a warrant charging Hartman with assault with intent to kill. Deputy-Sheriff Blum went home with him to make the arrest. They found that after Maurer had left the house, Hartman had become still more violent. He assaulted Ervin, striking him on the head inflicting a bad cut, from which blood flowed freely. He jerked his wife around savagely, and assaulted Mr. Maurer's sister, who is in poor health, being just able to get about after having the grip. He would doubtless have done them serious harm, but was prevented by the three men. Finally when he assaulted Miss Maurer, they went for him, threw him down and tied him. In this condition the deputy-sheriff and Mr. Maurer found him when they got there. He had by that time partly cooled off, but had given them to understand, that if he did not get sent up too long, he would be back, and kill all who had a hand in the trouble. Mr. Blum brought him to town, and the next day he was brought up before 'Squire Walborn. Mr. and Mrs. Maurer, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin and others testified to the facts we have stated, and Joe himself admitted them. He was bound over to court in $250, and failing to get bail, went to jail. His wife, although afraid of him, broke down, at the thought of his going to jail, to be followed perhaps by a term in prison. For the first time he showed some feeling, but not much, though he shook hands with her as he left, while she wept bitterly. It was a sad sight, and one we do not care to see again soon. Mrs. Hartman and her people are respected citizens and feel keenly this affliction.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1859—Continued.

One will look in vain in the DeKalb Times or Democrat, the New Era or the Waterloo Press for patent insides or associated press dispatches. The sheets were small; the four pages were all home-set and the annual President's Message involved much labor and delayed issue.

In the make up, personalities were common that would not now be tolerated, a brief story on the first page was not unusual, and political discussion national and county were fiercely aggressive. Business sagacity was evidenced by numerous and well framed advertisements occupying much of the limited space in the sheet. "Padding" was unknown and paid locals were far in the future.

At Auburn, the DeKalb County Times lacked advertisements, but when the paper appeared on the first Thursday in February, 1859 as the Waterloo Press, it abounded in them, and the fact spoke volumes for the people of the young village scarcely exceeding 200 inhabitants.

It was truthfully said that reiterated predictions of its failure, as predecessors and a greater number of later ventures of like character have failed, was perhaps one of the strongest incentives to its continuance under most disheartening circumstances, in the resolute mind of Mr. Dickinson and later proprietors of the paper.

The story of a printer's life editing a village newspaper has never been written but when a future Howell takes this for his theme, it will be seen that heroism may be in the little hand press office of a man struggling for maintenance of his family as well as in other now familiarly known arenas of illy, compensated toil.

The Press has been regularly issued from the beginning, excepting an interruption of a few issues when the office was undergoing a change of ownership, and one issue when the original establishment was destroyed by fire.

Patronage from the first has steadily kept pace with growth of population until the office became not only self-supporting but a source of income to its fortunate owners.

The Press never rested upon gratuitous support but based its success upon the resources of its own business facilities. Subject to no control, save that of its proprietors it has an enviable record for high moral tone, and for uniform advocacy of the developement of all material interests of the people of DeKalb county, with whom their lot was cast in early childhood.

After three years experience in publishing the DeKalb County Democrat, the deaths and resurrections of which title, exceeds that of most newspapers, Mr. McGonigal gave up the losing struggle and in the early fall of 1859 removed his establishment to Wabash and, for brief time, Auburn was again without a newspaper and parties without an organ.

A few months later, a stock company was formed for the publication of a Democratic newspaper at the county seat. The members of this association were John Ralston, Samuel W. Sprott, Christopher P Hare, Stiefel & Wolf, James B. Morrison, George Kuhlman and possibly one or two others and all well known citizens of that time.

Mr. Kuhlman was chosen to act as editor and general manager and on Wednesday Nov. 22, the first issue of the New Era was published. The motto of this fresh aspirant for popular favor, "Do right and let the consequences take care of themselves" was excellent in theory and expression, whatever the result of practice and strong politcal bias appeared in many a severely personal and partizan article.

About the last of June or the first of July, 1860, Mr. Kuhlman, a novice at the business of publisher, signified to the stockholders his desire to be relieved of his connection with the paper and thereupon his resignation was accepted and the company tendered the management to Joseph C. Loveland and accompanied their proposal with an offer of the entire stock to be paid at his convenience.

Loveland was then not of age; he was ambitious and he was flattered by the compliment. The offer was promptly accepted and the new editor took charge of the paper, but finding the labor of editing onerous, he secured the services of James Brinkerhoff to conduct the editorial department, beginning the first week in January, 1861, and reduced the size of the paper.

In this connection, T. Y. Dickinson publisher of the Waterloo Press, had this to say: "In James Brinkerhoff, Esq. we recognize a gentleman and a writer of more than ordinary ability" and the courteous expression reflects honor upon the one as well as fitly represented the other.

The editorial arrangement was of short duration and upon the retirement of Mr. Brinkerhoff, sole control was assumed by Loveland who continued the publication.

In this connection Loveland had this to say: "It was on the eve of a great presidential campaign, the result of which shook the American Republic from center to circumference, that the little newspaper was started. Following election came the great civil war and the New Era continued successfully in the face of opposition with one or two temporary suspensions and a change of title in 1853, to the Observer and Reporter, until the close of the war.

As an illustration of the temper of the people of the time, we remember in the issue of the New Era immediately following the assault upon Ft. Sumpter that we pitched into President Buchanan for his temerity and apathy in not sending relief to Major Anderson and his gallant band of heroes, that in twenty-four hours after the edition left the office our list diminished one hundred names but subsequently the greater part of our prematurely angered patrons returned and remained with us to the last. It required no small amount of moral courage to print a newspaper and keep off the rocks in those troublous times."

By order of the commissioners at their December session, one copy each of the New Era and Waterloo Press were ordered to be taken by the county auditor for future use. These papers bound were placed on file and could be found until recently in the office of the county recorder. The bound copy of the New Era has disappeared, but the Press from Dec. 1860 and the COURIER from 1871, neatly bound are on file and from these, in fragments may yet be gathered knowledge of events in the county and at the county seat.

ALMOST A HOLOCAUST.

INDIANA FEMALE REFORMATORY IN ASHES.

The Prohibition Convention—Hurled Forty Feet—Half a Town Burned—Laborers Crushed to Death—Lima Bank in Trouble.

ANOTHER FIRE.

Indiana Female Reformatory in Ashes.

Indianapolis was visited by another startling fire and it was feared for a while that it would prove another catastrophe equal to the surgical institute.

The State Female Reformatory took fire from a stove in the laundry and in half an hour was completely wrapped in flames. It contained 204 inmates, most of whom were locked in their rooms when the fire started. By heroic efforts of the matron and attendants all were released and got out of the building in safety. Among them were seven who were confined in the hospital. They were given shelter in the neighboring residences.

The released prisoners ran screaming in every direction as soon as they got out, doubling the confusion and excitement usual at such times. While the firemen were busy with the flames the police force was called on to gather in the prisoners. About 150 of them were found at the fire or in the vicinity, but the other fifty-two got away and only two have been re-captured. They were corraled for the night in the Criminal Court room. The loss by fire is about $60,000, with $50,000 insurance.

Dreadful Accident at Milwaukee.

Seven Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul workmen lost their lives in the Milwaukee yards recently. The Watertown Accomodation, bound for Milwaukee, and the shop employes' train from Merrill were running side by side on parallel tracks, when the former dashed through an open switch and struck the first car of the shop train overturning it and the two following cars. The engine and baggage car of the accommodation train were thrown into the ditch, but the passenger coaches kept the rails and the passengers escaped with a violent shaking up. Of the 100 workmen in the three overturned cars seven were killed instantly, one was seriously injured and twelve were badly hurt.

The accident was caused by the carelessness of a switching crew. Bartels, the foreman, gave himself up to the police. He said there was no excuse for the accident. He simply forgot to close the switch.

Over $2,000,000 Indemnities Asked of the Chilian Government.

Thirty-four claims have been filed at the State Department in addition to the cases of Riggin and Turnbull, for injuries alleged to have been sustained by American sailors during the recent riot at Valparaiso. The total amount asked of the Chilian Government is $2,065,000, and the individual claims range from $30,000 up to $150,000. There still remain six seamen who will file claims, and these with the heirs of Riggin and Turnbull constitute a total of forty-two claims who ask almost two million and a half dollars. The lowest claims made are for false imprisonment and light injuries, the damage being placed at $30,000 in each case.

Hurled Forty Feet.

David Burke, an aged inmate of the County Infirmary at Muncie, Ind., made a very miraculous escape from instant death at Selma, Ind. In driving across the Big Four railway track he did not notice the east-bound southwestern limited express until the engine struck his buggy. The horse had got off of the track and escaped, the buggy was torn from the horse and completely demolished, while Burke was thrown about forty feet into the air, over the telegraph wires, and will die from internal injuries.

The Prohibition Convention.

At a meeting of the local committee of the Prohibition party it was stated that St. Louis would only contribute $1,000 for the National Prohibition Convention. The National Committee asks $5,000, but that sum is considered exorbitant and the local sentiment is that if the National Committee is not satisfied with the offer of $1,000 they are at liberty to hold their convention where they please. It is said that Cincinnati has guaranteed $5,000 and it is believed the convention will go to that city.

Signed the Behring Sea Agreement.

Secretary Blaine and Minister Pauncefote have signed the agreement which has been reached between the United States and Great Britain on the Behring Sea question. The exact terms of the treaty cannot now be stated, but it is known that the Board of Arbitration will consist of seven persons, two representing the United States, two representing Great Britain, one of whom is to be a Canadian, and one each representing the neutral governments of France, Sweden and Italy.

Stabbed in a Love Quarrel.

Fred Messinger, a prominent young man of Leavenworth, Kas., was fatally stabbed by James McLaughlin, a well-known local sport. The young men attended a revival meeting and became involved in a quarrel over a young lady, who was also in attendance. The tragedy followed.

Lima Bank in Trouble.

The Lima National Bank of Lima, Ohio, has passed into the hands of the Comptroller of the Currency. President Faurot says his financial embarrassment is due to unfortunate railway investments. Faurot was President of the Columbus, Lima and Milwaukee Railroad Company, and the leading citizen of Lima, but operations in the southwest lost him a million dollars.

Half the Town Burned.

Danville (Ga.) special: Information was received here of a fire at Hillsville, the county seat of Carroll County, which is said to have destroyed half the town.

All Torn Up.

At Delaware, Ohio, Jacob Horn, son of John Horn, a Big Four engineer, fell from a coal car. The right arm between the shoulder and elbow was horribly stripped of the flesh, the muscles being torn loose from the shoulder. The bone of the arm was laid perfectly bare, and his shoulder and head were badly bruised and cut. The left thigh-bone was also fractured and the left hand badly torn. The mutilated body of the poor boy, who suffered excruciating pain every minute, presented a pitiful sight, as it was borne home to the grief-stricken mother. The father was absent on his regular run. Dr. Hedges, the Big Four physician, dressed the wounds, but grave fears are entertained for the mutilated arm, and it is feared amputation will be necessary from the bone drying up.

MOB RULE.

A Terrible Bread Riot in Berlin.

Berlin special: That the spirit of discontent is spreading with alarming force among the masses of the German Empire was exemplified here, when a body of 3,000 or 4,000 unemployed workmen met by preconcerted arrangement in a public square and passed a series of inflammatory resolutions denouncing their employers and the system of government which enabled the latter to crush the workingman beneath the iron heel of capital, and calling upon the government to take steps to protect the interests of the working classes.

They formed in line and marched toward the Kaiser's castle. They had nearly reached the castle gates when a detachment of police suddenly threw themselves between the rioters and the castle and made a determined charge upon the head of the workingmen's column.

The latter, for a moment or so, nerved by the roaring cheers of thousands, bravely and stubbornly withstood the attacks of the police, and, pressed onward by those in the rear, actually managed to gain headway and to beat back the powerful police department. The latter, however, rallied, and, hitting furiously right and left, wounded scores upon scores of workmen who fell bleeding beneath the feet of the officers of the law.

As darkness came on the mob increased in number and grew more dangerous in temper. The various bands must have numbered several thousands. They had no organized leadership, but they held virtual possession of the eastern quarters of Berlin, especially of Frankfurter and Weissenberger street.

In Gruenweig Strasse the mob attacked the houses and shops demanding bread and beer. They pillaged the bake shops and divided the bread among all who wanted it. The half famished people seized and devoured the food with a wolfishness which was eloquent of their misery and hunger. Some men left the mob and hurried home with loaves in their arms, to their starving families. Others sat down on the street and banqueted on the spoils.

Meantime the conflict raged between the police and the mob, the former gradually gaining ground. The police were directed with much judgment and skill, their instructions being to aim for the capture, or, if necessary, the killing of those who appeared to be leaders. This they carried out, and as fast as one who seemed to be a ringleader was taken he was hurried away to prison.

In this way the mob was kept disorganized and prevented from forming in any formidable group. Large numbers were wounded, more or less severely, but it it is not known at this moment whether any one was killed or not. A multitude of prisoners were taken and lodged under a strong guard in the cells.

CONSTITUTIONAL.

The McKinley Tariff Act So Declared by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The McKinley tariff act was declared to be constitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States, in a decision rendered by Justice Harlan. The cases on which the decision was based were those of Marshall Field of Chicago, and of New York merchants, who protested against the payment of duties on certain woolen dress goods and other importations on the ground that the McKinley bill was not a legal and constitutional enactment by reason of the omission from the enrolled of the tobacco rebate clause, agreed to in the conference and contained in the bill when it passed both houses. The Court holds this omission does not make the bill illegal. It also holds that the reciprocity and sugar bounty sections of the bill are constitutional. It was contended that the reciprocity section was unconstitutional because it delegated legislative powers to the executive. The Chief Justice and Justice Lamar dissented from the opinion of the Court. They contended that the legislative function was delegated to the President by the act.

LOST AT SEA!

Fifty-five Passengers Drowned.

London special: A fearful disaster involving a loss of about fifty-five lives, has occurred in the North Sea, of the coast of Yorkshire, England. The full details have not yet been received. It appears from brief dispatches that the two British steamships, the Forest Queen and the Loughbrow, came into collision, near the promontory known as Flambough Head, which rises, with the lighthouse that crowns it, to a height of 214 feet above the North Sea. The collision appears to have come without the slightest warning. The two vessels crashed together, the bow of the Loughbrow cutting the Forest Queen in two. In an instant almost without a cry the Forest Queen sank, and every soul on board, passengers and crew to the number of fifty-five with one exception, were drowned. The captain of the Forest Queen being on deck at the time appears to have been pulled on board the Loughbrow. The latter vessel, while considerably injured, is not hurt enough to sink her. Great excitement reigns at Flambough Head, and assistance has been sent to the scene of the wreck.

GOV. McKINLEY

Asks Aid for the Russian Famine Sufferers.

Gov. McKinley has issued a proclamation to the people of Ohio calling their attention to the widespread famine in the Empire of Russia and its 20,000,000 of starving sufferers. He says: "No other country in the world is enjoying such prosperity as the United States, and no State is more blessed than Ohio. The cry of humanity for bread should be generously responded to by the American people. As the Governor of the State I hereby officially call attention to the great calamity and to the organized efforts to relieve the starving Russian peasants in confidence that the people of the commonwealth will bountifully contribute. I appeal to the various mercantile bodies, religious and charitable organizations, and to the people of Ohio individually, to put themselves in communication with the Russian Famine Relief Committee, 732 Fourteenth street, Washington, D. C., which organization is working in harmony with the American National Red Cross Society in gathering and transporting supplies."

CONSPIRACY THWARTED.

A Bold Attempt on the Life of the Czar of Russia.

St. Petersburg special: It is learned that conspirators attempted to murder the Czar while he was on his way to the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul and situated on an island in the River Neva, upon the occasion of the funeral on January 29, last, of the Grand Duke Constantine, the uncle of the Czar. The conspirators, it would seem, planned to kill the Czar while he was on the way to the cathedral, but were arrested before they could carry out the plot. A number of military and several civil officers, two of whom have since committed suicide, are said to have been connected in the conspiracy. Twenty students, several minor officers of the Government and a number of other people are under arrest, charged with being concerned, either directly or indirectly, with the latest attemt to kill the Czar. The news of the discovery of this plot has been carefully kept from the Czarina, whose health is said to be so delicate that any severe shock might prove fatal to her mind if it did not cause her death.

The New Party's Candidate.

A special from Cincinnati contains an interview with A. W. Wright, a member of the National Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, in which Mr. Wright is reported as saying that the presidential candidate of the third party has already been decided upon. The dispatch further states that it is learned that Judge Walter Q. Gresham is the man. Judge Gresham was interviewed by a reporter, but would only reply "I don't know," when asked if it was true he was to be the candidate chosen by the third party. He made the same reply when asked if he would accept such a nomination, and refused to talk further on the subject.

Progress on World's Fair Buildings.

Chicago special: Four thousand five hundred men have been employed in the World's Fair grounds during the present week. This is the largest force since the building began. There has been an increased force of carpenters on the electricity, manufacturers', machinery, and agricultural buildings and the force of interior coverers has been increased, and the gang of iron men on the manufacturers' and machinery buildings has swelled the number. The first steel truss on machinery hall was placed this week. These trusses are 100 feet high, span 130 feet, and weigh 90,000 pounds. There will be forty-five of them.

A Mysterious Letter.

The postoffice authorities at Manchester, N. H., are engaged in unraveling a mystery. Shortly before New Years a letter was mailed to a lady in Franklin. It was made up of letters from a newspaper and so arranged as to read: "Will you be convinced? Wish you a happy New Year." It contained a large sum of money in United States greenbacks. The lady to whom it was addresed refused to receive it and it was sent to the Dead Letter Office, whence it was forwarded here for investigation. Unless its sender appears, the money will be turned into the National Treasury.

Took the Keeley Cure.

Cheyenne (Wyo.) special: Edward Chaffee, a prominent merchant of Fort Collins, Col., came here to take the Keeley cure for alcoholism. The other night he got up in his sleep and walked out of a second story window of the institute, fracturing his skull. Chaffee, contrary to most patients, quit drinking whisky immediately after he took the first injection of bi-chloride and it is thought he became slightly demented under the influence of the medicine. Chaffee was for five years chief clerk in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, and was widely known.

A $200,000 Fire.

Fire started in Mather Brothers' wholesale grocery, Albany, N. Y., and spread to the surrounding property. For some time it was feared that the famous Stanwix Hall would be destroyed, but the firemen, after a hard fight, got the flames under control. Business places burned were: Mather Bros., Babcock, Shannon & Co., Van Slyck & Horton, Banks Bros., and B. S. Ledger. Total loss, $200,000.

A Kentucky Feud.

Frank McKeiver and Thomas Sanders became involved in a quarrel over an old family feud in Caldwell County, Kentucky, when the latter was shot and instantly killed by McKeiver, who claims the deed was done in self-defense. He was placed in jail to await his trial in the Circuit Court.

General Garza.

San Antonio special: Alenjandro Gonzales, who is now here, is very desirous of negotiating with the federal military authorities for the surrender of his son-in-law Catario Garza, the revolutionist, into their hands. He made a proposition through his attorney which will not be considered.

Boiler Explosion.

An explosion of a stationary boiler occurred at the S., F. & W. railroad roundhouse at Savannah, Ga., killing four men and wounding others. The debris was scattered all over the city.

New York Republicans.

The New York Republican State Committee has decided to hold the State Convention for the election of delegates to the National Convention at Albany on April 27.

Fire in a Minnesota Town.

Fifteen business houses at Hot Springs, Minn., including the new syndicate stone block in which the postoffice was located, were burned. Total loss, $75,000; insurance, $20,000.

A Receiver Appointed.

As a result of the street car strike at Indianapolis, W. T. Steel has been appointed receiver of the Citizens Street Car Company, and the strike ended immediately.

Ryan-Needham Fight Off.

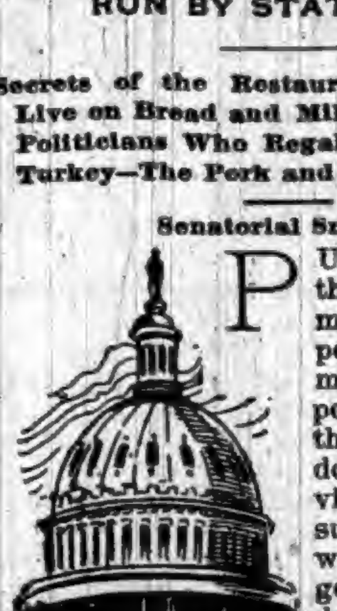
WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

THE GAMUT OF GASTRONOMY RUN BY STATESMEN.

Secrets of the Restaurant—Solons Who Live on Bread and Milk—Distinguished Politicians Who Regale Themselves on Turkey—The Pork and Bean Eaters.

Senatorial Snacks.

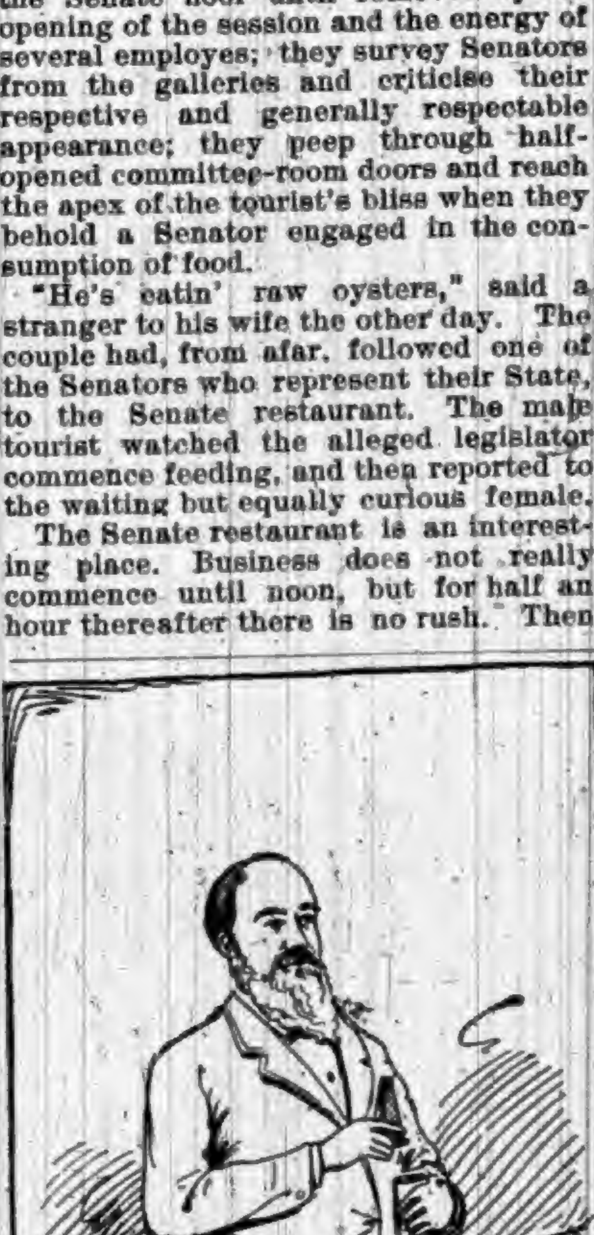


"PUT a knife to thy throat if thou be a man given to appetite," said Solomon. Some of the people who live in this year of grace do not think the advice good. Neither suicide nor eating with a knife is good form in these days. It must be evident even to the casual visitor at the Senate restaurant that the wise man was not addressing his remarks to United States Senators. No self-respecting Senator ever allows his knife to get within a foot of his jugular. Members of the House may, perhaps, elevate their pork and beans to the mouth level without the assistance of a fork, but the dignified Senator never permits the glittering steel greater altitude than the third button on his vest. The day for eating with your knife was cut short by that happy invention—the four-pronged fork.

Popular interest in Senators increases in a greater ratio than does the number of those more or less distinguished legislators. The thousands of visitors who daily tramp through and around and about the Capitol delight in prying into the senatorial existence; they occupy the Senate floor until removed by the opening of the session and the energy of several employes; they survey Senators from the galleries and criticise their respective and generally respectable appearance; they peep through half-opened committee-room doors and reach the apex of the tourist's bliss when they behold a Senator engaged in the consumption of food.

"He's eatin' raw oysters," said a stranger to his wife the other day. The couple had, from afar, followed one of the Senators who represent their State, to the Senate restaurant. The male tourist watched the alleged legislator commence feeding, and then reported to the waiting but equally curious female.

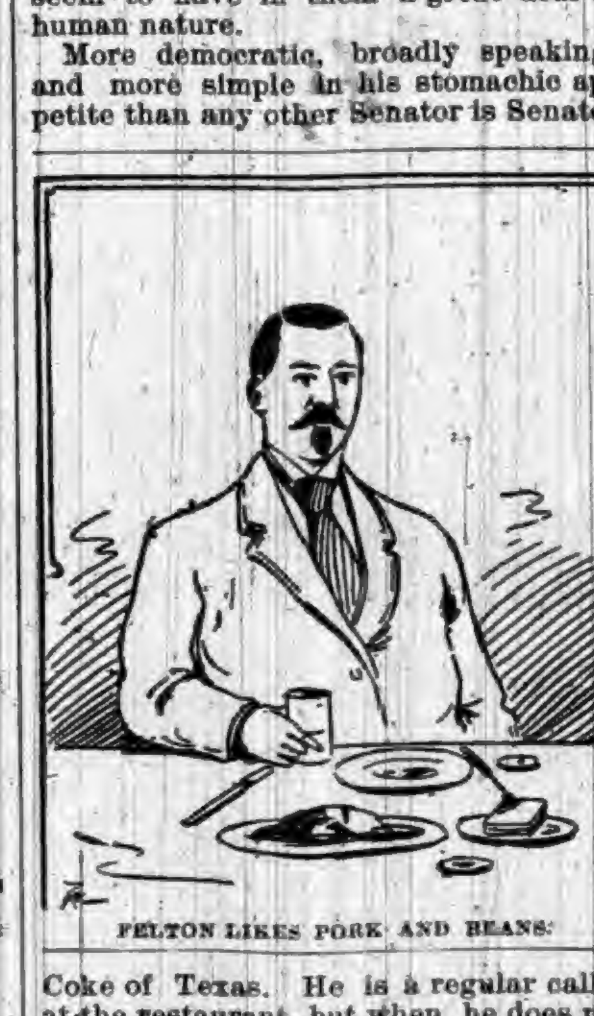
The Senate restaurant is an interesting place. Business does not really commence until noon, but for half an hour thereafter there is no rush. Then comes the crowd of hungry ones, and from 12:30 until after two o'clock the waiters hardly have time to perspire. Every table has its quota of occupants, and the string of humanity that leans up against the long counter is tolerably continuous. It is a good place to find almost any lost one, whether Senate or Senator employe, to say nothing of the liberal sprinkling of newspaper men who hurry in and out, combining the hasty pleasure of eating with the business of gathering information. To feed all these hungry ones Mr. Page has to employ about thirty people—twelve of them in the kitchen—and they all have reasonable opportunity to earn their recompense. Three dusky retainers attend to the customers at the lunch counter, transmit orders of waiters to the kitchen and hand out the tangible responses. Of these James Lewis is chief. He is invariably designated "Lewis," and he probably would not know that he was being spoken to if otherwise addressed. His business-like silence is as marked as his business-like ability.



SENATOR COKE IS A PIE EATER.

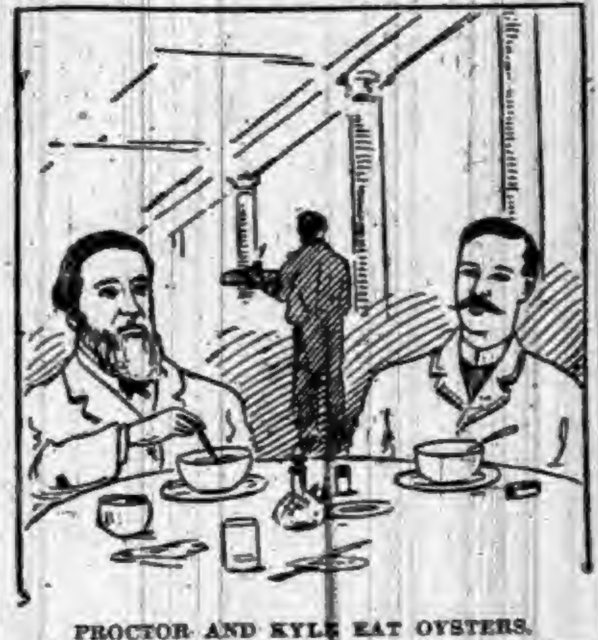
But it was not the average luncher that a Washington Star reporter became interested in. He had both eyes on Senators and on the men who do their bidding in the private dining-rooms—from Head Waiter Dick Shaw, portly, suave and solidly respectable, down to the latest of Mr. Page's appointees. There is abroad in the land a vague impression to the effect that Senators subsist principally on terrapin and champagne. It may be necessary to state that this impression is erroneous. Senators eat just about as do other men whose circumstances are on about the same financial level—they seem to have in them a great deal of human nature.

More democratic, broadly speaking, and more simple in his stomachic appetite than any other Senator is Senator Coke of Texas. He is a regular caller at the restaurant, but when he does put in an appearance his invariable desire is for pie—piece of pie and a glass of water. He might enjoy these life sustainers in the comparative privacy of the senatorial rooms, but he prefers to stand right up against the counter and there wash down large chunks of high-grade pie with the assistance of clear spring water. Senator Blair used to do the same thing, but he did it regularly and perhaps a little more stylishly; he always drank milk with his pie and the pie was either apple or custard. Many a good news paragraph has the author and finisher of the education bill given away while rubbing elbows with a newspaper correspondent at the restaurant counter. Mr. Blair's departure from the Senate leaves Senator Coke in undisputed possession of that counter.



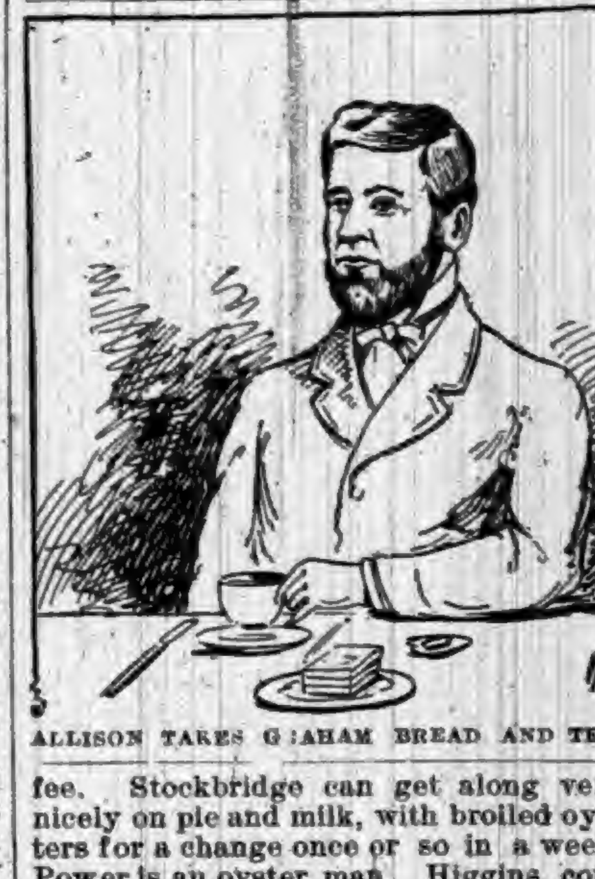
FELTON LIKES PORK AND BEANS.

But there are good feeders in the Senate and the kinds of luncheon they daily dispose of could not be served on the counter. Perhaps the most consistently "good" are Senators McMillan, Washburn, Hoar and Squire. McMillan and Washburn generally lunch together, and they eat steaks and chops and salads and such like solid goods. Senator Squire believes in the same sort of food. Senator Hoar once excited much popular commiseration by stating that codfish was his staple article of diet. That may be the main source of his nutriment at home, but in the Senate his tendencies are toward terrapin or broiled oysters; none of the waiters ever heard him mention codfish. Blackburn's favorite dish is deviled ham. Teller manages to get along very nicely with a modicum of cold tongue or corned beef. Sawyer is devoted to custard pie and milk; he likes a liberal sprinkling of cheese with his pie. Another lover of pie is Wilson; the variety is apple, and it must be hot. Frye believes broiled oysters to be satisfactory, but Stanford prefers lamb chops or calves' liver and bacon. Fulton is very fond of pork and beans. Sanders, like nearly all the other Northwestern Senators, consumes oysters; he likes them raw—the rawer the better. Davis lives well; sirloin steaks are his weakness. Manderson is also properly fed; oysters are a specialty, and a chafing dish stew is the favorite. Hawley consumes oysters. Allison thrives on graham bread toast and a pot of tea. Hale wants a bowl of custard and a glass of milk.



PROCTOR AND KYLE EAT OYSTERS.

Gorman figures out the moves on the national chess board while disposing of cold turkey. Harris has an affection for oysters that have been broiled. Vance eats but little. He is satisfied generally with a sandwich, a glass of milk and, sometimes, an apple. Faulkner devours the raw oyster; Blodgett, the sirloin steak. Cockrell is an infrequent visitor. He eats the simplest fare. McPherson is very regular on baked apple dumpling. Dawes delights in a corned beef sandwich and a glass of milk. Dolph wants, and gets, broiled oysters and custard pie. Mitchell loves oyster stew, Proctor eats oysters. So does Kyle. Palmer favors lamb chops. Brice leans toward oyster patties. Colquitt has three menus. Sometimes his choice is cold turkey, sometimes corned beef, sometimes a glass of milk and a bowl of custard. Ransom is of opinion that nothing is so good as quail on toast. Vice President Morton strengthens the inner man with raw or broiled oysters at times; occasionally he is satisfied with a piece of pie and a glass of milk. Sherman is a pie and milk enthusiast, but once in a while he tries raw oysters. Hill has been absent from the city most of the time since he left the gubernatorial chair at Albany; he has been in the restaurant, however, and his preference so far seems to be for cold turkey and a pot of coffee. Keen-witted political prophets may do well to note the fact that Gorman and Hill both eat cold turkey—turkey that might properly be termed "stuffed." Jones of Nevada swears by broiled black bass. Berry likes broiled oysters. Cameron has to have the largest raw oysters that are available; occasionally he partakes of a chafing-dish stew. Quay, like Gorman and Hill, is all right when supplied with cold trukey and coffee. Stockbridge can get along very nicely on pie and milk, with broiled oysters for a change once or so in a week. Power is an oyster man. Higgins consumes baked apples and cream. Wolcott keeps up his avoirdupois on hot roast turkey and broiled oysters. Casey smiles through the day with the help of raw or broiled oysters. Chilton, too, likes raw oysters. Shoup is a firm believer in the virtues of bread and milk. Dubois likes cold tongue or cold roast beef. Carlisle, who has not been around very much this session, is enamored of chops. Voorhees is a light eater; a sandwich is his average. White wants a good porterhouse steak and is supplied.



ALLISON TAKES GRAHAM BREAD AND TEA.

George indulges in broiled oysters and a glass of milk. Walthall is another oyster lover, and Warren and Carey are like-minded. Stewart pays Cashier Birns for a stew or a reasonable quantity of either corned beef or roast beef, cold; he drinks a pot of tea. Oyster stew is Turpie's favorite beverage. Paddock devotes himself to raw oysters or to baked apples with cream. Chandler lives well; a chafing-dish stew suits his complaint most days; occasionally he prefers a bowl of bread and milk. Pettigrew does not starve; he eats steak or chops. Hiscock is not a regular luncher; when he does go down he rarely eats anything but a bowl of bread and milk. Platt is a regular boarder; he, too, likes bread and milk, but not always; sometimes it is a bowl of custard or a select stew. Daniel eats raw oysters. So does Perkins. Likewise Vest. When Vest wants raw oysters he eats them at the oyster counter. When his appetite is not oyster struck he goes into the private dining-room and waits while a cook broils a large slice of cold roast beef. Very few of the Senators eat dessert when their luncheon is of the solid sort; very few of them have ladies to lunch with them.

THE New York Express intimates that there are 14,000 girls at work in that city simply to get more expensive clothes than could otherwise be afforded, and they are taking the place of boys who would make the occupations a life-work and pursue them to support others. The girl has crowded the boy to the wall.

It is understood that Lyon bought this property for a Massachusetts syndicate which will erect a large manufacturing plant and locate a town similar to Pullman, Ill., though what the nature of the plant will be can not be learned, as the sale has been kept rather quiet. That the sale is bona fide can not be questioned, as Lyon is one of the persons who helped secure the large stock-yards tract two years ago.

THE ROMANCE OF A HAUNTED HOUSE.

CHAPTER IV.

THE BEAUTIFUL PHANTOM.

I mechanically sought the door, and was startled, indeed, upon suddenly encountering Burton, who was leisurely pacing up and down the north balcony. He noticed my astonishment, laughingly, and motioned me to be seated upon the balcony railing.

"Did you enjoy yourself?" he asked.

"Yes," I replied, "I did; but whether I enjoyed a dream or a reality I cannot determine. Is this an enchanted house where a person is deluded into passing through all these things, or were those actually spirits gathered together on a festal occasion?"

"Those were the shades of the people who once lived here," replied Burton. "They were here to celebrate a popular family anniversary, and also to receive in becoming state a person, who, you have undoubtedly heard, is destined to work out an important mission in connection with the house."

"That means me, I presume," said I. "But what," I asked, "is this mission—this all mysterious mission—that I have heard referred to so many times within the past few hours?"

"It has been ordained that others should acquaint you with the necessary information," replied Burton. "Besides, the most mysterious part of the mission has been studiously kept secret from me. Everything will undoubtedly be made plain to you as you need to proceed."

The glorious prospect of the waking day, as the sun's great orb slowly crept out of the eastern void, fixed our attention and stayed our words for a spell, and we drank in the radiant effect in silence.

When the sun had crept up its length or so along the firmament, Burton arose and said that he must leave me for the day, as he had to go to a neighboring village on a business errand. He informed me that dinner would be ready for me at noon, and that if I got lonesome the old family library had a rich store of the wherewith to while away time. Then he wished me a pleasant morning and left me in charge of my mission.

For an hour or so I walked around the lonely old place. Sadly neglected had it been for years. Becoming tired at length of the dreadful dullness of the place, I sought the library, as Burton had directed. The door had been shut so long that it came open with difficulty, but finally yielded and I walked in.

The room was filled with easy chairs, writing desks and various-sized bookcases. Opening one of the latter, I drew forth a quaint little volume that had attracted my attention through the glass front, and opened it. A small parcel fell to the floor. I picked this up to see what it contained. A large white rose, dried and pressed from having been in the book, and musty with age, was disclosed; but from it even then issued a delicate fragrance that was charming to the sense. The stem of this rose was uniquely attached by a small blue ribbon to a thick piece of pretty note pape, upon the opposite side of which were written some verses, headed with the words, "To Zeyna," and signed by Burton Arold. I was so curious as to read these verses. They were as follows:

Of all the flowers, dear, that grow
 Up from the fertile sod,
The fragrant white rose is, I know,
 Sweet as the smile of God;
As sweet, Zeyna, thy nature true,
As sweet as thou, how few!

Then take this rose and wear it where
 'Twill catch the changing sheen
That darts along thy raven hair,
 Or glances bright between
The lashes of thy tender eyes
And on thy fair cheek lies.

Wear it love, where thy breath, twice sweet,
 Can kiss its fragrant leaves;
Look on't, then think, my dear, to meet
 Me 'neath the hanging eaves
Of the old rose-bower to-night,
Prepared for secret flight.

I fell to musing upon this little relic of Burton's courtship, which had been cut short, so he had told me, by the death of Zeyna. But I was disturbed presently by a slight step upon the floor. Startled, I looked up.

Angel of light! Dream of spiritual loveliness! Was heaven at hand, and was the queen thereof standing within the gates? Thus I, indeed, thought for the moment.

I had seen beauty before in this wonderful world, both upon the painter's canvas and in reality; I have seen it since: I had seen it the night before among the apparitions of the spiritual revelry; but may the beings that people paradise be one-half so lovely as the radiant spirit maiden who stood so divinely there in that ancient and dusty library.

My wildest, most indulged flights of imagination were eclipsed in that face and form. I knelt in an ecstasy of reverence in the presence. Majestic and queenly, with a slight halo about the head; long, loosely flowing tresses; a pale, sweet, pure face; tender, lustrous eyes, that seemed to melt the very soul with sympathy and rapture; a divinely perfect form, molded exquisitely within the transparent folds of a great zephyry mantle of pure white—thus stood the spirit before me!

I endeavored to speak but the phantom placed a finger upon her lips and shook her head.

Turning out of the room, and beckoning me to follow, she flitted down the hall, through several bare rooms, then into a small office in a wing of the building. Here she stopped by the side of a narrow door which she motioned me to open. It led us into a vault, set in the side of which was a rusty iron box, with its door partly ajar. The phantom signified a desire to have this opened, and with the aid of an iron bar that I found upon the floor I pried the door back. A roll of parchment fell out. I started to open this, but she shook her head, and placing her finger against the dark side of the vault, traced, in pale phosphorescent letters, that faded away almost as fast as she wrote, this sentence: "My intrusting to you this paper is a part of your preordained fate: it is a part of your mission here; do not open it until you are well acquainted with the object of the mission." With this she bowed her thanks and vanished.

CHAPTER V.

THE INVESTIGATORS.

I hurried back out of the vault, for it was a cold, dismal place, and locking in my traveling valise the document intrusted to me, sought the open air just in time to see a posse of men ride up on horseback. They were all booted and spurred, and wore broad slouch hats, after the accepted Louisiana fashion. They were also armed with carbines and pistols, and were determined-looking men. They rode directly up to the front door, and seemed greatly abashed to see a live person upon the premises. The leader, who introduced himself as the sheriff and the rest as all officers of the parish, from the parish capital, asked me if I was the man of the house. I replied that I was simply a visitor at the villa, and that I knew of no living head of the establishment. They inquired as to how long I had been there, and if I had noticed anything out of the way about the place. I answered that I had arrived but the night before and that nothing particularly bad had occurred as yet.

Then a long conversation ensued, in which I learned that several of the officers were heavy land owners and that they were so unfortunate as to be in possession of many acres adjoining the Montinni estate, which land could not be sold for a penny on account of its nearness to the villa, which was generally believed to be a cursed and haunted place. They said that they would like to search the house to see for themselves if any supernatural agencies infested it, and if there were any noticeable grounds for the wild reports current throughout the community, if I would grant them permission. This I did, as I had no authority or inclination to do otherwise. We all entered the house together, the sheriff and myself leading. We had hardly got half way down the hall when the gentleman who bore the distinction of being parish clerk felt his carbine eluding his grasp, and, almost overwhelmed with amazement and fear, saw it leave his shoulder and retire swiftly to the door, where it seemed to be held by an invisible somebody standing on guard. As he was too frightened to speak, and as the others did not notice the mishap a panic was avoided.

On they trudged through the rooms, inspecting each closely; then through the cellar vaults, but no trace of ghost did we find, although as one of the officers remarked, it was gloomy enough to breed ghosts by the hundreds.

Upstairs, on one side of the hall, the rooms were all locked. The sheriff felt a curiosity to look into these. Taking a skeleton key from his pocket he tried the first one of the doors. The key turned in the lock and he was just pulling the door open when a strong light flashed from within, blinding all for a moment, during which time the door was closed, locked and the key thrust back into the Sheriff's hand by, to them, an invisible agency, but to me the agency appeared distinctly in the fair form of the phantom lady, who, pointing to the row of doors, gave a warning look.

Turning to the officers I told them that the just enacted revelation was sufficient evidence that those doors were not to be opened at the present time, and that perhaps it would not be well to persist in the investigation. And they seemed to agree with me, judging from their blanched faces.

Ah, human bravery and cowardice! how often dost thou live side by side in one heart! These seven men, four of whom were veterans of two wars and distinguished for their bravery in battle, there in that room where there was no danger at all, stood pale as the specters themselves, silent as statues, trembling, speechless, in abject fear. I watched them curiously for a moment. Presently faint rappings sounded on all the locked doors, and a dense vapor began to obscure the hallway. One man let his carbine drop to a rest upon the floor, and at the noise thus made every honorable officer started as if awakened from a troubled sleep, and in concert, as if inspired with a sudden madness, they gave a wild, crazy yell and fled down the stairs and down into the outer air as if the legions of Tophet had been let loose at their heels. Panic-stricken, they hurriedly mounted and spurred their astonished animals to their full powers of speed down the road.

Thus men otherwise brave and perhaps heroic are sometimes frightened out of their wits by one little supernatural sign. It is natural that this should be; so you and I are not surprised, and hold them in no contempt for it.

Soon nothing could be seen of the investigators but the cloud of dust their precipitate flight had stirred up, and I turned into the house and repaired to the dining-room, where I found a good lunch spread for me. Having eaten to my satisfaction, I concluded that I would spend the rest of the day sauntering about the fields and looking at the country.

CHAPTER VI.

THE OLD NEGRO'S STORY

About a half mile above the house there was a shady valley with a slight bluff upon one side. This had attracted my attention, and after I had eaten my lunch I started forthwith to explore in that direction.

At the edge of this valley I noticed a little, badly weather-beaten shanty, upon a stool in front of which an aged negro was sitting, playing snatches of jigs and tournabouts on a dilapidated old banjo. I took it into my head to interview the old man, and stepping up to him accosted him with, "Hell, uncle!"

Never shall I forget the amazed look of that patriarch as he started up in response to my salute.

He then stopped his twanging banjo and sat as one dumb, for a moment; then jumping up, ran to me and clasping both arms about me, cried between sobs and laughter:

"Lor' bress y' Massa Man'l, dey tol' me yo' wus dead an' burried in d' grabe ya'd down dah, an' Ise dun kep yo' grabe green fur fefteen yeah!"

That I who had been born and reared in the North, and knew but little of the glory of owning slaves, should be addressed as "Massa," was queer enough; but to be thus warmly fawned upon by a strange darky, and earnestly told that my grave had been kept green for fifteen years, was startling indeed. Of course, I immediately saw that the venerable black had simply made a mistake in identity. As he insisted on continuing to go into ecstasies over me and to allude to me as his "own good Massa Man'l," I had to shake him away and explain to him his error. He seemed very reluctant to accept the truth and was really disappointed. After I had convinced him that I was not his deceased master come to life, no matter how closely I might resemble that gentleman, we had a long talk concerning the Villa Montinni. I learned from him that his master had been one of the younger El Muzas; also that the El Muzas, and another family, the El Zegals, who had been in partnership with the Montinnis, and had made their home at the villa for many years, were Spaniards of Moorish ancestry, descendants of princes of the Alhambra, and were very proud of the purity of their lineage.

The old negro's views of the haunted house were queer. He held the idea that all the doors, pieces of furniture, etc., were animated with life and could move around just as they chose. He had seen them move back out of the way, exchange places, etc., but did not seem to understand the fact that they were manipulated by invisible hands. His common negro instinct gave him a terror of ghosts, but notwithstanding this he had frequently ventured into the old house in the day time. Only once had he beheld a spiritual manifestation, and then he fell down upon his face and prayed for mercy, for he thought that his time to perish had come; but his fear had turned to rapture when he beheld the fair face of the phantom lady fixed in the air before him. He thought she was an angel come to take him to the promised blessedness.

"I tell yo' wat it am, massa," he said, "when I seed dat spirit lady I knowed as 'twuz de Senorita El Zegal—Zeyna wuz 'er fust name—as died wid 'er heart breaked kos de ol' folks parted her frum de chap she lub. Y' see de chap's mudder, as wuz a El Muza, an' married a Englishman, wuz dezurted by 'er husban' an' de folks wouldn't belieb in de legwality ob de marriage, so dey wouldn't let de son court de gal. De las' time de chap could get to see 'er he don' gib 'er a big w'ite rose an' a papah wid somethin' writ on it, an' aftah he went away she read de writin' an' kiss de rose an' cried. I knowed dat it wuz forbid dat dey see each udder aftah dat. Den de young lady as wuz lubbed by ebrybody took sick an' died an' wuz laid away. I digged de grabe. I knowed jis whar dat young chap pick dat w'ite rose, an' I goed an' dig up de bush an' sot it out on de head ob de grabe, for I knowed dat de young lady wuz a angel an' would look down from hebben an be glad an' like ol' Ben for puttin' dat rose-bush dah. When I seed 'er face in de haunted house I thought dat my time to go had come an' dat she had come to lead me up to hebben. But laws! massa, I hab libbed foah yeah since dat time! She jis don' han' me a noospapah an' say: 'If a gemmen eber come to yo' frum dis house dat puts yo' in min' ob somebody dat am dead an' dat yo' used to like to serve, han' dis papah to him for it has news in what he as udders will be concerned.' An' den she don' vanished."

Another point had come in my destined work. I knew that I was the person to whom the newspaper in question was to be given.

"Ben," I said, "do you remember that I came from the haunted house, and that you mistook me for a person whom you once delighted to serve? That paper is for me. You must let me see it by all means. It may do a power of good."

Concerning Accidents.

The collection of large groups of facts about accidents, which has been made necessary by the development of accident insurance, has made a contribution to one department of social science that is by no means uninteresting. For instance, says a writer in the Forum, it is a curious fact that a man is much more likely to lose his left hand than his right hand, or his left eye than his right eye. Statistics show, too, that when a man insures himself against accidents he thereby greatly diminishes the risk of accident—and this is probably explained in this way: When a man's attention is called to danger he fixes his mind on it, and thereby consciously or unconsciously makes unusual effort to avert it. It therefore often happens that a man is more likely to be the victim of an accident of a kind that he never thought of than of the kind against which he insures himself. A man, for instance, who handles sharp tools will insure himself against an accident from the use of them, and the first thing he knows he will be drawing pay from an insurance company for an injury done by getting a cinder in his eye. Not only are such odd and curious facts as these brought to light by the development of accident insurance but a great many important groups of facts which bear upon the habits of men and the development of civilization. For instance, accidents are much more common in sparsely settled portions of the country than in densely settled portions, and they happen more frequently in the middle of winter and in the middle of summer than in the other seasons of the year.

The Temperament of Genius.

An eminent litterateur, who like other journalists seems in the season of the big gooseberry—the season, too, described by a leading publisher as the dullest on record—to suffer from lack of matter for his monthly gossip, has raised, apropos of Mrs. Ireland's new book, the old question of the celibacy of writing men. He says to the matrimonially minded virgin, "Don't marry a man of genius." So and on much the same grounds has the author of "Virginibus Puerisque" spoken. To quote him, "The practice of letters is miserably harassing to the mind, and after an hour or two's work all the more human portion of the author is extinct; he will bully, backbite, and speak daggers."

But the doctors differ. A day or two ago I was talking to one of the most eminent and also one of the busiest of our literary men. I asked him what portions of life he thought most enjoyable.

"Those in which I am hard at work," he answered, without a moment's hesitation.

"And does it not make you nervous and irritable?" was my next query.

"Not at all," he replied; "on the contrary, a spell of composition exhilarates me like the drinking of champagne. I never feel depressed or gloomy except when idle."

One fancies Sir Walter Scott did not make a bad husband, and he worked about as hard as most men. Depend upon it, the marriage of a literary man is as much of a lottery as any other wedding.—London Globe.

The Origin and History of Wire Nails.

The history of the wire nail business in the United States for the past few years presents a miracle of industrial development. As recently as 1883 wire nails were known only as fancy articles, used in cabinet and fine finishing work, and their manufacture was confined to one or two factories employing in all not more than 200 men. To-day it ranks side by side with all our great industries, and directly or indirectly not less than 100,000 souls are dependent on it for support. The astonishing growth of this manufacture is shown in the following table, giving the product of the country in kegs of 100 pounds, each year since 1882:

	Kegs.
1882	50,000
1883	80,000
1889	120,000
1885	200,000
1886	300,000
1887	500,000
1888	1,000,000
1889	2,200,000
1890	3,500,000

No Sameness There.

"You don't have stewed prunes here every day, do you?" asked the new boarder of Hunker, as the two left the table.

"Oh, no," replied Hunker, "Mrs. Small serves a good variety. We had stewed prunes to-day. To-morrow we shall have prune pie; next day prune sauce; then prune turnover, followed by prune meringue and prune rolls. Oh, no; there's no sameness here!"—Harper's Bazar.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

THE AUBURN COURIER
OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.
JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.
Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.
THURSDAY........ MARCH 3, 1892.

HEAVIEST snow of the season, in New York, March 1.

STATE Reformatory for Women and Girls, at Indianapolis burned Tuesday evening. No lives lost. Pretty well insured.

DR. NORMAN TEAL, it is now said, will be a candidate before the democratic congressional convention. The Doctor was a good member of the legislature.

SAMUEL W. AXTELL of Bloomfield, Greene county, will be a candidate before the democratic state convention, for lieutenant governor. Said to be a No. 1 man.

FOREIGNERS want to come over and work on the world's fair. We are going to send them a statement of the number of idle men now in Chicago and advise them to stay at home.

WOODS' friends don't even deny that he acted as both prosecutor and judge in the Sim Coy case. Democrats say he might have done the same in the case against Dudley and other boodlers.

Now comes a new trouble with Chile. Harrison's consul at Valparaiso, it is claimed, has been engaged in dishonest commercial transactions. No such scandals were allowed under Cleveland.

THE public lands of the nation will soon be all gone. Republican secretary of the interior don't seem to look at claims to see whether correct. It is the policy of that party to waste the public land.

THE Congressional Convention for this district, has been set for April 26, at Kendallville. DeKalb was not represented at the meeting, as it seems that for some unexplained reason, our chairman was not notified.

J. B. STOLL, editor of the South Bend Times has sued D. A. Fawcett, of the Lagrange Democrat, for newspaper libel. The boys ought to dwell together in love and harmony, same as the COURIER and the Garrett Hoodoo.

THE American flag has been almost totally forced from ocean commerce by thirty years of republican rule. Even the ship that is now taking America's gift of provisions to starving Russia, had to sail under the British flag.

THE People's Party, that held the big meeting in St Louis last week, will hold its national convention, July 4, at Omaha. Among the possible presidential candidates, are Ignatius Donnelly, Gen. Weaver, L. L. Polk and several others.

CHICAGO democrats are claiming that Indiana is solid for Hill. All wrong, Indiana is for Gray, as a candidate, but the masses of the democrats are for Cleveland—certainly not for Hill. But Indiana will support the nominee of couse.

THE editors of the Dispatch and Record, both high tax republicans, have a difference of opinion on candidates for the presidency. This, the Dispatch settles by saying that the great state of Indiana took him and educated him. Two ideas are suggested by this, either that the great state of Indiana was in small business, or that it made a dismal failure, or both.

THE Dispatch hates to give up its assertion that Harrison had settled the Samoa matter, though by its silence, it is plain it has found out the Bering Sea matter and the fishery question have not been reached. This leaves only the Samoa matter. In his first message, Harrison admits the matter not yet settled, although he had been in office from March 4 to December. He says he had however appointed the commissioners. This is a fact, and the commissioners on our part, by asking less than Cleveland had demanded two years before, finally had the matter settled. This is how "the Samoan question was settled without reference to the weak and vacillating policy of Cleveland and Bayard." They had demanded decent terms for the United States, and the other powers did not agree to it. Blaine and Harrison came down to a point where American interests were almost ignored, and so of course, the matter was easily settled. The Dispatch is to blame for what it don't know, as there are abundant chances for it to become better posted. Since writing the above we see the Samoans are trying to break the agreement. As there are only a few hundred of them, it looks as if it did not take much of a nation to defy Harrison.

Skating Race.

Auburn and Montpelier, will have a roller skating race, 3-mile dashes, best 2 in 3, Thursday evening, March 10, at the Opera House here. The skaters in the race will be Frank Lahnum and John Wolf, of Auburn, against Wm. Blume and Geo. W. Hamilton, of Montpelier, Ohio. The winners are to receive one-half of the admission money. The race promises to be a very exciting one, and a large attendance is looked for, not only from this place, but surrounding towns. Remember the date.

The Gas Well Meeting.

Last Thursday evening those interested in this subject, met at the court room and were called to order by Dr. Swarts, and W. L. Penfield called to preside. Remarks were made by Dr. Swarts, J. W. Baxter, W. L. Penfield, C. C. Shaffer, and a number of others, nearly all tending to favor the proposed work. It was generally believed we could have more wells put down. A list of subscriptions was read, showing $1,500 unconditional and $500 by a man at Bryan, who will donate that sum if he gets the contract of putting the well down. A committee consisting of J. W. Baxter, W. B Campbell, C. C. Shaffer, Dr. Swarts and Frank Hoff was appointed to solicit further subscriptions. We understand these gentlemen will go to work promptly, and we hope soon to report enough raised to put down at least one well.

Better Than Ever This Year.

People in this part of the country, and especially those in town, have become more or less acquainted with the hardware establishment of J. Beuret, on North Main street. He has been in business here for many years as a hardware dealer and tinner; the tin shop being his specialty. Until a year or so ago, he carried no side lines, but last season he proved himself a benefactor by bringing to public notice the New Process Vapor Stove. A large run was made on that novel arrangement, which proved satisfactory both to puchasers and dealer. His success being so complete on that particular style, he has concluded to give the public a greater variety of styles to select from, this season. In addition to the New Process, he will offer the Quick Meal and the Jewel Vapor, two new kinds, which come very highly recommended and fully guaranteed by the manufacturers. He also has something substantial in the line of paints and oils, namely, the Harrison Town and Country paints; one of the finest and purest grades of cottage paints placed upon the market for inspection to day. Builders and contractors can do no better than to investigate the advantageous facilities of this firm for filling all orders for hardware, paints, oils, etc.

The New Process for this season, will have the pipes copper finished, with nickeled elevated warming shelf and hinged end shelf. It is the handsomest article of its kind on the market.

A man in the postoffice the other day, approaching the general delivery office, happened to look up and see the words "General Delivery." He stared a moment, and then remarked, "Well, I thought I knew all the prominent generals, but by gum, I never heard of him before."

There was a nice little company at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCord last Friday evening. A few hours were passed most enjoyably in visiting and playing progressive pedro. It was concluded by a neat luncheon and all voted it a good time, and that Mr. and Mrs. McCord, not only know how to make their friends welcome, but they have as pleasant a home as any in town, in which to receive them.

W. L. Straub, of Cogswell, North Dakota, was in town last Thursday in company with James Provines, who is an uncle, Mrs Provines and Mr Straub's mother being sisters, and sisters also to Jotham and Clarissa Woolsey. Mr. S. will visit for a time among the friends here, and in the neighborhood of La Otto, where some of the Straub family still reside. He is at present engaged in newspaper work, publishing the "Rustler," a neat little paper with which we have been exchanging for some time.

The COURIER is in receipt of a letter from Butler township in which the writer urges on the democrats of DeKalb county, the justice of giving that township a candidate for some county office. They have had no man in a county office for twenty years, and they think they are entitled to one. They will, when the proper time comes, present the name of one of their best citizens, J. D. Rowley, as a candidate for sheriff. The writer of the letter is a lifelong neighbor of Mr. Rowley, and is in good faith in the matter. Mr. Rowley, would of course, be a good officer.

Mr Cass, so long a familiar figure in Auburn, died Saturday afternoon, after an illness of about two days. He had been ailing a few days, but ate his supper with the rest on Thursday evening. But next morning he was found in bed, and partly unconscious. He never fully rallied, but was part of the time unconscious till he died. It is supposed to be congestion of the brain. He was buried Monday, in Woodlawn, under the charge of the Odd Fellows, he being a member. Rev. Eagy of the Baptist church preached the sermon. Mr. Cass was boarding with James Griswold, and had been there for some time.

The many friends of Dr. Henry Johnson, now at South Bend, will be interested in learning that his popularity is in no way abating. He was lately called on by two committees, asking him to accept a call to the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian church in Chicago, at a salary of $4,000. They had heard his sermons and were sufficiently well suited to make the offer. But he declined the flattering offer, and gratified his present parishioners by concluding to stay at South Bend. The Daily Tribune of that place, in speaking of it adds, "We never had a more popular preacher, and the affairs of the church were never in better condition."

Married.

Herman Groscup and Ollie Clark were united in marriage in the pastor's study at the M. E. church by Rev. A. S. Wooton, Feb. 25.

At the residence of Rev. J. W. Stringfellow, Feb. 28, 1892, William Olinger to Annie M. Eldridge, both of Garrett.

Tries to Deceive.

The Dispatch is purposely dishonest, when in its issue of Feb. 18, in speaking of congressional candidates it says "the COURIER was among the list of papers endorsing Mr. Robinson." The COURIER has "endorsed" no one. It merely gave Mr. Robinson a friendly word, just as it did the other candidates, and for the same reason, that all are good fellows. And then the Dispatch goes on to say that "while the COURIER has approved the whole course of Judge McClellan in congress it appears that it ought to favor his renomination for another term." The COURIER has indeed approved of Judge McClellan's course in congress for he has made a good record, the strongest and best ever made in the district, and but for the foolish and suicidal policy inaugurated in this strong democratic district many years ago, would be kept in congress as a member should be—as long as he did his duty. The COURIER has always disapproved the two term rule on principle and has repeatedly given [illegible] reasons for discontinuing it. But the COURIER does not understand that Judge McClellan is a candidate. If he were, no one would support him more heartily than the COURIER. But the Dispatch need not go out of its way to advise the COURIER to support a candidate, whom the Dispatch is interested in defeating. Its reasons are very plain and will deceive no one. As to the COURIER's course on this or that candidate's fortunes, we beg leave to be excused from accepting unsought for advice from any source. It will be a pleasure as well as a duty for the COURIER to support the fortunate man who receives the nomination, and we shall help him to our utmost to reach the place where he can bask for a brief time in the sunshine of greatness, though he faces the dread fact that he must soon again sink into that obscurity he left so recently. And when his brief race is run, the dear delightful people will hang the useless harp [illegible] politician, and so on to the end.

Joseph D. Champion one of hands at the Church Furniture factory, was the subject of a very sad accident, Tuesday. One of the best entertainments we have had for a long time, was that given at the Opera House last Wednesday evening by the Corani, Thrower & Diekman Opera Company. Their people are ladies and gentlemen of the highest character, and all talented and cultured musicians. Of course there are many who do not care for music, and so there was comedy to suit, for Mr. Tyrrell is a gem in that line. John C Sommers, at Pueblo, writes us a letter, as we had suggested, about the new mines at Cripple Creek, and encloses a clipping from a daily paper, which he says gives the true conditions there. A young man named Watson, escaped from the County Home last Thursday, and came to town on foot, through the mud, evidently on his way to his old home in Concord township Supt. Glazier found him on the street here, and after a brief struggle, took him over the sheriff's office, and waited till a team could come from the Home, when he took him back. The young man is weak minded, and cannot talk much, but he was evidently longing for the old home. Hebel Brothers are now changing the room from which Mr. Potter has moved his stock of boots and shoes, and fitting it up so they will have two rooms for their own use. The stairway on the west front has been moved to the north side of the building, making the entrance to Dr. Nusbaum's office at that point. People calling on him, should notice this. Cards on the stairway and in the hall will make the new route plain.

We understand that our young friends Will Stonebreaker and Joe Staadecker, are both working on a perpetual motion, each having a different plan. We suppose one intends to lift himself up by his boot straps, and the other, by his suspenders But these old standard plans have both failed repeatedly. The things nearest to perpetual motion we ever knew, are the Dispatch's "advising and bossing" machine, and the Garrett Yum-Yum's "big-four at-Auburn," and "local-candidate" machine. But they are on another plan. They "run on wheels."

There was a marriage between trains at the Junction last Saturday that awakened that otherwise quiet little berg The parties were Andrew E. Chapman and Inez Aikens, both of Newville township. They desired Mr. Wooton, of the Auburn M. E. church, to marry them, but as soon as it was seen the roads would be impassable for a sixteen-mile trip, they arranged for the minister to meet them at the Junction, and they could then go the hotel, be married and then take the next train east. Mr. Wooton was on time, and as the trains usually meet there, he had no time to lose. The ceremony was briefly, but effectually performed, and the young couple soon after took the east bound train for home. They are worthy young people, and the Courier sends its best wishes.

THE immigration to this country is rapidly changing. Last year Germany stood first in the list as furnishing immigrants to America. Italy stood second and Russia third. The large immigration from Italy demonstrates that the Italians are in nowise afraid that they will not be protected in the United States because of the New Orleans affair.

FROM the testimony in her divorce case it appears that the Baroness de Steurs, nee Astor, was in the habit of drinking champagne mixed with red pepper and brandy. SOME women have queer ideas of modesty. They attend public receptions with their dresses cut so low they can almost step through them, and seem to enjoy having the men admire the portion of their person that should be sacred to their children, but if they accidentally show an ankle in climbing over a fence, there is a terrible howdydo. Men have their faults, but we never heard of one going to a ball before putting on all his clothes.

THE factor least considered in the cause of sickness is impure air, or house air as it might be termed, though happily civilized man is making the discovery that in proportion as he shuts himself up within four walls he suffers from a variety of physical and mental ills and premature death. Doctor Remindino, author of a pamphlet referred to, shows conclusively that this is true. He says: "We find that barbarous and nomadic people were all in the enjoyment of the best of health; that finally a portion became civilized, and then began to house themselves in; that with this change in their habits and customs also came ill-health, physical and mental ailments, and general degeneracy. We notice, further, that those who still follow the old nomadic habits still retain their health and enjoy exemption from disease, but we well observe, whenever any of these adopt the customs of the civilized man, and go on and house themselves as the others have done, that they also sicken, and that their children become like the children of the close house-dweller—a prey to all kinds of house ills."

THERE is much encouragement in the Liberal victory at Salt Lake. It signifies that the power of the Mormon Church to dictate to the city and Territorial governments is broken, and that there is strong hope for a different form of government in that Territory, which may at no distant day make it safe to clothe it with Statehood. When the Liberals elected a part of their ticket two years ago it could not be regarded as more than a fortunate accident. But that partial victory was followed by others until now they elect the whole city ticket and twelve of the Councilmen. The Liberal party has justified its claims by steadily increasing its plurality at each election held. Last August the Liberal plurality was 1,096; now it is 1,794 on the head of the ticket, and all the other Liberal candidates ran ahead of the candidate for Mayor, the highest plurality reaching 1,963.

IT is announced by the gentlemen engaged in the great Coal Trust that their first effort will be to "equalize prices." This is a term from which many sermons might be written. It is desirable to equalize prices for commodities if it be done under the operation of natural laws. But it will be difficult to make the probable victims of this new trust appreciate the fact that a capital of $400,000,000 has been united under a single control for the purpose of benefiting others than those whose capital is thus rendered sure of that natural return which divine law has privileged it to claim. Reports from the New York Stock Exchange explain what are the opinions of those best informed as to the probable action of the Coal Trust. Investors were tumbling over themselves in their anxiety to secure some of the stock in the new trust. It is apparent that New-Yorkers understand what meaning to attach to the expression "equalizing prices." There was a good reason for the rapid advance in the price of Reading stock. It is an important factor in the new combination, and when the manipulators succeed in equalizing prices to their own satisfaction the effect of their action will be seen in a still further advance in this favored stock. That there is power in the hands of the clique in whose hands this great railroad property has fallen will be understood by those who are acquainted with the personnel of the moneyed class in New York. The potency of $400,000,000 is not easily overestimated. Prices will be equalized and stock will pay a better dividend. Let the people seek for information as to their gain in this matter.

THE absolutely unselfish mother frequently defeats her own ends by her unselfishness. Her household duties are done with absolute regularity, but it is the regularity of an automaton. Her life becomes hard and mechanical. She gradually abandons all reading, for she makes that most vital of all mistakes, and concludes she has no time to read. It would be hardly a greater mistake to conclude that she has no time to live, for life without reading is not life at all, but only a modified form of vegetation. So it happens, in time, that she hears her girls talking about new novels. But she can take no part in the conversation, for she is familiar with none of the novelists earlier than her girlhood. The great ethical, scientific, and political movements of the day are as unknown to her as if she lived in a past generation. And indeed she does live in a past generation. She believes what she was taught to believe when a child, and pathetically tries to impose these supernatural ideas upon her children. She is the dead past teaching the living present; and when her children repudiate and reject her outworn teachings, however skillfully or tenderly they may do it, she, because her intellectual sight is blinded by disuse, beseeches them to come from their darkness into her light. She is the blind trying to lead the strong-sighted. If her unselfishness had been less, if she had not so utterly forgotten herself in her devotion to her duties and to her children, she might have become a more congenial companion and friend to them, and thus exerted a better and a more salutary influence. The Buddhists have a creed called "the higher carelessness," which teaches (even as Christianity teaches) that over-anxiety is sinful, and that tranquillity should be one of the aspirations of life.

An Electric Boat.

A French engineer has just designed an electric boat, the leading feature of which is that it will be propelled by a sea-water battery. The plates are sunk in the sea under the boat by way of a kind of keel and drive a large rotary wheel by means of a motor. Pulleys raise or lower the plates of zinc or copper as required. A Vermont blacksmith, Thomas Davenport, announced a similar device for the purpose about fifty years ago.

Seed.

Timothy seed is very small, and it is easily destroyed in the ground if too deeply covered. Early in the spring the ground should be harrowed fine, and the seed broadcasted on the surface, to be slightly brushed in. It is better to broadcast the seed if the field is expected to have an evenly covered appearance, as drilling not only covers the seed too much but causes it to come up too thickly in some places and too sparingly in others.

The Old and New Duties.

Now that the Bureau of Statistics has issued its annual report on imported merchandise entered and withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption in 1891, we have the data required to determine how high a rate we are paying on imported merchandise. The McKinley tariff raised duties on wool and woolen goods so high that for a long time they were thought to be prohibitive. But it was soon found that, notwithstanding the high duties, woolen goods continued to be imported, though in diminished quantities. In 1890 we imported $54,165,423 and in 1891 $43,235,410 of manufactures of wool. Of the imports in 1891, $23,543,619 were entered under the duties imposed by the tariff of 1883, and $19,691,795 under the McKinley tariff. Allowing for the abnormally large imports from July 1 to Oct. 4, for the purpose of anticipating the higher duties, the imports under the new tariff are but little less than before it became a law. In short, the duties imposed by the McKinley tariff are not high enough to accomplish the end intended, namely, prohibition.

The McKinley tariff made such radical changes in the classifications of woolen goods that it has been impossible hitherto to determine how high the duties imposed by it are. The following table is a comparison of the old and new duties on the various classes of wools and woolen goods:

	1890. Per c't.	1891. Per c't.
Wools—	45.18	50.38
Clothing	41.00	50.15
Combing	24.48	52.00
Carpet	30.49	50.00
Carpet
Woolens—	68.85	97.10
Yarns	71.14	84.74
Blankets	60.00	43.33
Bunting	44.94	60.49
Carpets	75.17	92.48
loths	72.74	97.57
Dress goods	82.43	97.80
Endless belts	68.65	92.89
Flannels		118.84
Plushes	59.40	85.85
Cloaks	67.62	76.58
Hats	64.30	76.68
Knit fabrics	65.39	79.56
Shawls	53.55	82.78
Clothing	66.99	93.05
Webbings, etc	68.87	87.92
All other manufactures
Total manufactures of wool	69.12	92.24

Under the tariff of 1883 worsted cloths were not separated from all other wool manufactures, and the item of "cloths" in the above table represents woolen cloths only for 1890. Under the McKinley tariff woolen and worsted cloths bear the same rates. Similarly, plushes were not separately enumerated in 1890.

On bunting, as shown above, the ad valorem rate is less now than in 1890. The duties are, however, higher now than before, but since they are practically prohibitive this fact is of little importance.

The McKinley tariff increased the duties on all goods an average of 33 per cent., and the average on all classes is 92.27 per cent.

This is the tariff which Mr. Whitman's so-called National Association demands shall be left as it is. Those who desire to see these high rates cut down are trying to get something at the "expense of other people." Doubtless he meant at the expense of such concerns as that of which he is president, which earned a profit of 50 per cent. in 1891.

In spite of the fact that the duties have been advanced 33 per cent. and importations have fallen off but little, there are those who claim that the price of woolen goods has not advanced. Either prices have advanced or, what is the same in effect, the quality of the goods has been lowered by the larger use of shoddy and cotton. No other explanation is possible.

In spite of the fact that the duties average 92.24 per cent. of the value of the goods imported, there are those who claim that the foreign manufacturer continues to pay the tariff tax. The mere mention of the average rate of duty is sufficient to refute this absurd claim.

It is about time that the people who use woolen goods, and there are some that cannot afford such a luxury, should have something to say about the taxes which the tariff compels them to pay to enable manufacturers to make profits of 50 per cent.

Wrapping-Paper Trust.

The representatives of the wrapping-paper combine concluded their secret conference at the Auditorium yesterday, and were congratulating themselves last evening before departing for their homes on the fact that they had gathered in three more factories—two in Ohio and one in Indiana. There are fifty-eight mills in the United States engaged in manufacturing coarse wrapping paper, and of these twenty-six are in the trust, which has its headquarters in Chicago. This trust was badly wrecked by the anti-trust law when it first came into force, and has not fully recovered from the shock. However, it is making rapid strides, and expects have all the mills back into the combine in a year or two. At present it runs under no particular name, without a president or any high-sounding title of any sort. The product of its twenty-six mills is marketed through a general agent, and he, with two others, constitutes the Executive Committee. They are J. C. Richardson and F. C. Trebein, both of Ohio, and J. B. Halladay, of Chicago. The last-named is the general agent of the concern, and from his headquarters in Chicago supplies the market of the country with course wrapping paper, except in so far as the independent mills supply it. There are a large number of mills not now in the trust, and these are, as usual, cutting prices. The trust price for common wrapping paper ranges from $1.25 to $1.75 per 100 pounds, while the figures of the independent makers range from 5 to 10 cents less. The object of the meeting was to extend the membership of the trust and take steps to prevent further hurtful competition. The progress in this direction was quite flattering. Three of the largest mills outside of the trust were taken into the fold and others are preparing to follow. A slight cut in prices was ordered, but Mr. Halladay says that as soon as the other mills are induced to join the combine the rates will be raised to the figures of two years ago.—Chicago Times.

IN his recent speech at the Greystone Club, in Denver, Governor Boies said of the men whose business profits were increased by the new tariff. "At first these men could not bring to their aid the united strength of either of the great polititical parties of the country. In both were willing champions of the people's rights, and in both, I regret to say, where those who, yielding to the influence that wealth is always able to exert, joined hands to perpetuate in times of peace laws that were born of war's necessities alone. The scene has changed. Upon one side are now arrayed the beneficiaries of these laws, aided by allies more powerful than themselves in the shape of trusts and combines, that these laws have made possible, and so strengthened, they are in charge of the Republican party. They dictate its policy—they control its action. If they maintain their position it does not follow that this nation as a whole will cease to grow rich. We shall still go on producing wealth as we have done before, but a few will control it, many will be poor. Can we change these laws? Can we divide the mighty currents that are emptying the wealth of this nation into the hands of a few men, and scatter their golden contents among those who produce it? This is the supreme question of the hour. In the present status of political parties there is no power on earth that can accomplish this save and except 'The Democracy of '92.' We must not falter. This is the issue, and this alone will lead us to victory."

The Structural Iron Trust.

The combination which eleven manufacturers of structural iron and steel had so long and successfully maintained for the purpose of exacting an abnormally high price from consumers of rolled beams and channels came to an end during the past week, and the effect was manifest in a sudden drop in the price of beams from 3.1 cents to 2.4 cents per pound, or from $62 to $48 per net ton. There is promise of still lower prices, as members of the late pool are reported as offering to sell beams at any figure above 2 cents per pound. The product of the eleven concerns in the combination amounted to about 120,000 net tons last year, so that the saving to consumers by the decline that has already taken place is at the rate of not less than $1,680,000 per year. Inasmuch as crude steel now costs the manufacturers something less than $25 per ton, there is still a very comfortable margin left for the beam and channel manufacturers at $48, or even $40, per net ton. Although the cost of rolling beams is considerably above the cost of making rails, the members of the steel rail combination are entirely satisfied with the profits yielded from rails at $30 per ton.

The disruption of the beam combination is due to several causes, chief among which was the refusal of Carnegie, Phipps & Co. (limited) to accept the allotment of business awarded to them in the distribution by the combination. Mr. Carnegie's firm has recently built a large mill for rolling beams at Homestead, near Pittsburg, which is said to have capacity for producing all the beams required in this country; and when the allotment to this mill was presented to Mr. Carnegie for his approval he refused to accept it and withdrew from the pool—a step which he is credited with having long meditated. Another cause for the collapse was the dissatisfaction of the Illinois Steel Company with the price fixed by the combination. To meet the competition of outside mills, and prevent further importation of foreign beams, the combination had decided to reduce the price to 2.8 cents per pound; but the Illinois Steel Company desired that a further reduction should be made, to which other members would not agree. The large importations of German and Belgian beams, which can be laid down at the seaboard for about 2.3 cents per pound, have cut into the trade of members of the combination very heavily of late. It is estimated that 12,000 to 15,000 tons of foreign beams have been imported at Atlantic ports within a few months, and good authority places the stock of foreign beams in Boston at present at about 2,500 tons.

The prospect of permanently low prices for beams and channels is not altogether satisfactory. The opinion is freely expressed in the iron trade that the free competition which has been precipitated by the collapse of the pool may be followed sooner or later by a new combination, in which Mr. Carnegie would come in for such a share of the business as he might choose to dictate. So long as manufacturers in this country shall have such an incentive to combination as is offered by the tariff of $18 a net ton on structural shapes there is the strongest encouragement to combine and plunder the people to the utmost of their ability. The beam combination was a creation of the tariff; and so long as the duty on foreign material shall remain at the present high figure the American manufacturers cannot be expected to permit the opportunity for plunder to remain unimproved. There is now before Congress a bill that proposes a reduction of the duty on structural shapes to $5 per ton. It is hardly possible that this bill will become a law; but it would go far toward correcting a long unrestrained evil.—Philadelphia Record.

To Repeal the Sugar Bounty.

Representative Scott, of Illinois, has introduced a resolution providing for the repeal of the sugar bounty.

"The sugar bounty," said Mr. Scott, "is oppressive because it takes from the public Treasury from ten million to twenty million dollars annually to enrich the few sugar producers at the expense of the already overburdened taxpayers of the country. There is a deficit in the public revenues and this is especially burdensome at this time. The sugar bounty is contrary to the Constitution and violates every principle of republican government. It is notorious that except when famine exists abroad, corn, wheat and other farm products are produced at a loss, and that to levy this burden upon agriculture in its depressed condition is an injustice too grievous to be borne.

"There is no just reason why corn, wheat, and other great industrial interests should not be given bounties if it is considered American, patriotic, and honest to donate money out of the Treasury to enrich private enterprise. Why not give 5 cents a bushel as a bounty on corn, or 35 cents a bushel on wheat? By doing this, these great industries would not languish as they have in the past. There is as much right to do this as to give 2 cents a pound as a donation to the sugar producer. It would be as proper to give every wage-earner 25 cents a day for every day he is employed. It would help to equalize the burdens put on him in the increased price he must pay for his food and clothes by the iniquitous tariff taxes. There is as much right to pay a bounty to labor as to those engaged in producing sugar. There is no right nor justice in the whole thing, and the law giving a bounty on sugar should be repealed."

AN absurdity of the tariff law is found in the story which is told of a New-Yorker, who while abroad bought two rosaries at $8 for his maid servants, and then expended $4 in having them sent to Rome for the Pope's blessing. In paying the duty on the arrival of the goods he explained the situation and was called on to pay 40 per cent. on the rosaries themselves considered and 40 per cent. in the increased value arising from the Pope's blessing, this latter article coming under the head "Not otherwise provided for." The most inveterate protectionist will hardly argue that the American industry of blessings needs fostering by a 40 per cent. duty.

She Made Them, of Course.

Young wife—I knew you would like the slippers, Harry, if for no other reason, because I made them.

Husband—You don't mean this is all your work! Why, what a talented little wife I have, to be sure.

Young wife—Yes, all my work. Of course, I bought the uppers, and Mary sewed them together, and I got a man to sole them, but I put the bows on and did them up in the box. And, do you know, Harry, I am just proud of myself. I didn't think I could ever do such things; indeed, I didn't.—Boston Transcript.

GIVEN OVER TO MOBS.

INDIANAPOLIS RULED BY A BAND OF STRIKERS.

Policemen Unable to Restrain the Men—Cars Prevented from Running—Drivers and Conductors Brutally Beaten and Many Officers Injured.

Culmination of the Strike.

The culmination of the street car strike was a disgraceful day in the history of Indianapolis. Mobs at several times had substantial possession of the streets. Men and women encouraged scenes and acts of violence, and a woman displayed amid the crowd a brick-red flag, flaunting it about her head, and then hastily concealing it in the drapery about her breast. The street car strike began a week before because of a refusal by the president of the company to advance the wages of employes. Several mornings attempts were made to start the cars, but the strikers interfered, and the cars were pushed back into the barns. The Mayor took the position that he would not afford police protection until he was assured that the company had men to properly run the cars. He received such assurances and the police appeared to aid the company. No attempt was made to run the electric cars. All efforts were concentrated on the horse cars.

One hundred strikers met one car at the Grand Opera House. Here a desperate encounter occurred with the police, and when it reached Washington street, the main thoroughfare, the mob had increased in numbers to 1,000. Slowly it made its way a few squares farther, where at least 6,000 people had gathered. Prominent among its numbers was a burly negro, who was foremost in trying to stop the car. The officers laid hold of him to place him under arrest. With a maddening yell the crowd sprang upon the officers, and the negro was wrenched from their grasp. Police Superintendent Colbert headed a detail for his recapture. They waded into the crowd, mowing right and left with their clubs. Crash! and a big, heavy board, wielded by one of the crowd, descended upon the Superintendent's head. Another crash, and Capt. Dawson was nearly felled to the ground by a brick, which struck him on the head, being thrown from an up-stairs window. Such actions as these precluded all possibility of further leniency. Superintendent Colbert pulled a revolver from each pocket and pointed their muzzles into the faces of the surging mass of people. Slowly the mob parted, and the negro was recaptured.

No sooner was this accomplished than the crowd made a rush for the man who was attempting to drive the car. "Hang the scab!" "Over with the car!" "Knock —— out of him!" and similar expressions filled the air. In an instant he was pulled over the dashboard, while several men belabored him over the head. The police charged, and again the bricks began to fly. One brick struck Capt. Dawson in the middle of the back, doubling him up with pain, while a striker's fist landed beside his nose. Another missile struck Patrolman Settle beside the head, cutting his helmet and clear through to the skin. But Patrolman Smith fared worst of all. A big stone struck him just under his helmet on the back of the head, ripping open the scalp and hair and laying bare the bone. After severe fighting the crowd was dispersed and quieted. Smith was carried away by an ambulance.

Not over five minutes after the crowd had quieted down some one yelled "There goes one on Meridian street," and away went the crowd. There were two cars there guarded by a handful of police. The crowd swooped down upon them like birds of prey on their victims. It was of no use that the officers clubbed and pounded. The men's heads seemed made of iron. In a trice they had the mules unhitched, and with yells they pushed the cars into the gutter. A large crowd of men and boys were standing upon an improvised scaffolding of boards. Into this the car was pushed, and the structure came down with its load of humanity, and the air was filled with cries of fear. Luckily no one was hurt beyond a few bruises. The other car was backed west on Maryland street until it stuck in the mud, and there it stood. Both had their windows smashed, and more than one striker and policeman will wear knots on their heads for the next few days.

In another part of the city two women boarded a car, rushed to the driver, threw their arms around his neck, and then gave him a terrible beating. An officer rescued him, but the women got away. In one case the mules were unhitched, and then were stampeded, while the car was derailed. Many arrests were made, but bonds were promptly furnished in all cases. Finally all attempts to run the cars were abandoned.

The Mayor stands firm by his latest decision, and will again afford all the protection to the company within his power. He said: "This is a very sad business, and all we have to do is to unite for peace. There is not a word of truth in the statement that there was any pressure brought to bear on me to order out the police as soon as Mr. Frenzel had men enough to operate his cars. When the strikers' advisory committee called on me the other day I told them the same thing. They asked me to say nothing about it, and I did not. This morning the time was ripe. I was informed that plenty of men were in readiness to start the cars, and upon advice from the Board of Public Safety we decided to call out the police. My every effort will be to quell the riot, and if I am to be censured, let it not be done till peace is restored. My mind has never changed on what ought to be done, but it did not seem to be the proper thing until this morning."

The Board of Public Safety decided to swear in 250 special officers and Mayor Sullivan issued a proclamation closing all saloons until the strike is over.

Hits the nail on the head—one of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They do the right thing in the right way. They cleanse and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels—thoroughly and effectively, but mildly and gently. They persuade, rather than force. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet's a gentle laxative; three to four act as a cathartic. They're the smallest, but the best. There's less to take, but there's more good in it, when it's taken. They're the original Little Liver Pill, and they've never been equaled. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

Before the cause of consumption was known (that was only a few years ago) we did not know how Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil did so much good in consumption and in the conditions that lead to consumption.

The explanation is interesting. We send it free in a book on CAREFUL LIVING.

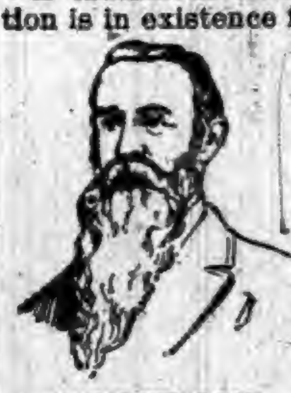
GREAT PARTY OF LABOR

IS THE NEW POLITICAL COMBINATION.

Outcome of the Industrial Conference Just Concluded—Blending of the Blue and the Gray—Prohibition Not in the Platform—Will Meet July 4.

Born at St. Louis.

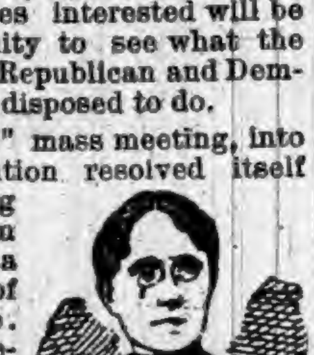


PRESIDENT POLK.

A mammoth new political combination is in existence for the coming Presidential campaign. So, at least, the delegates to the big National Industrial Conference, which was held in St. Louis, say. A new political party has been born.

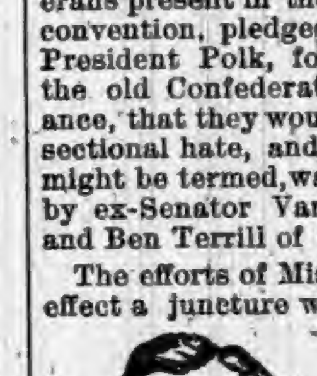
That the joint conference of the People's and the Independent party indorse and ratify the platform adopted, was the first thing decided on after Representative Taubeneck, of Illinois, had been made chairman.

Then it was agreed that a committee should be appointed to issue an address to the voters of the country calling upon them to meet in their respective localities on some specific date to organize and elect delegates to the national convention. Ex-Senator Van Wyck of Nebraska, C. C. Post of Georgia, T. B. McGuire, Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota, and Ben Terrell of Texas were named as such committee. Then came up the question as to the day for the naming and christening, and July 4 was the day finally agreed upon. This was decided by a committee from the convention having full authority to act with the national committee of the People's party. The place for holding the convention was left to be chosen by a sub-committee of ten to be appointed by Mr. Taubeneck. Omaha, Indianapolis, and Kansas City, Kas., were favorably mentioned. By delaying the convention to July 4 the parties interested will be given an opportunity to see what the conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties are disposed to do.



MISS WILLARD.

A "blue and gray" mass meeting, into which the convention resolved itself before grappling with the platform temporarily, was a pretty feature of the conference. Commodore Vandevoort of Nebraska, for the Union veterans present in the convention, pledged President Polk, for the old Confederate soldiers in attendance, that they would join hands to bury sectional hate, and the treaty, if such it might be termed, was ratified in speeches by ex-Senator Van Wyck of Nebraska and Ben Terrill of Texas.



IGNATIUS DONNELLY.

The efforts of Miss Frances Willard to effect a juncture with the Prohibitionists were unavailing, and the platform was adopted only after the prohibition plank had been stricken out.

The preamble was read by Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota, as an expression of the Industrial League, and the platform proper was presented by Chairman Kavanagh, of the Committee on Platform.

Platform of Principles.

In order to restrain the extortions of aggregated capital, to drive the money-changers out of the temple, to form a perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty for ourselves and our posterity, we do ordain and establish the following platform of principles:

1. We declare the union of labor forces of the United States this day accomplished permanent and perpetual. May its spirit enter into all hearts for the salvation of the republic and the uplifting of mankind.

2. Wealth belongs to him who creates it. Every dollar taken from industry without an equivalent is robbery. If any will not work, neither shall he eat. The interests of rural and urban labor are the same; their enemies are identical.

3. We demand a national currency, safe, sound, and flexible, issued by the general government only, a full legal tender for all debts, public and private, and that without the use of banking corporations, a just equitable means of circulation at a tax not to exceed 2 per cent., as set forth in the sub-treasury plan of the Farmers' Alliance or some better system; also by payments in discharge of its obligation for public improvements.

4. We demand free and unlimited coinage of silver.

5. We demand that the amount of circulating medium be speedily increased to not less than $50 per capita.

6. We demand a graduated income tax.

7. We believe that the money of the country should be kept as much as possible in the hands of the people, and hence we demand that all national and State revenues shall be limited to the necessary expenses of the Government economically and honestly administered.

8. We demand that postal savings banks be established by the Government for the safe deposit of the earnings of the people, and to facilitate exchange.

9. Your sub-committee upon land plank beg to submit to your approval the following: The land, including all the natural resources of wealth, is the heritage of all people, and should not be monopolized for speculative purposes, and alien ownership of land should be prohibited. All lands now held by railroads and other corporations in excess of their actual needs and all lands now owned by aliens should be reclaimed by the Government and held for actual settlers only.

10. Transportation being a means of exchange and a public necessity, the Government should own and operate the railroads in the interest of the people.

11. The telegraph and telephone, like the postoffice system, being a necessity for the transmission of news, should be owned and operated by the Government in the interest of the people.

12. We demand that the Government issue legal-tender notes and pay the Union soldier the difference between the price of the depreciated money in which he was paid and gold.

Resolved, That we hail this conference as the consummation of the perfect union of the hearts and hands of all sections of our common country; the men who wore the gray and the men who wore the blue meet here to extinguish the last smoldering embers of civil war in the tears of joy of a united and happy people, and we agree to carry the stars and stripes forward forever to the highest point of national greatness.

THE purchase of St. Blaise for a cool $100,000 by one patron of the turf, and the willingness of another to add $25,000 to the already colossal price, indicates that the price of horseflesh is rising. The artist who finds it difficult to get $1,000 for his painting, and the novelist who discovers that $10,000 is high-water mark for his best effort, will be inclined to sheer and grumble a little. But men do not pay large sums for horses because they wish to express their admiration for their beauty or speed. They buy them because during their brief career they can earn such vast amounts. The earnings of a race horse of first rank foot up totals which make the prices paid for them seem small.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

MEASURES CONSIDERED AND ACTED UPON.

At the Nation's Capital—What Is Being Done by the Senate and House—Old Matters Disposed Of and New Ones Considered.

The Senate and House.

In the Senate, the 24th, after the introduction of several bills, the session was taken up by consideration of the Idaho election case and the reading of President Harrison's special message concerning the World's Fair. In the House the Indian appropriation bill still continues to be the subject of monotonous consideration. The debate is generally of the most uninteresting kind, and it is only when the Indian agents come in for denunciation by some of the friends of the red man that the debate occasionally assumes a lively character.

The time of the House was entirely consumed, the 25th, by consideration of the Craig-Stewart election case from Idaho. This question was not settled. It also occupied the attention of the Senate for a while. In the Senate, also, the report on the rainfall experiments called for by Mr. Sherman's resolution was presented and referred to the Committee on Agriculture. Mr. Hale's resolution of Jan. 19, calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for copies of reciprocity agreements under the last tariff act, was taken up, and Mr. Vest moved the following amendment: And that the Secretary of State also inform the Senate whether any steps have been taken by our authorities to negotiate a reciprocal commercial treaty with Mexico; and if so, what has been done and with what results. Also, that the Secretary inform the Senate—if negotiations have been inaugurated for the purpose aforesaid, and have been unsuccessful—what has been the cause of failure. Debate was in progress when adjournment was had.

In the Senate, the 26th, after several bills were reported and placed on the calendar, the Idaho election case was again taken up. Mr. Claggett, the contestant, was presented to the Senate by Mr. Stewart and recognized by the presiding officer as entitled to address the Senate for two hours. After he had spoken about two hours but without finishing his speech, Mr. Claggett yielded the floor, and the case went over without action. After a short executive session the Senate adjourned till the 29th. In the House, Andrew Stewart, of the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania District, was unseated and Alexander K. Craig, his Democratic contestant, declared the regularly elected Representative. Nothing else of importance was accomplished.

In the House, on the 29th, on motion of Mr. Loud, of California, a bill was passed setting apart a tract of land for the use of the Lick Observatory, University of California. A resolution was also passed authorizing the joint Committee on Immigration to investigate the operation of the immigration laws, the importation of contract labor, and to inquire particularly into the immigraion of persons affected with typhus fever into the port of New York. The House Committee on Rules agreed to report a resolution making the silver bill the order of business for three days, beginning March 22. No date was fixed for measures concerning the tariff.

Well Thrown.

On a day in January, thirty-two years ago, the people of Madison Village, Me., were fighting fire. The west wind blew a hurricane; the tavern and an adjoining dwelling-house had already burned to the ground, and the entire village was threatened. The Congregational Church stood in direct line with the fire, but the wide village green might save it.

Hundreds of anxious eyes were on the watch lest some spark or live cinder should fall upon its exposed roof and walls, which were kept drenched with water. A blazing cinder whirled high across the green, and a strong, sucking current of air carried it and held it against a clapboard of the tall steeple; held it until the dry, pitch-filled strip of wood ignited, and a brisk smoke was rising on the steeple's south face.

A groan burst from the watching crowd. No ladder could reach the spot, and the loved church must burn.

A red tongue of flame shot out from the blackened hole that the live cinder had charred, then—whiz went a flying snowball up from the crowd, a single, big, moist snowball, that snuffed out that blaze as one snuffs out a candle.

Warren Bacon with his good right left hand had quickly shaped and thrown the snowball, and the church was saved.

The building still stands, and the pierced clapboards on the south side of the steeple still show where the blazing cinder and then the flying snowball struck.

Jewish Emigration.

Jewish emigration is one that vitally concerns the people of the United States. Last year the number of Hebrews who came to the ports of the United States was 70,000, and this year the number will be much greater. There are 6,000,000 of the Jewish race in Russia and Russian Poland and the government of the Czar is determined to drive them away from these places. Whither shall these people go? There is considerable talk of some of them going to Brazil, the Argentine Republic, Mexico and other Spanish-American countries, but it is in the United States that they desire to settle. This is a serious consideration for Americans. The Jewish people do not amalgamate with the people of this country; they form colonies of their own and they care not to learn of our language, our institutions or our industries. It is probable that within three years there will come to this country more than 1,000,000 Jews. What can the United States Government do for the regulation of emigration of this kind? is a question that however interesting cannot now be solved.

Not Worth So Much Himself.

"Ten thousand dollars for a dog!" he exclaimed, as he looked up from his newspaper. "Do you believe anyone ever paid any such price, Maria?"

"I'm sure I don't know, James," she returned, without stopping her needle-work even for a moment. "Does the paper say that much was paid?"

"Yes, there's an article on valuable dogs and it speaks of one that was sold for $10,000. I don't believe it."

"It may be true, James," she said, quietly. "Some of these blooded animals bring fancy prices, and there's no particular reason why the paper should lie about it."

"I know that, Maria, but just think of it—just try to grasp the magnitude of that sum in your weak, feminine mind. You don't seem to realize it. Ten thousand dollars for a dog! Why, Maria! that's more than I am worth!"

"I know it, James, but some are worth more than others."

Why He Didn't Rise.

Detroit is a lovely city and everybody knows it. The love of it is bred in the bone and never gets out of the flesh. The other Sunday a visiting clergyman addressed the Sunday-school of an up-town church. After a serious talk he said to the children: "All of you who desire to live in a better world than this please rise to your feet." All the children rose except one small boy in the corner. The good man looked at him in pained surprise. "My child," he said very gently and kindly, "why don't you rise with the others?" "Detroit's good-enough for me—that's why," sung out the youngster; and the solemnity of the occasion was knocked to pieces.—Detroit Free Press.

A Smart Husband.

Stranger (midnight)—I should like you to go to 999 Suburb avenue to see my wife.

Doctor—All right. I'll be ready as soon as I can get my carriage. Wait and you can ride with me.

Doctor (two hours later)—I can see nothing the matter with your wife, except that she seems pretty mad at being waked up.

Stranger — Remarkable recovery, I must say. Here's your dollar.

Wife (five minutes later)—Why in creation did you bring a doctor to see me?

Husband—The street cars had stopped running, and it was cheaper than hiring a cab.—New York Weekly.

Noncombustible Stage Dresses.

A chemist of Vienna has succeeded in discovering a composition which will make even the slight material of ballet-dancers' dresses fire-proof. The Prince of Lichtenstein gave this composition a first trial on the stage in his own palace in the presence of a numerous company. The rise of the curtain discovered two life-size dolls dressed as ballet-girls, to both of which a light was applied. One of the dolls was rapidly reduced to ashes, while the other, well saturated with the protective composition, escaped with a small hole in the dress.

Vile and Unworthy

Of consideration are nostrums of which it is asserted—and there are many such—that they cure immediately bodily ailments of long standing. There are none such that can. Chronic disorders cannot be instantaneously removed. Continuity in the use of a genuine medicine, such as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will eradicate chronic physical evils. Not the least of these last in the force of its opposition to medicine is constipation, to the removal of which, if persisted in, the Bitters is particularly adapted. Constriction of the bowels is a complaint which should be dealt with early and systematically. So are its usual attendants, liver complaint and dyspepsia. For these, for malaria, rheumatism, kidney trouble, and more recently "la grippe," this highly and professionally commended medicine is an undoubted specific. Nothing can exceed it, moreover, as a means of imparting strength to the feeble and nervous.

Liked the Plan.

Teacher—Why haven't you a composition?

Small Boy—I couldn't think of anything to write.

Teacher—I gave you a subject.

Small Boy—Yes, but I couldn't think of anything to write about it.

Teacher—Humph! I suppose if I should give you the subject and the ideas, too, you could write them, couldn't you?

Small Boy (joyfully)—Oh, yes, ma'am—if you'd tell me what words to use.—Street & Smith's Good News.

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. An anecdote is related of a certain Methodist parson who was loudly inveighing, before a ministerial assembly, against schools of theology, and finished by thanking God that he had never "rubbed his back up against one."

"Do I understand the brother to say that he thanks God for his ignorance?" asked the Bishop.

"Well, yes, if you want to put it that way," he replied.

"Then all I have to add," said the Bishop, unctuously, "is that the brother has a great deal to be thankful for."

Housekeepers Should Remember

The great success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by its manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care, and skill attained by twenty-five years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no preparation can be made with a greater accuracy, precision, and exactness.

Every article used is absolutely pure. Chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact effect in combination with its co-ingredients is definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials used, or the manufacture of the powder, who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business.

As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome, and uniform in quality. Each box is exactly like every other, and will retain its power, and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time.

The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity, and wholesomeness; and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

All chemical tests to which I have submitted it have proved the Royal Baking Powder perfectly healthful, of uniformly excellent quality, and free from every deleterious substance

Scene first—Three persons, a man in black or dark overcoat, dancing, a man in light overcoat clinging to a woman. Scene second.—The three persons seem to confer together. Scene third—The woman has one arm of the man in light coat, while the other arm is taken by the man in light overcoat, they start up the track in this way—but the man who is assisted is so drunk, and sways so much from side to side, the woman cannot sustain him. Scene fourth—This woman takes the drunkard's right arm, the man in the dark coat takes her right arm and in that ingenious way, they finally walk the sot up the track out of sight.

BUTLER.

Another of Butler's land marks has succumbed to the fiery element. About 7:30 on the morning of the 24th our citizens were aroused from their quiet pursuits by the cry of fire. At the same time a dense volume of smoke was seen issuing from the roof of what was for a long time known as the Lockwood building on the southeast corner of Broadway and North streets, recently owned by S. G. Stone, and occupied by Stoner & Son as a bakery, restaurant and dwelling. The building is inwerwoven with the history of the town. It was built in 1865, by Lewis Geauque. The fates seemed to be against it, as it narrowly escaped destruction by the tornado of the same year. In 1869, it had another close call by fire on the northeast corner. In 1877 it had another close call by the same element, it escaped only by the tearing down of another building, Rank's meat market. Since that time it has uupon two or three occasions come near going up in smoke from fires within it. The occasion was a very fortunate one for a fire, a dense wet fog enveloped everything, so the flames could not be seen three squares away, and scarcely a breath of air was stirring, so the building burned very slowly, and made but little heat, thus producing not much of any danger to surrounding property. Nearly all and contents of the buildings were removed. A small iron clad frame building adjoining it on the south, owned by Samuel Stone, perished This one adjoined Thomas Rudd's meat market, which by the almost superhuman efforts of our citizens was saved. The small building was occupied by Mrs. Stoner as a millinery store, but all the goods were saved. The losses and insurance were as follows: The building owned by S. G. Stone insured for $700, a total loss. The small building owned by the same man, insured for $200, total loss. George Stoner's household goods $600, small damage. Stoner & Son insured $650, small loss. The small building and Mr. Rudd were insured with J. A. Campbell and their losses were settled last Saturday. The others will perhaps be settled within a week.

Obituary.

Emma A. Bachtel, youngest daughter of Henry and Mary Bachtel was born March 29, 1867 and died February 23, 1892, aged 24 yrs. 10 mos. and 23 days.

Emma was born and raised on her father's farm south of Waterloo, and her life was remarkably free from care and trouble, until the fall of 1890 when she was stricken with typhoid fever. She never fully regained her strength after this attack, though she was able to go about and visit her friends. She remained under the doctor's care, but the effect of the fever manifested itself in a weakness of the lungs, which resulted in her death.

While still strong enough to go about she attended the meeting in progress at the U. B. church of Waterloo in January 1892 and of her own free will she went to the altar where she soon experienced the forgiving power of her Savior. Soon after this Rev. McCloe visited her at her home and administered the rite of baptism and received her into church fellowship.

On Tuesday evening February 23rd. it became evident that she was not long for this world. She talked freely to her friends of faith in Jesus and after a time lifting both arms upward, she said "O Jesus, dear Jesus take me now." After resting a short time she sang with almost unearthly sweetness the first stanza of "Jesus lover of my soul," and later on, "Safe in the arms of Jesus." Throughout her life the gift of song seemed to have been denied her and no one ever heard her attempt to sing, but just before her entrance to the heavenly portal she seemed to become a part of the angel choir.

She then asked for the neighbors who were present and bade each good bye. When she asked for her mother, father, brothers and sisters, and calling each by name as they came to the bedside, she said the last good bye. She then rested quietly for about two hours, and then peacefully fell asleep, being conscious to the very last.

The funeral services were held in the U. B. church at 2 p m. Thursday. The house was filled to its utmost capacity and Rev. McCloe preached an effective discourse from Matt. xiii-43. "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." Several beautiful floral offerings rested on the casket and by its side. The remains were laid to rest in the Waterloo cemetery.

The Reaper of Death.

Death hath again set his stamp upon the forehead of a loved one. Another life of promise has been closed, and another young spirit has winged its flight to Him who gave it. On Monday, Feb 15 the lamp of Francke Spener Eckert went out; his life terminating after an illness of five weeks. He had come home from college at the holiday season to brighten, for a short time, his mother's lonely life. At college he was attentive and studious; a member of the Sophomore class, and a young man esteemed by all who knew him. He was an active member of the Y. M. C. A., and a regular attendant of the Sabbath School and Sanctuary of the Lord.

Francke Spener Eckert was the youngest of a family of twelve; nine of whom had preceded him to the spirit world. Large indeed, had been the circle, but it is continually diminishing. The head of the family is gone, and now this great circle of kindred ties is riven from center to circumference. Let the bereaved ones remember these words of consolation: "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

The deceased was born June 25, 1872, and died Feb. 15, 1892, at his home, from which he was buried at the Fairfield Center Cemetery. The writer called upon the deceased a short time before his demise, and we little thought he would go so soon as hopes were entertained that he might be spared a few years longer. But God's ways are mysterious and we must recognize that life is short and eternity long.

Died.

Cora May, daughter of G. H. and Almetta Dunn, Feb. 8, 1892, aged 5 yrs. 9 mos., and 13 days. Funeral services were conducted at her home Feb. 11, by Rev. A. F. McCloe. Her remains were taken to Waterloo, for interment.

Loving hands with gentle touch,
Prepared her for the grave;
But ere they closed the casket lid,
We all as one drew near, to bid
Adieu to one we could not save.
A chord was touched in every heart,
And many a glistening tear,
Shone like dew drops among the flowers,
That graced her lovely bier.
Then they bore her very tenderly,
Hearts sorely and solemnly distressed;
With gentle hands they laid
Our little Cora May to rest.

Caught Another Tough.

Our marshal, Mr. Pfeffarl, is not a giant by any means, but he has the sand and muscle, and does not hesitate to tackle the biggest man in the state. Last Saturday, a big fellow came in from the north, where he had been working on the new Wabash railway, and he proceeded at once to the task of drinking the saloons dry. Finding the job a pretty big one, he got boisterous, and then insulting. He finally worked his way over to the east side, and landed his burly carcass into Will Harris' house without as much as saying "by your leave." In fact, he gave them to understand he was going to stay with them. Of course Harris objected, and violent argument ensued. Mrs. Harris was frightened, and ran to the neighbors near by for help. But Harris some way managed to get the fellow out of the house, and into the barn. In the mean time, some one had come for the marshal. He took night watch Baker, and they went over and found matters as we have stated. He refused to go away and swore he would not be taken. But they collared him. Then he showed fight and a hard tussle ensued, for he was a fighter. In the racket, Mr. Baker and the marshal both received blows that nearly knocked them over, but both were plucky, and kept banging away at him, and finally landed him in the calaboose. He was kept there till Monday, when he begged so hard to be allowed to go back up to his job on the railroad, that he was allowed to go. Of course this saved further expense, but these toughs should be taught a lesson. Let us by all means get a stone pile and put them to work. This man should have been made to put in a week's work. In this way we can improve our streets and the morals of the town at the same time.

CALIFORNIA.

California is the most attractive and delightful section of the United States, if not of the world, and many beautiful resorts will be crowded by the best families of the east during the entire winter. It offers to the investor the best opportunity for safe and large returns from its fruit lands. It offers the kindest climate in the world to the feeble and debilitated; and it is reached in the most comfortable manner over the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad. Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars leave Chicago by this line every day in the year and go without change or transfer through to San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego. This is a feature not offered by any other line. Write to John J. Byrne, 621 Rialto Building, Chicago, Ill., if you desire any further information as to the country and accommodations for reaching it.

It Should be in Every House.

Robert Barber, of Cooksport, Pa., claims Dr King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for lung trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. THE TASTE FOR POETRY.

How One Author Discovered His Love for Verse at the Age of Fifteen.

It would be interesting, were it possible, to know what proportion of people really care for poetry, and how the love of poetry came to them and grew in them—and where and when it stopped. Modern poets whom one meets are apt to say that poetry is not read at all. Byron's Murray ceased to publish poetry in 1830, just when Tennyson and Browning were striking their preludes. Probably Mr. Murray was wise in his generation.

But it is also likely that many persons even now are attached to poetry, though they certainly do not buy contemporary verse. How did the passion come to them? How long did it stay? When did the Muse say goodby? To myself poetry came with Sir Walter Scott, for one read Shakespeare as a child, rather in a kind of dream of fairyland and enchanted isles, than with any distinct consciousness that one was occupied with poetry.

Next to Scott, with me, came Longfellow, who pleased one as more reflective and tenderly sentimental, while the reflections were not so deep as to be puzzling. I remember how "Hiawatha" came out, when one was a boy, and how delightful was the free forest life, and Minnehaha and Paupukkeewis and Nokomis. One did not then know that the same charm, with a yet fresher dew upon it, was to meet one later in the Kalewala. But at that time one had no conscious pleasure in poetic style, except in such ringing verse as Scott's, and Campbell's in his patriotic pieces.

The pleasure and enchantment of style first appealed to me at about the age of fifteen, when one read for the first time:

So all day long the noise of battle rolled
Among the mountains by the northern sea;
Until King Arthur's Table, man by man,
Had fallen in Lyonesse about their Lord.

Next I tried Tennyson, and instantly a new light of poetry dawned, a new music was audible, a new god came into my medley of a Pantheon, a god never to be dethroned. "Men scarcely know how beautiful fire is," Shelley says. I am convinced that we scarcely know how great a poet Lord Tennyson is; use has made him too familiar.—Andrew Lang in Scribner's.

A Complicated Lawsuit.

If the besetting sin of the Singhalese is their inordinate love of litigation, this certainly is fostered by their very troublesome law of inheritance, which results in such minute subdivisions of property that the one hundred and ninety-ninth share of a field, or the fiftieth of a small garden, (containing, perhaps, a dozen palms and a few plantains), become a fruitful source of legal contention, of quarrels and of crime. Emerson Tenant mentions a case in which the claim was for the two thousand five hundred and twentieth share in the produce of ten cocoa palms.

To illustrate this sort of litigation the Rev. R. Spence Hardy quoted an intricate claim on disputed property, in which the case of the plaintiff was as follows: "By inheritance through my father I am entitled to one-fourth of one-third of one-eighth. Through my mother I am further entitled to one-fourth of one-third of one-eighth. By purchase from one set of co-heirs I am entitled to one ninety-ninth; from another set also one ninety-ninth, and from a third one ninety-ninth more. Finally, from a fourth set of co-heirs I have purchased one one hundred and forty-fourth of the whole." There is a nice question to solve ere a landowner can begin to till his field or reap its produce!—National Review.

"When."

Most people who read a paper would like to have it come to their hands without any typographical or editorial errors. This is quite possible when all the following conditions come together:

When the contributor has written correctly.

When he has written the correct thing distinctly.

When the compositor has only the correct letters in the different cases.

When he does not take letters from a a wrong case.

When he sets them correctly.

When the "reader" corrects every error.

When the compositor corrects the "rough proof" properly.

When the compositor corrects the second proof properly.

When the revised proof is carefully "read."

When the "reader" has sufficient time to do this.

A large manufacturer, whose affairs were very much embarassed, and who overworked and broken down with nervous exhaustion, went to a celebrated specialist. He was told that the only thing needed was to be relieved of care and worry, and have a change of thought. This doctor was more considerate of his patient's health than of his financial circumstances. He ought to have advised him to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the best remedy for nervous prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness, headache, ill effects of spirits, tabacco, coffee, opium, etc. Thousands testify to cures. AUBURN AND VICINITY.

The year 1860 has been marked by events that have left a durable impression upon the character of our government. All parties north and thousands south, loved the Union much but very many loved party and slavery more. The turbulence of political strife rose and rolled wave upon wave sweeping with ebb and flow through the free states and stirring the feelings, the passions, the best and the worst elements in human nature.

Citizens of Auburn and DeKalb county, tenacious of opinion, sincere and earnest from respective points of view, deprecated war, and strove as far as they could, each in his way, to avert resort to arms.

They engaged in the campaign, preliminary and actual with enthusiasm. The canvass and the election became paramount considerations and the entire population was arrayed either in the ranks of the candidate for Squatter Sovereignty, Stephen A. Douglas, or Free Territories, Abraham Lincoln, both distinguished citizens of Illinois.

The nomination of Mr. Lincoln for president by the republican party was celebrated at Auburn on May 22, by a numerously attended mass meeting. Delegation followed delegation coming into town with banners, flags and martial music, making similar display to the last fall's imposing parade of the Farmers' Alliance on their way to the fair ground to hold a picnic, and when evening had come bonfires blazing illuminated the scene, a torch-light procession marched along the streets and the populace were stirringly addressed by S. W. Widney and S. B. Ward.

At the democratic county convention it was unanimously resolved, "that in Stephen A. Douglas, we have a statesman of marked ability, unflinching Jacksonian firmness, and an undaunted advocate of self-government."

In township meetings, S. W. Sprott and James B. Morrison were democratic orators and W. S. Smith, familiarly known and remembered as "Popgun" Smith, a campaign speaker from Fort Wayne, canvassed the townships and addressed largely attended meetings in Auburn.

Mr. Smith was eulogized as one of the ablest speakers in the state and the Era said of him, "His glowing oratory, logical reasoning and unrefutable statement of facts surpassed the expectation of his friends and elicited praise from his politics opponents.

As the campaign drew to a close, politics became the absorbing issue, a grand demonstration was made by the democracy at Waterloo. Hickory poles were raised amid cheers from the throngs of spectators, many ladies carrying a beautiful banner made and owned by Mrs. M. F. Pearce, of Auburn, marched in the van of a long procession to a stand for speakers whence they were eloquently addressed by Judge Lowry and P. Hinkel.

While political fervor ran high, personal, municipal and county interests held even tenor of way. The multitude did not realize the gravity of the issues involved and very few anticipated actual war.

Young and old patronized the picture gallery of Jerome Gallahan opposite Sanders' store "where ambrotypes of superior execution were taken in clouded as well as clear weather," and are still preserved as priceless mementos of departed kindred and friends.

The Era hopefully noting a movement in the line of improvements, when things were far from cheerful, actual and prospective, came out strong in a Mark Tapley way as follows: "Our sidewalks are now fast being built, the public square will soon be enclosed in a neat fence, and our citizens are painting and fixing up generally. Saturday is a busy day. Nearly every business house in town has been crowded with customers from all parts of the county. Auburn is coming out. The weather (May 16) is fair, roads are good, and farmers are having a splendid time planting their corn and doing all kinds of outside work."

There was good grounds for hopefulness on part of those whose desires were easily satisfied. In regard to sidewalks, official action had been taken and an ordinance respecting walks along lots fronting Main street, had been passed. The walks were to be ten feet wide on Fourth and Ninth streets, and four feet wide elsewhere. Such walks as lot owners were thus enforced to make, were an advance and served well their day. It is to be noticed that rarely did private enterprise go beyond public requirement and more frequently fell short of it.

There being a balance of $36 91 of municipal fund, it was ordered that $30 of it be expended in building plank walks across Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth streets west side of Main street, also across the street "between the auditor's office and Smith's drugstore and between S. D. Long's hotel and James Griswold's grocery store." These crossings were two feet in width, made with plank three inches thick and were put down under contract by Hiram Griswold.

The town authorities long followed the precedent thus set of narrow crossings but gradually increased their width to three and four feet, till finally a liberal and business board have enlarged the width of the Main street crossings to five feet, the width of the cement walks, and laid them with the same permanent material, much to their credit, to the convenience of pedestrians and the appearance of walks.

Meetings of the town board were migratory. At one time held in the drugstore of Job C. Smith, then at the office of the county auditor and most frequently at the shop of George W. Stahl.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of Gov. Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere handful of bones. Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 6

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn, Ind. tf

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY IN THE OHIO PENITENTIARY.

Terrific Explosion of Nitro-Glycerine—Sane and in an Insane Asylum—Canadian Elections—Gen. Schofield Has a Narrow Escape—Wife Murderer Hanged.

Canadian Elections.

Montreal special: The Conservative party in Quebec which came into power by a coupe d' etat of Lieutenant Governor Anger, was sustained at the polls by a good majority. The general elections in Quebec were the most exciting in the history of the province. They were brought about by the dismissal of the Mercier cabinet by the Lieutenant Governor, acting on the majority report of the royal commission to investigate the charges of corruption against the Mercier administration, which report sustained the charges.

Complete returns from the seventy-three constituencies show the election of fifty-two Conservatives and twenty-two Liberals. The former gained twenty-nine seats.

A Narrow Escape.

Gen. Schofield, Commander-in-chief of the Army of the United States, had a narrow escape from death, at Washington. He was on his way to his office in the War Department, and the carriage had just entered Executive avenue, which separates the White House from the War, State and Navy Building, when it was run into by a delivery wagon of the American Express Company and overturned. The General was somewhat bruised by the fall, but was able to proceed to his office and was at his desk as usual during the morning. It was a very narrow escape, however, and it was only by the display of courage, coolness and good judgment by the coachman that a fatal result was averted.

Sullivan-Corbett.

John L. Sullivan has telegraphed to Charles Johnson at Hot Springs, as follows: "Cover Corbett's forfeit; fight to take place the last of August or first week in September in club offering largest purse, Marquis of Queensbury rules to govern; $10,000 side bet, or as much more as they will bet, as per my challenge. First come, first served. Also cover all bluffers for any match in the same space of time."

New Orleans special: Corbett has telegraphed here that he will fight Sullivan at any time during the summer, before the Olympic Club, and that club wired back that it will put up a purse of $25,000 for the event.

Ultimatum of Street-Car Employes.

The committee of the Brotherhood of Street-car Employes of Indianapolis and President Frenzel met and the former made five demands upon the latter, and requested an answer soon. The demands are: 1. For free riding of employes. 2. Re-employment of six discharged members of the order. 3. An increase of pay of 1 cent per hour. 4. Discharge of all the scabs. 5. Extra men to receive the same pay as regulars when doing regulars' work. It is impossible to say what answer Frenzel will make to these demands, and if some, if not all, are not granted, ananother strike will undoubtedly follow.

Bishop Horstmann Welcomed.

Cleveland special: Bishop Horstmann arrived in this city from Pittsburgh. In spite of the mud and falling snow, thousands of people were on the streets to greet him. There was a long parade composed of Catholic societies of this and surrounding cities. He was escorted to the Bishop's residence, where he was greeted by local priests and laymen. Next morning he officiated in an elaborate mass at St. John's Cathedral, assisted by the dignitaries of surrounding churches.

Mayor Washburne Talks of Resigning.

It is asserted on good authority that Hempstead Washburne has concluded to perform an act which is unprecedented in the history of Chicago. That is to tender his resignation as Mayor at an early day. He has been considering the advisability of retiring from office since the Republican newspapers of the city began a United attack upon him on account of his approval of the compressed air ordinance.

Terrific Explosion of Nitro-Glycerine.

The nitro-glycerine magazine of the High Explosive Company, located two miles west of Findlay, Ohio, exploded and caused a shock all over Northwestern Ohio as if from an earthquake. Several farm houses were badly damaged and thousands of panes of window glass in Findlay were broken, but no lives were lost. A fire in the building caused the explosion. The loss has not yet been learned.

He Is Sane.

Dr. J. C. Rogers, Medical Superintendent of the Long Cliff Insane Asylum at Logansport, Ind., together with the Medical Board of the Institution, investigated the case of Andrew Westevelt, who, it is charged, was sent to the asylum by relatives in order to secure possession of his property. Westevelt was declared to be of sound mind, and in a day or two will return to his home.

Terrible Tragedy.

A terrible tragedy was enacted in the tailor shop of the Ohio Prison, Columbus. John Johnson, alias William Field, a seven-year man from Cincinnati, stepped up behind a convict named Grayson, a fifteen-year man from Zanesville, and with a large shoe knife, made two slashes at the back of his neck, almost severing the head from the trunk.

Professor Swift Discovers a Comet.

Rochester special: Prof. Swift, of the Warner Observatory, has discovered a bright telescopic comet in right ascension 18 hours, 50 minutes; declination, south 31 degrees, 20 minutes. It is moving in an easterly direction. It can be seen with an opera glass.

A Wife Murderer Hanged.

Charles Wall was executed at Tunkhannock, Pa., for the murder of his wife.

Jeff Davis' Widow.

Vareina Jefferson Davis, the widow of ex-President of the Southern Confederacy, has brought suit in the United States Circuit Court in New York, to restrain Robert Belford and the Belford Company from transferring the rights of this company in the memoirs written by her of her husband to the United States Book Company. In her complaint Mrs. Davis says that on March 4th, 1890, she entered into a contract with Robert Belford for the sale of this book. This contract was afterward transferred to the Belford Company. Mrs. Davis further claims that royalties to the amount of $4,001.27 are due her on the sale of the book, and she brings suit for the recovery of this sum with interest from September last.

AN ASSASSIN

Shoots Rabbi Mendes of New York.

Dr. Henry Perrecia Mendes, rabbi of the synagogue Shearith Israel, was shot in the abdomen in the vestibule of his home, No. 6 West Ninth street, New York, by an Arabian mendicant, Joseph Mesrachki, who escaped. The bullet was extracted and Dr. Mendes will recover. The would-be murderer followed Dr. Mendes from the synagogue to the door of his house, and then demanded $100. Dr. Mendes at first laughed at the man, but soon realized that the fellow was desperate and tried to put him off. Mesrachki quickly closed the door of the vestibule and made another demand for the money. The doctor then threatened to call the police and endeavored to put Mesrachki from the door, whereupon the latter drew a revolver and fired, quickly making his escape. The wounded man was quickly carried into the house, and physicians sent for. Jose Mesrachki came to this country several years ago, and has supported himself by begging. Mr. Mendes has helped him a number of times with substantial gifts, but, becoming annoyed at the man's persistency, refused to aid him further.

FOR SMUGGLING.

Thirty Prominent People Apprehended.

Thirty of the most prominent citizens of Marine City, Mich., including several leading attorneys and clergymen have been apprehended in assisting in the smuggling of valuable clothing across the line from Canada. The ringleaders in the operations, George F Dogan and Frank May, merchant tailors at Sombra, Ontario, were arrested in the act of smuggling clothes across the river, and their arrest led to the later sensational developments. These two men have been in business between the two countries for a long time, and had worked up a large and growing trade, having for customers some of the leading and professional men whose social and church relations have given them extra prominence. Thirty citizens of this class possess clothing purchased from the Canadian merchants, and knew they were dealing with smugglers. The officers say they have evidence that some of the clothing was made to measure, having secured the books of the smuggling merchants. The United States Government officials who have made the arrests have worked upon the case long and thoroughly, and promise even more sensational developments.

Pool Rooms Raided at Chicago.

Frank Shaw's pool room at Chicago was raided recently, the services of twenty-five Central Station officers, under the command of Capt. Shea and Sargeant Wood being needed to arrest 200 players. When the place was surrounded, not a man was allowed to go out until twelve patrol wagons were in readiness. They were all carted off to the Harrison Street Station. The sight of this long procession of loaded patrol wagons drew more people into the streets than would have been attracted by a circus parade, and a large crowd lingered, cheering the victims lustily. Walter C. Lloyd and E. J. Wallace were booked as keepers of the place and were charged both under the State law and city ordinance with violating the pool-selling laws. Frank Shaw was absent in St. Paul. It will be a test case of Shaw's novel scheme for evading the pool law by incorporating a telegraph company and transacting the business of pool-selling by wire.

She Will Produce Them.

Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., or Marie Nevins-Blaine, as she prefers to be called, was at the Wellington Hotel, Chicago, recently. She was accompanied by her little son, James G. Blaine, III., his nurse and Mrs. Blaine's maid. Mrs. Blaine is looking well and said she was in good health. To a Press News reporter she said she could say but little in addition to the statements contained in her open letter. "Continuing she said: "If Mr. Blaine does not within ten days publish the full text of my letters I will give to the public letters which his son wrote to me before our marriage and which will prove conclusively who it was that was the wooer.

A Troublesome Tramp Shot by a Policeman.

On the arrival of a Baltimore and Ohio freight train in Defiance, Ohio, recently, two tramps were put off the train by the conductor. The tramps engaged in an altercation with the conductor, who appealed to Policeman John McGusheon for assistance. When approached by the policeman the tramps showed fight, and drawing large knives, attacked him viciously. One tramp, a burly six-footer, was shot through the heart by McGusheon, and died instantly. The dead man's partner was secured after a hard struggle, and placed under arrest. McGusheon immediately surrendered himself to the authorities.

Chili Matters.

Valparaiso special: It is reported on good authority that Minister Egan will return to the United States in April. All the members of the Cabinet have resigned. From interviews had with prominent citizens of Valparaiso, it would appear that they were anxious for the American Congress to appoint a commission to visit Chili and investigate fully all matters relating to the difference between the two countries. Minister Pedro Montt has cabled from Washington his resignation of his position on account of his election as a deputy. The Chilian Government will probably ask him to remain at his post until his successor has been appointed.

Asked for Troops.

Des Moines (Iowa) special: Gov. Boies has received a dispatch from Corning stating that serious trouble had broken out among the citizens there and the Sheriff asked authority to call out a company of the Iowa National Guards to help keep the peace. Corning is the county seat of Adams County. It has been impossible to obtain any information in regard to the disturbance. Adams County men about the State House think the trouble of a religious nature as a disturbance in the Free Methodist Church has been brewing for some time, the trouble arising, it is stated, out of a series of revival meetings.

Asleep a Year and a Half.

Valparaiso (Ind.) special: Mrs. Mary Robinson, an inmate of the Starke County Poor-house, has been asleep eighteen months. The regular pulsations of the heart alone indicate that she is alive. When her eyelids are pried open her eyes stare into space, with no gleam of intelligence in them. A sound rap on the head or a pin thrust into the flesh causes no movement. Milk, her only nourishment, is given her through a rubber tube inserted in her nose. The sleeper is placed in a rocking-chair during the day and at night is carried to her bed near by.

They Like Foster.

London special: Secretary Foster has succeeded in making an excellent impression upon those who have called upon him at his hotel. It is quite a novel thing to Englishmen to see any one holding so high an official position as Mr. Foster so perfectly accessible to all who call upon him. He has so far declined all social invitations, and apparently his trip was undertaken, as he has announced, purely for health and recreation. If there is any other motive in connection with it, it has been very successfully concealed up to the present time.

Corbett Will Fight Sullivan.

W. A. Brady, manager for James J. Corbett, put up a forfeit of $1,000 in New York and issued a challenge to John L. Sullivan to fight for $10,000 a side and the largest purse that a club will give. Brady said that he would add $1,500, making a forfeit of $2,500 in all, as soon as he learned that Sullivan had indicated a willingness to meet Corbett. Brady adds that Corbett will sign articles to fight in August, September or whenever it suits Sullivan best. All we want, concluded Brady, is a sign from him that he will make the match.

The Bold Highwayman.

Oliver Curtis Perry, the bold highwayman who went through an express car on a New York Central train a few weeks ago is wanted in Montana. He is believed to be the man who killed Andy McCoy in Georgetown, Deer Lodge County, in 1887 or 1888. McCoy engaged in a bar room quarrel with one Oliver C. Perry, who picked up a cuspidore, hit him on the head and killed him. Perry made his escape, and although a large reward was offered, he was never again heard from.

New York Charter Elections.

Charter elections were held in many of the cities and towns in New York State Tuesday. The returns show large Republican gains.

The Albany Evening Journal (Rep.) has compiled results on Supervisors in elections thus far throughout the interior of New York. They are as follows: Republican Supervisors, 521; Democratic Supervisors, 272. In 1891 the same counties elected 426 Republicans and 352 Democrats.

Vessels in Distress.

The Norwegian bark Glenguirn has arrived at New York from Pallan, eighty days out. She had a rough voyage. On Feb. 25, when twenty-five miles off Hattrass, Captain Hansin reports, she passed the schooner Wesley Johnson waterlogged and abandoned. On the next day fifty miles off Hattrass, she passed another schooner. She was a three master. All that could be made out of her name was Mary from Philadelphia.

Murder at Lima.

Frank Frederick, a brakeman on the Chicago and Erie road, at Lima, Ohio, and Bert Tate, employed in the yard-master's office, had a quarrel while Fredericks was waiting orders and as the train pulled out Fredericks ran into the caboose and returned armed with a shotgun, which he discharged at Tate. The entire charge entered his head, tearing a part of his skull away. Fredericks made his escape.

Lottery Men Arrested Again

All the officers and leading employes of the Louisiana State Lottery were arraigned before the United States Supreme Court, at New Orleans, charged with violating the anti-lottery postal law under indictment found in Trenton, N. J. This makes the fourteenth indictment they have been called on to answer in as many different States from Massachusetts to Dakota and from Minnesota to Texas.

Fatal Collision.

The Chicago express collided with an extra through freight train at Rockville, Md. Fireman Buckaloo of Cranberry, and Brakeman Featers of Martinsburg, W. Va., were killed and Engineer Peters of the express, and an express messenger slightly injured. No passengers were hurt. Two sleepers were slightly damaged. The accident was caused by the freight leaving the siding.

A Poisoned Bottle of Wine.

The bottle of wine sent to Millionaire Philip D. Armour at Chicago, recently, which is said to have been poisoned by some unknown enemy, has been analyzed and found to contain a small quantity of laudanum. Mr. Armour is satisfied that it is an attempt to extort money from him and a thorough investigation will be made.

Duty on Wheat Reduced.

The Secretary of State is informed by a telegram from the Minister of the United States at Lisbon that by an official decree of the 4th instant, duty on wheat imported into Portugal is reduced to one and one-half reals per kilogram.

Hotels Burned.

The Ocean and Beach hotels and three cottages at Tybees beach twenty miles from Savannah, Ga., burned. Estimated loss, $40,000; insurance unknown. The fire started in the Beach House and is believed to be of incendiary origin.

Will Sue New Orleans.

Suit will be brought in the United States Circuit Court against the city of New Orleans by relatives of the unnaturalized Italians that were lynched on the 4th of March last. The suit in the aggregate will amount to nearly $200,000.

A Congressman Dead.

Hon. John W. Kendall, representative in Congress of the Tenth Kentucky district, died at his residence in Washington from an apoplectic stroke.

BASE-BALL MEN MEET.

FIRST MEETING OF LEAGUE OFFICIALS.

A New National Agreement Governing Drafting—New Form of Players' Contract Adopted—Important Changes, and Additions to the Old Rules.

Preparing for the Fray.

The first meeting of the National League and American Association of Professional Base-ball Players was held in New York the other day. The national agreement committee, John I. Rogers, Zach Phelps and N. E. Young, decided on a form of agreement to control "drafting."

The matter was finally settled by voting to divide the minor leagues into two classes to be known as A and B. The former pays $150 for protection and gets $1,000 for any player drafted; the latter pays $75 and gets $500 for a drafted player. Drafting can only be done between Oct. 1 and Feb. 1.

The Western association agreed to do away with two of the most objectionable rules—namely, compelling players to purchase their own uniforms and charging them 50 cents a day while on a trip. The Eastern association also decided to make its playing season from May 1 to Oct. 1.

Mr. Rogers presented the two new forms of players' contract he had prepared. One is for a period of seven months, and the other is the twelve months' form. The latter does not work against the players' financial interests, as many players suppose. It simply provides a new plan of dividing the salary payments. The payments need not necessarily be equally divided throughout the twelve months. A player may arrange to take all but a few hundred dollars during the playing season and the balance in the off months. Should he be released at any time during the playing season, the club is obliged to pay him the proportionate amount of his salary, based upon the seven months' system. That is to say, if he were to be released after three months of service he would get three-sevenths of his salary, not three-twelfths. And, furthermore, should his club release him at the end of the season, he would be entitled to the full amount of his salary, no matter how many months his contract might have to run. It is also stipulated in the twelve-month contract that the club shall have no control over a player's actions during the off months except as regards his physical condition and moral habits. These contracts were approved and unanimously adopted by the league. Many of the league players had already been signed to the new twelve-month contract.

The Committee on Rules then made its reports. The principal contest was on the proposed change from four balls entitling a batsman to first base to three balls. A change was beaten by a vote of 10 to 2. The following playing rules were then made:

"The players' bench shall be twenty-five feet back from the base lines."

Rule 26. "If a team resorts to dilatory practice for the purpose of having the same called on account of darkness or rain the umpire may forfeit the game to the club not at fault."

Added to Rule 30, "Provided a ball so delivered that it touches the bat or batsman in his position shall be counted a batted ball and in play."

Rule 8. "If a ball strike a fence less than 235 feet from the home plate the batsman shall be entitled to only two bases."

Added to section 4, rule 44, the words: "His person, except hand or forearm, which makes a dead ball."

Added to rule 50: "And not more than two coaches who may be one of the players in the game and any one in the uniform of the club at bat, shall be allowed at any one time."

Rule 53. "The umpire is the sole and absolute judge of plays. In no instance shall any person be allowed to question the correctness of his decision on a play, and no player shall leave his position in the field, bases or bench to approach or advise the umpire, except to show playing rule, and then only the captain. No manager or any officer shall go on the field under penalty of forfeiture of the game."

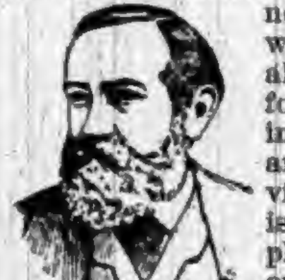
Added to section 2, rule 53: "He shall also receive from the captains their respective batting orders, which when approved shall be followed as provided by rule 19."

Added to section 8, rule 68: "If a base-runner advances a base on a fly out or gains two bases on a single base-hit, or an infield out, or attempted one, he shall be credited with a stolen base, provided that there is a possible chance and a palpable effort made to retire him."

FOR HARRISON.

Indiana Delegates Will Support Him at the Minneapolis Convention.

The district conventions in Indiana for the selection of delegates to the Minneapolis convention, were pretty much all alike in enthusiasm for Harrison's renomination, says an Indianapolis dispatch. A victory for the administration was completed. There was no opposition to the Harrison candidates anywhere but in the Twelfth District, and there it was of no consequence. It was expected that if there was any decided antagonism it would develop in the First, Tenth, Seventh and Twelfth Districts, but these rather excelled in the earnestness of their indorsement of the administration and no opposing candidates were proposed. Resolutions were adopted declaring "that the President's careful and effective labors have entitled him to a re-election and the delegates chosen at this convention are hereby instructed to vote and labor at the national convention for his renomination."



HARRISON.

The Riot in Berlin.

THE situation in Berlin is growing interesting, not to say exciting. The egotistical and arrogant young Emperor appears to have lost his head.—Minneapolis Times.

HOW GRIM old "blood and iron" Bismarck must chuckle in the privacy of his garden as he hears the roar of rioters rolling down Unter den Linden.—Grand Rapids Herald.

THESE men embodied a national protest against the arbitrary government of an irresponsible Emperor, and this makes the Berlin riot significant.—Minneapolis Tribune.

THE Emperor's mad course is full of danger. The German people will not submit to the loss of any liberties which they have struggled hard to gain. Instead of the good times he prophesies he seems more likely to lead them into revolution and disastrous civil war.—Buffalo Express.

FACTS ABOUT WHEAT.

WHAT PRIME SAYS ABOUT THE WINTER CEREAL.

It Has Commenced to Grow and the Situation Has Lately Improved—More Grain in the Farmer's Hands than There Was a Year Back.

Winter Wheat.

The last fourteen days have been particularly favorable to the winter wheat crop, says Prime's Crop Report. The moisture has been ample, and the crop has not been subjected during that time to any sudden or severe freezing weather, which is one of the features of the first part of March. The ground has been bare of snow nearly all winter and hardly any during the last six weeks. The crop now has commenced to grow. Its general condition, however, is not as good as it was at this time last year. That is, it is not as far advanced in growth and the plants are by no means as strong and healthy as they were then, and there has been considerable improvement in the prospects of the crop from what it was thirty days ago. So far the percentage of the winter wheat which has been killed is small. Taking the crop by States it is practically in this condition:

In Illinois.

Southern Illinois reports that February did the growing wheat a great deal of good, as there was little if any frost in the ground during most of the month and the weather mild. The effects were beneficial. The crop is still small for the time of year. Farmers are getting ready for spring work, but the land is too wet yet for seeding. The acreage of spring crops promises to be large and the land in good condition. Farmers are not holding their wheat for higher prices, as was the case in October and November. The reserves in farmers' hands are but little more than a year ago, and millers are buying from hand to mouth. In Central Illinois the frost has been out of the ground for some time and the ground is full of water. Wheat is doing well. It is thin on the ground, but is firmly rooted and spreading. There has been no plowing for oats yet, but with clear skies seeding is likely to commence at any day.

In Missouri.

The winter wheat crop bears no comparison with that of last year. It is much more backward and general conditions not as favorable. It is short and thin, but it has improved greatly during the recent mild, wet weather. No reports of wheat having been winter killed. In a few of the southern counties spring work has commenced. The movement of wheat has been more free during the last two weeks than previously, and would have been larger had the roads been in condition for farmers to haul. Millers are good bidders for wheat and have light stocks on hand.

Kansas.

So far winter wheat has made little growth in Kansas. The heavy rains of the last two weeks have been beneficial, however, to the crop. It already begins to show signs of growth. Farmers did a great deal of plowing in December and January, and are now well prepared for early seeding as soon as the ground dries off. The reserves of wheat in farmers' hands are about the same as a year ago. Millers' stocks are running low and the demand for flour increasing.

Kentucky.

In Kentucky the condition of the winter wheat crop is much below that of the same time last year. During the last ten days there have been some warm days and the wheat appears to be growing a little. There are so far no complaints of winter killing; but it is difficult yet to determine the real condition of the late sown winter wheat. The majority of the farmers are inclined to wait until we have enough warm weather to see whether it is going to grow before they plow it up. Little wheat has been sold during the last thirty days. There is more wheat in farmers' hands than at this time last year. Country mills, however, are not as well supplied as they were then.

Indiana.

The severe effects of the drought last fall are perceptible at the present time upon the winter wheat crop in Northern Indiana. The winter, however, has been favorable for the wheat, and the weather has not been extremely cold. There has been no wheat plowed up yet. Before the roads became bad there was a free movement of wheat, but as they are now impassable the movement has stopped. Millers have light stocks of wheat. In Southern Indiana wheat has begun to grow a little. Little winter wheat has been killed. At this date it is hard to get a correct idea of the condition of the crop. Some fields look well and some poor, while the general condition does not favorably compare with that of this date one year ago. Then it was much above the average, and now it is just the reverse. There is little movement of wheat, and the reserves in farmers' hands are larger than a year ago. On high, well-drained land a few oats have been seeded.

In Ohio.

In Northern Ohio the wheat crop on the whole does not look as well as it did a year ago at this time. This is especially true of the late sown, which is backward and thin on the ground. During the present week heavy rains have fallen, which were followed by a hard freeze, and the winter wheat is in no condition to withstand this kind of weather. Little wheat was marketed during February. There is fully as much and probably more wheat in farmers' hands than a year ago at this date. Spring work has not commenced yet to any great extent. In Southern Ohio the growing wheat has improved some, but the general condition of the crop is poor. Well drained lands are holding their own and growing, but those not drained are showing up poorly.

In Michigan.

The growing crop of winter wheat in Michigan is not as good as a year ago. The mild wet weather of last week took off all the snow and started some growth. Spring work has not yet commenced. The movement from farmers' hands during February showed an increase over the two preceding months. Farmers are carrying more wheat than in 1891.

In New York.

In Western New York the wheat is all covered with snow to a depth of from six to ten inches. Up to this time the crop is in good condition. Millers carry light stocks, and the flour trade is also small.

Spring Prospects.

In Nebraska the frost is not yet quite out of the ground, but is coming out rapidly. There is ample moisture, and as soon as the frost is out seeding will commence. There is not half the usual amount of corn at railroad stations. From 40 to 50 per cent. of the corn in farmers' hands has been marketed, and there will be very little corn moved until after seeding. The winter has been a good one, and everything points to a very favorable spring opening.

In Iowa the frost is not out of the ground, but the general conditions are favorable. No oats have been seeded yet.

In South Dakota the snow is all gone, and the frost is coming out. With favorable weather early seeding will commence in a few days.

In southern Minnesota the ground is almost bare of snow, and the frost has come out of the ground from a depth of from three to six inches.

THERE are fifty-nine soldiers' and sailors' widows drawing pensions in Center Township, Wayne County. Two thousand dollars is paid to them every ninety days.

SUMMITVILLE society is shocked with a sensational scandal in which a grass widow, two youths, and an old fellow, who ought to know better, play the leading parts, and there are several supernumeraries, too.

REV. H. C. HOVEY, D. D., of Middletown, Conn., who has been at Crawfordsville, says that the natural gas supply will last at least twenty years. He is a son of the late Prof. E. O. Hovey, of Wabash College.

A FORT WAYNE paper says that the employes of the Pennsylvania Company's shops at Fort Wayne are working all the way from fourteen to nineteen hour per day. The men are working by the piece, and the longer they work the more they make. The men make all the way from $3.75 to $7.25 per day, according to the number of hours they work.

AS THE Monon passenger was passing the scene of the late wreck near Crawfordsville, the passengers in the parlor car were badly frightened on account of an iron bar tearing a hole through the car floor. An investigation showed that an iron bar had been left on the track and had caught in the trucks of this car, with the above result.

THE prospects brighten that Terre Haute is to secure another road, and one that will be of great benefit to the business of that city. The projectors of the Terre Haute, Saylor Springs and Chester road have secured the right of way from the Wabash River (Chenowith ferry) Clarke County, to Albany, Ill., a distance of 103 miles, and it is thought the right of way can easily be secured from Terre Haute to the crossing point named above.

SEVERAL days ago "Nig" Seering escaped from jail at Crawfordsville, and was located at his father's. A policeman attempted to capture him, but old man Seering, drawing a razor, defied the officer. The Sheriff arrived, and, with his revolver in his hand, walked into the house at the front door, while the Policeman entered at the rear. The son was taken and lodged in jail, after which his father attempted to cut the throat of the boy that had gone after the Sheriff. The old man is also in jail now.

ABOUT 3 o'clock the other morning "Chubby" Carroll, the convict who recently killed a prison guard, under a new sentence, together with several other prisoners confined in the County Jail at Jeffersonville, made an effort to escape which came very near being successful. In some manner they had managed to secure several files, and when discovered by Deputy Sheriff Mitchell they had almost got out of the large cell hall and were intending to attack Mr. Mitchell and the jailer. Had they managed to escape, it is said, they had determined to murder Sheriff Donovan. Carroll, it will be remembered, made an effort to escape while confined there about two years since. When discovered he had a revolver, a knife and several other articles secreted on his person. He was taken to Michigan City on an order by Gov. Chase.

MRS. JAMES FRIEND was found unconscious on the floor of her home near Goshen, with her 16-month-old baby patting her face. She died without coming to, having taken a strong drug, supposed to have been oil of tansy, but not with suicidal purpose.

HERE's one from South Bend: A collector failing to collect a bill of 25 cents from a man with a long beard asked sarcastically why he didn't give his whiskers in payment—they were worth a quarter. When the collector next appeared with his bill, he received a package containing those same long, rich, dark-red whiskers. He had taken the collector at his word.

JAMES McCARTY of Kokomo, who was married three months ago, just two weeks after being divorced from his first wife, has now applied for a divorce from his present wife, who was Miss Dora Mattern, daughter of a wealthy Miami County farmer. His first divorce cost him $2,800 alimony.

NOTORIOUS Detective Norris of Springfield, Ohio, appeared at Fort Wayne with a warrant for Frank Slavin, the windy boxer of Thompson's Congress of Celebrities, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses for a show at Springfield, when Charley Mitchell failed to appear. ZEYNA EL ZEGAL

THE ROMANCE OF A HAUNTED HOUSE.

[COPYRIGHTED BY THE AUTHOR, 1890.]

He seemed convinced of the truth of this and brought out the paper, an old, time-worn copy of a New York daily. I scanned this closely, and in the marine intelligence saw a marked paragraph. I read:

"WRECKED.—The schooner Morning Star, on the Florida coast, in a gale. The ill-fated vessel was bound from London to New Orleans. All lives saved but the first mate, two seamen and a passenger, who having heroically stayed on board to the last helping off the others, were swamped in the last boat half way between the wreck and the shore. The passenger lost was one Albert F. Arold, who was bound for America to join his wife and child in one of the Southern States."

After reading this a thought struck me. Burton Arold's mother had been an El Muza and had married in England while on a visit to relatives in that country. Could she be the one whose husband was thought to have deserted her, and was the Albert F. Arold mentioned in the paper her husband coming to her? I found out by further conversation with the negro that the initials in the name of the senora's husband were A. F.; so I settled my mind upon this point, and came to the conclusion, from the old man's story, that the phantom lady was no other than Burton's sweetheart; also, that the people of the villa had considered Burton's legitimacy as resting under a cloud, and that for this reason the match between him and the fair Zeyna had been opposed and thwarted by the young lady's parents.

The sun was setting in a blaze of gold and emerald and purple, throwing its many-tinted lights up against the few slight clouds that were floating lazily along the sky, and a gentle Gulf breeze just stirred to a tremble the ripe leaves upon the trees, as I left the negro's shanty and started musingly back toward the solemn villa.

I had partaken of supper at the ex-slave's humble board, and had learned much of the Montinni history from his honest lips—much more than I need tell here.

Engaged in deep thought, I strolled on toward the gloomy old house. It was growing dusk when I reached the shadow of the building. I entered, went up stairs and sat down upon an antique sofa at the end of the hall near a large double window where I could look out upon the fields and country beyond, and watch them as they slowly disappeared in the deepening gloom of night. In the hush and listlessness of the place and the influence of the soothing darkness I fell into a pleasant sleep.

CHAPTER VII.

THE PHANTOM LADY APPEARS TO BURTON.

Words warm with the eloquence and ecstasy of love and of woe, addressed in a wild, passionate vehemence, by a manly voice (to the phantom lady, so I surmised), echoing through the grim old house, startled me from my sleep. I arose and started down the hall, but stopped midway as I saw the library door swing open and Burton step forward. His face was pale and set as if his soul within were wrenched with a pain of sorrow so deep and unspeakable as to even render emotion inanimate and still. I knew by his looks that his phantom sweetheart had appeared to him, and that the voice which had awakened me was his. He strode forward to the landing of the stairs, then suddenly stopped. How grand he looked there in the hall, standing so erect and solemn in the moonlight! No bronze statue standing lone and stately upon its marble pedestal, in ancient ruin, in the shadow of princely grandeur, could have presented a more striking picture. I amost expected to hear another outburst of eloquence, accompanied by some spiritualistic manifestation wilder and more beautiful than I had yet seen; but, instead, a groan echoed from the statue-like form and it began to totter forward. I leaped to Burton's side just in time to save him from a precipitate fall down the stairway, and to convey him down its dark and crazy flight out into the air.

"Is that you, Hal?" he asked. I answered affirmatively.

"Did you see her?" was his next question. I replied that I had seen no one, having been asleep in the hall until awakened by his voice.

We both sat down on the front veranda railings and taking out cigars smoked them in silence. Burton brooding and dreaming, and I wondering what would come next. It must have been late in the evening when the silence was first broken. It had become tedious, and I ventured to ask Burton what the subject of his profound meditation could be. Pointing toward a wooded dell a half mile away, which I could just faintly discern through the moonlight, he answered:

"Down in yon valley, where the woodbine and the ivy cling to the noble trees, lies the grave of her who would have been part of my life if she had lived. Since her death, years ago, I have not lived; only in appearance. She was my soul, my existence. Upon her every word I hung as upon the breath of life. Into her eyes I looked as into a lustrous sea upon whose balmy waves I should be borne away to lands of everlasting benediction. Her raven tresses, lightly falling about her queenly bodice, were as rays of sunshine to my vision. She was my world, my heaven. Her very footsteps sounding filled me with an exquisite delight that was a sort of insane ecstasy. We were cruelly parted by her parents, and before I could arrange to secretly convey her hence she died of broken heart; and I had rather died. These miserable years have been a period of quasi-madness—a strange and wildered dream, part temporal, part spiritual. To-night the spirit of my love appeared to me for the first time, but only for a moment, holding her clasped hands above my head as if mutely blessing me. It may be that this was but an eccentric vision of a dream distracted brain. However this may be I feel that I too must soon pass away. I feel that my strength is weakening fast."

His voice during this speech was low and feverish; fitful and wild at first, then slow and solemn. As he quit speaking his breath began to come heavily and he fell back; but I anticipated this and caught him before he could fall to the ground. I assisted, or rather carried him into the parlor where I had noticed a sort of couch sofa, and was looking around for something of which to make a light when suddenly the room became softly illuminated, and I saw the Senor Montinni and a number of the revelers of the night before standing around the couch. Montinni came close to me and whispered: "Senor Burton is very ill; his time is near at hand. You must go for his mother. We will see that he is kept as comfortable as possible. His mother lives twenty miles up the bayou in the town of M——. The packet steamer, Katie of the Dell, is due to pass here about this time. You had better prepare to go at once."

Looking out at the window I saw a long train of sparks falling back from two tall dark pipes down the bayou, and knew that the steamer was coming. Getting a few details of direction from Montinni, and taking leave of Burton, I ran over the hill to the landing just in time to hail the boat. The steamer's whistle answered my salute, the boat drew up against the bank to take me on, and soon I was a passenger, my thoughts mingling vaguely with the hissing of the engines, the splashing of the wheels, the trailing of the sparks, and recollections of the strange events at the haunted house.

CHAPTER VIII.

A MIDNIGHT ERRAND.

The packet was a fast boat, and it was but little after midnight when it drew up at the M—— landing, but notwithstanding the night and the darkness I followed the direction given me and soon found the residence of Burton's mother. The house, as well as the whole town, was in the pulseless sleep of night, and the hollow thump-thump of the old-fashioned knocker at the door echoed dully along the street as I applied it. Presently a negress came to the door and asked in a frightened manner what was wanted. I told her that I was a messenger from Burton Arold to his mother, and that it was necessary for me to see that lady at once.

The negress showed me into a small but neat drawing-room, and turning a low-burning lamp up to a full blaze left the room and went to call her mistress.

In a few minutes a tall, handsome matron, of about fifty years, stepped into the room.

"Is this the Senora Arold?" I asked, rising. She started and stepped backward several feet. Then coming forward she took me by the hand and said: "You must pardon my being startled, but you so much resembled my brother who is dead that I thought you an apparition. You have come from my son. Is he well?" The anxious look in the mother's face showed that she feared the truth; so I immediately gave her a short account of his illness, and suggested that she should be at his bedside as soon as possible. This was an irrelevant suggestion, for while I was giving it the Senora rang for her servant, and when that person had appeared she was given the order to wake up her two brothers and have them get a skiff ready upon the bayou immediately. "We were to go down," she said, "by boat to C——, eight miles below, where we could catch the mail coach for Blank, which would take us within a half-mile of the villa."

In the course of fifteen minutes the negress returned and said that Sam and Tom were in their skiff at the landing, ready. The Senora had packed a few necessaries, among which was a small case of medicines, into a sachel, and after she had wrapped up well we started for the landing, where we found Sam and Tom, two strong negroes, in waiting with a sharp-prowed skiff.

The Senora gave her orders, and the stout fellows laid to their oars with a will, and several times I "spelled" one or the other of them, to give a breath of rest.

No wind stirred the water, and the skiff sped along down the bayou with a speed that brought us to C——, just as waking day was opening his eyes in the far dim east.

We had time to take refreshment at the little tavern of the town before the coach started, and soon after breakfast we found ourselves in that old sway-backed vehicle, the only passengers. After having directed the driver to drop us at the nearest point to the Montinni estate, we began to talk over the affairs in hand.

After I had explained my connection with Burton, and told some of my experiences among the mysteries of the villa, I pulled from my pocket the old copy of the New York paper given me by the negro Ben, and showed her the marked item of the shipwreck.

There are times when the heart is full, when recollections of the past crowd in upon the soul, and the commingled anguish and joy, the pent-up experience of years, the vicissitudes of life, perhaps, well up from the vaults of memory and overwhelm the heart.

Far be it from me to assume to describe the feelings of that widow and mother when she learned through that old and time-stained newspaper the true cause of her widowhood away back in the tender years of her earlier life.

Her sorrow for the sad fate of her husband, and her joy to know that instead of having deserted her he was coming to join her as they had arranged, and that he had acted bravely and nobly in those his last hours on earth, was a matter that drew forth my deepest sympathy at the time, and dwells pathetically in my recollection yet, but that is a private affair and belongs only as a mere mention to this story. Her sufferings during all those years of bereavement, when she had thought that the man who had fascinated and won her maiden heart had deserted her and left that heart to eat itself away in the canker, the bitterness, the ashes of unrequited love and broken faith—these, too, I will pass over, leaving their intimations to impress the kind reader as they may.

Slumbering sorrow when once really awakened in the breast drives away all thoughts of business formality. Knowing this full well I did not disturb the Senora in her thoughts. Let the full heart work away its grief with what little of joy that may beam into it.

At about the middle of the forenoon a blast from the driver's horn warned us that we were near our stopping place, and soon the coach stopped. After getting out we walked silently and quickly to the villa.

CHAPTER IX.

A STARTLING VISITATION.

A subdued purple radiance flooded the interior of the villa; a delicately sweet perfume floated about on the airy draughts that wandered in fresh from their morning dalliance with the flowers of many fields; and a soft, delicious spell seemed to reign fairylike over the semi-enchanted place. If the soul of the phantom lady had pervaded every room, carrying with it the atmosphere of the blessed realm where dwell the spirits of all like her, balmier breath could not have come to kiss the brow of him who was passing into the shadow.

I had been sauntering thoughtfully through the rooms and chambers of the old house for an hour or so, having, upon our arrival, left the mother and son alone in the sacredness of their meeting, for, under the circumstances, this meeting was sacred.

The once strong young man, now weak and at times delirious in the burning and the eating of the fever, pouring the discontented eloquence of his life's great sorrow and despair into the tender recesses of that mother's heart, and the reassuring words of love and comfort and sympathy spoken in return by that mother, are matters to which you and I are not parties. We can only guess by what has come under our own observations, and perhaps our limited experiences, what transpired during that interview; but I do know that the heart that had been broken in early years, and left bleeding and disconsolate by the cruel neglect and cold treatment of proud and unfeeling parents; the heart to which he had been pressed in the days of his babyhood as if his very being were a healing balm that might assuage its interminable aching, aye, the most faithful of mother hearts, still yearned toward her boy in his manhood as it had in his infancy, and that its chords of sympathy would vibrate at the slightest word from that boy in a tender love as sweet as the whispered music of the Æolian harp when the evening zephyr scarcely touches it and away.

I had been wondering during this hour what should be done next; what the whole meaning could be of my mission at the villa and among its mystic and shadowy people.

As I was thus thinking, I felt a touch upon my arm, and upon looking up, beheld before me the shadowy, beautiful form of the Senorita El Muza. She pointed to one side, and following the direction she indicated I saw such a counterpart of myself that I had to look the second time to ascertain that there was no mirror there to reflect back my form and visage. This person thus pointed out had the shadowy appearance I had noticed in all the spirits. A pleasant smile overspread his countenance when he noticed my discomfiture, and he said: "You are evidently surprised at the fact that you and I resemble each other so closely; still there need be no surprise when you learn that we are related by a long line of ancestry through your mother, a descendant of the El Muza stock, but of a different wing of the family.

"There are," he continued, "only two representatives of the direct lines now living on earth. These two are the Senora Arold and your friend Burton. The Senora is my sister, so I am the young man's uncle. My parents treated them shabbily because it was thought that the Senora had allowed herself to be disgraced by being betrayed into a false marriage, followed by apparent desertion on the part of her husband; but they have fully repented of their harsh conduct since their advent into the spirit world, where we have all met her husband, who was shipwrecked on the coast of Florida while on the way to join her, and have learned that the marriage was valid. They wish to repair as well as they can the injury done their daughter's happiness. She must be kindly taken care of during the remainder of her natural life, and when she joins us in the future existence we will all be happy together forever more.

"This estate," continued he, "was a partnership one. The El Zegals are all in the spirit world, the Senora Arold was disinherited, and the whole estate, under certain conditions, falls to a nephew (by marriage) of Montinni's, who resides at Venice. The transfer is made subject to the management of an administrator. Now, there never has been any administrator appointed, but legal forms are drawn up accompanying Montinni's last will and testament, wherein places for an administrator's name are left blank. We authorize you to affix your name to them, and to take all legal steps necessary to secure your position. The two-thirds of the estate left without a will by El Zegal and El Muza are in such a position that they can be placed in possession of Montinni's nephew or given over to the discretion of the state. What we want you to do is to acquaint Montinni's heir with the power vested in you and to get a testified contract from him to the effect that if this property is given over to him that he will allow the Senora Arold the freedom of the villa as a home and provide her with a proper maintenance during her natural life, and so make the transfer that if he fails in the leastwise to comply with his intrusted obligations his claim to the El Muza and El Zegal property shall henceforth be null and void.

"You will find the papers in a small iron safe in one of the closed rooms up stairs. If you go immediately for them the doors will be opened for you. The heir's address will be found among the papers."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Dust in Space.

Some of the oldest records of human history contain accounts of the fall of great stones from the sky. Until the opening of the present century it was generally believed by men of science that the ancients only imagined that they had seen rocks fall out of the heavens.

Modern science, however, has verified the truth of the ancient records, and we now know not only that stones and metallic masses, called aerolites or meteorites, do come tumbling down out of space, but that a fine dust, called cosmic dust, is continually sifting down through the atmosphere.

It is like the smoke and dust of a journey, for the earth is really journeying, along with the sun, toward the northern part of the universe, and as it goes it draws in with its attraction the refuse particles that apparently exist throughout space.

But while there can be no doubt of the existence of this silent rain of minute matter upon the earth, the difficulty has been to recognize it after it reaches the ground. Of late years, however, it has been found mingled in the ooze dredged up from the sea-bottom, and a few years ago when Baron Nordenskjold visited Greenland he gathered a quantity of dust particles from the great snowfields there, which were believed to have come from the sky.

This conclusion was afterwards disputed, but lately a new analysis has been made, which seems to show decisively that a large part of the material really is cosmic dust. A computation based upon the amount found on the Greenland moors indicates that the earth must gather in, over the whole of its surface, at least one hundred and thirty-two thousand tons of the dust of space every year!—Youth's Companion.

Stern Discrimination.

George—"Yes, sir; I cannot tell a lie—I did it."

Washington Senior—"Well, that's all right about the lie, but (whack) d'ye think (whack!) you can tell a cherry-tree (whack! whack!) next time?"

HE told his love in burning words, a tender love and true: the Boston maid blushed rosy red, and to his arms she flew, and round her alabaster neck his ruddy whiskers blew. "I love you, dear," she softly sighed—he smole a smile serene—"because your lovely scarf-pin is the image of a bean."

MR. EDISON keeps himself well before the public with his 800 odd patents. We are now told that he has devised an electric motor which will easily enable railroads to run trains at the rate of 100 miles an hour.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK.

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Many Odd, Curious, and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day.

A Water Color.

The artist in aquarelles had made a striking picture of an old soak with a nose that was something to be proud of.

"Well, Colonel," he said to a gentleman from Kentucky who was looking at the painting, "what do you think of my water color?"

"Is that what you call it?" inquired the Colonel, taking a closer view.

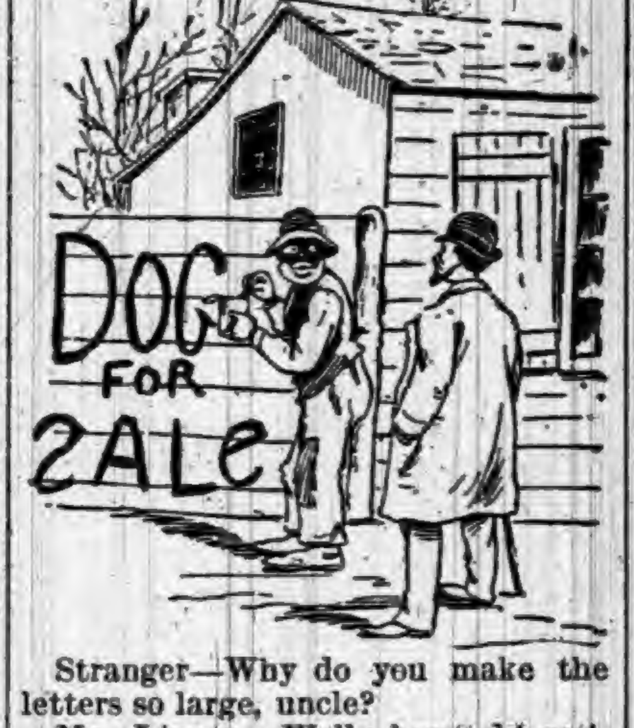
"Yes."

"Well, it's away off in my opinion."

"Why?" inquired the artist, greatly disappointed. "What's the matter with it?"

"Matter enough," said the Colonel, testily. "There ain't any water in the world that will put a color like that on a man's nose, and I'll bet you the price of the picture on it."—Detroit Free Press.

For the Benefit of the Ignorant.



Stranger—Why do you make the letters so large, uncle?

Mr. Lipper—Well, boss, de res'dents 'roun' here air pow'ful ignerint, an' I fought I'd make de letters so big dat de smallest chile could read um.—Puck.

And the Lawyer Said: "I Do!"

"Have you fixed up my will?" said the sick man to Lawyer Quillins.

"Yes."

"Everything as tight as you can make it?"

"Entirely so."

"Well, now, I want to ask you something—not professional, but as a plain, every-day man. Who do you honestly think stands the best show of getting the property?"—Washington Star.

She Was Evidently No Flat.

"How did she take your offer of marriage?"

"She asked me what I intended to do with her after I married her."

"A prudent girl."

"I told her I would hire a flat for her and she said living in a flat with a flat would be a rather flat existence."

"That wasn't very flattering, though it wasn't a flat refusal."

"It was a flat failure, nevertheless."

"So the whole thing may be said to have fallen flat?"

"Exactly."—New York Press.

Showing His Generosity.

Tourist (about to leave the hotel, examines his bill. To head waiter)—"Is the attendance included?"

"No, sir; that is left to the generosity of the traveler."

"But supposing I am not generous."

"Then, sir, it'll be 2 francs a day, or 6 francs for three days."

"Ah! then I prefer being generous for once; here's a franc and a half."—Exchange.

To Enlarge His Paper.

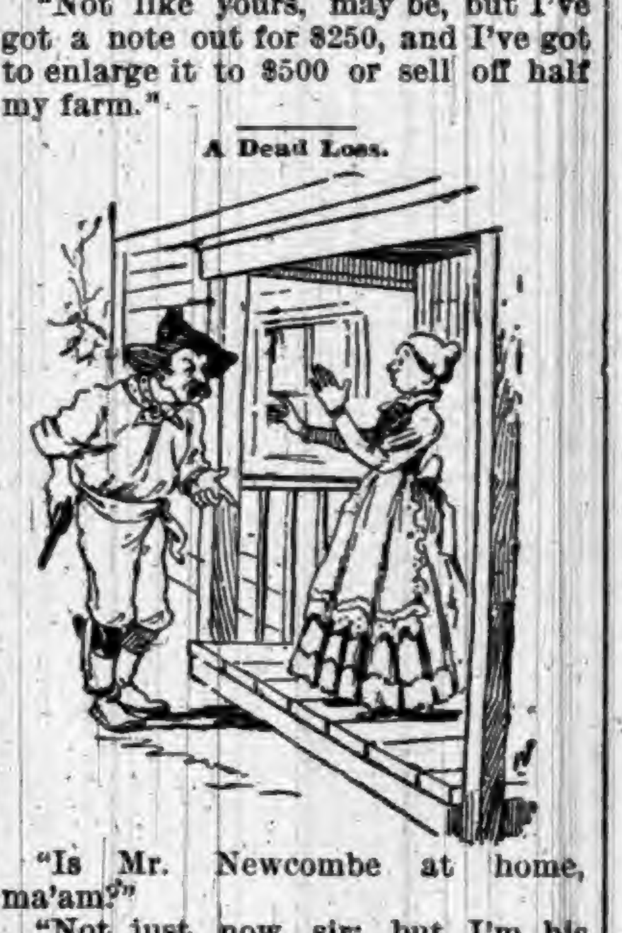
"I'm going to enlarge my paper," remarked the editor to the farmer.

"So am I," was the response.

"Why, you haven't got any paper," exclaimed the puzzled editor.

"Not like yours, may be, but I've got a note out for $250, and I've got to enlarge it to $500 or sell off half my farm."

A Dead Loss.



"Is Mr. Newcombe at home, ma'am?"

"Not just now, sir; but I'm his landlady, and you can leave any message with me, sir."

"I came here, ma'am, to kill him!"

"Oh, sir! please, sir; please don't, please! He is behind two months' board!"—Puck.

In the Old Roman Days.

They were attending a ponderous play at the Coliseum.

"There is so much wait between the acts," growled the woman.

"Yes," said the man, "but there must be. It is such a heavy tragedy, don't you know."

And the woman drove a dagger into his heart and twisted it about thrice.

The First Locomotive.

It is eighty-seven years, according to the Manufacturer and Builder, since the construction of the first practical locomotive to run on rails. It was built in 1804 for a railroad at Merthyr-Tydvil, in Wales; was of the high-pressure, non-condensing type, exhausting into the chimney, and on its trial trip drew a load of ten tons five miles an hour.

TEMPERANCE is a bridle of gold; he who uses it rightly is more like God than man.

GANTER'S MAGIC —CHICKEN— CHOLERA CURE!

Thousands of dollars worth of chickens are destroyed by Cholera every year. It is more fatal to them than all other diseases combined. But the discovery of a liquid remedy that positively destroys the Microbes has been made. Half of the young chickens are killed by Microbes before they are fryers. A 50-cent bottle is enough for 100 chickens. It is guaranteed. If, after using two thirds of a bottle, you are not satisfied with it as a cure for Cholera, return it to the druggist from whom you purchased it, and he will refund your money.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

J. C. HENRY, Prop'r,

They Celebrated.

The members of the W. R. C., celebrated their Seventh anniversary, by inviting their friends to asemble at the G. A. R. Hall, Thursday evening, when a brief, but very appropriate program of music, recitatations, short speeches, etc., was executed to the delight and satisfaction of all present. The hall was not crowded, but was just full enough that all could be seated comfortably. After the literary program was completed, Mrs. Gordon, the commander, announced that another program was to follow, and that all were requested to remain for a pleasant chat. To the surprise of many, the ladies, who had been chosen for that purpose, began filing in from the ante room with plates well filled with seasonable delicacies of such quantity and quality as to make even the mouth of an epicure water, as the contents of plate after plate disappeared from view to melt into nothingness beneath the efforts of good molars and a first-class digestion. The ladies of this order never do things by halves, and when they say you are going to get something good, you can make up your mind you are going to get it. The scribe looks forward with restless anticipation to the time when he can hie himself henceward and partake of such a rich and bounteous repast of the hands of the W. R. C.

This Season The Best.

Although the building season is not as yet fully opened, or the demands for lumber really developed and the prospects for this spring lack some of the richly glowing and beautifully inspiring features of other years, A. Lewis & Co., have stocked up their lumber yard with a supply of the best grades of lumber, lath, shingles, etc., ever brought to the city. No pains or expense have been spared to secure a quality of goods that would satisfy the wants of a patronizing public, and the firm feel satisfied that they are able to deal out building materials at prices that defy competition. The public has long since learned that it is unwise to invest money in anything but the best articles of trade, hence competition runs sharp and pointed, with an intelligently careful people to either support or reject the efforts of honest dealers to eliminate the deluding influence of unscrupulous competitors. The world at large appreciates those upon whom it can rely, and persons who have patronized this institution in the past, realize that value is given in lumber for every dollar received in money. No second-class lumber is sold for first-class, and when a certain grade is ordered, the purchaser gets just what he asks for. whether he be rich or poor, high or low, his money will buy lumber. Those wishing to build will find it their advantage to get quotations and prices of A. Lewis, before purchasing elsewhere. Satisfaction guaranteed.

The Auburn Iron Works.

Under varied circumstances and in different localities, the above caption might be construed to mean a great deal, but under the present circumstances and in this locality, it means just what it says,—"The Auburn Iron Works." It bears no relation to the Auburn Foundry and Machine Works, or the Eagle Iron Works, but is a separate and distinct institution, located in Stametstown. Several years ago Auburn could boast of but one machine shop, and that a very small concern, which struggled against the obstacles and difficulties to be encountered in the establishment of a new business. However, by persistent effort and accurate calculation on the part of its proprietors it was brought up to a standard where capitalists could step in and take advantage of the opportunities it afforded for building up a profitable business. With additional buildings and greatly increased facilities, it was incorporated as the Auburn Foundry and Machine Works. The incorporation of the Eagle Iron Works soon followed, with satisfactory results. Now comes last but not least, the organization of the Auburn Iron Works. This new institution is yet in its infancy, yet its prospects for doing a good business are very promising. The gentlemen who are establishing it, are worthy the confidence of a patronizing public and the patrons in this vicinity can rest assured they are here to stay. At present the machinery is placed in Ruhl's cider building, but as soon as the new building is completed they will move into it, where the public is invited to call.

THE AUBURN COURIER
OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.
JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.
Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.
THURSDAY.......... MARCH 10, 1892.

WHEAT, at the end of February was reported 20 per cent., less than same date a year ago.

JUDGE O. J. Lotz of Muncie is to come before the state convention as candidate for judge of the appelate court, 4th district.

BOYD, governor of Iowa, is to have more trouble. Thayer, the usurper, is going to try a new legal hitch to get into the office again.

SUGAR bounty claims have been filed amounting to about seven millions. Now let Indiana wheat growers demand a bounty of ten cents a bushel. If fair for one it is for another.

NEWS from Pittsburg is that wages of iron workers will be reduced again, as owing to improved processes, steel is cheaper than some grades is iron. But all these men are "protected," and yet wages go down.

WANAMAKER is such a good man, you know. It has been found that Br'er Wanamaker has allowed about thirty postoffices in Wisconsin, and a good many in Chicago, to be located in saloons, contrary to law.

THE Press brags on "restricted reciprocity." If reciprocity is a good thing, why restrict it? If a bad thing, why have it at all? The present style of reciprocity is a humbug. Give us reciprocity where it amounts to something.

REPUBLICAN papers are beginning to defend the gerrymander of Ohio, before it is made. No use, boys, it is no more than everyone expected. Just as you always do. But you might as well stop complaining that democrats do the same.

COUNTRY democratic papers, should not feel unduly puffed up over the daily reception of papers marked with blue pencil lines around a long article about a favorite candidate. It will not be thus when May blossoms scent the air. The convnetion will be over.

THE Press says "No president has made better appointments for judges than Harrison." Woods is one of these, a man who to shield Dudley from punishment due the crimes he had committed to elect Harrison, made two contrary decisions in the same case. The Press has high moral ideas.

HON. W. H. ENGLISH, in his masterly and patriotic address to the society of the "Sons of the Revolution," at Indianapolis, said the society has on its list, four sons of Revolutionary soldiers: Nelson Prentiss of Albion; Samuel C Meredith of Indianapolis; Elijah Newland of New Albany, and John Dunning of Valpariso.

CLAUDE MATHEWS, our present popular and efficient secretary of state seems to be the coming man for governor. As Judge Zollars has declined, we think Mr. Mathews should have it. He is a brilliant man, and a man excellent judgment. Besides, he has always been popular. Since his name has been mentioned, nearly every paper is speaking favorably of him.

IF THE tariff tax is paid by the foreigners, why does our government pay back 99 per cent., of it when made up into things that are sent away to other countries? We have just paid $1,711,000 rebate on tin cans made here, out of imported tin. Now if our own importers had not paid the duty themselves, what right had they to this money? If the foreigners paid the duty, they were entitled to the rebate of 99 per. cent.

THOSE good temperance people who rejoiced so when Harrison was elected, because he was "such a good man," have been wondering what use he had for that barrel of Scotch whisky that was sent him by the "protected" millionaire, Carnegie. Had they been at the army and navy reception given by Harrison last week, they could have learned all about it. Harrison took them up stairs and poured out with his own hands, champagne, punch and also some of the Scotch whisky for them. And it is claimed that when he goes duck hunting a good sized bottle of it is in the outfit. But we suppose our republican friends will go on just as before, calling him a good temperance man.

THE COURIER is in receipt of a letter from District Chairman, W. W. Rockhill of Ft. Wayne, in which the failure to notify DeKalb as to the recent meeting at Ft. Wayne, is fully explained. He had sent the notifications to Mr. Kelley at Waterloo, Mr. Kelley was sick, and Mr. Shuman, acting for him, at once forwarded the letter to Chairman Beeks Erick at Spencerville. By this time, the meeting at Ft. Wayne was in session, and of course, DeKalb was not there. We presume it makes no difference, any way, although April 26, makes the congressional convention but five days later than the state convention. But if the parties directly interested are satisfied, we presume every one else will be.

Chester J. Hodge has a very fine blooded Jersey bull. This bull is registered in the A. J. C. C. records. His number is 24,111. He is of fawn color and is out of a cow that made 21 pounds of butter a week. He is but three years old and a perfect beauty. He will be kept at the Greenhurst stock farm, just north of Auburn. Anyone wishing to breed a Jersey, will not find anything better in the state.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

The Dispatch's Foolishness.

The Dispatch says, "Foreign importers now pay thirty millions for the privilege of importing their wool into this country. This amount goes into the United States to relieve the people to that extent." Will the Dispatch answer a few easy questions? Probably not. If the foreign importer paid this tax, where did he pay it? Are there U. S. custom houses kept up in Europe, etc., for the purpose of enabling the men over there to pay taxes into the U. S. treasury? If not, then how do they do it? Do they send with each $100 worth of wool, their check for say $50?

Again, if the putting wool on the free list would be wrong because it loses us thirty millions, was it not for the same reason, wrong to put sugar on the free list and lose us fifty-eight millions? If one is wrong, is the other right, when both are the same?

That thirty millions on wool is but a small part. For each dollar of revenue we collect on wool, the people pay $4 in increased expense of the woolen goods we use. That would be 120 millions more and the extra cost of the tariff on wool all told would be 150 millions, all of which we, the people, must pay, for no one with a grain of information believes the foreigner pays anything.

If $100 worth of wool is imported, the man who gets it here, pays the duty, say $50, making the $100 worth cost him $150. Now he must make a profit on his outlay, say 10 per cent., or $15. Had there been no duty, he would compel his customers to pay a profit of only $10. The goods with these increases in price go into second, third, and even fourth hands, and each must have a profit, until when it reaches the consumer, it may be twice as high as it would have been with no duty. And the last man, the consumer pays all the tariff and all the various profits of persons through whose hands it has come. The foreigner does not pay a cent, for he can't.

Again, we suppose the Dispatch like other ignorant papers will claim that the foreigner pays the tariff indirectly, by selling his goods that much lower. Suppose we accept that view, and if wool in the old country is 20 cents, and the duty 50 per cent., he would have to sell his wool to us at 14 cents, or 6 cents below what he could get at home. Of course he would not, for he could not. But suppose he did. That would mean that there would be no rise in price in this country, for his 14-cent wool would have to pay, say 6 cents duty, or about 50 per cent., and the price here would not be changed. If the price is made no higher, then who is benefited? Who is protected? What becomes of our boasted "present prosperity?" How is the sheep raiser benefited?

The facts are no one needs „protection." And if he did, it is robbery to protect one man at the expense of another. Our industries are able to stand alone and make as large profits as they should have. We can't all be protected. Then let us drop protection, and levy a tariff so as to raise what money we must have. A tax for any other purpose, is legalized robbery, no matter who defends it.

Equally foolish is the Dispatch's talk about publishing liquor license notices. In a long article it tries to impress in its readers an idea of its superior holiness and hatred of rum. You would gather the idea that the editor was a prohibitionist. But in nearly every issue it abuses the prohibitionists. And why? For the reason they do not vote the straight republican ticket. A republican editor cares nothing for temperance except as it is gives him a chance to air his own fancied superiority.

The Dispatch is out now with the opinion that a court reporter is a great nuisance, and that having a reporter is the cause of so many cases being appealed and the higher courts crowded. One would think that a great lawyer like the editor of the Dispatch would know better, but he don't seem to. The cause of too much work in courts lies with the litigants themseves, who rush to law over every fancied wrong. Those who complain of the expense of courts should lay the trouble to the right parties. Lawsuits would soon be scarce, if people would exercise a little more common sense and christian forbearance.

This reformer is still harping about taxes. If we had no public expense, we would have no taxes. But there is not a public expense we think of, but this very same editor has favored. Now if we saddle expenses on ourselves, should we not foot the bill? The editor has fought hard to get the town to accept a city government, though he knows it would be more expensive. And just as sure as it is done, he will in a year or two be grumbling about expenses, and blaming some one. He has done both these things every year he has been in Auburn.

It says the "increased liabilities of the state were due to democratic mismanagement." Please explain. At the time the the law was enacted, we had just passed several years with republicans in power in the state, in one department or another, and they helped to make the expense. But we presume the Dispatch don't know of this, or if it does, it desires to keep its readers in ignorance.

A Splendid Offer by a Reliable Firm.

The most liberal offer we have seen in a long time is that made by the Franklin Remedy Company, Springfield, Ohio, in their advertisement headed "Franklin's Prize Puzzle," which will be found on our page. They certainly have great confidence in their Life Preserver, as $6,750 in cash and valuable presents are to be distributed among those who solve their puzzle and purchase one package of their remedy before April 1, 1892. The handsome picture they give to every purchaser, whether he solves the puzzle or not, is of itself worth the price of the remedy, as it truly and strikingly depicts the most notable naval battle ever fought upon the high seas between iron-lad vessels. It is 22x28 inches, and should be seen to be appreciated. These certainly have merit, or they would not be backed by the capital that is invested in their manufacture. Can you solve the puzzle?

Frank Snellbaker, of Corunna, was struck by an east bound freight at Kendallville Monday, and almost instantly killed. He had gone there to get a job on the extra work train, and had stepped onto the track to walk east, when the train overtook him. The whistle sounded several times, but he did not notice it till too late. It will be remembered his brother was drowned at the little lake near Daniel Thomas', in Richland, but a few years ago.

Editor Downey of the Butler Review, was in town Saturday and reported a serious riot over there the evening before. A gang of negroes had been brought up from Alabama to work on the new road at Hamilton, and on arriving went at once to a saloon to get drinks. Their foreman, a white southerner, also wanted a drink, and ordered the darkies away, because he "would not drink with niggers." They objected, when he took a billiard cue and struck one of them on the head splintering the cue into pieces. The negro was dangerously hurt, and for a time it was believed he would die. The foreman was arrested, and lodged in jail here. Since writing the above, we learn the negro died Monday and on Tuesday the coroner held an inquest. It appears the skull was crushed in. The grand jury will take charge of the matter, and the murderer will have a speedy trial. The defense, we suppose will try to make it a case of manslaughter, which would send him up for not less than two years. The name of the negro is Charles Tanner, and of the man who killed him, Wm. H. Evans. It seems Evans wanted to have the men go to their boarding place, to be away from what he thought improper influences—the talk of men who were likely to get them dissatisfied with their job. Our Butler letter gives some details.

He has been writing to our consul there, to see if there will be any trouble about a little matter of military service that the Fatherland once thought he owed the government, but thinks the matter all safe now.

As entertaining a matter as we ever had for a church social was that given last Wednesday evening, by the young people of the Presbyterian church The "Family Album" was simply immense, and the "Picture Gallery," drew crowds all the evening, and compelled an abundance of laughter, by its quaint and brilliant double hits. These young people always have the best of entertainments. Jephtha and his Daughter will be given next week, and will be a musical entertainment of the highest ororder.

WARD MCALLISTER has cut down his estimate of New York's fashionable people from 400 to 150. Yet even this estimate is too liberal, and it is certain that only Mr. Allister's superabundant modesty prevents his uttering his inmost opinion that there is really only one person of the highest breeding in New York.

THE University of Wisconsin has a notable acquisition in Prof. Ely, who leaves the Johns Hopkins University for the Western college. Dr. Ely is a painstaking student of political science and an authority upon taxation and municipal government. The time seems to be at hand when the Eastern colleges will have the architecture and the Western colleges the men.

MANUFACTURERS of school furniture have organized a company with sufficient capital to control all the concerns engaged in business. These gentlemen protest that they have not formed a trust, but that they have come together for the purpose of reducing the cost of their goods and giving the people the benefit of their association. It is not a trust, but the capital of the company is $2,000,000, and better profits are to be guaranteed to every stockholder.

A COLORED man—Granville Woods—has made a successful invention, just now attracting large attention in the East. It is in the method of supplying electrical energy in moving cars and trains. The cars, by his new system, will be supplied with power through wire brushes which make connections with "heads" from underground conducting lines. There will no exposed wires. A test made in New York was eminently successful. It is the first notable invention of a colored man in electrical engineering.

A HIGHLY valuable contribution to the literature of the labor question in Chicago is that of Inspector Schaack, who holds that most of the applicants for food and shelter at police stations are "professional tramps and bums." The evidence upon which he bases this opinion is that when he went into a room where eight of the homeless and hungry ones were congregated and told them that war had been declared against Chili and called for volunteers one man only responded. If the Inspector would discover how hasty he was drawing from this the generalization that his guests were tramps and "bums" he might submit the same proposition to eighty of his well-fed bluecoats and see how many volunteers would respond.

SERGEANT DUNN, who is in charge of the signal service station in New York, is authority for the statement that the climate of this country is gradually changing, the winters in the North becoming milder and those in the South colder. The mean temperature in New York has gradually become higher in the last few years, and this when the summers have been cooler than for many years. Sergeant Dunn's theory is that irrigation in the West has driven storms to the North, where they break across Canada and toward the St. Lawrence Gulf. This causes the air currents to come from the South to supply that displaced by the rush of the storm, and produces a milder climate in the Northern States. By the same reasoning he finds that these warm currents from the South leave a partial vacuum there which is supplied by the rush of cold air from the Northwest, carrying many storms into Kansas, Arkansas, and even Texas and the Southern States. However correct Mr. Dunn's theories may be, the facts are indisputable. There has been a gradual change in our climate.

THE growth of colleges in this country has been steady and so has been their patronage. In 1850 there were 8,837 students in the colleges of the country. In 1860 this number had been increased to 13,443; in 1870, to 16,339; in 1880, to 20,650, and in 1890 to 31,359. The number of college students per 100,000 population in 1890 was 115.7 in New England, 58.7 in the Middle States, 38 in the Southern States, 49.6 in the Central States, 31.4 in the Western States, and 44.2 in the Pacific States. These figures show that there is a higher average of college students in the Pacific States than in either the Southern or Western States, and that New England has an average almost double that of the Middle States, and three times that of the Western and Southern States. But New England has drawn heavily from all sections of the country because of the excellence of her educational institutions. When the Chicago University is opened, with the greatest corps of professors to be found in the country, New England will lose much of this patronage to the West, and there will be great changes in the figures of the next census.

SUCCESS seems to be making Dr. Keeley mad. It is but a few weeks since he put forth the amazing explanation that he kept secret the components of his cure for inebriety because he held it in trust for the widows and orphans ruined by the whisky power. No sensible man denies Dr. Keeley's right to profit by his own discovery, but to attempt to cover the methods of the sharp business man with a cloak of sham philanthropy is mere hypocrisy. Recently the Doctor stood before an audience of "graduates" of his institution and assured them that his nostrum was "the greatest blessing vouchsafed to man since the time of Noah." After a little reflection he concluded to modify this boast, and added: "I will take that back; I will say since the time of Christ." There have been a good many discoveries of beneficial and merciful agents since the year 1, A. D. Anæsthetics, for instance, have lightened the load of pain of men and women very materially. However, the discoverers of the uses of the various forms of anæsthetics did not "hold them in trust for widows and orphans," enjoying meantime mighty incomes annually from the secret.

One of Humanity's Trials.

Men with little money have good appetites, as a rule. Rich men are apt to have stomachic complications that make life miserable. A wealthy man remarked recently: "When I was struggling for a footing on a very narrow and precarious salary, I could eat anything and eat it three or four times a day. Nothing was ever the matter with me. Now, when I have nothing to do but indulge my tastes, I find I have no tastes. I can't eat rich food—I dare not drink wines. I can't smoke. I live at the best hotels, but have to live more frugally than I did when I was a junior clerk, because I can't stand it. I follow the simplest kind of life. No, it isn't the want of physical exercise—I run around more now than I used to; and I'm not yet out of the prime of life. It is a curious thing that we are given the capacity to enjoy when we are young, inexperienced, without sense and usually without money. When we are older, have made a fortune and a place and have brains and knowledge we can't enjoy anything.

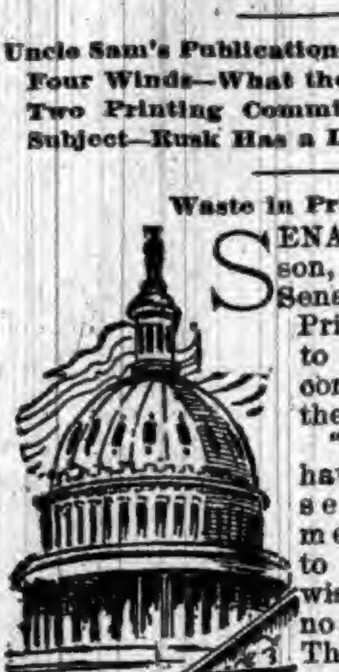
A MAN preserves his silence by saving his speech.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

MONEY THROWN AWAY ON PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

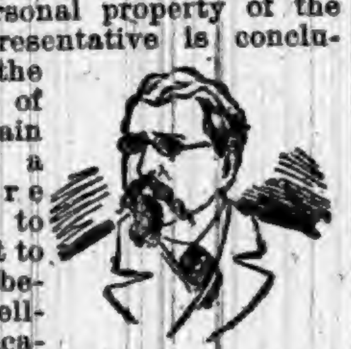
Uncle Sam's Publications Scattered to the Four Winds—What the Chairmen of the Two Printing Committees Say on the Subject—Rusk Has a Little Boom.

Waste in Printing.



SENATOR MANDERSON, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Printing, according to our Washington correspondent, said the other day:

"Congressmen have a right to sell the documents supplied to them if they wish to. There is no law to forbid it. The publications in question are their personal property and under no circumstances could the government replevin them. If members choose to dispose of them to second-hand dealers or other persons there is nothing to prevent them from doing so. It is true that the books and other printed matter are given them for the purpose of distribution, so that there is what might be called an implied trust, which they are in honor bound to fulfill; but Congress can not legislate on the question.

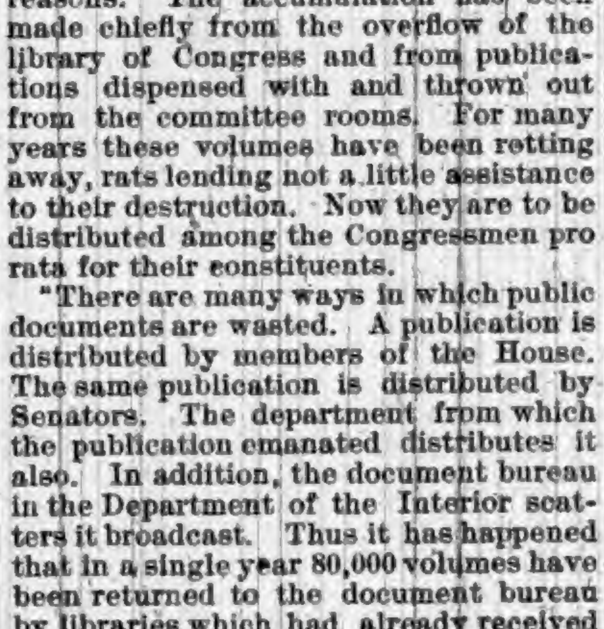


SENATOR MANDERSON.

"That these documents are recognized as being the personal property of the Senator or Representative is conclusively shown by the fact that any of them which remain to the credit of a Congressman are turned over not to his successor but to his estate. My belief is that the selling of such publications by a member of the National Legislature to second-hand dealers has been a very rare occurrence. Of course it is a very common thing for Congressmen to exchange such merchandise among themselves. For example, I represent an agricultural State. I have use for many more agricultural reports than are allotted to my share. Accordingly, I go to my friend Gen. Bingham of Philadelphia. He hasn't a farmer in his constituency. I say to him, 'Bingham, can you let me have a couple of hundred agricultural reports in exchange for the same number of so and so,' mentioning some document which he requires. He readily assents, and so the matter is arranged conveniently for us both."

Chairman Richardson of the House committee on printing thinks that there is plenty of room for reform in the distribution of public documents. Said he: "There are at present 1,000,000 volumes of undistributed documents in the basement of the Capitol. Many of these books, according to the statements of dealers, are worth from $15 to $25 each on account of their rarity or for other reasons. The accumulation has been made chiefly from the overflow of the library of Congress and from publications dispensed with and thrown out from the committee rooms. For many years these volumes have been rotting away, rats lending not a little assistance to their destruction. Now they are to be distributed among the Congressmen pro rata for their constituents.

"There are many ways in which public documents are wasted. A publication is distributed by members of the House. The same publication is distributed by Senators. The department from which the publication emanated distributes it also. In addition, the document bureau in the Department of the Interior scatters it broadcast. Thus it has happened that in a single year 80,000 volumes have been returned to the document bureau by libraries which had already received copies of the same book from other sources. Of each publication the House of Representatives receives a certain number, which is divided up among the members. After each one has received his share, there is necessarily a fraction left over, which remains in the hands of the superintendent of the folding-room. During the last year these fractions amounted to 48,000 volumes. These go to swell the useless stock on hand. A friend of mine told me that on one occasion he had seen in the cellar of a second-hand dealer 30,000 copies of government reports, a large part of them in bags which had never been opened, containing the unbroken quotas of Congressmen. As an example of a small but expensive swindle I may mention the case of one man who wrote to at least a hundred Congressmen asking each one as a personal favor for a copy of the recently published book on the horse, issued by the Department of Agriculture. It is a very costly work. He got forty copies by this ingenious plan, which has doubtless been often tried with success. Is it surprising that Mr. Ames, Superintendent of the Document Bureau, should have declared recently that any private business which was managed on such vicious principles as those which govern the present method of distributing public documents would be doomed to almost immediate bankruptcy?"



TO THE JUNK SHOP.

Others express opinions similar to those of the gentlemen quoted, and it is quite evident that a reform in this particular would be acceptable.

I find that one very great source of waste in public printing is found in the reckless manner of distributing Government publications which has prevailed. They are scattered broadcast where they are not wanted, so that thousands upon thousands of them every year are sold to dealers in waste paper all over the country without having been taken from their wrappers. Volumes of statistics, compiled at enormous expense, excite the wonder and dismay of bucolic constituents, and learned essays on "Tertiary Insects" or other equally abstruse subjects astonish the untutored residents of city slums. The private secretary of a Western Senator spoke the other day of having seen a pile of census reports five feet high in a country barber shop not long ago. The tonsorial artist in charge was using them for shaving paper.

The method of printing the publications of the United States Government has gone through a very interesting process of evolution. In the days of the Continental Congress it was all done by the publishers of newspapers, under direction of the Secretary of that body.

The first Congress under the Constitution began with ordering each bill or document printed by special resolution. The method was found undesirable and it was decided to give the job out to the lowest bidder, furnishing the paper to the contractor. Under this system the cost of the printing for both Senate and House during a session was not over $3,000.

President Jefferson departed from previous custom by sending a message in writing to Congress, with accompany documents. When printed the "message and documents" made a volume of 100 pages, and 500 copies were printed at a cost of $521. Mr. Bayard of Delaware thought this very extravagant and insisted that 150 copies were enough. It is interesting to note that the "message and documents" of the Fiftieth Congress made a volume of 968 pages; of which were printed 45,000 copies, at a cost of $17,000.

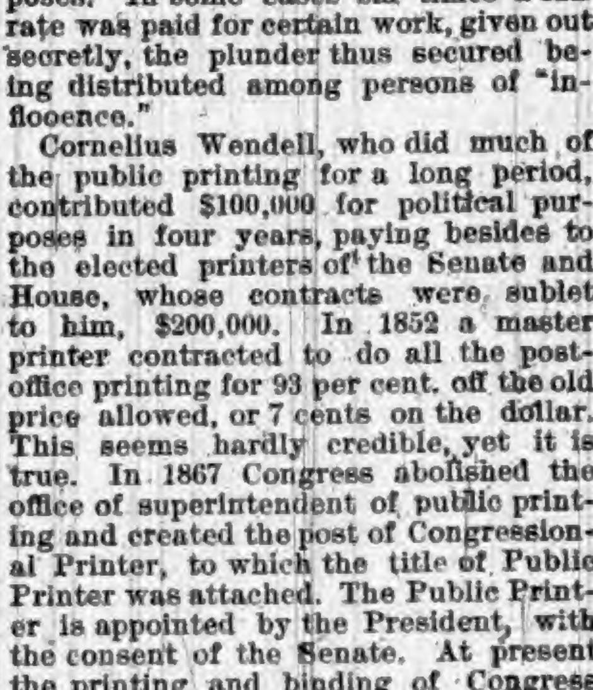
In 1819 Congress passed a joint resolution providing that a Congressional Printer should be elected by ballot. The place thus became a political plum, and the cost of the public printing immediately jumped from $17,000 to $29,000 per session, where it remained for ten years. It was subsequently ascertained that the profits of the Congressional Printer under this arrangement were about 55 per cent., being secured largely by "tricks of the trade." In 1840 an investigation disclosed the fact that the profits of the printers employed during the seven previous years had been nearly $67,000 per annum. This disclosure produced a sensation.

In 1852 an act was passed providing for the appointment of a Superintendent of Public Printing, who should supervise the printers elected by ballot. This made things worse than ever. Politicians without practical knowledge of printing secured the job and farmed it out to others at a percentage of the receipts. The party in power selected the man with a definite understanding to the effect that he should devote specified sums out of his profits to partisan purposes. In some cases six times a fair rate was paid for certain work, given out secretly, the plunder thus secured being distributed among persons of "inflooence."

Cornelius Wendell, who did much of the public printing for a long period, contributed $100,000 for political purposes in four years, paying besides to the elected printers of the Senate and House, whose contracts were sublet to him, $200,000. In 1852 a master printer contracted to do all the post-office printing for 93 per cent. off the old price allowed, or 7 cents on the dollar. This seems hardly credible, yet it is true. In 1867 Congress abolished the office of superintendent of public printing and created the post of Congressional Printer, to which the title of Public Printer was attached. The Public Printer is appointed by the President, with the consent of the Senate. At present the printing and binding of Congress alone costs about $1,100,000 yearly, the department appropriations for similar purposes aggregating considerable over a million dollars more.

Fears Kidnapers.

"Mrs. Grover Cleveland lives in daily fear that little Ruth will be kidnaped," said a Washington confidante of the ex-President's popular wife to me. Continuing, she said: "Mrs. Cleveland, as you and all who are acquainted with her know, is not of a nervous, apprehensive temperament. On the contrary, she has a sound, well-shaped head, full of common sense. And she is as brave a young woman as I ever knew. I don't know just what reason she has to fear such an awful thing. She has never told me. But I know she must have some good reason for it or she would not fear it. She is very watchful of 'The Child of the Democracy,' and anybody who contemplates kidnaping her will have to exercise a shrewdness not yet equaled by any fellow of his infamous class. The little one is seldom out of Mrs. Cleveland's sight. When she is, the most trusted of servants watch over her and detectives are within call."

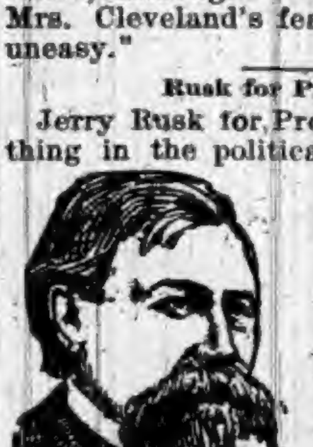


MRS. CLEVELAND AND RUTH.

"Does Mr. Cleveland share his wife's fear?"

"No; at least he professes not to do so. But he would do that even if he feared such an event more than Mrs. Cleveland, just to quiet her. He nevertheless approves of all the extraordinary safeguards that are thrown around Ruth. He is very fond of her, and comes nearer deserving the name of doting papa than any father of my acquaintance. It is hard to think that anybody would be so heartless as to steal Ruth. What a sensation it would cause if she were kidnaped! The whole nation would rise to chase the scoundrel down. But I don't think there will be a cause for such a chase, although I must confess that Mrs. Cleveland's fears make me a trifle uneasy."

Rusk for President.



JERRY RUSK.

Jerry Rusk for President is the latest thing in the political line in Washington. Uncle Jerry doesn't know it, and has not been even consulted, but a number of the Republican Senators have agreed to take up the farmer statesman from Wisconsin at the proper time and nominate him if they can swing enough votes to do it. They are not going to boom him, nor elect delegates for him on the brass-band principle, but they mean to take good care that the delegates under their control shall be brought into line at the critical juncture in the convention.

Many other names have been canvassed among the Senators, among them being McKinley, Allison, Alger and Judge Gresham. For a time the last named was in high favor, and an effort was made to ascertain through some of Gresham's friends if he was favorable to the plan. The reply was not of an encouraging nature, it being in substance that Gresham was not a candidate, and did not desire to have his name used for the office in any shape or form.

Creede's Boom.

CREEDE now claims about 4,000 people, and business is very active there. This camp appears to be building upon a permanent foundation.—Denver Times.

THE wonderful developments at Cripple Creek bring one peculiar satisfaction. They are of gold. A material increase in the product of gold would be of much benefit to silver. It would tend to stop the cry which has been made with so much effect that it is impracticable to fix a permanent ratio between the two metals when the product of the one is increasing so much more rapidly than that of the other.—Denver Sun.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

MEASURES CONSIDERED AND ACTED UPON.

At the Nation's Capital—What Is Being Done by the Senate and House—Old Matters Disposed Of and New Ones Considered.

The Senate and House.

Indian sectarian schools was the subject of three hours' acrimonious discussion in the House on the 1st. The Indian appropriation bill was the measure under consideration, and the immediate cause of the discussion was the section making appropriation for the Carlisle Indian school. The bill was passed. Mr. McMillin, of Tennessee, reported the free wool bill, which was referred to the committee of the whole. Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, and Mr. Turner, of Georgia, respectively, from the same committee, reported bills for the free entry of binding twine and cotton bagging and ties, which were referred to the committee of the whole, and leave was granted to Mr. Payne of New York, and Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania, to present the views of the minority on the measure. In the Senate, after the transaction of routine business the Idaho election case was taken up and Mr. Sanders addressed the Senate in defense of Mr. Claggett's right to the seat. Mr. Morgan made a legal and constitutional argument against the right of Mr. Dubois to occupy a seat in the Senate.

In the Senate, on the 2d Mr. Dolph presented petitions from his State favoring government aid for the Nicaragua canal. The Idaho election case was taken up and Mr. George stated the reasons which would control his own action in casting his vote for the contestant. Mr. Vilas argued that the sitting member, Mr. Dubois, was legally elected and entitled to the seat. On the suggestion of Mr. Gray that some Senators were absent who desired to record their votes on the question, the vote was postponed. The proceedings of the House were quite uninteresting and confined strictly to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill. On only one occasion did party politics find a place in the discussion and that was when Mr. Hemphill, of the Democratic side, proposed an amendment reducing the $11,000 or $12,000 salary which the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia receives in the way of fees to a fixed salary of $3,600 per annum. All fees are to be turned into the public Treasury after deductions for necessary clerk hire. The House adjourned with the bill still undisposed of.

In the Senate, on the 3d, the debate on the Idaho contested election case was closed, and the voting was begun. The question of the minority resolutions in favor of Mr. Claggett's right to the seat was decided in the negative—yeas, 7; nays, 55. The vote was then taken on the majority resolutions affirming the right of Mr. Dubois to retain his seat, and it was decided in the affirmative—yeas, 55; nays, 5. The pure food bill was then taken up, but no action was taken on the bill. The House resumed consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, also the bill allowing railroad companies to give special rates to commercial travelers. Mr. Otis, of Kansas, antagonized the measure. It was a stroke directed at the fundamental principle upon which the interstate commerce law was founded. Mr. Simpson, in speaking of the bill, referred to the author of the interstate commerce act (Senator Cullom) as an "iniquitous railroad attorney," when he was promptly called to order by Mr. Lind, of Minnesota. The bill will now go on the calendar of unfinished business.

In the Senate on the 4th the pure food bill was taken up, and Mr. Vest stated at some length his position in regard to it and to such legislation in general. He appealed to the Senate to help enact the bill into law. Eulogies were delivered in respect to the memory of the late Representative Lee, of Virginia, and the Senate adjourned till the 7th. The House Committee on Military Affairs completed consideration of the army appropriation bill. The most important provision in the bill relates to payment for transportation over bond-aided railroads. The total appropriation carried by the bill is $24,245,649, which is $367,830 less than the appropriation for the current fiscal year. The House Naval Affairs Committee practically completed the consideration of the naval appropriation bill. The bill in round figures appropriates $24,000,000. A new drydock at Algiers, La., is provided for in the bill, the ultimate cost of which will be more than $8,000,000. At the conclusion of the consideration of unimportant bills Greek met Greek in the House, and for the space of five minutes a parliamentary colloquy was witnessed which in aptness of retort has had no precedent in the present session. On the one side was Speaker Crisp, who stands as the sponsor of the rules of the Fifty-second Congress, and on the other was ex-Speaker Reed, who stands as the defender of the rules and methods of the Fifty-first Congress.

Metallic Ties.

That the wooden railroad tie must sooner or later give place to a metallic substitute has long been admitted by engineers, and lately we are beginning to see that the coming change in this respect cannot be much longer delayed. Experiments made within a year or two on a number of leading roads suffice already to show that there is a superior economy in metal, and but for the fact of its larger first cost it would likely displace wood very rapidly. It will do so gradually in spite of this, as with many railway companies the initial cost is of less importance than the ultimate economy, which is sufficiently in favor of the metallic tie to determine the question of its use. The result of this must be a slow decline in what is now a flourishing and profitable branch of the lumber business, but the fact will not occasion widespread regret in the trade. The traffic in ties draws heavily upon the supply of young, partly grown timber, not yet ripe for the saw mill, that it would be good discretion to refrain from cutting, and any change in consumptive requirements that would permit such trees to attain maturity will prolong the duration of the timber supply and work for the best interest of the lumber trade. We cannot help thinking that lumber men should do all they can to help forward the change from wood to metallic ties, in the interest of the preservation of their own business.

CAUSED BY THE TARIFF.

FIFTY CENT POCKET-KNIVES COST $1.25.

Ex-Governor Ames on the McKinley Tariff Bill—Profits of the Steel Rail Trade—Wool, Here and in England—What Garfield Thought.

Helping the Foreigner.

A pocketknife is an innocent little thing. They cost usually from 10 cents to $2 each. The editor of this paper is the possessor of one, and thereby hangs a tale. A friend of ours brought this knife from Scotland and presented it to us. It is a very handsome knife, and on examination we found it had been manufactured by a noted American manufacturer. We knew it had been purchased at Glasgow, Scotland, for the merchant's card of that place was still on it.

For curiosity we inquired of the gentleman who bought it what it cost. Two shillings was his answer. Two shillings make 50 cents in our money. Struck by the cheapness of the knife, we looked around in our hardware stores in this city till we found a mate for it. At last we found it and asked the price; $1.25 we were told. We thought our merchant was a little steep, and said so. "No," he replied, "these knives cost us at wholesale $12 per dozen, or $1 each." We rather doubted this statement, though he is a reliable merchant. He noticed our dubious look and immediately produced the bill from the wholesaler to prove that the knives did cost $1 each.

The more we think of this matter the more we wonder how these high tariff protectionists can explain this state of affairs. It doesn't seem to reconcile itself with the idea that protection doesn't cost the consumer anything. It hardly seems possible that this American manufacturer, through love for the people across the water, would send his knives over there to be sold below cost of production. There seems little doubt but that this knife which retails in Glasgow for fifty cents was sold by the manufacturer at a fair profit.

If this were true, and no sane man would dispute it, how does it become necessary for the same manufacturer to sell the same knife so it must be sold in his own country for $1.25? Is any one simple enough to suppose that this manufacturer pays his men this seventy-five cents extra on each knife? No; he doesn't pay his workmen one mill extra, but we'll wager ten to one that his donation to the Republican national committee next summer will be away up in the thousands. Well, it can afford to be, so long as he hopes to keep the Harrisons, the Blaines, or the McKinleys in power, so that he can rob the consumer of seventy-five cents on each knife. The people are beginning to see who pays this. It seems wonderful that it should have taken so many years to get their eyes open.—Des Moines leader.

Ex-Governor Ames Talks.

At a recent meeting in Boston, ex-Governor Ames gave a caustic criticism of the McKinley tariff. His speech excited great alarm in the ranks of the American Protective Tariff League, and its secretary wrote a letter to the ex-Governor asking for an explicit statement of his views. He has replied in a very long letter, of which this is the pith:

In the Presidential campaign of 1888 the Republican party met the tariff issue by the assertion that it intended, if successful, to reduce the surplus in the United States Treasury, and reduce the revenue of the Government by reducing the tariff on imports all along the line, but in such a way as to preserve and encourage the manufactures of the country. It claimed that this reduction should be made by the friends of protection, and not by its enemies; otherwise the interests to be affected would suffer.

On the issue thus presented we elected a Republican President and a Republican House of Representatives. But our pledge was not kept in its entirety, as it should have been. Instead of reducing the tariff duties all along the line, we raised them on many manufactured goods that had adequate protection. I am a Republican and a protectionist, and I believe that our revenue law should be so adjusted as to give ample protection to manufactures, so as to insure good wages to the workman and fair profit to the employer.

But I do not believe in making the rate of duties so high as to exclude foreign goods and give a manufacturer phenomenal profits, and thereby so overstimulate domestic production as to end in ruinous competition or to cause that reaction which tends to the abolition of all protective laws, which already has so many advocates. I am convinced that the tariff of 1883 was in many instances too high, and that the tariff of 1890 in some of its provisions is still more burdensome than was that which it succeeded. This is the error in legislation which I wish to point out, to which I more than once called attention while the measure was under consideration in Congress, and which I believe did more to defeat the Republican party in 1890 through consequent reaction than any other act of Congress during a quarter of a century.

Steel-Rail Trust Profits.

Early in 1891 the steel-rail trust clinched its grip upon the market for steel rails by the consolidation of the two mills at Scranton, Pa. Previous to this time, though both mills were members of the trust, one of them was in the habit of cutting prices on favorable occasions. Their consolidation under one management removed this disturbing influence. No better illustration of the control which the trust has over production and prices can be given than the average monthly prices of steel rails in 1891. As computed by the American Iron and Steel Association, the average prices of Bessemer pig iron and steel rails at the mills in Pennsylvania have been as follows:

January	$15.95	$29
February	16.25	30
March	16.50	30
April	16.10	30
May	16.50	30
June	16.25	30
July	16.25	30
August	16.00	30
September	15.60	30
October	15.50	30
November	15.15	30
December	15.35	30

Though pig iron shows a steady fall in price, steel rails have remained constant at $30 per ton. In the report on the cost of producing iron and steel products in the United States, for which investigations were made in 1889, the Commissioner of Labor says: "The department has been positively informed relative to the cost of making steel rails in several of the very largest establishments in the United States, and there is no shadow of a doubt in the mind of the writer that in these establishments the actual cost of standard steel rails is, and has been for some time, within a few cents of $22 per ton."

The recent heavy reductions made in wages by the steel rail trust and the fall in price of Bessemer pig iron from an average of $18.85 per ton in 1889, when the commissioner gathered his statistics, to an average of $15.95 per ton in 1891, have greatly reduced the cost of producing steel rails. The present cost to the trust is not over $20 per ton. For every ton of steel rails sold by the members of the trust they have made a profit of $10. In 1891 the trust produced 1,366,259 tons of steel rails. The profits, therefore, were not far from $13,500,000. Doubtless these large profits have enabled Mr. Carnegie's mills to declare over $5,000,000 in dividends, just as they did in 1890.

Wool Here and There.

It is a fact, which the tariff-mongers will doubtless be able to explain to their own satisfaction, that while the duties on wool are higher than ever before, the number of sheep grown in the United States has declined 3 to 4 per cent. within the last year. On the other hand, in free-trade England, where wool is on the free list, the number of sheep has increased. What is more, the demand for domestic wool is more lively, and the markets are firmer than those in the United States.

According to the reports of the Agricultural Department, the number of sheep in the United States in 1891 was 44,938,000; while, according to the official British reports, the number of sheep in England was 33,500,000. The gradual decline of wool production in the United States, under a system of high "protection," is seen by the fact that in 1884 the sheep in this country were officially estimated at 50,626,626 head.

Yet in the United States there is a territorial area of 3,000,000 square miles, upon which a population of a little more than 60,000,000 is thinly spread, while Great Britain has an area of only 120,000 square miles and a population of 35,000,000. In Great Britain nearly every foot of sheep pasture is inclosed and under private ownership. In the United states there are vast mountain ranges belonging to the public domain, and not costing the ranchmen of New Mexico and Colorado a cent an acre for sheep pasture. Yet, notwithstanding this great apparent difference in physical advantages for sheep culture, Great Britain, where wool is free of tax, raises nearly 280 head of sheep to the square mile, while in this land of "protection" to the wool industry not quite 15 sheep are raised to the square mile.

There are several causes for this great disparity, not all of which are traceable to the differences in economic policies. But there can be no encouragement nor substantial prosperity for sheep-raising, except for mutton and manure, in a country whose policy makes rags and shoddy cheaper and more profitable materials than fine wool for manufacturing clothing.—Philadelphia Record.

What Garfield Thought.

It is very refreshing sometimes to pause awhile in the fight against tariff extortion, and, while taking breath, to bait the protective bull with some red rag like this from one of Garfield's speeches:

"We have seen that one extreme school of economists would place the price of all manufactured articles in the hands of foreign producers by rendering it impossible for our manufacturers to compete with them, while the other extreme school, by making it impossible for the foreigner to sell his competing wares in our market, would give the people no immediate check upon the prices which our manufacturers might fix for their products. I disagree with both these extremes. I hold that a properly adjusted competition between home and foreign products is the best gauge by which to regulate international trade. Duties should be so high that our manufacturers can fairly compete with the foreign product, but not so high as to enable them to drive out the foreign article, enjoy the monopoly of the trade and regulate the prices as they please. This is my doctrine of protection. If Congress pursues this line of policy steadily, we shall, year by year, approach more nearly to the basis of free trade, because we shall be more nearly able to compete with other nations on equal terms. I am for a protection which leads to ultimate free trade. I am for that free trade, which can only be achieved through a reasonable protection."

Mr. Garfield would have been a great man—and a living man, too, in all probability—if he had possessed conscience and courage to equal his clear perception of the right.

Wanted American Tin Plate.

As tending to show the facility with which tin plate of American manufacture can be procured by those having need for it in their business, we quote the following letter from a well-known Albany firm, in reply to an inquiry made by us:

"ALBANY, Feb. 2.

"DEAR SIR—In reply to your request in regard to American tin plate, would say that our experience was very unsatisfactory.

"We ordered five boxes of American bright 14 by 20 plate, as a sample order of an agent of Ely & Williams. He said it would be ready for delivery about thirty days thence. This was, we think, the latter part of March or the fore part of April, but after several inquiries of their agent (when he came to Albany), he said he was surprised that we did not receive the tin; but after giving up all hope of ever getting the tin, it came to hand on Nov. 14, 1891. This, we presume, was a special delivery, so we have not taken the chance of being placed in such a position again by waiting six months for goods.

"Hoping you will not have any such delay as we have had in getting any plate of American product, we are yours, "KIELEY & STAHL."

The Coffin Trust Reorganized.

The following dispatch has been received from Cleveland:

It is stated on the authority of a prominent manufacturer of burial caskets that an advance of about 20 per cent. in the price of coffins will be made within thirty days. The coffin trust, which was first organized here about three years ago, and which was recently broken by several large companies refusing to be bound by its regulations, has been reorganized and now practically controls the business in this country. The higher prices are the result.

Called Him a Fool.

The Marquis of Lorne, in his preface to his "Viscount Palmerston, K. G.," just published by Sampson Low, recalls a characteristic story of the Duke of Wellington: A worshiper, seeing the old Duke about to cross alone the crowded street from the Green Park to Apsley House, begged to be allowed to escort him. After the worshiper had walked with the Duke across to the pavement near the Duke's house the gentleman who had thus volunteered his company took off his hat to the Field Marshal and, with a low bow, expressed his deep sense of the high honor that had been permitted to him, etc., on which the old Duke, standing on the pavement, turned his eagle nose and blue eye on him, and said only: "Don't be such a damned fool, sir."

COFRODE AND SAYLOR, of the Reading Rolling Mill, have notified their employes of a 10 per cent. reduction in wages. The order affects nearly all departments and takes effect immediately. The firm employs about 650 hands. When the leading iron mills of Pennsylvania and Ohio cut down the wages of their workmen early last year, the advocates of the McKinley tariff declared that in time it would prove beneficial. Nearly a year and a half has passed since it became law, and is it not about time that some of the good results should begin to appear?

The Crowning Triumph of a Mexican.

The hat is beyond comparison the pet article of a Mexican's dress. Even the matter of the dents in the crown is used to convey a meaning. Four dents must be arranged in every sombrero. One on each side, one in front and one behind. The significance of this arrangement is that, when there was a difference of opinion in this country in regard to the rights of the church, and the two parties were formed, one in favor of the church and one against it, the church party adopted this device as a distinguishing mark, and these four dents are intended to give the crown a rude form of the cross. There has been no burning question dividing the nation recently, so the four dents have remained, as is the case with many other customs, long after their original significance has been forgotten. The sombrero is exactly analogous to a lady's bonnet. The only way in which the individual taste is hampered is in regard to the general shape. The amount, style and cost of trimming is left wholly to the owner's will. The Mexicans have evolved an article whose variations in trimming are positively bewildering. The band comes next as we descend the crown. The most popular form now is a double coil of silver rope varying from one-fourth to three-fourths of an inch in diameter. Before the band took its present form it was a heavy braid of silver cord, and the indications are that the cumbrous shape now in vogue will soon be succeeded by several turns of a lighter cord, occupying from two to four inches at the base of the crown. The chance for display which the brim affords is not slighted. There may be only a narrow ribbon of silver running around the outer edge, or, as is frequently the case, it is wholly hidden by the amount of trimming on both the upper and the under side of the brim. This silver ribbon is woven into various fanciful and intricate designs, and forms an important element in the decoration of the hat. There is the utmost diversity of color among the sombreros, varying from pure white to simple black. Drab is the most-used color, doubtless, on account of the dust which at times is overwhelming. The material generally used for the manufacture of sombreros is felt with a smooth or furry finish as the owner may wish. Many fine sombreros of straw with trimming of leather are seen. Silver is almost universally used as trimming, although gold is occasionally met. Indeed, the sombrero, both literally and figuratively, forms the crowning triumph of the Mexican's dress, and the amount of money which may be spent on it is only limited by the wishes of the owner.—Cor. Springfield Republican.

Wrenched Out of Shape.

Joints enlarged and contorted by rheumatism are among the penalties for allowing this obstinate malady to gain full headway. Always is it dangerous from its liability to attack the vitals—invariably is it agonizing. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has in nothing more clearly asserted its supremacy to the ordinary remedies for this malady than in its power to expel the rheumatic virus completely from the blood. It is safe, too, while colchicum, veratrum, and mineral poisons prescribed for it are not. The efficacy of the Bitters as a cleanser of the circulation is also conspicuously shown where the poison of miasma infects the vital fluid, or where it is contaminated with bile. Constipation, dyspepsia, "la grippe," kidney and bladder trouble, nervousness and debility are also removed by it. The convalescing and the aged and infirm derive much benefit from its use.

It Goes by Sevens.

Some modern philosopher has given in these eleven lines the summary of life: Seven years in childhood's sport and play, 7; seven years in school from day to day, 14; seven years at trade or college life, 21; seven years to find a place and wife, 28; seven years to building upward given, 35; seven years to business hardly driven, 42; seven years for some wild goose chase, 49; seven years for wealth and bootless race, 56; seven years for hoarding for your heir, 63; seven years in weakness, pain and care, 70; then die and go—you should know where.

A Maine woman who had an irreligious husband kept driving at him until she finally got him to go to church. Now mark how she was rewarded. Instead of following the service he looked at the congregation and noticed how much more handsomely the other women were dressed than his wife. Plain enough —the way to a clear complexion, free from blotches, pimples, eruptions, yellow spots, and roughness. Purify your blood, and you have it. With pure, rich blood, an active liver, good appetite and digestion, the hue of health follows. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gives you all of them. It is the blood-purifier. There's no lack of them, but there's none like this. It's guaranteed to accomplish all that's claimed for it. In all diseases arising from torpid liver and impure blood, it benefits or cures, or the money is refunded. With an ordinary medicine, it couldn't be done. But this isn't an ordinary medicine.

It is the cheapest blood-purifier sold, through druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

The "Discovery" acts equally well all the year round.

AN OFFER WITHOUT A PARALLEL.

In order to introduce our Life-Saving Tonic into new homes, we propose to distribute $6,750 in cash and valuable presents among our patrons, and make the following unprecedented offer, which will, however, be withdrawn after April 1st, 1892:

To the first 10 persons sending us a correct solution to the above puzzle, before April 1st, 1892, enclosing $1 for a package of Franklin's Life Preservers, we will give to each $200 in cash.

To the next 10, the choice of $100 in cash, a $125 Columbus Buggy (either phaeton or box-bed), or a $135 Safety Bicycle (Columbia, Hartford or Rambler, as preferred). These wheels are provided with cushion tires, have ball bearings all around, and we will forfeit the price of any of them if they are not found to be first-class in every way.

To the next 50 persons, we will give to each the choice of $25 in cash, a handsome $35 lazy-back road cart (like the one here shown), a lady's $25 gold watch, Waltham movement, with beautifully engraved case, or the $25 breech-loading, double-barreled Shot Gun, shown in the illustration. This gun is mounted in silver, with elegantly carved cherry stock, and is guaranteed to be first-class in every respect. You will like it.

The next 100 correct solvers we will reward with either a ten dollar bill or a library-bound copy of either Webster's or Worcester's Unabridged Dictionary, as preferred. Either one of these books will cost you $12 the world over. Please state which author you prefer.

To the next 500 we will give the choice of $3 in cash, the handsome automatic, shell-ejecting, five-shooting Revolver, here shown, a set of Roger Bros. triple plated Dinner Knives, or one year's subscription to either the Century or Harper's Magazine, or the Young Ladies Journal.

To the next 1000 persons who comply with the stipulations of this advertisement, we will give to each a copy of the new and handsome Royal edition of the Peerless Atlas of the World, or one year's subscription to any dollar newspaper or periodical you may name. The Atlas here offered has but recently been issued, and is unquestionably the finest work of the kind extant, giving elegant maps of every state in the Union, and of every country in the world. It retails for $1 everywhere.

A MAGNIFICENT PRESENT TO EVERY PURCHASER.

We are aware that perhaps not more than one in one hundred will be able to solve this puzzle, so in order that every one may know the life saving merits of our remedy, we will give to each and every purchaser, before April 1st, 1892, one of our handsome and superb pictures of the greatest marine battle ever fought upon the high seas, that of the Merrimac and Monitor. This naval combat was the first as well as the most distinguished engagement in the history of marine warfare, and every detail is strikingly portrayed in our picture. The picture is 22x28 inches, with suitable margin for framing. It is a fac simile production of Harcourt's masterpiece, for which the management of the Royal Art Galleries paid $10,000, and is as handsome as any $40 etching ever framed.

EXPLANATION OF PUZZLE.

The solution of the puzzle consists in so placing the figures 1 to 9, inclusive, as to add 15 in the eight directions indicated by the darts—across the three rows, up and down the three columns and then diagonally from the corners. We have placed the figures at random in the squares, but will give the 1,670 presents in the order named to this number of persons who will so place them as to add 15 as stated.

FRANKLIN'S LIFE PRESERVERS

will become a household word after once their invigorating effects are felt by the use of a single package. This remedy is a tonic, and no prescription was ever compounded which acted more kindly upon all the various organs of the human system. They are a specific for Kidney and Liver troubles, Dyspepsia, Headache, Chronic Constipation, Fevers and Colds, and all diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood. Women will find these little granules suitably named as regards their action in diseases peculiar to their sex, and the money will be cheerfully refunded to any person who takes one package of these Life Preservers and claims they are not benefited. Where is there a man or a woman, then, who would refuse to have his or her life prolonged from one to five years (even longer) if they are able to do so by the use of a remedy costing the paltry sum of a dollar or two?

The Names of Competitors for the presents will be registered in the order they are received, in a book we have prepared for the purpose, with the date of the receipt of each, and the presents will be given according to this registration. If you wish two or more packets of Life Preservers, and have solved the puzzle, we will register your name as many consecutive times as there are packets of Life Preservers ordered.

Checks for the Money as well as the various articles due prize winners, will be sent the first week in April, and the names and addresses of the successful contestants will be published the week following, and a list mailed to each person ordering the Life Preservers.

Solvers of the Puzzle must draw off the latter on a sheet of paper, with the figures properly placed in the squares and name signed underneath. Place this in the envelope with a Postal Note, Postoffice Money Order, or currency, and the Life Preservers and picture will be sent you by return mail and your name registered as indicated above.

Successful Contestants will be expected to pay express charges on their articles, and there is not one present named but what will be appreciated by the recipient. After April 1st, 1892, these Life Preservers may be had of any druggist. This offer will not appear again. Address

Democratic Commttee Meeting.

The committeemen of the several precincts of DeKalb county, are requested to meet in their room over Harter's store in Auburn, on at 1 p. m. to set the time for selecting delegates to the several county and district conventions, and to fix the date for the county convention. There will be other important matters to attend to. Let every precinct be represented without fail.

BEERS ERICK, Chairman.

D——NS SWEPT AWAY

When the Republican District Convention Run the Allen County Men Out of the Hall.

But the d——ning went on, on the outside and the wind work continued on the inside just the same.

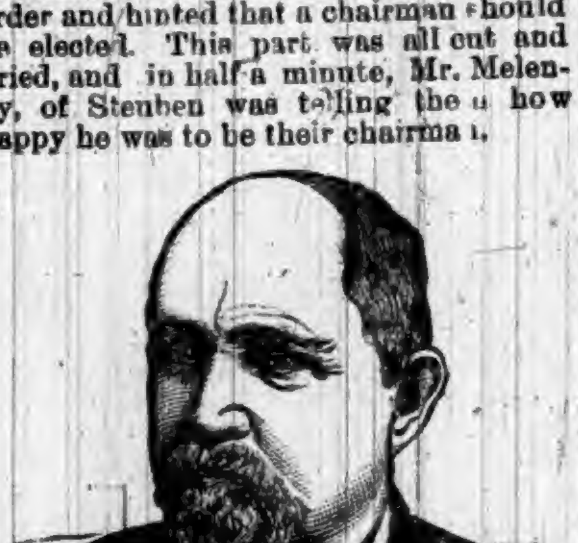
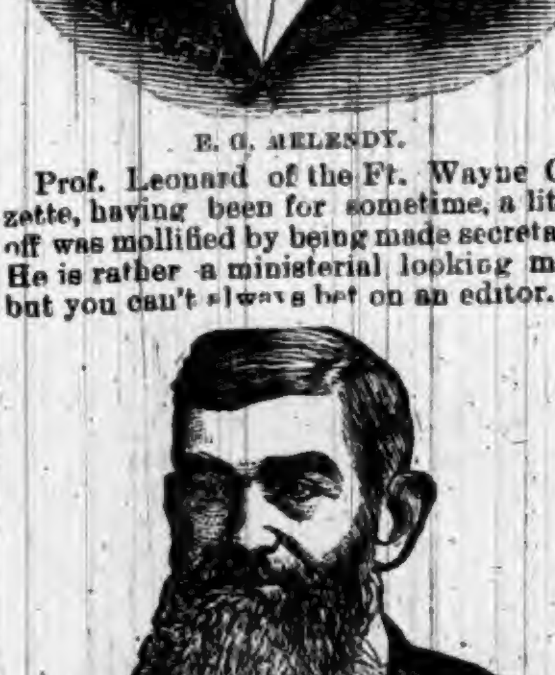
A HAPPY FAMILY.

After all the postmasters and other federal and state officers got places, the few other delegates, were allowed to sit down beside them and listen to the oratory and view the fire works. District Chairman Hanna called the meeting to order and hinted that a chairman should be elected. This part was all cut and dried, and in half a minute, Mr. Melendy, of Steuben was telling them how happy he was to be their chairman.



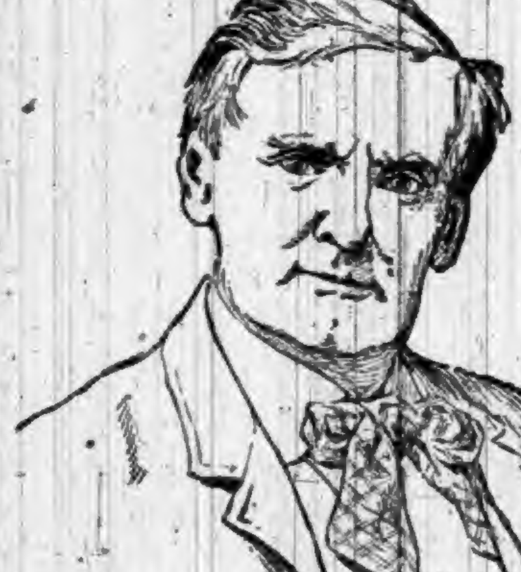
E. G. MELENDY.

Prof. Leonard of the Ft. Wayne Gazette, having been for sometime, a little off was mollified by being made secretary. He is rather a ministerial looking man, but you can't always bet on an editor.



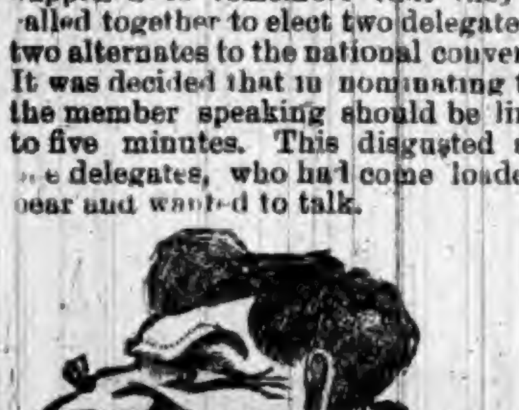
EDITOR LE NARD.

The machine was now ready to run. Half an hour was spent trying to find a good way to dispose of contests in the various delegations. Some thought each county should settle its own, some thought the entire meeting should decide, and some, that it should be left to a committee on credentials. At last some one had the counties called, and this showed there were no contests and had been none. The subject was dropped. The first thing the chairman did, was to lose his head, on the partimentary rules, and it was an hour before he "smiled again," though part of the delegates went out to "smile" during moments of calm. Then Allen county kicked for a raise in their delegation from 35 to 55, for though they had polled but 3,500 republican votes in 1890, they had showed 5,500 in 1888. They wanted the basis of 1888 and 20 more delegates. The principal speaker for Allen county, all the way through, was Mr. Hartman, of Ft. Wayne.



HOMER C. HARTMAN.

And he was ably assisted by District Chairman Hanna. After a long struggle Allen county was beaten. Someone then happened to remember that they were called together to elect two delegates and two alternates to the national convention. It was decided that in nominating them, the member speaking should be limited to five minutes. This disgusted sixty-one delegates, who had come loaded for bear and wanted to talk.



SIXTY ONE DELEGATES.

It was settled that a majority of all the votes of the convention would be necessary to elect, which meant 71 at least, and that the two delegates could be voted for at once. The nominating speeches then began. Hartman, of Ft. Wayne, nominated R. T. McDonald of that place, and was seconded by H. C Hanna. Dr. Darby, of Waterloo, made the nominating speech for W. L. Penfield, and not forgetting that he was once a greenback candidate he gave a vicious dig at "millionaires," meaning probably R. T. McDonald, who is president of the electric light trust. C. E. Emanuel talked for John L. Davis, a man who came near being elected county treasurer at an election when "the corrupt Cleveland was on the democrat ticket." As no other delegate remembered any corrupt act of Cleveland's, this wild sentiment was not cheered. Lee Welker, of Albion, nominated R. P. Barr, of Kendallville, making a strong point when he said Mr. Barr would foot his own bills. This bright idea secured Barr the biggest vote on the list.

THE VOTE.

After waiting a long time for DeKalb to get their vote to suit them, the ballots were counted and showed:

ALLEN—McDonald, 35, Barr 17½, Davis 17½.

STEUBEN—Penfield 19, Barr 19.

TOTAL:

Barr	118½
Penfield	87
McDonald	48
Davis	25½

Here, an Allen county man offered a resolution that it was the sense of this meeting, that Allen should have 55 votes. This was defeated, and the Allen county men, except Chairman Hanna, arose and went out in a huff, someone remarking "The d——ns are giving away." But they didn't use the d——ns till they got out on the street. The covention, after a good laugh at Allen county's expense, then nominated S. H. Fuller, of Lagrange, and Judge A. A. Chapin, of Ft. Wayne, for alternates, both by acclamation. D. R. Best, of Angola, offered a resolution complimenting Harrison and favoring his re-nomination. This was passed in silence. Penfield was called for, and made a speech in which, with considerable eloquence he enumerated all the little things of merit Harrison had done, and once when he spoke of Blaine and Harrison together, there was a short cheer. Except this, no one seemed to care about "hollerin'."

After adjourning, there was a big row among the Ft. Wayne men at the Swineford, which was kept up till the party left, at the Seventh street Lake Shore station. McDonald had chartered a special train at his own expense, to come up from Ft. Wayne, before noon, and now on returning, he swore that those who had worked against him should not ride on it. He was especially hot at Judge Chapin. As Chapin could not ride on McDonald's train, he took the north bound to Waterloo, and there took the west bound evening train to Kendallville, and thence to Ft. Wayne, or as surveyors say, "to the place of beginning."

WAITING FOR THE TRAIN.
"When the swallows homeward fly."

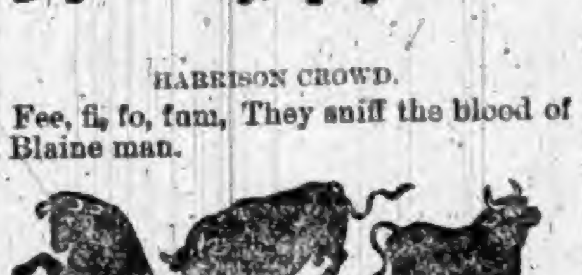
Grand Finale of the

HARRISON CROWD.

Fee, fi, fo, fum, They sniff the blood of a Blaine man.



THE ANTIS.

Revenge! revenge!! We will have r-r-r revenge!!!

SWEET PEACE.

Spreads her wings over Auburn once more. The menagerie is gone.

COUNT THE SPOONS!

NOTES.

No such excitement has been seen in Auburn since the Lowry convention of 1886.

Quite a number of our people of both parties followed the Ft. Wayne crowd to the train and were rewarded with lots of fun.

The postmasters had it all their own way at the convention. But on the special train, a vote was taken on the way home, and showed: Blaine, 32; Gresham, 12; Harrison, 9; McKinley, 6; Alger, 2; Sherman, 1.

R. T. McDonald has written to Clarkson, chairman of the national committee, and the latter answers that he will side with McDonald, against the arbitiary action of the Auburn convention in its refusal to give Allen county 55 votes.

The Ft. Wayne men say, if things are not made right there will be no republicans in Allen county in November. McDondald has appealed to the national committee, and wants the action of the meeting set aside and a new convention called.

People in Auburn are greatly divided on the choice for delegates. At once there arose the complaint that Davis, a man who had done so much to build up the town, should be set aside for a lawyer. And then they would call up the trouble between Mr. Penfield and the Church Furniturn Company, and swear no working man would support such a convention. Altogether, things did not pan out as harmoniously as the office-holders could have wished.

Strength and Health.

If you are not feeling strong and healthy, try Electric Bitters. If "La-Grippe" has left you weak and weary, use Electric Bitters. This remedy acts directly on liver, stomach and kidneys, gently aiding those organs to perform their functions. If you are afflicted with sick headache, you will find speedy and permanent relief by taking Electric Bitters. One trial will convince you that this is the remedy you need. Large bottles only 50c., at Robbins & McCord's drug store. 6

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

Some persons were much surprised upon looking out of doors Saturday morning last. While we were sleeping the soft, fleecy snow had been silently falling, and by morning it lay upon the ground fully five inches in depth, while every tree and shrub was laden to its full capacity to bear. Some one said it was sugar snow. It disappeared however, nearly as quickly as it came.

BUTLER.

The firm of Levy & Wolf that have been doing business for several years at this place, have dissolved, Gustav Wolf going out. The new firm will be Levy & Co. but who the "Co." is, has not yet transpired. Herman Hirsch of the new firm, left for New York to restock the store as soon as the new firm took possession.

A small squad of American citizens of African descent, about thirty-five in number, men and women, dropped down upon us unawares last Friday, enroute to the new railroad. They hailed from the extreme south. A number of the men were making merry in Dunn's saloon, when their foreman a white man, from the same region, attempted to drive them in southern style to their quarters at the Waverly House, and not succeeding as well as he wished, he seized a heavy billiard cue and dealt one of them a deadly blow over the head, inflicting what has proved to be a fatal injury. He seemed to have committed a grave mistake of his murderous act being passed by without notice as in the south; he was summarily arrested, tried, and in want of $1,200 bail, was hustled off to jail, where he will perhaps have time to reflect upon the curious and unprecedented acts of people in civilized communities. The man has since died.

The events of the past week have been somewhat varied, some of them of an unusual nature. Among them was the occurrence of three funerals on one day, last Thursday, for perhaps the first time in the history of our place. Among these was the aged veteran of our late war, James Revett, whose death, for some time expected, occurred March 1. Born at Kinning Hall, County of Norfolk, England, April 14, 1806, he had neared his 86th birthday. Many years of his life had been spent in the English army, four with the old 68, Durham Light Infantry; then coming to Canada. the regiment was merged with the 79th Highlanders, and his service continued for about four years longer, when he came to the States and in April, '34 near Owego, N. Y., he married Mariah Haskins, whose death occurred last December. Of their ten children, only three survive, one son and two daughters. He came to Indiana in 1848, and to Butler a year or two later, where his familiar appearance, was known to about every person in town. For causes not readily explained he was intensely loyal, his flag waving to the breeze on all public occasions. He put his patriotism into actual practice by enlisting in the 44th Indiana Volunteers in '63, perhaps the oldest man in the regiment. A wound received in line of duty, obtained for him an honorable discharge. The government remembered him with a liberal pension, so his last years were provided for, when he became unable to labor at his trade, that of shoemaking. The G A R of this place, of which he was a member, and the aged members of his old company, gave him an honorable burial. An infant child of Henry Bowman and the aged mother of Mrs. Henry Haskins were the other two whose funerals took place the same day.

Proprietors of Dullam's Great German Remedies. Gentlemen: I have for the past two years been troubled with a serious and very severe liver and stomach difficulty. Have had advice and medicine from our very best physicians and only to be temporarily relieved. Some of my friends persuaded me to try your Great German Remedy for the blood, stomach and kidneys and to my surprise after using three bottles I feel like a new man. If you desire you can use my name in print or by reference in any other papers, in any of the Grand Rapids, Michigan, papers, or any other papers in the states, to convince the afflicted that it is the best blood, liver and kidney medicine on earth. AUBURN AND VICINITY.

The annual municipal election was regarded with little interest. The names of Lewis J. Blair, Romeo B. Catlin and Guy Plumb appear as voters. Mr. Blair entered the army in the 88th Indiana Volunteers, advanced to the rank of Major, and at the close of the war was brevetted a brigadier general. He was an eloquent, impassioned orator, prominent in politics and able in law pleadings, elected treasurer of DeKalb county, he had the misfortune to have the safe robbed and in consequence to become involved in costly litigation. Removed to Waterloo, he continues to practice in the courts of the circuit, his profession of the law.

Mr. Catlin was also elected county treasurer, and in default of banking facilities near home, kept the people's money at a bank in Kendallville for security, and was criticized for so doing, so that it was obvious that it was difficult to suit all parties. Not long after the expiration of his term of office, Mr. Catlin died at his home at Spencerville, and his widow with quite a family came and made her home in Auburn, where her children had school advantages and whence they have gone out to various localities to gain a livelihood.

Mr. Plumb was a counselor at law, served a year as school examiner, held office on the town board, occupied what is now the sheriff's office in the court house, amassed some means and built the fine brick residence now the property of Albert Robbins, cashier of the Farmers Bank, but the health of himself and a part of his family having failed, he sold and removed to the Atlantic coast, where near Washington, he bought a fine old southern style mansion with spacious, beautiful ground, and has since lived in comfort and prosperity.

About the last of May, M. L. Rhodes had completed the little dark red brick building which standing on the north west corner of Main and Ninth streets, formed the nucleus of the enlarged store and residence building erected by James W. Case, the owner, about 1873.

That little structure whose outlines are still distinctly marked, was in 1860, considered one of the best buildings in Auburn, and here Mr. Rhodes carried on a brisk trade in dry goods groceries and miscellaneous supplies, and a year or so later as deputy postmaster conducted the business of the postoffice.

Messers Smith & Ingraham erected a framed building and prepared to go into the hardware trade a business that had been carried on for years by J. Dutcher Davis at the DeKalb County Hardware and stove emporium on the site of the Davis Pioneer Hardware store but no record being made of their further venture, it may be taken for granted that Dame Fortune did not prosper them.

Job C. Smith was this year successor to Valentine Weaver on the corner of Maine and Seventh streets and in December was himself succeeded by Dr. W. M. Mercer & Brother in the sale of drugs and medicines.

The ladies of Auburn and vicinity have ever been interested in prevailing fashions and the trade of milliner and dressmaking has in consequence proved remunerative. Among the first to solic it patronage in this line was Mrs. Bass of England, who had served a full apprenticeship at dressmaking in the city of London and having established herself at Auburn, invited custom on the on the further ground that she was in "weekly receipt of New York styles."

Insurance against fire was placed on town property by William H. Dills acting as agent for the well known Home Insurance company of New York. A certificate of authority from the auditor had been filed with the clerk of the circuit court of the county by Mr. Dills, and, at this date, he was the only agent of an insurance company who had complied with the existing law in this regard.

The many insurance companies represented at times by nearly a dozen agents in Auburn had had an effect in late years of reducing rates to the insured, but given small profit to agents and companies till the establishment of a board of underwriters and a schedule of rates brought about equity to insurers and insured.

Much insurance is carried in Auburn upon private and public property. Houses, stores, school buildings and county buildings are insured for many thousands in reliable companies and the beneficent results have been exemplified time and again when otherwise heavy losses by fire have been lightened by the prompt payment of insurance.

C. A. O. McClellan our popular congressman was in 1860, assisting Mr. Pearce as deputy auditor and filled an appointment as census enumerator. Later variously employed, he betook himself to the study of law, was associated for a long period with Judge James I. Best in legal practice, at which the firm took high and distinguished rank. Some time following a dissolution of the firm, Judge McClellan came to Auburn, built the residence continuous eastward with the First National Bank building and identified his interests with those of the people of Auburn.

Successful as a financier as well as lawyer, he is a stockholder to a large extent in the DeKalb Bank of Waterloo as well as in the First National Bank of Auburn and during the long intervals between sessions of Congress is a familiar figure at the bar of our court.

Hon. Egbert Mott, in addition to practice of law became a dealer in real estate, and farm lands to the extent of two thousand acres were by him placed on the market for sale. Thus did the increase of population, growing wants of the people and the enterprise of the few open up new avenues for occupation and wealth so that it may be affirmed as a truism those who are pioneers in a new country will, if they have the talent to improve opportunities and the patience to wait their coming, eventually reach their goal whatever its character, whether it be the acquisition of land as in the case of Alonzo Lockwood, of money, or its equivalent like John P. Widney, or of judicial honors, like John Morris and their success in riper years gauges popular estimate of ability and bears with it present and posthumous honors.

WEST BY SOUTH.

BAY CITY, ORE. Feb. 29, '92.

EDITOR COURIER: I left Butler for Chicago the evening of December 29, where I was joined by my family, (who had been visiting in Michigan,) on the 31st. We remained there several days visiting Lincoln Park, the Worlds Fair grounds and other points of interest, among which was the Herald office and enjoying the fine banquet on New Years eve, spread by the enterprising publisher of that journal. Sunday afternoon, Jan. 3rd, we boarded the limited express on the Illinois Central for New Orleans, passing through Illinois with its long stretches of level and rolling prairie lands, all in a high state of cultivation. During the night we passed over a small portion of Kentucky and Tennessee. On awakening, we found ourselves entering Mississippi, noted for its products of mules, cotton, razor-backed hogs and negroes. The general lack of thrift, evident from the condition of cattle, mules, fences, buildings and soil, brought to mind the truthfulness of Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" wherein she makes Aunt Ophelia exclaim, "How Shiftless!" The plantations are dotted with little negro cabins, (about 16 feet square void of windows only as light is admitted by the removal of boards or the open door, for the negroes are so opposed to McKinley's "glass trust," that they have organized a strong boycott on glass and also on the "cordage combine," as windows and clothes lines are luxuries and are omitted from their list of necessaries, bushes and fences are substitutes for lines). Swarming with their ebony hued inhabitants whose woolly heads both large and small were thrust from every opening to greet the train and passengers as they rushed past, with their happy smiles, apparently as contented as the day is long. The soil of this state is principally red sand, and near the southern border some fine timbered land is found along the railroad. The Australian ballot law is in force in this state and the last election was held under that system of voting and I understood from quite a number of representatives, who were on their way to Jackson the state capital to meet in regular session, that the people were well pleased with it. What has been said of Mississippi as regards its soil, appearance and productions will apply to Louisiana with the addition to its products of rice and sugar. Monday at 7 p. m. found us in the metropolis of the south, New Orleans. Our surprise, if not disgust can better be imagined than described when the light of the following morning permitted us to view the filthy condition of its narrow sidewalks and streets, with open gutters about 18 inches wide on either side, the sewerage of the city passes through these open sewers. It is all pedestrians can do to pass each other in single file, and teams have a like difficulty to contend with on all streets, except two in the main portion of the city. The French quarters, especially the old market, the levees with the large cotton wharves and warehouses are among the curiosities of this dirty, but quaint old city, which however can boast of some of the finest public buildings outside the city of Washington. The surroundings and atmosphere have the influence of making the inhabitants assume an attitude of "let the wide world wag as it will," they were prepared to do nothing but rest. The unhealthful odor limited our stay there to one day, and at six o'clock p. m. Jan. 5, we crossed the Mississippi and boarded the fast mail on the Southern Pacific bound for the west. For two days we traveled through Texas, and the view from the train of its large plantations, broad level and rolling prairies, stocked with immense herds of cattle, horses, flocks of sheep, and angora goats fills one with the idea that the world's surplus of hungry and dissatisfied people might be provided with homes and support. The best soil and stock we saw anywhere along the road from Illinois to central California was through Texas. Thursday evening at 5:15 o'clock we arrived at El Paso, a small city on the Rio Grande river. There we got mixed on time, as we stopped 30 minutes for supper and were informed our train would leave at 3:45 p. m., but got straightened out by being told to set our watch back two hours, as from there we should run on San Francisco time. There for the first time we saw an adobe house which was a one story flat roofed building made from square blocks of clay baked in the sun. From there to Los Angelos this kind of house was stylish and very numerous. The Southern Pacific passes through New Mexico over a sandy level plateau relieved occasionally by disjointed mountain ridges, a small brush called mesquite and a species of cactus that grows from 5 to 20 feet tall and covers a space of from 6 to 30 feet square, armed with a sharp thorn, the prick of which is said to be very poisonous. Friday found us in Arizona, the soil, scenes and climate of which is nearly the same as that of New Mexico.

LETTER FROM HONDURAS.

A Strange Race.

PORT BURCHARD, HONDURAS, Central America, Feb. 20, 1892:—Far away beyond the blue Caribean sea there lives a strange race whose history runs thus: Many long years ago in the dim and misty days of the forgotten past there sailed a slave ship from the gold coast of Africa, the ship carried the British flag for England was then yet engaged in the traffic of human flesh. Prosperous was the voyage over the rolling billows of the wide Atlantic until nearing her destination, when one of those sudden squalls, known only to the tropics, struck the vessel on her side and hurled her upon the rocks, and at once went to pieces. The would be slaves being expert swimmers all gained the shore in safety, while of their captors none survived to tell the tale. They camped on the shore, built huts of native grass and lived on the bounties of nature. Fruits and nuts grew in wild profusion, and their wants were few and easily supplied. But little exertion was required to fill their larders with plenty. They were indolent, necessarily so. Generations came and went, they grew and multiplied, they pushed out their settlements up and down the coast of the Caribean sea until they occupied a tract of country not far short of 900 miles. The ancient Payas Indians became alarmed and called upon the government for protection against the ever growing Carib race (for Carib was the name now applied to them.) The great power set bounds to their empire, and said to them, "Thus far and no farther shalt thou go." I have visited their villages and traded with them, and find them the happiest people on earth. They are firm in religion without law or lawyers or the need of any. They are honest in all their dealings, theft being unknown among them. They are kind to us, and withall polite. The younger portion of the tribe go entirely nude, the elderly ladies wear chemise only, and are extremely neat, and a breach of virtue is unknown among them. They marry young and raise large families. Their skin is spotted like the coat of a leopard, but the jet black of the African is predominent, as often a leg will be white and the remainder of the body black. The more I study them the more I learn to respect the now numerous Carib race.

California Letter.

SANGER, CALIF. Feb. 5, 1892.

EDITOR COURIER:—I promised to write you a few items now and then. This county, Fresno, is a nice looking country as far as I have seen. Sanger is a nice little town claiming about 12 000 inhabitants. It has good schools, four churches and a large factory that employs about 200 hands in the summer, but at present work is very dull. The weather has been very pleasant this winter. It has not rained very much. I am going to move to Honey Lake Valley. Lassen county in the northeastern part of the state about the 9th of February. I was up there and looked at some land, and bought eighty acres for $600. It is unimproved, but has to be irrigated. The people say it is as good land as there is in California. I receive the COURIER regularly every week and would feel lost if I did not get to read it for I find lots of news from Indiana, and could not do without it. I received the Sunshine, also and thank you very much for it.

Yours truly,

JOHN L. RINEHOLD.

Sullivan and Corbett Matched to Fight—Terrible Tragedy at Tiffin, Ohio—The Eider a Hopeless Loss—A Frightful Fall.

HIS LAST FIGHT.

Sullivan Will Whip Corbett and Quit.

James J. Corbett, the California champion heavy-weight pugilist, has shown by a positive act that he wants to fight John L. Sullivan. He has put up money to the extent of $2,500 to bind a match for $10,000 a side, and "money talks" all the world over. He did it at the World office in New York, and after he had done it he said he was glad that the thing was settled. The articles of agreement are to govern a glove contest to a finish between John L. Sullivan, champion of the world, and James J. Corbett of California. The match is to decide the heavy-weight championship of the world, a stake of $20,000 and a purse of $25,000. The contest shall take place before the Olympic Club of New Orleans on Wednesday, September 7, 1892. The contest shall be under Marquis of Queensbury rules; the gloves shall be the smallest the club will allow.

Chicago special: John L. Sullivan received this dispatch at his hotel and said: "Well, I am to fight an American. I would rather had a crack at Mitchell or Slavin, but it's not to be. I meant what I said in my ultimatum. I would prefer a foreigner, but Corbett opened up his mouth at me about as much as the Englishman, and I might as well have it out with him. I will not be satisfied that he is in earnest until he jumps into the ring with me. He has taken only the preliminary steps, and there are more than forty ways of creeping out of it. I will win, and win easy. This will positively be my last fight. John L. has always kept his word. I have been champion of the world ten years, and cannot afford to let Corbett best me. He has never bested a first-rate man."

SNYDER'S CRAZY ACT.

He Shoots Three Business Associates and Then Kills Himself.

At Tiffin, O., Walter Snyder shot Edward Naylor, Burt Crobaugh and Thomas Downey and killed himself. Snyder was aged about forty-five years, unmarried, and one of the most popular men in the city, had attempted the life of Edward T. Naylor and Burton W. Crobaugh, both members of the firm by which he was employed, and also that of Thomas W. Downey, a fellow clerk. That the man was insane does not admit of a shadow of a doubt. He entered the store as usual and found the others already there. He made a pretense of desiring Crobaugh and Naylor to examine the contents of a box which he had just received by express, and when they were at his side he shot them both and then turned the revolver on Downey, who had entered to save the lives of the others. Snyder then ran up stairs and fired the remaining bullet in his revolver through his own heart. Crobaugh and Naylor may recover, but downey's wound is considered fatal.

Dust to Dust.

A suit unprecedented in Indiana was began at Indianapolis by J. W. McDaniels. Twenty-five years ago the plaintiff established a burial ground on his farm and removed the bodies of his wife and children to it. A few years later he sold the farm to Charles Haines, who, he claims, only recently plowed and leveled the graves and scattered the dust of the plaintiff's relatives all over the farm. He wants $5,000 damages from Haines.

Must Have a Quorum.

Mr. Bailey of Texas, announces that he will insist on a quorum being present in the National House of Representatives whenever any business is done. He admits that this may cause inconvenience, but he says the Constitution requires the presence of a quorum to do business and he proposes to support the Constitution at all hazzards.

A Hopeless Loss.

It is feared that the Eider, the German steamship wrecked near Altherfield, Isle of Wight, is a lopeless loss. A gale is sweeping the coast, and heavy seas are breaking over the vessel, sweeping the docks and burying the Eider at times out of sight. All attempts at raising her have ceased for the present.

A Frightful Fall.

Thos. McCue, a workman employed in finishing the new Franklin Trust Company's building in Brooklyn, N. Y., fell down the elevator shaft from the eleventh story. He was taken to the Hospital, where it is said that his injuries are severe, but not necessarily fatal.

American Players at Vienna.

A number of prominent theatrical managers met in New York recently to consider the proposition to send a representative company of American players to Vienna next July to participate in the international exposition of musical and dramatic art.

"An Honest Young Farmer."

Hard On the Lotteries.

Gov. Brown of Kentucky, has signed the bill which makes the operation of lotteries a penitentiary offense.

A BELGIUM HORROR.

Three Hundred Miners, Entombed and Supposed to Be Dead.

Brussells special: A frightful colliery disaster has occurred at Anderleus. Three hundred miners are entombed in the pit and a series of explosions has apparently cut off all access to the men. An attempt has been made to reach the imprisoned miners, but so far without success. The explorers have been beaten back by the foul fumes. The shafting and ventilation are destroyed. Three female miners have been rescued, and it seems almost certain that all the rest are dead. Intense excitement prevails, and thousands are thronging to the place, which is one of the leading mining centers of Belgium. The scenes at the pit mouth are most pathetic, a multitude of people bewailing their relatives, supposed to have perished in the mine.

THE ELEVATOR FELL.

And Three Men Were Crushed Into Shapeless Masses.

A frightful accident by which three men were instantly killed and two others fatally injured, occurred at the boiler factory of Rohan Bros., at the corner of Second and Collins streets, St. Louis. Frank Conn, Hugh Duffy and Foreman henry Kaiser stood directly beneath an immense elevator used for hoisting heavy machinery. The elevator was at the second story of the building and Thomas Flaherty and Michael Sweeny were engaged in loading it with sheet iron plates. The men sounded the warning bell as a signal that the elevator was about to descend. They then started the huge machine and it had scarcely moved when the rope broke and it fell with a crash on the men standing beneath it, crushing them into a shapeless mass of flesh and bones. Following is a list of killed and injured: Killed—Henry Kaiser, foreman; Frank Conn, boilermaker, and Hugh Duffy, tackle rigger. Injured—Thomas Flaherty, deep cuts on head and shoulders; Michael Sweeney, injured interna'ly. Several other workmen were slightly hurt by flying timbers. The bodies of the three dead men were removed to the morgue and the injured men taken to the City Hospital, where their injuries were pronounced serious and perhaps fatal. The elevator had been recently repaired and the rope was comparatively new. The apparatus was inspected a few weeks ago and pronounced in good condition.

SCUDDER'S MAD ACT.

He Murderously Attacks His Aged Father.

Chicago special: There was a sensational scene in the county jail when Mr. Scudder attacked his venerable father, Rev. H. M. Scudder. The prisoner's father, wife, and a cousin called to see him. Dr. Noble was in the prisoner's cell at the time attending to his needs. The three visitors were admitted to the corridor and the venerable Mr. Scudder entered the cell and spoke to his son. Dr. Scudder seemed to recognize his father and greeted him with a kiss. His father told him his wife was in waiting and asked if he would see her. Like a maniac that he apparently is, he sprang at his father and grabbed him by the throat. But for the assistance of Dr. Noble and the attendant it is likely that the old gentleman would have been strangled. In the meantime his wife, a witness of the scene, was in hysterics in the corridor. When forced back upon his cot, the doctor apparently sank into a stupor, and refuses to reply to questions as to his comforts or needs. He still refuses to eat, and Dr. Noble says whether sane or insane his physical condition is a very bad one. Scudder is under arrest for murdering his mother-in-law.

A New Railroad.

A company has been organized and filed articles of incorporation with the Secretaries of State of Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana, which proposes to build another road from Detroit to Hammond, Ind., which is the ending road of nearly all Eastern lines into Chicago. The company has a capital stock of $9,000,000. The road, as surveyed, will be 258 miles long—fifty-two miles in Michigan, sixty-one in Ohio and 146 in Indiana. An impression prevails that the Canadian Pacific is behindtne movement, although the leading spirits in the enterprise, as it now appears, are the Ohio and Michigan people.

Wait No Longer.

There has been no change in the Behring Sea situation. Lord Salisbury has not yet replied to the President's communication. Attorney General Miller, Senator Sherman, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, General Foster and ex-Minister Phelps, had conferences with the President on this subject. With the poachers already actively at work it is believed that the administration must soon take some definite action, without any reference to a reply from the British Premier. It is believed that the conference was for the purpose of determining a line of policy to be followed pending action by the English authorities.

A Mormon's Arrest.

Salt Lake City special: James P. Frees, High Councilor of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, who sits side by side in the High Council of State of Zion with delegate to Congress John T. Cain, has been arrested by United States Marshals for unlawful cohabitation, and held to await the grand jury's action in the sum of $1,000. Jane Stone, his plural wife and co-respondent, was held in a bond of $500. The arrest of such an exalted ruler of the church has created consternation in church circles, and when the news was brought to President Woodruff he is said to have yielded to intense passion.

Want Relief.

Ottawa (Ont.) special: Laura Louisa and Mary Augusta Smith, elderly maiden daughters of Laura Secor, who won fame at Queenstown during the war of 1812 by overhearing the discussion of the plan for the purpose and capture of a detachment of British troops, and revealing it after a laborious journey through an unbroken country, which resulted in the capture of the American party, have petitioned the Dominion Parliament for relief, being destitute. The grounds for a petition are Laura Secor's services to her country.

Made a Cardinal.

St. Paul special: Rev. Father Hifferon, who has charge of Catholic affairs during the absence in Rome of Archbishop Ireland, has at last received definite advices from the Holy City that the Archbishop is to be made the second Cardinal of the United States, and that the ceremony of conferring the red hat will occur in Rome, April 20. The statement has been made several times that this action had been taken but the official statement has never been made. It is now stated that the official paper of the Pope, The Observatorie Romani, will publish the above facts.

Against O'Brien's Bondsmen.

The Catholic Knights of America, through the officers of the various State jurisdictions, have instructed Supreme President J. D. Coleman to begin legal action against the bondsmen of the late Supreme Treasurer, M. J. O'Brien, who took the funds of the order, to the extent of $75,000, some time ago, and it is supposed that suits will be instituted without delay. It is understood that the matter will be presented in the courts of Chattanooga, the former home of the defaulting Treasurer.

Thirty-Six Killed.

A special from Riachuela, Brazil, says: Traffic on the Brazilian Central Railroad line is paralyzed owing to an immense strike, extending from conductors and engineers down to yard and track men. The local police were called in to preserve order, but this only influenced the passions of the railway men and brought on a bloody conflict, in which six policemen were killed and more than thirty of the strikers either killed or seriously wounded.

Buffalo Bill's Last Shot.

At Springfield, Ohio, Cleveland Leffel, a 7-year-old lad, was fatally wounded by Clarence Rhine, aged 15 years. They were playing Buffalo Bill, and Rhine, who had stolen his father's 32-caliber rifle from the house, pointed it at Leffel and fired. The bullet entered his back and lodged in the bowels. He cannot recover. Rhine did not know the gun was loaded. Both boys reside on West Euclid avenue.

A Sheriff Shot and His Prisoner Hanged.

Springfield (Mo.) special: News has just reached this city of the lynching of John Westley Bright in Forsythe, Taney County, who was charged with murdering his wife. Bright was being examined when the mob demanded his surrender. Deputy Sheriff Williams refused to give him up and was shot dead. The mob hanged Bright and escaped. Forsythe is twenty-seven miles from a railroad and few particulars can be obtained.

A Sham Duel.

At Mt. Vernon, Ohio, two printer apprentices, Eddie Singer and Alva Reed, undertook to engage in a sham duel with 22-caliber revolvers, supposed to be free of cartridges. One chamber in Singer's weapon proved to be loaded, and the bullet entered reed's neck, narrowly escaping the jugular, and still remains imbedded in the muscles. The wound is a very serious one, and may yet prove fatal.

The Indianapolis Sentinel.

Samuel E. Morss has bought the interest in the Indianapolis Sentinel held for several months by A. Belford, of Chicago. By this purchase Mr. Morss becomes the owner of all the stock in the paper except one share, owned by an aunt of Mr. Morss, Mrs. Loag, who lives at Fort Wayne. Mr. Morss owned a controlling interest before he made this last purchase.

Grover in the Race.

Grover Cleveland will be a candidate for the Presidential nomination before the Chicago Convention. This fact is shown beyond a doubt by a letter written by the ex-President to Gen. Edward S. Bragg, of Wisconsin. Mr. Cleveland's letter was brought out by one written by Gen. Bragg urging him to define his position.

Buried Under a Hundred Tons of Coal.

Arthur McKinney, while at work trying to start frozen coal in a chute at the yards of G. W. Newton, coal dealers of Hartford, Conn., was caught by the coal when it commenced to run and was buried by over a hundred tons of it. He was dead when his body was dug out two hours later.

HOLDING THEIR GRAIN.

MANY BUSHELS OF WHEAT IN GROWERS' HANDS.

Information Regarding the Distribution of Wheat and Corn—Biggest Reserve on Record—860,000,000 Bushels of Corn Held by Farmers.

Government Crop Report.

The March report of distribution of the wheat and corn by the statistician of the Department of Agriculture makes the stock of wheat in growers' hands 171,000,000 bushels, or 28 per cent. of the crop; 63,000,000 of spring wheat, and 108,000,000 of winter wheat, much of the latter in States which have practically no commercial distribution, but entering into local consumption for bread and seed. This is the largest reserve ever reported, that of the largest previous crop, in 1884, being 169,000,000 bushels. The exports from July 1 to March 1 were 164,000,000 bushels, the fall seed 26,000,000 bushels, the consumption apparently 200,000,000 bushels, but a large proportion is taken for consumption in the fall and winter, and the actual consumption is disproportionately greater than in the spring and summer. The assumed consumption from March 1, 1891, to March 1, 1892, is 300,000,000 bushels for a population of 64,300,000; the exports, 206,000,000 bushels; the seed, 56,000,000 bushels; a distribution of 562,000,000 bushels, with 41,000,000 visible and 171,000,000 invisible stocks. There are 27,000,000 bushels not accounted for previously, which came in the unprecedented squeezing of all sorts of reserves, mainly from the always uncounted stocks of flour between mill and mouth and from small uncounted stocks between the farmers' granaries and the visible supplies. The average weight of wheat is 58.5 pounds per measured bushel, which is the estimated weight of the crop of 1887, and is 9-10 of a pound above the average of eight previous years. The estimated quantity of corn in farmers' hands is 860,000,000 bushels, or 41.8 per cent. of the crop. This is the largest proportion ever reported, that of 1889 excepted, which was 45.9 per cent., or 970,000,000 bushels. The seven principal States have a surplus of 546,000,000 bushels, or 41.5 per cent. of their product, against 66.7 of the great crop of 1889. The proportion merchantable is the largest ever reported, 88.5 per cent., against 85.7 two years ago. The average of eight previous crops is 82 per cent., and the lowest average 60 for the frosted crop of 1883. The present average farm price of merchantable corn is 39.2 cents per bushel; of unmerchantable, 25.7 cents.

PURE FOOD AND DRUGS.

Salient Points of the Bill Which Has Passed the Senate.

The Paddock pure food bill has been passed by the Senate. Its object is to secure along the lines of interstate commerce the guarantees against fraudulent adulterations which are now furnished by some of the States and which it is in the power of all the other States to provide for their citizens. Its most salient terms are in substance that every person who manufactures and delivers for shipment to any point outside the State or Territory any drug or article of food, and every person who exposes for sale or delivers such drug or article of food outside the State or Territory in which it is manufactured, shall, on demand, furnish a sample of the same for examination or analysis under the direction of the Agricultural Department. Such articles as are found to be adulterated, within the meaning of the act, and are transported or being transported from one State to another for sale and are still in the original or unbroken packages, shall be liable to be proceeded against in the District Court of the United States and seized for confiscation or condemnation. If condemned as being adulterated they shall be sold, and the proceeds, minus the costs and charges, shall be paid into the United States Treasury. A trial by jury may be demanded. It is believed by the advocates of the measure that if it become a law this provision, which can be enforced against the article itself, will effectually prevent the transportation of fraudulent adulterations across State lines. They say that with such a rod hanging over him a man who is conscious of having in his possession adulterated food within the meaning of the statute never will venture to send those goods across a State line for sale and disposal. It was explained by Mr. Paddock that in framing the measure sufficient care had been taken in regard to the publication of analyses so as to prohibit the mention of the name of the person or corporation that is under suspicion. There is to be no publication of such analysis until after the trial and conviction of the person. There will thus be no invitation to competitors in trade or individuals who might through spite work feel like entering complaints against others who are manufacturing different commodities to inform against them without sufficient reason.

The measure was strongly objected to as tending to interfere with the consumption of cotton-seed oil and some other substances which are used in compound food products on a large scale and are widely claimed to be equally healthful as the material for which they are complete or partial substitutes. But if such claim be a correct one the products ought to be offered for sale on their merits, and no honest manufacturer should object to being obliged to label or otherwise designate his goods in accordance with fact. The rights of consumers of food and drugs ought to be considered, and they constitute a much more numerous class than the manufacturers and venders put together. The person who pays out his money for an article has the right to know what he is buying, to choose for himself whether he or she will take the genuine thing or another thing which is guaranteed to be "just as good." Especially should this right be jealously guarded in the case of material to be taken into the system.

THE prospect for a large yield of fruit in Southern Indiana was never better than at present, with the exception of the peach crop. The yield will probably be heavier than in many years past. Frank Dean, the noted peach-grower of Bethlehem, on the river, is quoted as saying that on account of the large number of buds on the peach trees last season, the number this year will be much smaller, but the fruit will be larger and of finer quality, and the tedious work of thinning avoided.

A GREAT temperance revival is now in progress at Osgood. William Murphy, the temperance evangelist, has been laboring since March 1 with unprecedented success. The walls of the citadel of intemperance have been shaken and nearly nine hundred have signed the pledge. The whole country round is aroused by the fiery eloquence of this apostle of temperance reform. The village has four saloons, but since Murphy's arrival they have lost their best patrons, as the revival has been especially among the class of drinking men.

LEASE hunters are now hovering around what is supposed to be a rich zinc deposit along Rock Creek, in Carroll County. Several weeks ago a young man from the Rock-creek neighborhood went to Logansport, and in an office there saw some zinc-ore from Joplin, Mo. Asking what it was he was told, and replied that there was lots of it along Rock Creek, and when he went home sent several pounds of the deposit to Logansport. The result was that several capitalists, headed by Senator A. R. Shroyer, hastened to the place, and leased about one thousand acres before any one else knew what was going on. Now that the secret is out, scores of people are trying to get a lease. The Shroyer syndicate has arranged to sink a shaft, and work will be commenced in a few days. The excitement in the neighborhood is up to fever-heat, and there are many prospective millionaires.

IN the northern part of Bartholomew County, in an old Baptist Church that has not been used for twenty years, a young man has begun preaching, and now the building will not hold all who desire to hear. Services are held each night, and people are said to begin arriving as early as 4 o'clock in the afternoon, so as to get seats.

A SINGULAR and unfortunate accident occurred at the car-works, Jeffersonville. B. F. Lagel, one of the employes, together with some others, was engaged in placing a large sill in a car, when it slipped, and striking Lagel, threw him a distance of thirty feet. He was picked up bleeding and unconscious, and taken to his home, where Dr. Peyton, the company's surgeon, attended him. It is feared his injuries will prove fatal, as he had barely recovered from the effects of another accident.

SARATOGA CO. MIRACLE

HELPLESS FOR YEARS AND EXCLUDED FROM HOSPITALS AS INCURABLE.

The Remarkable Experience of Chas. Quant as Investigated by an Albany (N. Y.) Journal Reporter—A Story of Surpassing Interest.

[Albany, N. Y., Journal, March 4.]

SARATOGA, March 4.—For some time past there have been reports here and elsewhere in Saratoga County of a most remarkable—indeed, so remarkable as to be miraculous—cure of a most severe case of locomotor ataxia, or creeping paralysis, simply by the use of a popular remedy known as "Pink Pills for Pale People," prepared and put up by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Morristown, N. Y. and Brockville, Ont. The story was to the effect that Mr. Charles A. Quant, of Galway, who for the last six or eight years has been a great sufferer from creeping paralysis and its attendant ills, and who had become utterly powerless of all self-help, had, by the use of a few boxes of the Pink Pills for Pale People, been so fully restored to health as to be able to walk about the street without the aid of crutches. The fame of this wonderful, miraculous cure was so great that the Evening Journal reporter thought it worth his while to go to Galway to call on Mr. Quant, to learn from his lips, and from the observation and testimony of his neighbors, if his alleged cure was a fact or only an unfounded rumor. And so he drove to Galway and spent a day and a night there in visiting Mr. Quant, getting his story, and interviewing his neighbors and fellow-townsmen. It may be proper to say that Galway is a pretty little village of 400 people, delightfully located near the center of the town of Galway, in Saratoga County, and about 17 miles from Saratoga Springs. Upon inquiry, the residence of Mr. Charles A. Quant was easily found, for everybody seemed to know him, speak well of him, and to be overflowing with surprise and satisfaction at his wonderful cure and restoration to the activities of enterprising citizenship, for Mr. Quant was born in Galway and had spent most of his life there. Mr. Quant was found at his pretty home, on a pleasant street nearly opposite the academy. In response to a knock at the door it was opened by man who, in reply to an inquiry if Mr. Quant lived there and was at home, said: "I am Mr. Quant. Will you come in?" After a little general and preliminary conversation, and after he had been apprised of the object for which the Journal reporter had called upon him, he, at request, told the story of himself and of his sickness and terrible sufferings, and of the ineffectual treatment he had had, and of his final cure by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and cheerfully gave assent to its use for publication. He said: "My name is Charles A. Quant. I am 37 years old. I was born in the village of Galway, and, excepting while traveling on business and a little while in Amsterdam, have spent my whole life here. My wife is a native of Ontario. Up to about eight years ago I had never been sick and was then in perfect health. I was fully six feet tall, weighed 180 pounds and was very strong. For twelve years I was a traveling salesman for a piano and organ company and had to do, or at least did do, a great deal of heavy lifting, got my meals very irregularly and slept in enough 'spare beds' in country houses to freeze any ordinary man to death, or at least give him the rheumatism. About eight years ago I began to feel distress in my stomach and consulted several doctors about it. They all said it was dyspepsia, and for dyspepsia I was treated by various doctors in different places, and took all the patent medicines I could hear of that claimed to be a cure for dyspepsia. But I continued to grow gradually worse for four years. Then I began to have pain in my back and legs and became conscious that my legs were getting weak and my step unsteady, and then I staggered when I walked. Having received no benefit from the use of patent medicines, and feeling that I was constantly growing worse, I then, upon advice, began the use of electric belts, pads and all the many different kinds of electric appliances I could hear of, and spent hundreds of dollars for them, but they did me no good." (Here Mr. Quant showed the Journal reporter an electric suit of underwear for which he paid $124.) "In the fall of 1888 the doctors advised a change of climate, so I went to Atlanta, Ga., and acted as agent for the Estey Organ Company. While there I took a thorough electric treatment, but it only seemed to aggravate my disease, and the only relief I could get from the sharp and distressing pains was to take morphine. The pain was so intense at times that it seemed as though I could not stand it, and I almost longed for death as the only certain relief. In September of 1888 my legs gave out entirely, and my left eye was drawn to one side, so that I had double sight and was dizzy. My trouble so affected my whole nervous system that I had to give up business. Then I returned to New York and went to the Roosevelt Hospital, where for four months I was treated by specialists and they pronounced my case locomotor ataxia and incurable. After I had been under treatment of Prof. Starr and Dr. Ware for four months, they told me they had done all they could for me. Then I went to the New York hospital on Fifteenth street, where, upon examination, they said I was incurable and would not take me in. At the Presbyterian hospital they examined me and told me the same thing. In March, 1890, I was taken to St. Peter's hospital in Albany, where Prof. H. H. Hun frankly told my wife my case was hopeless; that he could do nothing for me, and that she had better take me back home and save my money. But I wanted to make a trial of Prof. Hun's famous skill, and I remained under his treatment for nine weeks, but secured no benefit. All this time I had been growing worse. I had become entirely paralyzed from my waist down and had partly lost control of my hands. The pain was terrible; my legs felt as though they were freezing and my stomach would not retain food, and I fell away to 120 pounds. In the Albany hospital they put seventeen big burns on my back one day with red-hot irons, and after a few days they put fourteen more burns on and treated me with electricity, but I got worse rather than better; lost control of my bowels and water, and upon advice of the doctor, who said there was no hope for me, I was brought home, where it was thought that death would soon come to relieve me of my sufferings. Last September, while in this helpless and suffering condition, a friend of mine in Hamilton, Ont., called my attention to the statement of one John Marshall, whose case had been similar to my own, and who had been cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"In this case Mr. Marshall, who is a prominent member of the Royal Templars of Temperance, had after four years of constant treatment by the most eminent Canadian physicians been pronounced incurable, and was paid the $1,000 total disability claim allowed by the order in such cases. Some months after Mr. Marshall began a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking some 15 boxes was fully restored to health.

"I thought I would try them, and my wife sent for two boxes of the pills and I took them according to the directions given on the wrapper in each box. For the first few days the cold baths were pretty severe, as I was so very weak, but I continued to follow instructions as to taking the pills and treatment, and even before I had used up the two boxes of pills I began to feel beneficial effects from them. My pains were not so bad; I felt warmer; my head felt better; my food began to relish and agree with me; I could straighten up; the feeling began to come back into my limbs; I began to be able to get about on crutches; my eye came back again as good as ever, and now, after the use of eight boxes of the pills—at a cost of $4—see!—I can with the help of a cane only, walk all about the house and yard, can saw wood, and on pleasant days I walk down town. My stomach trouble is gone; I have gained ten pounds; I feel like a new man, and when the spring opens I expect to be able to renew my organ and piano agency. I cannot speak in too high terms of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, as I know they saved my life after all the doctors had given me up as incurable."

Other citizens of Galway, seeing the wonderful cure of Mr. Quant by the Pink Pills for Pale People, are using them. Frederick Sexton, a sufferer from rheumatism, said he was finding great benefit from their use, and Mr. Schultz, who had suffered from chronic dysentery for years, said he had taken two boxes of the pills and was already cured.

Mr. Quant had also tried faith cure, with experts of that treatment in Albany and Greenville, S. C., but with no beneficial results.

A number of the more prominent citizens of Galway, as Rev. C. E. Herbert, of the Presbyterian Church; Prof. Jas. E. Kelly, principal of the academy; John P. and Harvey Crouch, and Frank and Edward Willard, merchants, and many others to whom Mr. Quant and his so miraculous cure by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are well known, were pleased to have the opportunity of bearing testimony to the high character of Mr. Quant, and of verifying the story of his recovery from the terrible affliction from which he had for so long a time been a sufferer.

Truly, the duty of the physician is not to save life, but to heal disease.

The remarkable result from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the case of Mr. Quant, induced the reporter to make further inquiries concerning them, and he ascertained that they are not a patent medicine in the sense in which that term is generally used, but a highly scientific preparation, the result of years of study and careful experiment. They have no rival as a blood builder and nerve restorer, and have met with unparalleled success in the treatment of such diseases as paralysis, rheumatism, sciatica, St. Vitus' dance, palpitation of the heart, that tired feeling which affects so many, and all diseases depending upon a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale or sallow cheeks. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

On further inquiry the writer found that these pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., and Morristown, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in bulk by the hundred) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, from either addresses. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

IN A CHICAGO HOTEL.

It Was Full of Magnificent Distances to Bother Country Guests.

He was from a country town and stopped at the Grand Pacific Hotel, and was assigned to a commodious inside room in the northwest corner of the house, near La Salle street. He was not satisfied. The noise and rattle and tumult of the streets reached him and made him yearn to look out on the busy scene whence they came. The strokes of the big Board of Trade clock resounded through the corridors, and this young man desired to gaze on the tower where the clanging bell hangs. So he went to the office, sought Sam Parker and spoke thus:

"Say, mister, I don't like that room you gave me. I can't see anything but the walls of a big building and some sort of a place with a glass floor." He meant the court in the center of the hotel.

"Why, cert'nly," said the obliging, accommodating Parker. "What kind of a room would you like?"

"Oh, I'm not particular. Anything where I can see something outdoors."

"Want a bath with it?"

"Well, I dunno. I had a good wash just before leaving St. Louis, and——"

"I mean do you wish a room with a bath-room attached?"

"Oh, I don't care if it's next to a bath-room. I won't kick about that, so's there don't too many people have to go through my room to the bath-room."

"How would a nice room around here on the Clark street front suit you?"

"First-rate."

"Front, change the gentleman from 203 to 276."

"How far apart are these rooms?" quiried the St. Louis man anxiously.

"About two dollars and a half," replied Sam.

"I mean how far in distance. How far will I have to carry my valise?"

"Just about two blocks," said Sam, making a mental survey and topographical plat of the second floor of the Grand Pacific.

"Great gosh all hemlock! I want to stay in the hotel," protested the man from the bridge.

"Oh, you can walk two blocks without getting out of this house," said Mr. Parker. "If you get lost tell your troubles to a policeman."—Chicago Post.

ZEYNA EL ZEGAL

THE ROMANCE OF A HAUNTED HOUSE.

BY HOMER P. BRANCH

[COPYRIGHTED BY THE AUTHOR, 1890.]

With this the two forms dissolved back into invisibility. The young man could have been none other than old Ben's master, and if that venerable black had been on hand he could have had the pleasure of embracing his real "massa" instead of a person who resembled him.

I went up stairs, and seeing the door of one of the forbidden rooms ajar, I entered. Upon the floor in the corner of this room stood a small iron safe with its door partly open. Pulling this door wide upon its hinges I saw within a bunch of papers. Drawing this forth a glance satisfied me that it was the last will and testament and other papers of the late Montinni Securing these, I turned to withdraw from the room, when I was startled by a slight rustle of the gauze curtain around the couch, for the room was a bedchamber. I stood looking at it for a moment, and was turning away again, when the curtain was drawn aside by invisible means There, stretched upon the couch, prone and rigid, the bed for a bier, lay the body of Senor Montinni, in as perfect a state of preservation as if it had been embalmed that morning. The curtain fell back to its natural rest and I walked out of the room. When I reached the hall the door closed, seemingly of its own accord, and I heard the key turn in the rusty old lock.

CHAPTER X.

AT THE SICK MAN'S BEDSIDE.

I went down-stairs, after the adventure described in the previous chapter, and stepped into the sick man's room to give a few words of cheer. He put out his hand feebly to me, and taking it in mine I sat down by his side His deep-sunken eyes and wan, sallow look; the damp upon his lips, scalding and parching the tender skin, and the hot steam that came forth as breath, indicated that dread disease of the South, yellow fever.

Friend Burton, thought I, thou art near to the sleep that knows no waking, but which gives to such as thee the everlasting dream of paradise. Thy spirit will break its earthly bounds to wander unrestrained in those celestial regions which it has heretofore seen but in imagination. Thy fair Zeyna and thyself will end thy unhappy mundane courtship at the altar of the Supreme Thy wedding march will be down the vistas of the Happy Land, where thou needst not seek surcease of sorrow, for naught but joy is there.

"Hal," said Burton, "I have been telling mother that you would be a son to her when I am gone You will cherish her for my sake, won't you, Hal?" I assured him that, so far as I was able, I would help and be a friend to his mother.

Then his mind began to wander in delirium, a peculiarity of his disease, and in a rambling way he told how disappointed he was when he came to the spiritual festival, where all the people who have been connected with the proprietorship of the estate were to be, and found that his Zeyna was not of the throng; how he had many and many times come and dwelt for weeks in the old house, alone in its awful dullness, that he might catch but a glimpse of her, but all in vain until he had seen her in the library the night before; how Montinni had appeared to him when I was sick in the hospital, and told him that I was to work out the problem of the haunted house; how his almost constant habitation among supernatural beings had cast a shade of the supernatural over himself, so that he seemed unlike his fellow-mortals, and was often the object of wonderment and dismay to superstitious people; how he sometimes questioned himself as to his destiny, as to the niche he was to fill in the grand sum of the Creator's handiwork, as to whether he was really a mortal, or a spirit apparently clothed in flesh; how his tastes and thoughts so differed with those of others that he mingled not among men, but sought the grand and beautiful scenes of Nature and smothered in golden reaches of imagination the hankering grief for his loved one. Then his worrying delirium seemed to pass away, and he straightened down upon the couch and laid quite still for several hours, during which time I prepared a letter to Montinni's heir, to be sent to him to Venice by telegraph and cable.

CHAPTER XI.

THE LAWYER'S GHOST.

The morning sun smiled placidly through the fast evaporating fog that a light breeze was lifting from its night's rest upon the bosom of the bayou, and the usual solumn hush reigned about the deserted old house. Four days had elapsed since the arrival of the Senora Arold. These four days were uneventful in interest. Dull monotonous days they were, of watching by the sick man's bedside and examining legal documents belonging to the estate. Upon the morning in question Old Ben had come noiselessly to the door and handed in a sealed envelope directed to me. It contained a telegram from Montinni's heir, stating that he would most graciously submit to my demands in behalf of the Senora Arold, and that he would ship for New Orleans by the steamer Don Juan, due at that port in fourteen days. After absorbing this intelligence I went to Burton's room, and, after his mother had withdrawn for a moment, laid the whole matter before him. The sick man raised himself to a sitting posture in the bed and extending his hand for a glad shake, said, with a pleasant smile upon his lips: "Hal, I'm the happiest man in the world, although I am on my death bed. My only trouble was about mother. Now I know that she will be able to live comfortably." He laid down again and I called his mother back, so that I could retire and think matters over. I always like to saunter about when in a reflective mood, and upon this occasion I went out and walked around the shade and fruit trees that surrounded the house.

After a half hour of walking and thinking I turned toward the house when I felt a touch upon my arm, and upon turning around saw a dapper little gentleman, who tipped his bright silk tile to me jauntily and said:

"This is Senor Mala, I believe. Well, business is business, whether it's a wholesale funeral or a chattel mortgage. To be candid with you, I am a ghost—a downright spook—but you've seen plenty of them lately, so you won't be scared. I was formerly the lawyer who settled all the little legal quibbles arising on this estate. The worthy proprietors, who are in another state—or rather territory—of existance, want a little business done It will perhaps be agreeable to you to learn that there are five corpses up stairs that need to be interred down there in the burying ground. They are those of El Muza and wife, El Zegal and wife, and Montinni. The whole family died of the yellow fever epidemic some years ago, myself among the rest, as I came down with the disease while up here on business. Nearly all of us were buried, but we were dropping off so fast the niggers all got scared and ran away, leaving the persons whose names I have mentioned to pass away in a lonesome sort of style that was very unpleasant to the participants. The bodies were laid out and embalmed by the spirits that had inhabited them in their original existence. The bodies have been here ever since, and things were left in such a dire state that we have had to stay around here and guard the place and frighten people away and resort to all manner of schemes to preserve the secret of our dead all these years. Until we found you we knew of no medium that we could consult with to the end of getting our dead taken care of and the estate straightened up. As soon as these remains are buried the house ceases to be haunted. Old Ben can dig the graves, and with your aid as a medium we can do everything all right. Have the graves and caskets ready by to-morrow night at twelve o'clock. We'd have buried these bodies long ago, but it was impossible for spirits to dig in the ground. Excuse me if I haven't handled this subject quite so delicately as you mortals customarily do. We of the spirit world attach no romance or sanctity to the matter of death. With us it is something that has past, and therefore of little consequence. Good day."

CHAPTER XII.

THE WEIRD FUNERAL.

Five rusty-hinged doors swung creaking open on the north side of the old hall up stairs, and shadowy forms in sable covering floated to and fro in the rooms of mystery.

In each room a pale corpse lay still and cold upon the beir awaiting to be deposited in the dark casket that sat so grimly beside.

No tear of sorrow came to call for sympathy at this weird funeral The mourners wore happy smiles and spoke cheerful words, for they were not the frail beings known as mortals. Each and all had undergone the earthly death, and the spirits of the corpses then under charge were present with the throng. El Zegal and his wife, whom I had not seen before, came forward from the crowd, greeted me kindly, and thanked me for my solicitude in behalf of their daughter and her lover. They had done wrong in parting the two, but earthly judgment is ever apt to err. All sorrow between them would soon be over. El Muza and his wife also came to me and spoke gladly of the means which were bringing about a reconciliation between them and their eldest daughter, and were pleased at the provisions being made for her maintainance.

Burton and the Senora knew nothing of the arrangements going on up-stairs, and were both sound asleep when midnight had arrived. Precisely at 12 o'clock the spectral procession filed silently out of the old house, and bearing the coffined dead wended its way to the cemetery in the valley.

Old Ben had performed his work well; the five graves were ready. Down into them the caskets were lowered, and the startling, hollow sound of the falling dirt as the faithful old negro plied the shovel, looking around dazed and scared upon the phantom crowd, awoke the solemn echoes of the night.

When all was done, the Senor Montinni stepped forward and warmly thanked us for our help, assuring us that we would not lack in reward; then bade us good night, and disappeared with all the rest.

It had been dark and cloudy, but as Old Ben and I turned to go from the spot the clouds in the zenith broke away as if cut in twain, and the full round moon and twinkling stars illumined the whole landscape round, and revealed to us that the new-made graves gave no sign of fresh earth, but were covered with moss and grass growing flowers. Old Ben looked curiously at me when he had noticed this, and said: "Massa, dis am queeah," I answered: "I like it; it is well."

CHAPTER XIII.

THE MYSTIC MARRIAGE.

The Villa Montinni was a haunted house no more. Every door and window was open, and the pleasant air and sunshine wandered through the house as if searching out the gloomy corners to brighten and cheer them up.

There was one sad shadow though that air and sunshine couldn't brighten up. The shadow of death was resting on the brow of the widow's son. Not that he saw it, for he looked beyond to a scene brighter than poor earthly sunshine; but the mother, she saw and felt that cloud.

It was in the fore part of the day and I had sat at the head of his couch for some hours keeping the cool, damp cloths upon his brow, that they might fill as much as possible the grateful mission of soothing the fever in the brain. His mother sat upon the couch by his side holding both his hands in hers and watching every movement of his pale thin lips as each breath went forth upon its last mission. He had not spoken for some time, and we were almost startled when his feeble voice gently broke silence with the exclamation: "Mother, Hal, see!" He had raised his head from the pillow and was pointing toward the large folding doors at the end of the hall. We followed his direction and as we gazed the great doors swung abroad, and a breath of flowers floated in; then gentle music, such as we hear in dreams, came whispering along the air as if it were too holy-glad to speak its happiness aloud.

A haze of perfumed atmosphere filled the room, lighting it with a phosphorescent glow that rendered delicately throughout the rainbow's almost inimitable tints. "She comes, mother," whispered Burton, as he raised still higher, and stepping upon opposite sides of the couch we held the pillows to his head.

"Senora," said I, "the hour is here, 'the spirit and the bride say come.'"

A bright and happy light came to his eyes as heard me say this, and he stretched out one hand to me. He turned his face toward his mother that she might take the farewell kiss, and as he did so the fairy vision floated in that was to bear his soul away upon its upward flight. We saw not the death gasp, we heard no moan, for the perfumed, rainbow-tinted vapor settled dense about the couch, and the music of an angel host swelled sweetly in, to charm away the anguish of that last moment. We knew the soul had left its earthly house, the body, for there under an archway festooned with roses and hung with dreamy drapery we saw standing, smiling happily upon each other, the spirit forms of the lovely Zeyna and noble Burton Arold, surrounded by the host of angels and spirits fair that had glided so beautifully through that very room on the night of mystic revelry.

Seemingly in obedience to a motion from Burton, the fair Zeyna bent forward and kissed the brow of the mother, whose saintlike beauty as she gazed upon the happiness of her son was a true representation of her kindness of heart, inexpressible in its holy significance. This fond salutation done, the lovers joined in spiritual marriage floated out with their angel escorts, and up to the realms that knew no death or shadow.

CHAPTER XIV.

CONCLUSION.

It is fit to end this story now, as I have followed the two chief characters to the end of my knowledge of them; but there are a few things left in connection with the haunted house of which the reader may demand to know as to the conclusion of affairs concerning my mission there. They can be told in a few words. The legal papers of the estate were in a bad plight. I employed an honorable and competent attorney to help me straighten them out and get them in order. At the end of my stipulated time I opened the roll of parchment which had been placed in my charge by the phantom lady, and found that it contained a will bequeathing to El Muza or his heirs the disposal of a one-eighth portion of an estate near Madrid, Spain. The Senora had been disinherited by her father, but the attorney, who was a good Spanish scholar, upon looking the matter up, found that in Spain a man cannot without action of the Government disinherit the last heir in his legitimate family line, in a matter wherein any considerable real estate is concerned. We communicated with our minister plenipotentiary at Madrid concerning the matter, fully establishing the Senora's identity. We received answer that the property, along with the whole estate to which it belonged, was held by the crown in default of many years' taxes due, but if the Senora would throw off forty per cent. of her claim she could at any time demand and get the balance, which would yield her an ample competency for life. A settlement was soon effected and the Senora given her portion.

The Don Juan landed in New Orleans near the time expected, and Montinni's heir came up to see his property. He was a gentleman and a business man, and we soon settled everything satisfactorily. The young man had not been there a week before he had lumber upon the grounds, and carpenters, masons, and painters fixing over the old house. Somewhere or other he picked up an energetic farmer and installed him as overseer, and in less than two months the erstwhile haunted villa and weed-grown plantation was all bustle and life.

The Senora has a fine home at the villa, and kind friends and attendants among whom to spend her declining years Her only care is to attend to two vine-hung graves down in the valley burying ground, and her joy is to make her presence a pleasure in time of health and a comfort in time of illness to every tenant of the place, and to meditate upon the time in the future life when she will be with her boy and his spirit bride.

[THE END.]

OSTRICH HATCHING.

The Ostrich Lays the Egg, the Sun Does the Rest Theory Exploded.

It is not true that the ostrich in its native state in Africa leaves its eggs to be hatched by the heat of the sun and the warm sands on which they lie. There is not a word of truth in such a generally believed statement. The ostrich egg from the time it is laid until incubation is complete requires daily attention. The idea that it is hatched in the sand by the heat of the sun is nonsense. That notion comes from the fact that the bird, being very timid, runs away on the approach of any creature it conceives to be a foe, and before going usually rakes the sand up around and over the nest to retain the heat which the eggs have received from its body, and the discovery, by unscientific men, of such deserted nests nearly hatched out has further strengthened the fallacy. But the fact is that the ostrich egg requires turning daily during incubation, which lasts forty-two days; requires slight moisture, which it receives from contact with the bird's body, and requires ventilation, which the bird provides for by standing over the nest and turning its body about to shade the eggs from the sun. It has also been found by those in charge of ostrich farms that a gradual decrease in the temperature of the eggs is also imperative. For the first two weeks it is 104 degrees Fahrenheit; for the third week, 102 degrees; fourth, 100 degrees; fifth, 98 degrees; sixth, 96 degrees. This is provided by nature in the steadily falling temperature of the bird's body, due to the receipt of less nourishment than at other times, and in the incubator it must be looked after by careful attendants. Now, does anybody suppose that all these conditions can be met by simply heaping the eggs with sand? Yet the ostrich watches all these points. The male does most of the hatching—sitting on his nest sixteen hours out of the twenty-four—and has been known to hold his post for twenty hours when the hen refused to come and relieve him. And when the hen leaves the nest before her turn comes to seek food, the male will at once take her place, although she does not show the same solicitude when by any chance he deserts the eggs. And, strangely enough, though the ostrich often resents the invasion of his corral by strangers at other times than during incubation, he will allow any one to approach the nest while he is on guard without taking the slightest offense. It is a curiosity to watch him assist the hatching-out process. As soon as he sees the beak or toe sticking through the shell he will take the egg up by the protruding bill or foot, lift it two or three feet, and drop it on the ground until it breaks. He has been seen to release two chicks at once by dropping one egg upon the other in this way. The ostrich as a bird does not stand high in the scale of general intelligence. The ratio of the paroquet's brain to his entire bulk is as 1 to 48; that of the eagle as 1 to 60, and that of the ostrich as 1 to 1,200. Yet it takes little observation of the male and female ostrich about their nest to see the strength of their propagative instinct, and to be astonished at their care of their eggs. How such absurd stories as this one of hot-sand hatching can get into general circulation is one of the curiosities of human credulity.

The Dark Continent.

The population of Africa, according to the latest and most reliable estimates, is given at 163,000,000, or fourteen inhabitants to the square mile, while the population of the three Americas is given at 121,713,000, or eight inhabitants to the square mile. It must be remembered that while explorers tell us of large districts in Africa that are scantly peopled, there are also vast regions densely populated of which but few persons have ever heard. It may in fact be said that only the fringe of the Dark Continent has as yet been reached after 1,000 years of intermittent exploration.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Coroner's Inquest.

Coroner Miser has kindly furnished us his finding in the late murder case at Butler. It reads:

I, Lafayette D. Miser, coroner of DeKalb county, State of Indiana, made presentment that I have held an inquest over the dead body of Charles Tanner, on the 8th day of March, 1892, and upon the day following, said deceased being supposed to have come to his death by violence; that after viewing the body, I proceeded to take testimony as to how and in what manner said deceased came to his death; that witnesses were summoned and by me sworn, and their testimony reduced to writing and signed by them respectively, which testimony is hereto attached and made a part of this report; that a post mortem examination of the remains was also held on the 8th day of March, 1892, presided over by Doctors Fred. W. Fanning and W. P. Carpenter, whose report is hereto attached and made a part hereof; that after so viewing the body, hearing said evidence and making all inquiry deemed necessary, I do find:

That said Tanner was a person of color, about five feet, ten inches high, weighing about one hundred and sixty pounds, and that he was about thirty-four years of age; that his home was in Monroe, Georgia, and that he leaves a father Joseph Tanner, a sister, Violet Brown, and a daughter, Millie Tanner, and all residing at said town of Monroe, Georgia; that said decedent left no estate, either in DeKalb county, Indiana, or elsewhere; that said decedent died on the 7th day of March, 1892, from the effects of a blow inflicted with a billiard cue on the right side of his head, on the 4th day of March, 1892, in the saloon of one George Dunn, in the town of Butler, in said DeKalb county, by one William H Evins, and I do recommend that said William H. Evins be held to answer the charge thereof. Given under my hand this the 10th day of March, 1892.

LAFAYETTE D. MISER,
Coroner of DeKalb Co.

The Coming Entertainment.

The Indianapolis News, of Feb. 26, says:

"There is everything to commend in the entertainment given by the McGibeny family at English's last night. They are all accomplished musicians and their performances are sufficiently varied to make them most enjoyable. Three generations are represented in the fourteen people who constitute the family. The ladies dress handsomely and with becoming taste, and they sing excellently. Several of them possess magnificent voices, highly cultivated. There is also a male quartet, headed by the senior McGibeny, of superior powers and training. The entire family also play instrumental music of all kinds, and in the band pieces, a little miss, hardly larger than the drumstick which she handles so deftly, is the drum major. It is an enjoyable and choice entertainment given; nothing dull or stupid about it. The audience last night was enthusiastic in appreciation, as evidenced by frequent and prolonged recalls. Throughout the program was a delightful one to music lovers and of a high standard. Another entertainment will be given to-night, and there will be two performances to-morrow."

"The finest musical entertainment ever given in this city was that of the McGibeny Family at Wagner's Opera House last night.—Bradford, (Pa) Daily Era"

"The wonderful McGibeny Family have come. Were seen last evening, by one of the largest crowds ever gathered in Lincoln Hall, and were pronounced a grand success.—National Republican, (Washington, D. C.)"

PROHIBITIONISTS and the Alliance people will probably unite on a state ticket in Indiana.

RICH vein of copper found near Ashland, Wisc. We suppose republican papers will be quoting this find as the result of the McKinley law, and saying it would be richer had the tariff been put still higher.

WHAT right has the government to pay out the public money, we the people have paid into the treasury, to a half dozen wealthy sugar planters, or as many wealthy ship owners?

THE present legislation of Ohio, is republican, and they are trying to raise the salary of the members from $1,200 to $2,000 a year. And yet there are those who claim that republicans are friends of the taxpayers.

S. M. FOSTER and Mont Hamilton of Ft. Wayne, have both written letters friendly to Cleveland. Both, we are told, want to be delegate to Chicago. As we really believe, the feeling in the district is for Cleveland, those who desire to go, will no doubt take the same view.

HEAVY snow storms all over the north west last Wednesday and Thursday, that lasted several days, with zero weather. Trains abandoned in some instances, and at some points the storm did great damage to property and to life. In northern Indiana, we got a little, but as usual, it had spent its force before it reached us.

THE Press admits that in the sugar tariff "the consumer pays the duty," and that in all "tariff for revenue, the consumer pays," and then adds that "articles not produced in this country should be put on the free list." Well, the democrats are asking to have wool put on the free list, because the kind we import is not produced to any great extent here. But republicans like the Press, object. It is evident they don't know what they are talking of.

THE Columbia City Post of last week has a very dignified, sensible, and above all things reasonable leader on the present status of the congressional question. It asks Allen county to assist them to nominate a candidate for congress, in return for a multitude of similar favors that Whitley has done for Allen county men for many years past. It makes a strong case, and its arguments are unanswerable. If Allen county can be made to feel the force of reasoning and justice, McNagny will be the next candidate. He is certainly in the lead in DeKalb county.

THE seal fishing question is now in a worse shape than ever. Blaine and Harrison don't seem to be able to deal with the question. Last year, this country and Great Britian agreed to make both parties quit sealing till the matter was settled. It is not settled yet, but Great Britian refuses to help stop sealing any longer. Seal are likely to go the way of the buffaloes. In the meantime a treaty has been signed to leave the matter of American rights to a board of arbitration consisting of two men selected by us, two by Great Britian, and one each selected by France, Italy and Sweden. Under Cleveland we did not have to ask what our rights were in Bering Sea. We bought certain rights of Russia, when we got Alaska. If Russia had no rights to sell us, let some nation with a better claim, step up and say so, and prove their claim. Why should we call in arbitrators to tell us what rights we bought of Russia? Voorhees calls such diplomacy "bulging diplomacy."

THE state meeting of republicans at Indianapolis last week, to select the four state delegates at large to the national convention, and the four alternates was no more harmonious than the district meeting at Auburn. The Allen county delegation, headed by Capt. White and R. T. McDonald, again objected to the resolution instructing for Harrison, but as before, were sat down on. They finally refused to have anything to do in the meeting. The resolutions had spoken of the great things Harrison had done, but Capt. White asked "What has Harrison done? How has it been with the soldiers? We were promised a service pension bill. What did the president do? He recommend a bill that is an insult to every soldier in the country. It is a pauper's bill." After coming home, Capt. White said "Harrison's renomination will be a fatal blow to the republican party. He has kicked too many men during his administration." As matters now stand, Harrison will lose many votes in Allen county.

Taffy for Auburn.

The Steuben Republican last week had a kind word for our little city. The editor had evidently been attracted here by the "late unpleasant" republican convention but still had time to note the signs of a lively town. He says:

"Our neighboring town of Auburn has improved very much in appearance during the past few years. The town has many nice stores, that owned by Mr. Harter being a model for beauty and convenience."

"Auburn has just the kind of a passenger depot that is needed in Angola. The one we now have is far too small for the needs of the public.

Democratic Committee Meeting.

The meeting was held here Saturday, March 12, as had been announced. It was nearly two p. m., when the committee and many other interested democrats were called to order in their present committee room in the front of the new Shaffer building. Chairman Erick explained the object of the meeting and had the secretary, pro tem, Mr. Barns, read the call. The townships, were then called, and responded as follows, except in case of a few not present:

Butler township, Henry L. Houser; Jackson, South, Thomas McNamara; Jackson, North, Henry Hines; Concord, South, John Moody; Concord East, J. R. Culbertson; Concord West, J. W. May; Newville, Wm. Seely; Stafford, Henry Grube; Wilmington No. 1, A. L. Gengnagle; Wilmington No. 2, D. Tomlinson; Wilmington No. 3, C. S. Stoy; Wilmington, No. 4, Daniel Tomlinson; Wilmington No. 5, John W. Boyle; Wilmington No. 6, W. Daniels; Union N. E., John Picker, E. Stafford; Union, N. W., I. N. Cool, John Groscop; Union, S. W., O. P. Myers, G. H. Oberholtzer; Union, S. E., C. A. Picker, D. T. Smith; Richland, N., M. F. Franks; Richland, S., Ira Goetchius; Fairfield, E., Frank Seiler; Fairfield, W., W. H. McGiffin; Smithfield, N., F. C. Waterman; Smithfield, S., Douglas Kelley; Franklin, E., Samuel Oberlin; Franklin, W., George McIntosh; Troy, A. J. Price; Keyser No. 1, Darius Haag; Keyser No. 2, Aaron Balliet; Keyser No. 3, Ted Kelham; Keyser No. 4, L. J. Gengler; Keyser No. 5, N. W. Blackburn; Keyser No. 6, W. J. Frederick; Grant, N. E., Ed. Wareham; Grant, W., W. H. Leas; Grant, S. E., O. P. Smith.

When the minutes of the last meeting were read, they were corrected on motion of N. Blackburn, so as to show that the executive committee should be selected at first meeting after the convention. Meeting then discussed the dates for holding caucuses, and in this, Blackburn, Cool, O. P. Smith, D. T. Smith, M. Franks, Frederick, Kelham, Leas and many others, took an active part. It was decided that townships as a whole should hold caucuses to select delegates to state and congressional conventions, but that precincts would have to make a separate selection for county convention, but both on the same day. The places for holding the caucuses, are:

The date for holding these caucuses, was then fixed by a vote, for Saturday, April 16, at 2 p. m. The date of the county convention was fixed at May 28. A vote as to the place of holding the county convention was taken by townships. Some townships were now absent, but the vote was:

Jackson,	2 votes for Auburn;
Concord,	3 " " "
Stafford,	1 " " "
Wilmington,	6 " " Butler;
Union,	4 " " Auburn;
Richland,	½ vote each for Auburn, Butler, Waterloo and Garrett;
Smithfield,	2 votes for Butler;
Franklin,	2 " " "
Keyser,	6 " " "
Grant,	3 votes for Waterloo.

Totals.

Butler,	16½;
Auburn,	10½;
Waterloo,	3½;
Garrett,	½.
	31

It had been decided that the successful town must have a majority over all, and that if more than one ballot was taken, the one lowest on the list should be dropped. Butler was the successful town, and the convention will be held there. The division of delegates to the several precincts will be made by the Chairman at an early date, and then he will issue the formal call. Meeting then adjourned to meet again on call of the Chairman.

THE Dispatch keeps objecting to the raise in the state tax levy, from 12 to 18 cents on the hundred dollars. Gov. Hovey signed the bill, and the only objection he had to it, was that it was not put up to 25 cents, instead of 18. If the Dispatch knows of this, then it is dishonest when it tries to keep its readers in ignorance.

Some New Names.

A few weeks ago we spoke of several names as likely to come before the democratic county convention for the various offices. Since then, a few others have been talked up, though we have no authority to speak for all. For surveyor, Cal. VanAuken and Frank Scholes are mentioned. For senator for the two counties of DeKalb and Noble, W. H Leas and Freeman Kelley are spoken of. For coroner, the present officer, L. D. Miser will be a candidate, probable. He says he is not a candidate for sheriff, never having given anyone cause to mention his name in that connection.

Parties have been at Hudson lately, to get options on all the farms near there, as they expect it will be made a division and the shops located there. The contracts bind the farm owners to sell to the company at a given price, say $80 an acre, if the shops are located there. But if not located, then the contract is void It is believed the shops will be on the level land east of the village.

It is folly to suppose that a manufactory could long stand the pressure of public criticism or brave the surging tide of disapproving sentiment, if the stock manufactured was not made from the best materials. Steuben Republican; Hon A. W Hendry shipped last week to Chicago twenty four sticks of timber taken from his woods south of town, to be exhibited in the forestry building in Jackson park at the world's fair. These sticks vary in length from six to twenty five feet, and in diameter from six to eighteen inches The longer ones are designed for columns about the building while the shorter ones are used for rustic work at the top of the columns as a finish or rustic work. They are all left just as they were when taken from the tree including bark and moss, and to preserve these uninjured Mr. Hendry caused them to be carefully wrapped in prairie hay from end to end. Similar timber will be furnished by all the states and territories to the union for the forestry building, the object being to represent the timber of the entire country in its natural state as nearly as possible.

Their burning at the stake a black man accused of a crime, but neither tried nor convicted by any form of a court, is a shame to the civilization of the age. If there is any State in the Union which honest people should avoid it is Arkansas.

WHEN the English royal family begins to doubt the loyalty of the people in any part of the kingdom, some member is sent at once to be present at a ball, launch a ship, open a hospital or appear at a reception. Possibly this accounts for the expected visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada. It takes a pretty strong radical to resist the blandishments of a prince.

THE amount of money earned by Mackenzie during his thirty years of practice must have been very large. Within a very few years of his commencing practice (in 1862) he was making some £5,000 a year, and his income rapidly increased as his reputation spread, till about 1875 he touched high-water mark with "takings" of from £12,000 to £15,000 a year—an enormous figure for a practice the bulk of which consisted of guinea fees.

THE succulent oyster is said to be in danger of extinction owing to the wasteful destruction of the oyster beds. Must the oyster go, as the elephant is going and the buffalo has gone? There are millions of acres in Mississippi Sound where the finest oysters of the world grow. Not one-hundredth part of the ground is occupied, but it is big enough to produce oysters for all the world. The Biloxi oyster in size and flavor is equal to any ever produced.

IF the Prince of Wales is really going to honor us with a visit, Col. John Laurence Sullivan and Ward McAllister, as personal friends of England's prospective ruler, should at once get together and prepare plans and specifications for an entertainment worthy of so distinguished a guest. The Colonel can arrange the outlines, and his friend McAllister supply all the filigree work. Chances are that this would bring Mr. Sullivan into a new ring and increase the New York peerage to 401.

IT is not surprising that throughout Europe and in America among well-informed persons great concern is felt for the health of Pope Leo XIII. Among Protestants scarcely less than among Catholics he is respected and beloved; and the older he grows the greater and better he seems. He is the friend of republican France, and he loves America, often speaks of her people, and always kindly. His insight is remarkable. So wise and so benevolent, so sincere in purpose and so charming in manner, his death would not only be a loss to the Catholic Church but also to the world.

THE czar is much incensed because Count Tolstoi wrote a letter descriptive of the horrors of the famine, which has been published in many European journals. As a punishment the ruler of the starving nation has ordered Tolstoi to forsake his work amid the famished ones and retire to his estate. The population of Russia is, in round numbers, 110,000,000. There is one czar, supported by an army of 1,700,000 men. Perhaps it would be the wiser course for other peoples of the earth, no matter how sympathetic or how benevolent their impulses, to withhold all assistance from the stricken people of Russia until famine and suffering shall prompt them to rise in their might and overthrow and grind into the dust the execrable rule that is a blot upon modern civilization.

THE Chicago Tribune sounds a note of warning which school officials all over the land would do well to heed. The condition of affairs is not so aggravated in the district as in the village high school; but in the district schools there is almost invariably to be found a jumbled, poorly arranged course of study, combined too frequently with the alleged teaching of some simpering miss of sixteen or seventeen summers, which makes futile the efforts and expenditures of the patrons of the schools. The Tribune says: "Here are two nice, easy little problems taken at random from one of the arithmetics which boys and girls 8, 10 and 12 years of age are studying in the schools of this city: How much money must a man invest in United States 6's at 111, when gold is quoted at 110½, in order to have a dividend of $2,210 semi-annually? Henry Ivison, through his New York broker, invested a certain sum in New York 6's at 107½ and twice the amount in United States 5's at 98½, brokerage in each case being one-half per cent. His income from both sources was $3,348. What was the amount invested in each? Any experienced bank cashier, broker or practical accountant can solve these problems, and, of course, a boy 10 years old ought to be able to do the same—else why does he go to school? By all means let a few more new studies, with now and then an important fad for a side-dish, be added to the common school course. The children have too a easytime.

IN all European countries creosoted wood is used, wherever possible, on account of its lasting so long. The process of creosoting is not an expensive one, and in view of the excessive use of wood in mines it is suggested that it would be economy for all collieries to use only creosoted timber in permanent haulage roads, shaftways, stairways, etc., and in the case of the larger companies it would pay to secure the right, and erect creosoting works of their own.

OPTICIANS and oculists say that belfry and steeple clocks are absolutely useless to at least a third of those for whose benefit they are set up. In many instances such defect of the eyes is unsuspected in children, and probably hundreds of children earn at school a reputation for stupidity when not intellect but the eye is at fault.

A Costly Dog.

Farmer Hardin and Lawyer McKinney, of Moberly, Mo., went to law over a 10-cent dog. The farmer lost the suit, and also lost over $100 in costs.

BAD BLIZZARDS RAGED.

TERRIBLE STORMS REPORTED IN MANY STATES.

Snow-Laden Hurricanes Sweep Over a Vast Territory, Blowing Down Houses, Blockading Railways, and Paralyzing Business—Loss of Life Feared.

Worse than That of '88.

The worst blizzard known since Jan. 12, 1888, set in through the Northwest Wednesday. Reports received indicate that much damage to property has been inflicted, great suffering caused, and a considerable loss of life experienced, while later and fuller reports may make the situation so much worse that its horrors will exceed that of the terrible storm of four years ago. Minnesota and North Dakota seem to have been the worst sufferers from the blizzard, while heavy snow, accompanied by high winds, fell in Wisconsin, and Iowa felt the effect of a severe blow. Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois and Michigan were also affected to a greater or less degree.

A dispatch sent out from St. Paul says: Minnesota is the center of a blizzard which has not been equaled in years. A furious storm of snow and wind traveled from the region of Calgary, a distance of over twelve hundred miles, reaching Minnesota in the night. The storm extends over a vast stretch of country, and came upon Minnesota so unexpectedly and with such terrific force that it has fairly stunned the State, and business pertaining to outdoors is absolutely suspended. For ten days the weather had been balmy and springlike. Not a vestige of snow was on Minnesota soil, and everywhere farmers were preparing for spring seeding. In the cities storm-sash had been taken down, furnaces were banked, and spring house-cleaning was in progress. A warm rain began falling during the night, and toward midnight a strong breeze sprang up that had increased to a gale by daylight. It changed the rain to snow and sleet and drove it furiously before it at an increasing velocity. By the time day had dawned a full-fledged blizzard extended from the western limits of the State over into Wisconsin and south through Iowa. The mercury fell rapidly, and the snow was frozen into particles like sand, which were driven at a velocity of fifty miles an hour. Owing to the suddenness of the storm it is feared that many lives have been lost in North Dakota, as the conditions were the same as those which preceded the great blizzard of a few years ago, when so many people perished.

The extent and damage of the storm are impossible to learn at this time, as wires are down on every line to the west and the balance of the State shut out entirely. All westward railroads report that station houses were unroofed along their lines and thus the wires were thrown down. Not a single western or southwestern road is attempting to keep up a schedule, and on most of them not a wheel is turning.

Previous blizzards in Minnesota have been confined to the prairie districts and have given St. Paul a wide birth, but this hurricane fell upon the capital with unexampled fury. Great drifts of snow were piled upon the streets and about doorways, blocking up traffic and making pedestrianism nearly impossible. The cable lines were operated only by constant use of plows and sweepers, and the electric lines were run only at irregular intervals, while many lines were wholly abandoned. The wind came in fierce gusts which could not be faced, and the streets one moment would be piled three feet deep in snow and the next swept clean. Every public school was closed, the first time for such a cause in fifteen years. The telephone and fire alarm wires were in constant difficulty and the telegraph companies accepted western business subject to indefinite delay.

At Grand Forks the storm was so severe that the hackmen refused business, and the large audience at the Metropolitan Theater was forced to remain until almost daylight before the storm abated sufficiently.

Fergus Falls, Minn., reports great damage done to roofs and glass, and that it is dangerous for men to cross the street.

At Winnipeg two houses were thrown down. The thermometer fell 60 degrees at Northfield in a few hours.

At Crookston several thousand dollars' worth of property was destroyed by the high winds. Plate-glass windows were smashed and goods ruined by snow and carried away by the wind. Residences all over the city were unroofed. Limbs of trees six inches in diameter were snapped off. All city and county offices and schools were closed, and all trains have been abandoned. Other places in the State report terrific winds and low temperature.

At Waterloo, Iowa, the storm reached its height at noon, tearing off many roofs, breaking plate-glass windows, and overturning carriages. Two hacks were overturned on the bridges and one man was seriously injured. No covered vehicles attempted to cross the river. Telegraph wires are down, and all trains are late. The mercury fell over 70 degrees in twenty-four hours.

In the vicinity of Cedar Rapids the storm was extremely severe, and the mercury dropped 50 degrees in a few hours.

At Chicago the thermometer marked 44 degrees at noon and at midnight registered but 6 degrees above zero. A three-story frame building, in process of construction, was blown down and two persons were so badly injured that it is thought they will die.

An Aurora, Ill., dispatch says: About noon a heavy snowstorm struck this city. It gradually grew worse and finally developed into a terrific blizzard, which raged with considerable fury. The mercury fell 30 degrees in a few hours. The streets were deserted and business practically suspended.

Telegraphic information from Kansas City, Mo., is to the effect that the storm began there at three o'clock in the morning and was accompanied by a rapid fall in the thermometer, the mercury dropping from fifty to thirty degrees. The weather has been clear, with no snow or rain, but the wind has blown at the rate of forty-seven miles an hour. The storm prevails with equal force throughout Kansas, and telegraphic service is seriously interrupted. The Postal reports its service badly crippled in the North and West. The Western Union has few working wires in Kansas, and all service over its lines between here and Omaha is abandoned.

In Nebraska, according to an Omaha dispatch, the storm was the worst in the history of the State. The wind blew a gale of forty miles an hour. The weather has turned intensely cold, and fears are entertained of serious damage. The interior of the State is practically out of communication with the outside world, as all wires are down. All trains are indefinitely postponed. A disastrous wreck occurred at Dakota City, on the St. Paul and Omaha, as a result of the wind. A loaded box-car was blown out to the main line, jumping numerous open switches in its course. It was sent along with the wind. It collided with a through freight from Sioux City of fifteen cars, and knocked over one of them from the track, including a heavy engine. The crew saved themselves by jumping.

It is thought the reported damage and loss of life will be greatly augmented when reliable telegraphic communication is again established.

She Lost Her Temper.

The conductor of a Boston street car the other day tried to explain to a lady that his car wouldn't take her where she wished to go, but the more he explained the madder she grew.

"You see, ma'am, this is a cross-town car," remarked the conductor in the tone of a man who feels that he is acknowledging himself to be a deep-dyed criminal.

"Cross-town fudge," scornfully retorted the lady in true Boston hauteur; "cross conductor, more likely," and she got out threatening to report him to the company.

A Smart Boy.

Father—How so?

"He got himself a rich father."

"Humph! I don't understand."

"Why, his real father died, an' then an orful rich man got 'quainted with his mother, but he didn't like Johnny; so Johnny he pretended he was sick an' goin' to die; and then, after the rich man married his mother, he got well."—Street & Smith's Good News.

A Plain Precaution.

Either to adopt a plain precaution, one sanctioned by experience and approved by medical men, or to incur the risk of a malady obdurate and destructive in its various forms of intermittent or bilious remittent fever, or dumb ague, which of the two? For every type, for every phase of malaria, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a specific. It acts promptly—does its work thoroughly. As a defense against the malarial taint it is most effective. Emigrants to and denizens of regions in the west where miasmatic complaints are periodical visitants, should be mindful of this and use the Bitters as a safeguard. For constipation, biliousness, rheumatism, "la grippe," kidney and bladder troubles the Bitters will be found no less useful than in cases of malaria. Against the injurious effects of exposure, bodily or mental fatigue, it is also a valuable protection.

Got Even with Her.

Clemence Gensac of Perpignan, wearied of her husband and departed with a partner more congenial and set up a wine shop elsewhere. The husband went after her and asked her to return, but she refused on account of greater happiness with her new friend, so the husband yielded and retired. Five years afterward, being desirous of marrying again, he wrote to Clemence for her consent, but she refused flatly to become a party to any scheme that was certain to make another woman unhappy. Thereupon Gensac went duly to court and got a legal divorce, and in addition got his wife and her lover fined 75 francs.

Mr. S. G. Derry
Of Providence, R. I.

Widely known as proprietor of Derry's Waterproof Harness Oil, tells of his terrible sufferings from Eczema and his wonderful cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Gentlemen: Fifteen years ago I had an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which was followed by breaking out on my right leg. The humor spread all over my legs, back and arms, a foul mass of sores, swollen and itching terribly, causing intense pain if the skin was broken by scratching, and discharging constantly. It is impossible to describe my thirteen years of agony and torture. I spent in futile efforts to get well, and was discouraged and ready to die. At this time I was unable to lie down in bed, had to sit up all the time, and was unable to walk without crutches. I had to hold my arms away from my body, and had to have my arms, back and legs bandaged by my faithful wife twice a day. Finally a friend urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I began by taking half a teaspoonful. My but the medicine soon corrected this, and in six weeks I could see a change in the condition of the humor which nearly covered my body. It was driven to the surface by the Sarsaparilla, the sores soon healed, and the scales fell off. I was soon able to give up bandages and crutches, and a happy man I was. I had been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for seven months; and since that time, 2 years, I have worn no bandages whatever, and my legs and arms are sound and well.

Salt Rheum

Thousands of Dollars

Stomach Was All Out of Order

The Delight

of myself and wife at my recovery it is impossible to tell. To all my business friends in Boston, and over the country, I recommend from personal experience." S. G. DERRY, 45 Bradford Street, Providence, R. I.

"Beauty without grace is a hook without a bait." That's what the French think. Whether it be true or not, there are many American women who do not even possess the hook—beauty and attractiveness are denied them. Why? Because they're languid, cross and irritable. They know not what it is to be without pain or discomfort half the time.

That's it; suffer in silence—misunderstood—when there's a remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—at hand that isn't an experiment, but which is sold, by druggists, under the guarantee that if you are disappointed in any way with it, you get your money back by applying to its makers.

A signal service to weak womankind is the finding of lost health—the building up of a "run-down" system. Nothing does it so surely as the "Favorite Prescription." None like it!

MR. SPRINGER'S REPORT.

THE TARIFF DOESN'T BENEFIT MANUFACTURING.

A Strong Argument in Favor of a Revision of the Wool and Woolen Tariff—The Reign of Shoddy—In 1855—The Cordage Trust.

The Tariff Should Be Revised.

Chairman Springer shows, in his report on the wool bill, that from 1867 the policy of high protective tariffs upon wool and woolens has resulted in disaster to the growers, manufacturers, and consumers. In considering the effect of the wool and woolens tariff of 1867 upon sheep husbandry, Mr. Springer says:

"In 1868 there were 6,730,000 sheep in Ohio; in 1870 the number had fallen to 4,928,000; in 1880 to 4,080,000; in 1883 5,050,000; in 1890 there were only 3,943,000 reported, while in 1891 the number was given at 4,061,000. Similar results took place in all the other States east of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers. The increase in the number of sheep in the United States has been in States west of those rivers or in localities where there was a free range upon the public domain. There were in the whole United States in 1868 nearly 39,000,000 sheep; at this time there are only 43,000,000, an increase of 4,000,000 in twenty years, the whole increase being in sheep upon the ranches of the West.

"In 1867, the year in which the Wool-Tariff act was passed, there were only 38,000,000 pounds of wool imported into the United States, which was 19 per cent. only of the wool consumed in this country. In 1891 there were 129,000,000 pounds of wool imported, which was 30.8 per cent. of the total consumption of the country. Thus it appears that there is at this time 62 per cent. more of foreign wool consumed in this country, as compared with the whole amount consumed, than there was in 1867. The wool-growers of 1867 believed that the imposition of high tariffs on wool would secure them the control of the home market. The result proves how greatly they were mistaken and how ineffectual the law has been to produce the condition which they desired.

"As to its effect on prices, wool has steadily declined from 1867, when it was worth 63 cents per pound in currency, to the present time. The McKinley act increased the duty on wool an average of one cent a pound. The result has been a fall in price of two to three cents a pound instead of a rise in price. After twenty-five years of experiment the result has been a reduction of one-one-half in the number of sheep in the States east of the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers, and a reduction of one-half in the price of wool."

Of the effect of the tariffs upon manufactures, Mr. Springer says:

"Nor have the manufacturers of woolen goods been benefited by the imposition of high duties on wool and woolen goods. There have been many seasons of great depression in their business and many petitions have been sent to Congress asking for free wool. The manufacturers of woolen goods are divided in opinion as to whether wool should be placed upon the free list, but all concede the great disadvantage to which American wool manufacturers are subjected by reason of the tariff on wool.

"A statement of the Census Office shows that if we deduct the idle establishments (271) and the shoddy establishments (94), which are included for the first time in woolen manufactures, it will be seen that instead of 2,867 establishments in 1890, there were only 2,502 woolen establishments in active operation. This shows a falling off in the number of establishments between 1880 and 1890 of 187. The capital invested in 1890 also includes hired property to the value of $17,742,000. A careful examination of this preliminary statement will show that woolen establishments have increased in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and in the New England States, but that, as a rule, there has been a falling off in woolen establishments between 1880 and 1890 in the Southern States and States west of the Alleghany Mountains.

"It will be seen that the increase amounted to only 26.08 per cent., which is but little more than the increase of population. With an actual decrease to the amount of 174 in woolen establishments, and an output which merely keeps pace with the growth of population in the United States, it cannot be claimed that the manufacture of woolen goods has been in a flourishing condition during the last decade. With a high protective tariff on the raw material, and compensatory and high ad valorem duties on the finished product, and products limited to the home market, woolen manufacturers cannot even hope to increase their productions beyond the annual increase of population."

"Woolen goods, or goods composed in whole or in part of wool, including carpets, are articles of universal consumption in this country. Their cost to consumers is very great. It is impossible to estimate accurately how much the people of the country expend on this account. Such goods are absolutely necessary to the health and comfort of the people, and they are entitled to supply their wants in this respect at the lowest possible cost.

"If the existing law imposing an average of 91 per cent. on such goods when imported does not increase the price of domestic goods of like character, which do not pay any tax whatever, then the manufacturer receives no benefits from protective tariffs and should not object to their repeal. If domestic goods are increased in price by reason of duties imposed upon foreign goods of like character, the extent or amount of this increase is the measure of protection which domestic manufacturers receive. Just how much this protection increases the cost of domestic goods to American consumers cannot be ascertained with accuracy. As all persons are compelled to use woolen goods, are also compelled to pay the increased cost by reason of the tariff, whatever it may be. This exaction is taken from the many for the benefit of the few.

Concerning the growth of the shoddy industry, Mr. Springer says:

"Notwithstanding the high protection accorded manufacturers of woolen goods, the quality of such goods has deteriorated from year to year since the discovery of machinery for converting woolen rags into substitutes for wool. In 1860 there were in this country thirty shoddy establishments with an invested capital of $123,500, using in raw material $227,925, employing 290 hands at an annual cost of $54,124 and with an annual product of $402,590. During the war the public became greatly prejudiced against its use, through its extensive use in the manufacture of inferior army clothing and blankets. The census statistics of 1870 showed an increase in capital invested in shoddy manufacture of 561 per cent., and an increase in the value of the product amounting to 339 per cent. The shoddy produced in the United States in 1890 will amount to 100,000,000 pounds. The scoured wool produced in that year amounted to only 92,000,000 pounds. Thus it appears that the shoddy produced in the United States in the census year of 1890 had a greater cloth-producing power than all the wool which was produced in the United States for that year.

"It thus appears that the high protective tariff on wool, which was enacted with the avowed purpose of aiding wool-growers, has forced manufacturers to use a cheaper material than wool; and the competition which now threatens mostly the wool producers of the country comes from the ninety-four establishments manufacturing shoddy in the United States rather than from wool grown in Australia and South America."

In 1855 and Now.

Are things cheaper now than they used to be?

In answer to the above question we will say they are—very much cheaper—in material and construction and in many instances price; but it is safe to say that in wear and tear the common articles of every day use sold forty years ago were much cheaper to the purchaser, for the best is always the cheapest.

We have in our possession the books kept by Samuel N. Baker, who was the founder of the potteries now conducted by his sons in Rockville, and who also kept a general store for some years before his death in 1860. Below is the account of a day laborer named Franklin Stuart:

1855.	Dr.
Oct. 3, to 1 paper needles	$ .10
Oct. 6, to 6 pounds coffee at 16⅔c	1.00
Oct. 6, ⅝ hand tobacco at 30c	.21
Oct. 6, ½ pound soda at 15c	.05
Oct. 6, 4 mackerel at 6¼c	.25
Oct. 18, by 1 pair shoes	1.25
Jan. 22, 1856, 2 yards cotton and drilling	.28
Feb. 1, 1 check shirt	.65
Feb. 11, tobacco and comb	.10
March 14, one hoe	.80
Total	$4.18

On page 12 of the ledger we notice an entry at James W. Beadle's account, as follows:

Oct. 31, 1855, 1 pair suspenders per John......10c

Also we notice that O. J. Innis bought a rake on the 18th of April, 1856, for 25 cents.

Aside from all questions of superiority of goods sold thirty-five years ago, how much cheaper can the above items be bought in Rockville to-day? Some items may be purchased at a lower price, others will cost more. But it must always be remembered that there was not a railroad in Parke County thirty-five years ago, and every pound of goods sold in Rockville had to be hauled here in wagons. Then comes the important question of labor. In those days nearly everything was made by hand. Inventions have so cheapened the labor cost of articles that one man and a machine now does the work formerly done by 100 men. Goods ought to be sold to Rockville laborers at much lower prices than are now paid.

We also have before us a copy of the Terre Haute Journal, January 23, 1852, published just forty years ago to-day, and in the advertisements of the Prairie City store we read: "Now opened and scattering 10,000 yards heavy brown sheetings and shirtings, the price, 6 to 8 cents per yard."

F. Nippert, in the same paper, advertises to sell "calicoes of every quality, ranging from 5 cents to 12½ cents per yard." These records are worth more than all the "witnesses" who might be called to give testimony from memory.

On the single item of calico, Rockville prices at the same time show a marked difference. It can only be explained by the fact that none of the cheaper grades were sold here. In that event there is not much difference between the price of the hand-made goods of those days and the machine goods of to-day. We are told that the best calico has recently retailed at 12½ cents.

According to a writer in the Republican, labor about Rockville, measured from a standard of wood chopping, was paid 50 cents per cord in 1859. Exactly the same price is paid to-day, so in the matter of wages the laborer is no better off after thirty years of a national system of economy that has given two-thirds of the wealth produced in that time to one two-thousandth of the population. The county records tell the rest. The laborers of that day were on the tax duplicates as self-supporting property owners, paying on an average of over $200 of property each, and paying it. Their counterparts of to-day, if assessed at all, are listed only for poll tax, and as a rule this is delinquent.

The pauper expense of Park County in 1860 was $1,131.59. In 1890 it was $13,262.76. Here are some interesting figures for those who argue that the day laborer is better off than he was in 1860.—Rockville (Ind.) Tribune.

The Cordage Trust.

Since the cordage trust got control of nearly all the cordage mills of the country last year, it has made no less than six advances in price. The following table shows the full extent of these advances:

	Aug. 27, 1891, per lb. Cents.	Feb. 25, 1892, per lb. Cents.	Advance per cent.
Manila, ½ in	9¾	12¼	25.6
Manila, ⅝ in	10¼	12¾	24.3
Manila, ¾ in	10¾	13¼	23.2
Sisal, ½ in	6¾	9¼	37.0
Sisal, ⅝ in	7¼	9¾	34.3
New Zealand, ½ in	6¾	8¾	29.6
New Zealand ⅝ in	7¼	9¼	27.5

The trust has complete control over the manufacture of binding twine and binding-twine machinery. Though the duty on binding twine has been reduced it is still prohibitive. Thus freed from foreign competition, the trust, by its control over the patents on twine machinery, is able to prevent new plants from being erected to compete with it. Only a short time ago the Legislature of Minnesota appointed a committee to take the necessary steps to establish a binding-twine factory in the prison at Stillwater. This committee tried to purchase machinery of the trust, but found that it could not get it for less than $200,000—an exorbitant price. The excuse which the trust offered for making so enormous a charge was that it feared labor trouble. Its real object, however, was to prevent the State of Minnesota from manufacturing twine and selling it at a fair price to the farmers.

Has Secretary Blaine succeeded in convincing the President that "trusts are private affairs," with which the public has nothing to do? If not, why is not the Cordage trust made amenable to the anti-trust law, of which McKinley and his followers were wont to boast so proudly?

McKinley boasts that one page of his tariff can not be repealed in ten years; and he says with a sneer: "They have started in to repeal it item by item, and there are 2,500 items." This is the taunt of mere physical obstruction, which is fatuous enough to fancy that its position is so buttressed against the will of the people as to be impregnable. McKinley overlooks the fact that if the people shall find the demolition of the tariff wall by piecemeal too slow, they may rise in their might and topple the whole business over in "horizontal" fashion. Big crops at home and famine abroad can not always be depended upon to postpone the day of reckoning.

At Gooseberry Ravine, Nevada County, California, some boys found four pieces of float quartz containing gold to the value of $6, $18, $23, and $32 respectively. Prospectors have been thick in the ravine ever since, and recently one of them found a ledge which is believed to be the source of the float.

SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Our National Lawmakers and What They Are Doing for the Good of the Country—Various Measures Proposed, Discussed, and Acted Upon.

Doings of Congress.

In the Senate, on the 8th, the Behring Sea controversy and the pure food bill were subjects of discussion, though final action was had upon neither. The following Senate bills were passed: To prohibit the sale of fire-arms and ammunition to Indians residing upon reservations; referring to the Court of Claims the "Tice Meter" claim; appropriating $300,000 for a public building at Spokane Falls, Wash.; appropriating $275,000 for the construction of two United States revenue cutters for service on the Great Lakes; appropriating $50,000 for a public building at Alameda, Cal.; appropriating $200,000 for a public building at Boise City, Idaho; to amend the act of Aug. 28, 1890, to reorganize and establish the customs collection district of Puget Sound; to authorize the construction of jetties, piers and breakwaters at private expense in the Gulf of Mexico at the mouth of the Ropes Pass, Tex.; authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Kootenai River, in the town of Fry, Idaho. To establish a military post near Little Rock, Ark. Both houses adjourned upon the announcement of the death of Mr. Kendall, Representative from Kentucky.

In the House, the 9th, the tariff debate began, and will continue for some time. In the Senate, Mr. Hale from the Naval Committee, reported back his bill to further increase the naval department, with an amendment appropriating $500,000 for experiments in the development of torpedoes and in the procurement of torpedoes. Placed on the calendar. Mr. Squire moved to reconsider the vote by which the Senate passed the bill in relation to the collection district of Puget Sound. The motion was entered. Mr. Morgan introduced a bill in the Senate declaring that all laws and parts of laws are inoperative, which exempt from the payment of duties all articles of commerce which are not on the free list, entered in the custom houses of the United States, for transportation through the United States, to or from any British possession. Among the bills introduced and referred was one with the following curious title, presented by Mr. Cullom (by request): "To test and try the science of spelling, and to provide for establishing 100 schools for that purpose; and to establish a spelling school in the World's Columbian Exposition, to be held in Chicago in 1893." The pure food bill was then taken up, and after the adoption of several slight amendments it was passed without division. After an executive session of nearly three hours the Senate adjourned.

On the 10th, the time of the House was entirely occupied by the tariff discussion. In the Senate several bills were reported from committees and placed on the calendar. The agricultural meat inspection deficiency bill was taken up and passed. The following bills were passed: To survey and mark the boundary between the States of Nebraska and South Dakota, on the Pine Ridge and Rosebud Indian reservations. Making Laredo, Texas, a sub-post of entry. The "unfinished business" was taken up, being the Senate bill to provide for the erection of public buildings for postoffices in towns and cities where the postoffice receipts for three years preceding have exceeded $3,000 annually. No action was taken on the bill, and after a brief executive session the Senate adjourned.

In the House on the 11th, Mr. O'Neill of Pennsylvania presented for reference a petition of citizens of the Second Congressional District of Pennsylvania urging Congress to pass a law to prevent the landing of criminal and pauper immigrants, to revise the naturalization laws, and submit a constitutional amendment providing that no State shall grant the right of suffrage to any person not a citizen of the United States. The balance of the session was devoted to tariff talk. Among the bills introduced and referred to committees of the Senate was one by Mr. Stewart proposing a constitutional amendment that after 1897 no person who has held the office of President shall be eligible to that office within four years after the expiration of his term of office. The urgent deficiency bill was then taken up and passed and the Senate adjourned till the 14th.

Is the item true which has appeared in the various newspapers regarding the report that "Chicago, has four hundred churches and no baths?" If the statement be untrue regarding the baths, the Garden City should set herself right before the great public. If true, she ought to arouse herself from her lethargy and seek at once to afford a means of deliverance from the dust and filth of heated and perspiring throngs, who will pour in by every avenue, every hour of every day, and throng her streets, and fill her hotels and boarding houses in another year.

Washington's First Love Affair.

Marion Harland, in Harpers' Weekly.

In the drawing room of Dr. J D. Moncure (the able Superintendent of the Eastern Lunatic Asylum, situated in Williamsburg) hangs the portrait of Mary Cary, renowned for her beauty and belleship in a family where beauty is hereditary and pronounced Her sister Sally became the wife of George William Fairfax, the near neighbor and intimate friend of George Washington. The oft-repeated tale that "Sally" Cary was the first love of the Father of his Country is so effectually refuted by a document courteously furnished to me by her great grandson, Dr. Moncure, that I make no apology for preferring his story to my own:

"George William Fairfax, of Belvoir (Virginia) and Poulston, Yorkshire, England, married, Dec. 17, 1748, Sarah, second daughter of Colonel Wilson Cary, of Celeys, near Hampton, on James River. George Fairfax was the companion of Washington on his surveying tour for Lord Fairfax. Washington first met Mrs. Fairfax at Belvior, near Mount Vernon, when she was brought home as the bride of George William Fairfax. Miss Mary Cary accompanied her sister Sarah to Belvoir, and there met George Washington. She was then but fourteen years of age, Washington was only sixteen. He had never visited the Low Country near Williamsburg prior to this, and therefore could not have met Sarah Cary until her marriage. It is said that he fell in love at sight with Mary Cary, and went so far, on his first visit to Williamsburg, as to ask Colonel Cary for the hand of his daughter."

The big, rawboned lad found scant favor in the eyes of the patrician planter. He was dismissed in terms so curt that we must bear in mind paternal pride and other extenuating circumstances if we would keep intact our ideas of a fine old Virginia gentleman.

"If that is your business here, sir, I wish you to leave the house! My daughter"—the swelling emphasis rumbles down the corridor of years—"has been accustomed to ride in her own coach."

Tradition asserts that the chagrined suitor took the choleric parent at his word, and that the next time he looked upon the face of his early love was when he passed through Williamsburg on his return from Yorktown after the surrender of Cornwallis. As we stroll down the spinal street, the window in the old Cary house is pointed out at which Mary Cary—now Mrs. Edward Ambler—stood to watch the parade. Washington looked up, recognized her, and waved a smiling salute with his sword, whereat the lady fainted. A becoming and not difficult feat at an era when to swoon opportunely and gracefully was a branch of feminine education.

How many are aware of the blessing which flows from every well contested, rightly borne trouble?

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn, Ind. tf

Everybody has at times failed to do their duty towards themselves. Hundreds of lady readers suffer from sick head che, nervousness, sleeplessness and female troubles. Let them follow the example of Mrs. Herbatcher, Stevens Point, Wis., who for five years suffered greatly from nervous prostration and sleeplessness, tried physicians and different medicines without success. But one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine caused sound sleep every night and she is feeling like a new person. Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Laramie City, Wyoming, who tried all other remidies, declares that after three week's use of the Nervine for headache, nervous prostration, etc., she was entirely relieved. A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of the best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smilingly saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.

A bible recently issued from the Oxford University press is only $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches in length, $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches wide and ⅞ of an inch in thickness.

Every Christian Mother.

Should be careful with her children. This damp atmosphere of our climate often brings on coughs, colds, etc., which if not attended to in time lead to that dreaded disease consumption. To prevent this it is the duty of all mothers to have a remedy near to check these coughs that your children may contract, and you cannot get a safer or more reliable remedy than Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup, the children's friend. You can buy this for 25 cts. of all druggists.

In China all wines are drunk hot. The thrifty Chinaman believes that heated wine intoxicates more expeditiously than cold wine.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Only One Bottle.

Mr. Arthur M. Fisher, a relible stock dealer, of Decatur, Ind., says: One dollar bottle of Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup completely cured me of a very annoying cough and pains in the chest, bordering on lung fever. I think it is the best cough syrup in the world and would not do without it. Resp. Yours,

A. M. FISHER.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1860—Continued.

It is interesting to note the versatility of early residents of Auburn and the facility with which they gave up one occupation to test the chances of some other.

George Wagoner known in these pages as a pioneer of Auburn still active and skillful at his trade of blacksmithing was in 1860, presiding over a home like restaurant and dealing in family groceries and refreshments. Mr. Wagoner has had many successors in that line in our town, and the hotel, the restaurant, the bakery and the boarding house, in lunch, meal and boarding have long well done their part towards making Auburn a desirable place of sojourn to the traveler and the homeless.

George W. Stahl supplies a worthy example of a man abiding by his calling, and in 1860 and all the years following, industriously cutting and completing clothing for the men and boys of the county seat, he has cheerfully accepted his life as unfolded, merrily laughed with the best, and, seeking no monopoly, been content with his lot.

As Young and Yesbera have severally long suited the capricious and exacting requirements of stylish youths, and of business and professional men by variety and quality of clothing, so did John D. Graham for a time rival Mr. Stahl and satisfy popular taste. It was Graham's greatest pleasure to receive an order for a fine suit of clothes and he claimed that from experience gained from having been employed in some of the first houses in New York and Philadelphia, acknowledged centers of fashion, that "the most fastidious could find no fault with price or workmanship." Ladies were not overlooked by Graham, who kept charts for cutting dresses. Despite all these prerequisites, Stahl remains and Graham has been forgotten.

S. S. Ford wearied of the boot and shoe business and in May sold out to C. S. Hare who for a number of years made a success of the business.

Samuel Sanders in his store building on a corner of Main and Fourth streets carried a large stock of goods for the size of the town, and invited patronage in the use of the popular name of the Farmers' Exchange store, while Messrs Stiefel & Wolf attracted custom by the time worn, generally false, but always available, statement that the firm was "selling off at cost" and great bargains could be had at their expense if promptly attended to.

There are, we believe, nine saloons in Auburn. By healthy growth of moral sentiment, they have come to exist under conscious ban of public opinion. Their proprietors pay large and yet larger sums for licenses to retail intoxicants. They do not advertise their locality and business, it would be superfluous to do so, but in 1860, it was wholly different.

John Butt in that year was proprietor of what was known as the DeKalb Saloon and in the conduct of a recognized, and not infrequently, over patronized business, invited the citizen and the stranger traveler to sample the choice wines, liquors and cigars of a well stocked bar, in poetic phrase of which the following is a characteristic stanza:

> "Should a party of friends for an evening drop in,
> Just send for a dozen of Butt's brandy and gin;
> And if ever the earth should be flooded again,
> Let us hope all the rain will be Butt's brandy and gin."

Edward Eldridge is a veteran saloon keeper in Auburn, has been licensed as early as March 5, 1859 and have continuously followed his vocation up to the present time, excepting a brief period during the spring of 1859, when engaged in replacing on lot No. 63, with the present brick, the former framed building burned during a fire which swept the block of which it formed a part.

It may truly be said of Mr. Eldridge that "he is a fit person to be intrusted with the sale of spirituous liquors" since in all these years he has strictly complied with the law, and his place has been orderly kept, promptly closed at night at a seasonable hour and free from brawls and the imputation of gambling. As a citizen, he is quiet and unostentatious and resides in a beautiful home, once known as the Dickinson Block which he has moved back from the street and so greatly improved as to leave few marks of its original identity, while his iron fence, cement walks, fine shade trees and well cared for street lawn attest his taste and care for surroundings.

Prior to the existence at Auburn of the railroads, the transportation of travelers, their effects, of business men, their deposits in the Kendallville or Ft. Wayne banks and the conveyance of the mails, furnished occupation for a line of hacks which have their counterpart to day in the conveyances which with abbreviated trip, meet the trains at the various depots and convey travelers and townsmen to hotels and homes.

Although an active competitive spirit existed, yet it was subordinated to the needs of the public and the three hack lines in operation at Auburn in 1860 were united in a system which gave close connections to patrons.

James Griswold ran a daily to and from Waterloo for the benefit of passengers on the Air Line railroad, desiring to visit Auburn on pleasure or business.

Messrs Butt and Darrow ran a hack every other day to Ft. Wayne, making connection with trains to and from that city and R. Squires was the well known proprietor of an Auburn, Angola & Coldwater hack line.

Robert Ingersoll recently compared the church as a whole to a primitive savage in a dugout and charged religious bodies with being non progressive.

The facts are that in revision of creeds, freedom of thought, union of purpose, combined with methods of science and meeting, of social and business character, the churches are in the very van of progress.

We have not learned who composed the first choir in an Auburn church, nor at what date an organ was introduced into the services but precentors no longer lead congregations in singing, not only a base viol, but pipe organs and trained choirs assist the minister, and orchestras delight the children of the Sabbath schools while the tediously long sermons upon abstruse topics have been superseded by spirited half hour discussions of texts connecting, the scripture and the audience with the living issues of the day.

(To be continued next week.)

The soil to us did not look as though it ever could be made to raise anything except a big dust in a wind storm. The water supply for engines and the people living along the tracks through New Mexico and Arizona, is transported in large tanks on the railroad. At several stations in Arizona the Yuma Indians gathered to sell bows and arrows, their style of pottery, and beg from the passengers. We have seen many different tribes of Indians, but these are the darkest skinned and dirtiest looking specimens we ever saw. The soil, scenery and climate of Southern California to within a short distance of Los Angeles is much the same as Arizona, except the wonderful mirage plains and that portion covered with great snowy winrows of sea washed sand. From Los Angeles northward to Oregon the soil is nearly all fertile and most all the land suitable for agricultural purposes, taken and under cultivation, that is within range of the railroads, if we except what is set upon EDGE, and that forms a great bulk of the unoccupied western lands so extensively advertised in the east by railroad companies and western boom towns.

The Tehachapi mountains of southern California furnish some grand scenery, there we saw the famed loop, a masterwork of civil engineering in which a railroad track is made to pass around a mountain and under itself. A great many tunnels are passed through. These we descended a grade of 60 feet to the mile for nearly 90 miles and where for the first time we fully appreciated the services of the airbrake. It takes two large engines to pull 9 coaches or 10 loaded freight cars up these mountains. The next grand scenery we witnessed was while ascending the Siskiyou mountains, where one of Nature's grandest works the famous Soda Springs can be seen throwing a fine quality of soda water 40 feet into the air, at the summit and close to the depot at Sissen. Mt. Shasta is seen towering high in the air this is one of the tallest of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and can be seen from a great distance, passing over these mountains we found the snow from 18 inches to 4 feet deep. The ascent and descent of these mountains baffles our power of description. Suffice it to say that while railroading in the east is quite an art, through the caynons and mountains of the west it is the par excellence of science. We arrived at Ashland, Oregon about 5 o'clock Sunday evening, and from then until dark we passed through quite a level and fertile stretch of county.

Monday morning we arrived at Portland, there we rested four days during which time we viewed some of the sights of the metropolis of Oregon, the most curious of which was the Chinese quarters, and the number and style of living of its almond eyed inhabitants and getting a whiff of the sickening odor emanating from their dirty looking dwellings and surroundings. Friday morning we boarded the river steamer Harvest Queen and after a fine ride of nine hours on the Willamette and Columbia rivers, during which we had the privilege of viewing some fine scenery, we arrived in Astoria, the oldest settlement in the state, and if not, to us it would seem, should be noted for its hills, number of sailors and saloons and the efforts of the salvation army to keep them level.

Monday morning we embarked on the steamer Augusta bound for Bay City, which was reached that evening without mishap save a few hours sea sickness caused by the rough condition of the Columbia river bar and the swells on the Pacific Ocean. Our long trip ended next morning by our arrival at the pleasant home of Mrs. H's sister where a hearty welcome was in store for us. The mild and even climate of this country together with the sea breeze is already proving beneficial to the former's health. At Monmouth, Oregon, we met Rev. B. F. Bonnell and J. W. Swaysgood; at Dallas, Or., William Headley, and at Portland Henry S. Ball, all former residents of DeKalb county and well known to the citizens of Butler and vicinity. Through the agricultural belts of the south, California and Oregon plowing and seeding were in progress. In a future letter we will try and describe some of the advantages and drawbacks of this state, when we get a little better posted.

Thirty-three Doctors.

Last Tuesday we attended the graduating excercises of the Michigan College of Physicians and Surgeons, at Detroit at which were graduated thirty-three, including two ladies. Among the graduates was Dr. James Squires, a former DeKalb boy, though for ten years past a practicing physician at Churubusco. While he graduated in the profession when he first began, he believes in keeping up with the times in all improvements and modern discoveries. That is a sensible view of course, though it costs time and money. The graduating exercises were held in the Detroit Opera House, which was filled to every corner by the friends of the class and the best citizens of the place. The exercises were fine, including the addresses by the professors, and students. The music of the orchestra was superb, as was the singing of the quartet. When the diplomas were presented, the class was complimented, as the best ever seen there. Then came the administering of the "Hyppocratic Oath," which was a solemn agreement to follow in an honorable way, the profession they had chosen. A profusion of flowers greeted the new M. D's. At the banquet that night at the Wayne Hotel, about 180 sat down including professors, students of the graduating and next year's classes, and their invited guests. This grand affair was closed by speeches and toasts, all very interesting, and then the happy company company parted to go out to their several homes and to their various fields of labor. As far as one not well posted in matters of this kind could judge, the Michigan College of Physicians and Surgeons is an excellent institution and very progressive in its management. Connected with it is the well known "Emergency Hospital," where wonders in surgery, etc., are performed. Here we visited and talked with the man Dannenberg, a very famous case, who having some disease of the throat, and cannot swallow any food, but chews it and spits it into a tube that is inserted into his stomach. An opening was cut through the outer wall, and then a piece of the stomach drawn out through it, and into this latter, a short tube is inserted and fastened. A cork is kept in this tube when not in use. When he eats, the cork is taken out, and the long feeding tube is inserted. He eats, then takes away the long tube and puts the cork back again. He is doing well, and may live some years. All in all, we came away with a greatly increased knowledge of the possibilities of the modern practice of medicine and surgery.

Memorial Services.

The second annual memorial services of the Knights of Pythias on Saturday evening March 12, 1892 were very elaborate and impressive.

Gov. Ira J. Chase, who had intended to conduct services in the Disciple church that evening but was delayed until too late for that, but appeared at the Castle Hall and made a short and impressive address. After which all proceeded to the adjoining Hartman Hall, where the K P. ladies had prepared for a grand banquet. The table extended the lenght of the hall and had a seating capacity of nearly one hunded, and was loaded with viands that would have tempted Epicurus himself. And with Gov. Chase at the head of the table gave honor and dignity to the occasion, in fact it was a Pythias banquet. Bros. Trumbull, Crane, Hines and others responded to toasts. It being already past 11 p. m. the society dispersed feeling that all had a royal good time and eclipsed anything of the kind ever held in the town of Corunna.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Guaranteed Cure.

Virtue and laziness may live together, but they are not usually on the best terms.

HAPPY HOOSIERS. Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from kidney and liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best kidney and liver medicine, made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c. a bottle, at Robbins & McCords drug store. 2

EROTICS reign, Etna has erupted, and Laura Jean Libbey has issued a new novel.

NOTHING sharpens the arrow of sarcasm so keenly as the courtesy that polishes it; no reproach is like that we clothe with a smile and present with a bow.

NOTHING is done in good style in New York. There was a train robbery there recently, and the robber didn't even hold up the porter of the sleeping-car.

THE entire people will be sorry to learn that Col. Dan Lamont is seriously ill. Col. Lamont always connected manhood and gentlemanly courtesy with politics. Few men have ever retired from a taxing position and carried with them in their retirement the best wishes of the multitude of all parties.

KAISER WILLIAM, in his Bradenburg speech, advised those who do not like his government to "shake the dust of Germany from their feet." A good many of the people of Berlin seem to be following this advice in a measure. They are shaking the dust, but even while they shake it they keep their feet in it and in Germany.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S Ministry insists upon a larger naval appropriation than usual in order to give employment to men now out of work. When the ships are completed a war will be necessary in order to give employment to them. It is more than likely that the turbulent domestic condition of the German Empire will compel the Emperor to divert the attention of his loyal subjects from fighting him to shooting Frenchmen.

IN the trial of young Field in New York a citizen by the name of Carney was questioned as to his competency as a juror. "Did you ever hear of Cyrus Field?" asked the attorney, "Never heard of him," replied the witness. "Ever hear of Bourke Cockran?" "Don't think I ever did." "Ever heard of Delancey Nicholl?" "Not that I remember." "The juror is competent," said the court. This little incident aptly illustrates the too frequent effect of the law regulating the competency of jurors in criminal trials. If the crime be particularly atrocious, or for other reason notorious, every intelligent man in the county is disqualified by reason of having formed an opinion.

THE demand for better roads throughout the country has assumed the dimensions of a general movement, and will have a practical result before a great while in a system of graveled or macadamized highways all over the United States. The most pressing need for many years has been good roads, but these can never be attained, even with the most lavish expenditure of money, so long as it is the custom to drive over them in wet weather with buggies whose wheels are fitted with tires an inch or an inch and a quarter wide. In some countries the front wheels of vehicles are made to "track" inside the hind wheels, and wide tires are used on everything, so that a carriage is, in effect, a road-roller. In such countries the roads take care of themselves.

GREECE has within her borders little more than 2,000,000 people, but there are some 10,000,000 of Greeks in the world, chiefly in the Turkish Empire or in countries bordering on it. Epiras and Thessaly and the Island of Crete are decidedly Greek in race, language and sympathy, while conflicting claims are made by Greeks and Bulgarians for preponderance in Macedonia and even in parts of Roumania. Greece's great past makes her people ambitious of a great future and they never cease to dream of once more having Constantinople as the national capital. That will probably ever remain a dream, for Russia and Austria bar the way. But the present crisis at Athens probably involves some secret move regarding the carving up of Turkey which will be revealed before long.

THE tendency toward a more liberal government is asserting itself in Germany, and Kaiser Wilhelm is confronted with a situation that would perplex a much abler statesman than himself. In his characteristic speech at Brandenburg he ridiculed all criticism of his actions, and now the folly of his utterances is made more prominent by the formidable uprising of workmen at Berlin. It is a significant fact that public sympathy is largely with those who have resorted to force because of their grievances. There is a growing dissatisfaction throughout the empire that can only be appeased by a more generous and considerate policy on the part of the government. The kaiser uttered more than he thought when he asserted that Germany is growing out of her childhood. Universal progress has made itself felt there as throughout the civilized world, and no assumed autocracy or archaic systems of government can stay this yearning for broader liberty. The overthrow of despotism in Germany is inevitable and it only remains to be seen by what methods the transition will be effected. Whether revolution and bloodshed or a policy of conciliation and peace shall effect the change, rests almost entirely with the young emperor. It is a misfortune that this great responsibility rests upon a man so illy prepared by nature and training to meet it. His opinions are those of bygone ages. He believes himself divinely invested with the powers which he exercises in defiance of modern views and popular disapproval. He may be conscientious in his antiquated views and misguided course, but this only renders him the less fit to meet the pending crisis, for to the stubbornness of his convictions is added the stubbornness of a nature that grows stronger and more determined when opposition is encountered. He is not the manner of man to grant concessions when they are demanded. Force will doubtless be the resort of the emperor and a revolution that may sweep him from power may be hastened.

WITHIN the past decade the number of prize fighters who pound their living out of the open countenances of their fellow sluggers has increased with great rapidity. It is no longer "the manly art of self-defense," but a brutal and bloody contest between ignorant and bullying loafers, who could not earn an honest dollar, try as they might, which they certainly would not do under any circumstances. All of these toughs and thugs should be arrested and locked up, as modern prize fighting is worse than vagrancy. Its encouragement in this country brings to our shores such disreputables as Mitchell, Slavin, Hall, Fitzsimmons, Maher, and others who see a chance to beat the confiding American public out of its dollars. It would do no good to put a stop to prize fighting without putting the prize fighters behind the bars, for they must live, and unless they could find women to support them they would be obliged to turn their attention to pocket-picking, burglary, or safe-blowing. They are a crowd that should be driven out of the country or put where their exhibitions of brutality would not be realized upon and could not offend the tastes of respectable men and women. They are a a bad lot. The bridewell is their home.

THE agitation of a reform in the methods of dealing with business on the Erie Canal is not so vigorous as the subject demands. Apparently the weight of railroad rivals on the one hand and of corruptionists on the other form a bad drag on the wheels of progress toward canal reform. "There is too much in it" for both. The enormous profits made by the elevator companies in handling canal grain are so much taken out of the business, so much of a clog on activity along the water route, and so much of a lever with which to lift and sustain opposition to the men who cry out against the imposition. An official statement makes the following presentation of the facts in the case of an elevator handling 275,000 bushels of grain per day:

Elevating at ⅝ cent	$1,718.75
Storage at ¼ cent	687.50
Use of steam shovel at 2-10 cent	550.00
Cleaning at ⅛ cent	343.75
Total	$3,300.00

The actual cost of labor, etc., employed in performing this service is reported to be $121, or barely 3½ per cent. of the amount charged. In spite of the fact that the greater part of the grain handled is in store but a few hours the storage charge of ¼ cent per bushel is always exacted, and even then the service is not always performed as wanted. During the last few days of canal navigation the railroad elevators absolutely refused to transfer grain to the canal vessels, and the reason for this is said to have been that it was desired to hold back the grain for railroad transportation after the canal had closed for the winter. No wonder that with such extortion the elevator men should be able to declare a profit of over 25 per cent. for last year, though but twenty six out of the forty-four elevators at Buffalo were allowed to handle grain, the rest being kept idle. The animus of the movement is easily understood from the statement that the canal rate from Buffalo to New York is from 3 to 4 cents per bushel lower than the published rates by rail, and of course the grain tends to follow the lines of least resistance. So the railroad men threw their influence in with the elevator managers, thus enabling the latter to impose charges they never could collect were it not for the influence of the men who control the rail routes to the seaboard. The magnitude of the struggle may be inferred from the fact that during the canal season more than 100,000,000 bushels of grain are transported from the lake ports to New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore over the canal and the railroads.

Short Rations.

The Widow Flapjack keeps a boarding-house in Harlem, and, we regret to say, that she does not give her boarders as much as they can eat. Gus De Smith, in particular, is given to grumbling about the fare. A few mornings ago she gave him a very small piece of beefsteak, but instead of masticating it he merely folded his arms and looked at it—like Napoleon at St. Helena.

"Why don't you eat your steak?" asked the Widow Flapjack:

"It's too hot."

"Blow it, then."

"I am afraid to."

"Why?"

"For fear it will blow away, it's so small."—Texas Siftings.

THE SHODDY INDUSTRY.

ITS PHENOMENAL GROWTH UNDER HIGH TARIFFS.

Example Better than Argument in the Matter of Tariff Taxes—American vs. Foreign Labor—Trust Economies—Sample Prices Under McKinleyism.

Shoddy and the Census.

Under the high tariffs on wool and woolen goods since 1860 the growth of the shoddy industry has been phenomenal. Shoddy is a comprehensive term, and in common parlance includes all the various wool substitutes used in manufacturing, except cotton, cows' hair, etc. There are two classes of shoddies: The first is made from the waste pieces of woolen goods left over in the manufacture of ready-made clothing, and known in the trade as new shoddy; and the second from old woolen rags collected from the ash barrels and refuse heaps of our large cities, called old shoddy; but, like other industries, the shoddy industry has grown to such an extent that there have been added new terms to describe the products which formerly went under the general name of "shoddy." Chief among these are "extracts," which are made from mixed cotton and woolen goods by the application of an acid which eats out the cotton, leaving the woolen fibers intact, though much impair d. At the same time extracts are subdivided into two classes: First, those made from waste pieces of cloth not in use, just as new shoddies are produced; and second from old mixed rags picked up from all possible places.

So great have been the improvements in machinery used for working up shoddies and extracts that they are now used in all classes of woolen goods, and are so disguised as to be detected with great difficulty.

The growth of the shoddy industry cannot be better shown than by a comparison of the census figures since 1860. The following table shows the number of establishments, the capital invested, the number of workmen employed, and the value of the products during each census year:

1860	30	$123,500	291	$402,590
1880	73	1,165,100	1,282	4,983,615
1890	94	....	.....	9,208,011

From a product of $402,590 in 1860 this industry has increased until, according to the census of 1890, the product is $9,208,011, or an increase of 2,187 per cent.

Though the growth of the woolen industry as a whole, including the shoddy industry, has been considerable since 1860 it has not been in proportion to the growth of the shoddy industry. In 1860 the value of the woolen goods produced in the United States was $65,596,364; in 1890, according to the last census, the value of the woolen goods was $338,231,109, showing an increase since 1860 of only 415 per cent.

Nothing will show better the great growth of the shoddy industry and its present extent than the figures from the census of 1890. In the following table is shown for each of the large woolen products the amount of wool used, and the amount of shoddies, extracts, cotton, hair, and other substitutes for wool:

Kind of goods.	Wool used, pounds.	Substitutes, pounds.	℔ c. sub.
Woolen goods	185,347,944	98,640,386	34.7
Worsted goods	97,701,471	7,574,264	7.2
Felt goods	6,729,083	4,201,344	38.4
Wool hats	4,537,953	458,931	9.1
Carpets	56,687,846	5,054,011	8.2
Knit goods	21,669,393	37,206,934	63.2

The consumption of wool in 1890 increased 25.8 per cent. over the consumption in 1880, while the consumption of shoddy in 1890 increased 44.7 per cent. over the consumption in 1880.

No wonder that when President Cleveland advocated in his famous message the putting of wool on the free list so as to build up the industry the shoddy men got out a protest declaring that by free wool "our business would be ruined and we and those dependent upon us would suffer. There is only one way to avoid this loss to ourselves and that is by the defeat of the candidate of the Free Trade party, Grover Cleveland. We have determined in the coming election to support the candidates of the Protection party, Harrison and Morton. Their election we consider to be indispensable to the maintenance of our business."

Free wool would be the death of shoddy.

American vs. Foreign Labor.

The following extract from the speech of J. B. Sargent, one of the largest manufacturers of hardware in the United States, at the hardware dinner, shows that our labor is cheaper than that of Europe. Mr. Sargent has traveled around the world several times and knows what he is talking about. The applause which greeted every statement he made shows that the hardware manufacturers agree with his conclusions: "In agricultural tools and implements, at least, we take half the trade of the foreign counties outside of Europe, and in all kinds of edge tools we take half the trade of South America and of Asia. But, gentlemen, my time is more than gone, and I will bring my remarks to a close by saying that with the manufactures of this country in their present condition, with our machinery, with our unrivalled help, with our skilled mechanics, and with you, gentlemen of the hardware and mercantile branches, there is no reason why we should not only hold our own in our own country, but take a large part of the trade of all the world.

The American manufacturer, with the American mechanic, has never seemed to realize his own strength, or the strength of his trade. We have, as I have always said, the most willing, the most energetic, and the most ambitious workers, workmen and mechanics, anywhere to be found. Although our wages in this country—the earnings of men per day—are very much more than those of any other country, and especially of the countries on the continent, who are our competitors, and although they earn so much more per day, still their labor to the manufacturer is cheaper than that of laborers in other countries. In other words, the labor cost of almost any article of American hardware manufacture is less than the labor cost of the same article in any other country. The fear which so many of us have had of the pauper labor of England is a matter unworthy of consideration. The pauper labor of England in the manufacture of hardware, as compared with our labor, may be compared with the cheap farm labor of India, where that class of labor is paid 10 cents per day, as compared with our Western farm labor in the raising of wheat. With land as plenty and as cheap, with millions of acres which are not used in India, but that are roamed over by wild beasts, with land in plenty and with labor at 10 cents per day (cheap labor in the usual acceptance of the term), still in this country we can produce wheat more cheaply than they can in India, and yet we pay $1 per day for the labor. In other words, the 10 cents per day labor in India, under all the conditions that they have there, is not so cheap in the product obtained as is the $1 per day labor of our Western farmers, and so if we will only take courage and go out before the world with our industries, with our machinery, with our intelligence, and with our mercantile ability we can conquer the world in industrial pursuits.

When I look upon this intelligent, this energetic, this ambitious company, it seems strange that any one should think that the industry and business ability of any other nation on the globe can compete with us in a free field and in a fair fight.

I have only to add that I know that you, gentlemen, of the hardware trade, you manufacturers and merchants, will carefully consider the question that must come before you—of the greater freedom of trade; the question of placing ourselves with our raw materials on an equal footing with the manufacturers of England. Whenever we do that we can certainly take care of ourselves in any quarter of the globe.

Trust Economies.

We have been trying to find in the current reports of the trade journals some evidence as to the changes made in prices when the manufacturers in a large industry lose the advantages derived from those "economies" which a trust or similar combination enables them to practice. Everybody has heard of these "economies." Everybody has been told by the trust makers that they reduce the cost of production and the selling price of the products. Many have been surprised when they saw prices considerably increased as soon as combined manufacturers were able to enjoy the "economies." It appears also that prices suffer a serious decline when manufacturers who have been in combination are no longer assisted by the "economies." The facts are curiously at variance with the trust makers' doctrine.

The combination of the manufacturers of steel beams was dissolved some weeks ago. While these manufacturers enjoyed the saving caused by the "economies" the price of steel beams was 3 1-10 cents per pound at the mill, or $69.44 per long ton. A few days ago 2,000 tons were sold in Chicago at the price of 2¼ cents, delivered. Other sales at even lower prices have been reported, as follows:

"It is stated that one large contract, 5,000 tons, for season's delivery, has been placed with a leading architectural works in this city [New York] at 2 cents, Pittsburg mill."—The Iron Age, Feb. 11, 1892.

"In the beam trade the only item of news of the week is the report that contracts for 5,000 tons have been placed in Boston at 2 1-10 cents, delivered."—The Iron Age, March 3, 1892.

The price of barbed wire, as fixed by the barbed wire trust, was, at Pittsburg, on Jan. 28, just before the dissolution of this combination, $2.55 for painted and $3.05 for galvanized. On March 3, about one month after the dissolution of the trust, the prices at the same place were $2.25 and $2.65, and corresponding reductions had been made at other points.

The changes caused by the loss of the trust "economies" may be set forth as follows:

	With "economies."	Without "economies."	Decline, per cent.
Steel beams	$69.44	$44.80	35
Barbed wire, painted	2.55	2.25	11
Barbed wire, galvanized	3.05	2.65	13

These figures will tax the ingenuity of the professional advocates of trustism. Immediately after the great advantages due to the practice of combination "economies" were withdrawn, the price of steel beams did not rise. It fell 35 per cent. And in the case of barbed wire there was a decline of 13 per cent. The trust's professors should overhaul and revise their chief doctrine.—New York Times.

An Example of Tariff Taxes.

As an example is always better than an argument, I will present to the reader an actual transaction under the McKinley bill, which has been furnished me through the kindness of a friend in New York.

He says, under date of Feb. 17: "I received a shipment this week from Manchester containing a number of cases of dress goods, mostly all wool, and some woolen and worsted cloths, also some cotton warp dress goods. Entered value, $2,631; packing is accountable for $19 of this, the value of the cloth being $2,612. I paid $2,621.05 duty. Of course the consumers, the public at large, will eventually pay this."

Let us study this concrete example for a moment.

We see that cloth and dress goods of the value of $2,612 cost the importer $5,233.05, which sum he must get back from the consumers of the goods, with his profits upon the transaction.

2. The goods imported are among the necessaries of our country and climate, and not the mere luxuries of those who are rich and extravagant.

3. The farmer or the laborer buys these goods for his wife and children, and believes, when he puts down on the store counter a dollar of his earnings, that he is getting a dollar's worth of goods, when, in fact, he is paying more than half of the money for the tax and the profits of the tax of several middlemen that have been secretly wrapped up in the goods.

4. These goods are also largely made in this country. They would not be imported unless they could be sold here for cost and tax, and a fair profit on both. Except for the tax, we could buy them for the cost and a fair profit on it. The tariff tax which the Government mixes with them before it allows them to pass into the clothing of the people thus more than doubles their cost, and at the same time increases by a like amount the price which similar home-made goods can be sold to the people. This last is the purpose for which it is levied.

5. The labor cost of producing these goods in this country is not more than 20 per cent. greater than the labor cost in Manchester, and but for a tariff on wool that actually depresses the value of our native wool but increases the cost of the foreign wools needed for mingling with our native grades to make these goods, the cost of material would be the same in both countries.

5. Let the farmer and laborer now sit down and figure to his satisfaction if he can why a law of Congress should be made to compel him to give two bushels of wheat or two days of his labor for the same quantity of necessary goods that he could but for such a loss procure with less than one bushel of his wheat, or less than one day of his labor.—Congressman W. L. Wilson, in St. Louis Republic.

Cleveland on the Campaign's Issues.

Ex-President Cleveland expressed his views about national politics.

"All evidence," said the ex-President, "of what the people want and what they expect of the party would seem clearly to indicate that the tariff reform must be the issue if we are to go into a winning fight. My idea has been that a general bill would be the best method, but I am willing to defer to those who are on the ground and have the battle in Congress to fight. I hope the Springer free-wool bill will pass, and am also in favor of any other measures which will lighten the burden of taxation now resting on the people. In fact I favor any measure in the direction of genuine tariff reform. As to the prospects of the Democratic party's ultimate success, I have but one opinion. If the party is true to itself, true to its principles and fulfills its pledges to the people, it cannot fail."

AS A rule, men who think a great deal do not think much of each other.

GREAT SPEECH BY HILL.

A MUST ELOQUENT APPEAL FOR PARTY UNITY.

Mississippi Legislators Listen to a Powerful Address on the Political Issues of the Day and Pass Resolutions Thanking the Senator.

Address at Jackson.

At Jackson, Miss., Senator Hill and party were met at the station by an immense crowd and were welcomed to the city by Gov. Stone, whose guests they became during their stay. A reception was tendered Mr. Hill at the Executive Mansion, when the Senator shook hands with several thousand persons. The Legislature met in joint session in the hall of the House of Representatives, with Lieut. Gov. Evans and Speaker street as presiding officers. The galleries and lobbies were crowded to the utmost and loud cheers greeted Senator Hill as he entered the hall in company with Gov. Stone. In introducing Senator Hill Gov. Stone said:

As a Mississippian I feel greatly honored in having one among us so distinguished as the gentleman who will speak to you here to-day. He comes to us undisguised as a representative of the great National Democracy, a man endowed with every requirement and accomplishment necessary to make him a great leader of parties and of men.

Senator Hill faced his Mississippi audience calm and collected, and after the applause which greeted his introduction had subsided, he spoke in substance as follows:

I am deeply sensible, gentlemen of the Legislature of the State of Mississippi, how rare your bestowal has been of that distinguished honor which, with open pride, I come hither to receive at your hands and to acknowledge with gratitude. What statesman of our great Republic, the most venerable, the most renowned among the living or the dead in the very flowering of his fame, would not have made haste and traveled long for the gathering of such a leaf to bind with all its laurels? The old world has had its cordial embassies from sovereign state. In this new world, where the people rule, shall we not brighten every tie that links our democratic denominations, principalities and powers, in the banded sovereignty of an imperishable Union? I will trust your white-haired veterans familiar with public cares. I will trust the youngest man who treads for the first time the halls and is burning to hurl his heart into the service of the State to know that thankfulness I shall ever feel, gentlemen of the State of Mississippi, to have this for an hour, the focus of that reciprocal good-will to which I owe the favor and return to you on behalf of the State of New York. There is good reason at all times for interchange of thought between the people of forty-four States, banded together for life to insure one another's liberty in the pursuit of happiness. But there is excellent reason at the present time for such interchange in the men whose political philosophy and practical politics alike are summed up in preserving for our own benefit, benefit of times to come, the great Democratic faith and tradition. It was never in such peril. Scarcely ever till now, November two years ago and November next, did popular elections put in issue such extreme danger or so large a deliverance. The grounds upon which Democrats of the State of New York have taken their stand is the whole Democratic faith and tradition—not some corner of it merely, not some special center of it merely, but the whole. This is the ground upon which I would see the Democrats of the State of Mississippi, with all Democrats of the North, South, East and West, both of the regular organization and the Farmers' Alliance, unite and take their stand in the approaching contest. Other duties for another day. For, like the victory of Jefferson, this union, this victory will close a chapter of history; will doom to final disintegration a degraded party and fix the direction of our political progress for some decades in the century to come.

Now, as in principle, I depend for triumphs upon parties and the organization of parties. They create parties. It is the Democratic principle which has created the Democratic party. In its union lies a greater strength than all its enemies combined can ever finally subvert. It survives every disaster. It is the great and most efficient organ of the people's power. The Democratic party is stronger than any man or set of men. No man is indispensable to its success, for its strength is with the people; it is greater and more powerful than any class, however numerous. Therefore it is large, tolerant, liberal, progressive. It invites to its membership and its control all men who will uphold the Democratic faith and tradition and apply them to the people's needs.

"The Republican party," he said, "passed the McKinley laws superadding to the protective taxes of the tariff of 1882 the reciprocity humbug, the new subsidy and bounty swindle and still higher protected taxes. Against united Democratic votes the Republican Congress also passed the Sherman silver law, into which every Republican monetary heresy is crowded that has kept our finance in perpetual disorder for thirty years, torturing our merchants with uncertainty and fear and turning our foreign commerce, our sales of wheat and our sales of cotton into a daily gamble.

"These laws were passed under permission of the Constitution to make laws 'to promote the general welfare.' This was 'promoting the general welfare' by promoting their own welfare with protected monopolies." In concluding his address, Mr. Hill said no help can be looked for from Republican partisans, but he called upon all good people of the country to make alliance in November next with no other than with the Democratic party, in order to correct existing evils. "Unity," he said, "was to enable the Democratic party to call a halt in the growth and spread of the grinding monopolies. The farmers, for their own deliverance, should re-enforce the Democrats, and enable that party to dethrone the indorser of every act of the billion-dollar Congress. Alone, he said, the farmers could do nothing but defeat their own hopes and re-elect the party whose policy of protected taxes plundered the farmer first and most of all.

Continuing, Mr. Hill urged a close adherence and strict construction of the Constitution of the United States, which he said was "the standing marvel in the history of civilized men." The powers which it grants are few and specified, and it concentrates and centralizes these few. After a century of storm and stress, it remains almost wholly unruptured and has emerged unimpaired from the torsion of our war. It is not any legalized excursions by congress outside the constitution which explaines why we still live and move and have our being beneath its ægis. It is in spite of transgressions, not by help of them that we still live. We have not profited by them; we have survived them. It is the old abridgment and limitations of the functions of government to its own proper business, despite transgressions; it is the distribution and devolution of its powers, despite usurpations; it is the prohibition of State powers; it is the declaration of State rights; it is the reservation and surrender of the residue to the States, respectively, for the people, out of which we have truly lived and still bear our life; it is individual freedom, not a paternal government rule, which explains our swift expansion from a fringe of thirteen feeble colonies to a continent of mighty States.

Cheer after cheer resounded through the Capitol at the conclusion of Senator Hill's speech. Scarcely had he resumed his seat when R. H. Henry offered resolutions profusely thanking the Senator.

Insanity in Horses.

When a horse goes insane he is apt to kill himself by butting his head into a corner. At the Veterinary Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, the largest of its kind in the country, such cases are treated in an oval brick chamber, perfectly dark. When this is heavily bedded with straw it is almost impossible for a horse to hurt himself. Insanity, or "dumminess," in horses is quite common. It is sometimes caused by a lesion on the brain, and is incurable, but when caused by stomach disorders it is often treated successfully.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sir: Twelve years ago I began to have hemorrhages, and four years ago became so low that the physicians told me

There Was No Hope

and I should soon die. I could not be moved from my bed. Under my face were napkins continually reddened with blood from my mouth. I could eat nothing and had no action of the bowels for a week. The doctors said the cause was ulcers in the stomach. At this time my mother said she wanted to make one more trial, and asked if I would take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I told her it would be

but finding it would comfort her, I began taking it. In a few days the bloating began to subside, I seemed to feel a little stronger, but thought it only fancy. I was so weak I could only take ten drops of Sarsaparilla at first. In two weeks I was able to sit up a few minutes every day. In a month I could walk across the room. One day I asked what they were to have for dinner, and said I wanted something hearty. My mother was so happy she cried. It was the

First Time I Had Felt Hungry for Two Years

I kept on with Hood's Sarsaparilla and in six months was as well as ever in my life. It is now four years since I recovered, and I have not had a day's sickness since, nor any hemorrhage. If ever a human being thanked the good Lord on bended knees it was I. I know that and that alone, unquestionably saved my life."

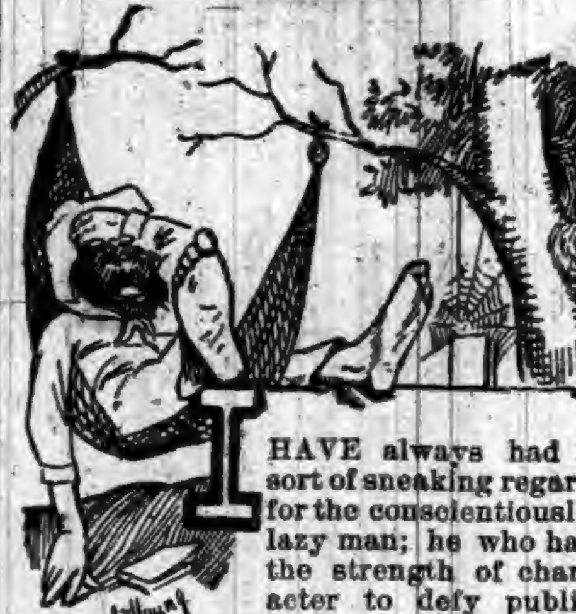
SWEETS OF LOAFING.

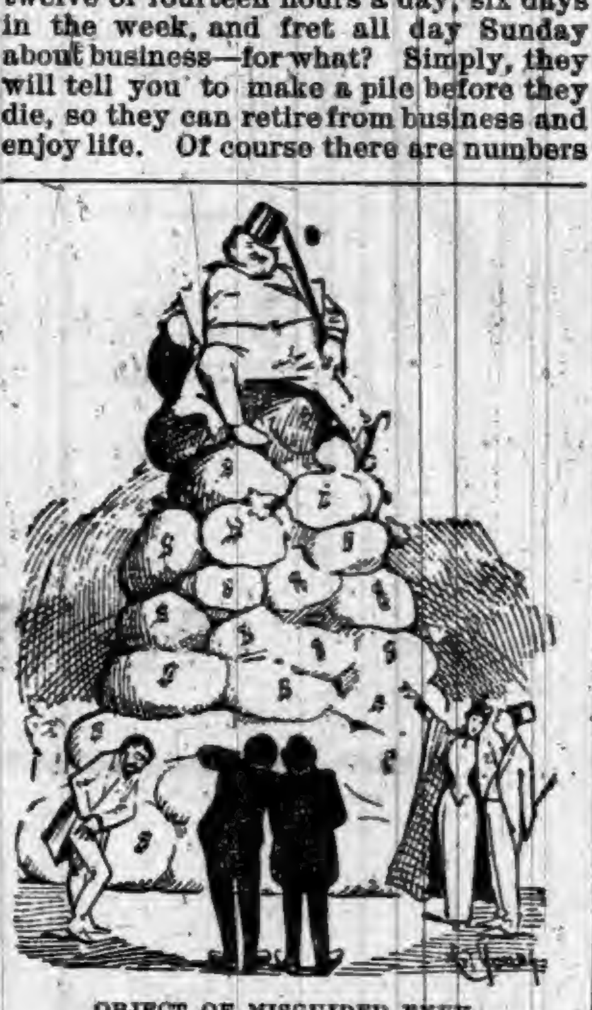
WHERE IT IS REGARDED AS A HIGH ART.

The Land of To-morrow—Hustlers Are Viewed with Suspicion—Conflagration Jones Investigates the Mahopi Habit in the Sandwich Islands.

Entomological Studies.

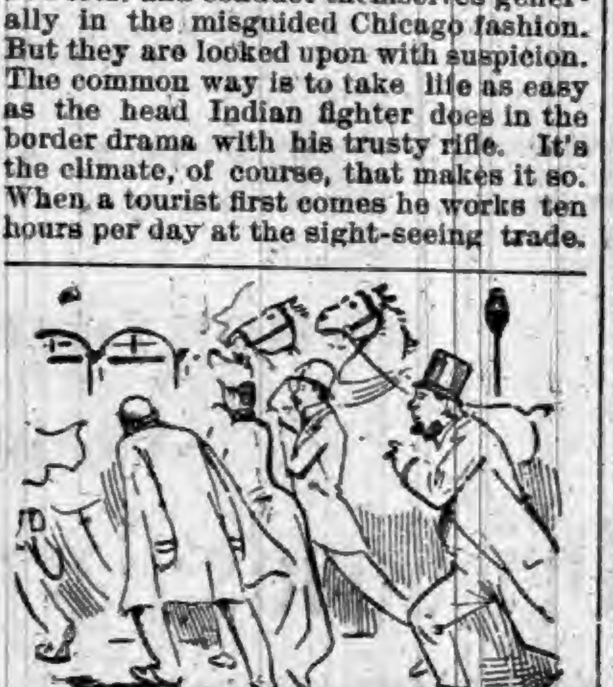


I HAVE always had a sort of sneaking regard for the conscientiously lazy man; he who has the strength of character to defy public opinion and to industriously devote himself to the sweets of indolence with the calm placidity of the truly great, writes Conflagration Jones in the Chicago Inter Ocean. Such a man is a king. He is more—he is a czar, and serenely entails suffering on others with the matter-of-course feeling which only belongs to absolute monarchs and pretty women. Thoreau, whose chief glory was that he could wear a patch or even a sunbonnet without a blush, found by actual experiment that seventeen days of labor would keep a man a year even in grudging New England, and that the hustle of the remaining 348 days went only to buy food which did not agree with us, clothes which were for show, not protection, and gilded shelter. The Apostle of Simplicity worked hard and then he loafed hard. It always seemed to me that he was not only sane but sensible. There are a good many men in Chicago to whom the greatest compliment of life is to be called "hustlers." They tear around like village people at a fire for twelve or fourteen hours a day, six days in the week, and fret all day Sunday about business—for what? Simply, they will tell you to make a pile before they die, so they can retire from business and enjoy life. Of course there are numbers with the magpie instinct who want to heap up a pile for the fun of the thing, so they can sit on the chilly apex of the same with a shotgun and be envied by the equally misguided but less fortunate. But these are not the masses, and the mass is what I am talking about. Most of them are struggling in the hope that some day we can live on our incomes and become respectable loafers and raise fancy pups and go fishing six days in the week and even on Sunday, if we are quiet about it. But this dream is of the future and it seems better—more certain—to collect our bill for labor on the installment plan and raise our pups and go fishing as we travel along.



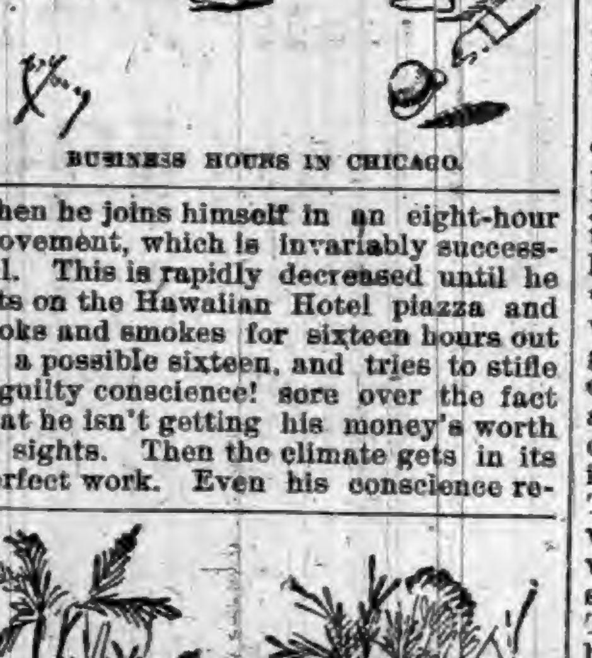
OBJECT OF MISGUIDED ENVY.

And that is what throws me into a trance of admiration over this country. It is fashionable to be lazy. There are hustlers here who build railroads and resort hotels, and lay out town sites and sell lots, and conduct themselves generally in the misguided Chicago fashion. But they are looked upon with suspicion. The common way is to take life as easy as the head Indian fighter does in the border drama with his trusty rifle. It's the climate, of course, that makes it so. When a tourist first comes he works ten hours per day at the sight-seeing trade.



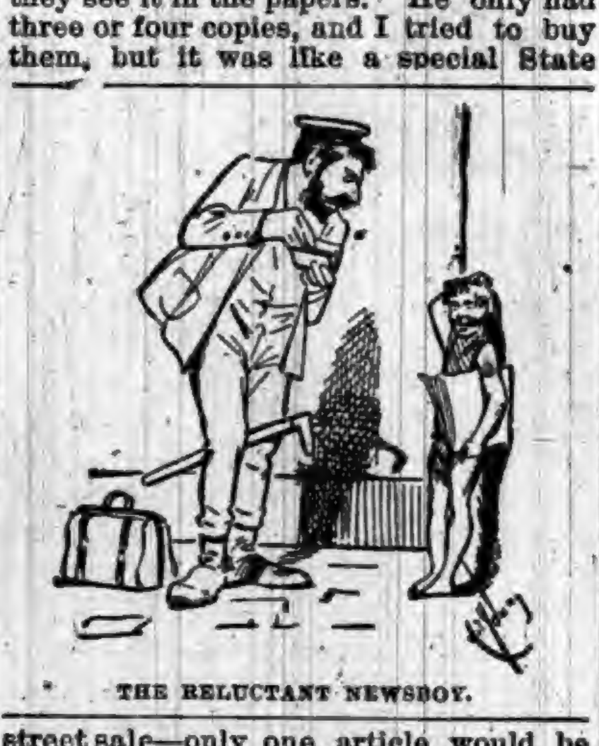
BUSINESS HOURS IN CHICAGO.

Then he joins himself in an eight-hour movement, which is invariably successful. This is rapidly decreased until he sits on the Hawaiian Hotel piazza and looks and smokes for sixteen hours out of a possible sixteen, and tries to stifle a guilty conscience! sore over the fact that he isn't getting his money's worth of sights. Then the climate gets in its perfect work. Even his conscience refuses to rise up and accurse him, and it soldiers the happy hours away with the abandon of utter debasement. If a man wants quiet and rest, and has any natural reluctance about going to jail, Honolulu is the next best place on earth to get it.



BUSINESS HOURS IN MAHOPI-LAND.

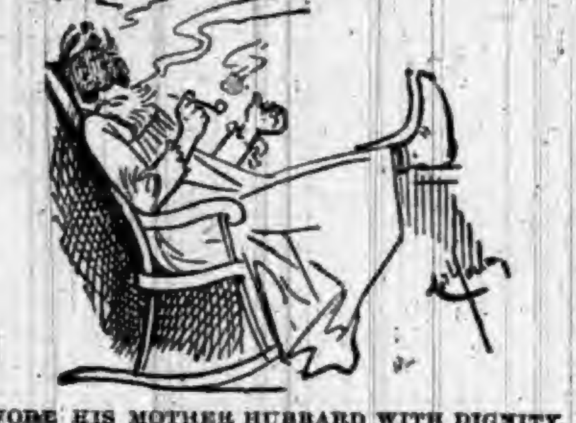
The islands are called, and rightfully called, the land of the Mahopi. Mahopi means to-morrow, next week, by and by, or never, according to the context and the intent of the speaker. Its most exact translation, however, is "by and by." If you ask a native to do anything for you and he says, "All right, I will, Mahopi," it means that you had better hustle for it yourself. It is a very handy word and it is worked pretty hard in the local vernacular. The natives live up to the Mahopi idea with religious consistency. The most energetic citizens of Chicago are the newsboys, and the gulf between them and the Honolulu article is something unspanable, even in fancy. The little Kanaka boy who sells the Pacific Morning Advertiser and the Evening Bulletin comes to the hotel and stands in a shadowy corner of the corridor with one bare foot on the other, and just looks sorry about something. His eyes are big and black and he looks with much pathos at the people who can read, but he doesn't do anything else to sell his papers. Indeed, he seems to part with them with a pang. The other day the Bulletin referred to me as "genial and accomplished." I wanted a number of copies to decorate with a frame of blue pencil marks and send to a lot of people—acquaintances of mine—who don't know how good or great a man is until they see it in the papers. He only had three or four copies, and I tried to buy them, but it was like a special State street sale—only one article would be sold to each person. He explained that if he sold out his business would be gone. I told him that he might go back to the city circulator and get all the papers remaining from that day's run and I would buy them. He said "Mahopi," and I haven't seen him since, while hundreds of Illinois people will go down to their graves and never know how genial and accomplished I am when away from home.



THE RELUCTANT NEWSBOY.

Instances of the mahopi habit spring up at every hand. A short time ago we stepped into the hut of a native in the outskirts of the town for a glass of water. We found the gentleman of the house at home. He had evidently said "mahopi" to some one a few days previously and was waiting for the affair to blow over. He was seated in a rocking-chair attired in his wife's Mother Hubbard. He was an exceedingly dignified and white-haired old gentleman, and received us with courtly courtesy and a warm handshake. Thoreau himself could not have worn the Mother Hubbard with more queenly grace. He explained casually that his only pair of jeans trousers were being mended, or laundried, or something. At any rate, his good wife had them temporarily, while, instead of going to bed, or bumping around in a coarse, ill-fitting, headless barrel suspended by galluses, as is the Chicago custom under similar stress of circumstances, he donned his wife's extra gown and wore it like a perfect lady. Had there been no such thing as mahopi in this country he would probably have owned as many suits of clothes as a professional beauty.

Mahopiism reaches clear into the realm of nature. Take for instance that superb type of industrial activity, the mosquito. The natives of the jungles of New Jersey or the swamps of Indiana are tireless. They work night and day, regardless of the behests of the trade unions, as long as the supply of raw material holds out or does not build a smudge. It would seem that they did the same here to the superficial observer. But we are not superficial observers—at least Burridge is not. He studies entomology every night. After crawling carefully under his mosquito canopy, kicking his heels wildly in the air to scare away those who would crawl under the canvas with him, he commences his researches. Usually there is a flock of mosquitoes purring away up in the gable end of his gauze tent. Then his career as the great human insecticide begins. You have seen a base-ball catcher working hard with a pitcher who delivers very wild balls. Well, that's Burridge to a nicety. There isn't any Mahopi about his action. A few nights ago, after bagging a considerable game, he stopped to examine and heft some of the best trophies.



WORE HIS MOTHER HUBBARD WITH DIGNITY.

"Look here, Jones," said he, "this one don't weigh as much by a quarter of a pound as those I killed this morning; just heft it once," and he tossed it over to me. He was right and we asked the hotel clerk about the discrepancy in weight of the game of the place. We were informed that it would try the energies of one mosquito too severely to be obliged to work all the time, so it was arranged that the tourists are to be chewed by different gangs. They work in two shifts, a night and a day shift. The day workers are large and gray, while, as Burridge discovered, those who burn the midnight electric light are smaller and are of a jet black color. The night gang seems to put more bichloride of scratch into its injections, but both shifts do a rushing business in the Dwight treatment. It is very amusing to see them when one set of hands replaces another. When the 6 o'clock whistle blows the day gang lays down its drills or stops its pumping works, as the case may be, wipes off its bills and leaves its job. Then the little black fellows come right in and take up the work, which goes on without a hitch. This arrangement prevents premature breaking down, paresis and all those ills incident to overwork. Mahopi is a great institution.

"False teeth, of course."

Two Canine Dromios.

Mr. McCormick was walking down town, not so much in the interest of his business, which runs itself, nor for the personal benefit of the physical exercise, but that the walk might tend to reduce the undue fleshiness of his favorite Irish red setter dog, Tip, who accompanied him, and who, because of the season's scarcity of rain and ducks, and because of "setting" too much around the bar stove, manifests an undesirable predisposition to mental and physical inactivity. When McCormick was about half-way up the block his tender heart was suddenly startled as he heard cries of sharpest distress, and instantly recognized the voice as that of his favorite. Turning and looking back, he could scarcely believe his eyes when they informed him that an uncouth individual had gathered Tip up by the scruff of the neck, and that the man was diligently and dexterously, in technical language, kicking the stuffing out of Tip. And as the man kicked he ejaculated:

"You won't do what I tell you, eh? You won't come to me when I call you, eh? I'll pulverize you, you viper!"

With a yell as of a tigress robbed of her numerous family of young but interesting tigers, Mr. McCormick leaped for the foe. Before the man had time to fall in the gutter the angered and artistic Mr. McCormick had struck him in three different places at one time, beside having kicked him simultaneously in the vest pocket and the small of his back. The confused man having imprudently struggled to his feet, Mr. McCormick varied the second downing of him by effecting it with three kicks and two blows.

"Wot's the matter of you, anyhow?" asked the bruised, bleeding and muddled victim from his vantage ground of a now wisely-maintained horizontal position.

"Wot did you kick my dog for?" asked the glowering McCormick.

"Tain't your dog—it's mine," said the prostrate man, doggedly, so to speak, and then he called, coaxingly, "Here, Silk, Silk, Silk."

In response to this call for a witness, a badly-intimidated and evidently recently-kicked Irish red setter dog made a cowering approach to the recumbent supplicant, as if he had not yet clearly taken in the situation and did not know what diverse fate of kick or caress might portend. Mr. McCormick looked at the dog critically, then he cast his eyes searchingly round, and immediately in his rear, seated serenely on his haunches and gazing approvingly and all unkicked at his master, he beheld his own beloved Tim.

"Well, blame me," finally ejaculated McCormick, "if they don't beat ghosts or the Siamese twins! Say, boss, you must excuse me, but your dog is the very counterpart of mine, and blame me if I didn't think all the time it was Tip you was kickin'. So long."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Frightful Shipwrecks.

Stanch ships strike and founder, the fierce winds and mountainous waves sweep noble mariners' "hearts of oak" to shipwreck and to death, yet that does not prevent the lubberliest landsman from risking his life on the stormy Atlantic in the role of tourist or commercial traveler. But if he shall reach his destination safely he will scarcely have escaped some of the qualms of sea sickness, unless he takes with him Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, that inimitable specific for nausea. Bad water on long trips is a threat to the voyager, but this may be deprived in a great measure of its disordering effects upon the stomach, bowels and liver by the Bitters. Against the prejudicial effects of malaria, bad diet, fatigue and exposure it is also efficacious. It averts, moreover, rheumatism and kidney complaints. Don't travel on sea or land without it.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Mooted Question.

Alfred Kingsley Clover, in the Magazine of American History, asks the question: "Was America discovered by the Chinese?" He remarks that "since the year 1761, when the great French Sinologue, De Guines, gave to the world for the first time the ancient account of the Chinese Hoei-Shin, describing a distant land to which the name of Fusang was given, the world has been flooded with books, tractates and pamphlets bearing on the same interesting topic in which Fusang is identified as America."

NOW is the time to treat Catarrh of long standing. Ely's Cream Balm reaches old and obstinate cases, where all other remedies fail. Do not neglect procuring a bottle, as in it lies the relief you seek.

Rev. H. H. Fairall, D. D., editor of the Iowa Methodist, says editorially, "We have tested the merits of Ely's Cream Balm, and believe that, by a thorough course of treatment, it will cure almost every case of catarrh. Ministers as a class are afflicted with head and throat troubles, and catarrh seems more prevalent than ever. We cannot recommend Ely's Cream Balm too highly."

Apply Balm into each nostril. It is Quickly Absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail.

Progress and Prosperity.

Wisconsin has within the last few years undergone a wonderful change, and is to-day one of the most prosperous and productive States in the Union, and what has made it so? Why, because her rich fertile lands are well adapted and produce large crops of wheat, oats, corn, barley, rye, potatoes, hay, flax, hops, and tobacco; because her lumber and timber trade exceeds that of any State east of the Rocky Mountains; because of her enormous manufacturing interests, the quantity and value of her live stock, saying nothing of her mining products, fisheries, and enormous water-powers. This is a desirable State for settlers intending to locate in the Northwest.

The Wisconsin Central Lines, as its name would indicate, penetrates the center of the State, and tributary to its lines are the choicest farming and timber lands. Among the many thriving cities and towns along this popular route are Burlington, Waukesha, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Waupaca, Stevens Point, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, New Richmond, and Ashland.

The Magnetic Mineral Mud Baths,

Given at the Indiana Mineral Springs, Warren County, Indiana, on the Wabash Line, attract more attention to-day than any other health resort in this country.

Hundreds of people suffering from rheumatism, kidney trouble, and skin diseases, have been cured within the last year by the wonderful magnetic mud and mineral water baths. If you are suffering with any of these diseases, investigate this, nature's own remedy, at once. The sanitarium buildings, bath-house, water works, and electric light plant, costing over $150,000, just completed, open all the year round.

Write at once for beautiful illustrated printed matter, containing complete information and reduced railroad rates. Address F. Chandler, General Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo., or H. L. Kramer, General Manager of Indiana Mineral Springs, Indiana.

IN the cold regions of the far North, where timber or bark is difficult or impossible to get, boats of skin are almost exclusively employed. To provide material for them the native hunter relies upon the seal, the sea lion and the walrus. Many patterns of such craft are utilized in the fisheries pursued among the Aleutian Island and elsewhere on the Alaskan coast.

MUCH speculation has been indulged in as to the nature of the glow worm's light, which is not put out by water nor seemingly capable of giving forth any heat. His mother married a second time, and one daughter was the result of the union. Each of the daughters is, of course, a half sister to the son, although there is no blood relation between the two.

Little George, son of Mr. and Mrs C. E. Emanuel, is a bright little lad of about four. He delights especially in Sunday school, and carefully treasures up all he hears there. The other morning he woke up and called out to his father: "Papa, I know what the chief end of man is." Well, what is it?, said papa, and the young theologian replied, "it is to glorify God and have a good time." And he insists that is right.

BEEKS ERICK,
Chairman.

March 23, 1892.

People's Party.

A meeting of the members of the People's Party of Union township will be held in Auburn

Saturday April 2, 1892,

at 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of electing delegates and other business that May be brought before the convention.

E. D. RAUB.
Temp Chairman.

Roger Q. Mills, is now senator from Texas. Good.

The democracy is the only party of progress. It has maintained and enacted into laws, the only decided improvements of the past ten years.

The "surplus" is still growing less. If reckoned as the last democratic surplus of sixty millions was reckoned, it would now stand at four and a half millions.

Democrats should not forget their caucuses. The various candidates for county, district, state and national nominations should be discussed so that the delegates will know what is expected of them.

The wealthy banks that have heretofore escaped with but light taxes, are now uniting with the railroads to break down the new tax law. And yet republican papers claim that corporations have been favored.

The Columbia City Daily Commercial, is not green, as a general thing, but very much to the contray. However, on "St Patrick's Day in the Morning," it came out on green paper, in honor of the worthy saint of whom they say:

"He drove the frogs into the bogs.
And banished all the vermin."

The beet sugar business in Wisconsin, shows a yield of over 22,000 pounds per acre, costing all told $27. But the government bounty on this at 2 cents a pound, is $44, or $17 more than the total cost of the crop. The sugar can still be sold. And now who says it is right to pay a bounty on so profitable a crop?

Harrison, and republicans generally, are just now bitterly opposed to the "Michigan plan" of voting for presidential electors by congressional districts. But the ablest republican the party ever had, Gov. Morton, not long before his death reported a bill in the senate, advocating in the strongest language, this very plan. Republicans have poor memories.

Judge McClellan has again called up his bill for taxing incomes the same he presented to congress last year. It ought to pass in all fairness and reason. Certainly it should pass the House, and then if the senate refuses to concur make it responsible for it. We shall publish the bill in full at an early date, so people may see its justice. There should be enough men like Judge McClellan, to see the bill through.

Judge Woods received his pay last week, for his political services to Harrison and Dudley. The senate confirmed him to a place on the supreme bench, by a strict party vote of 25 to 24. There were several "pairs" not voting, including Senator Hill, of New York, who was in the south. There were also five republican senators not paired, who evidently were ashamed to help put such a man on the bench. When the vote was ordered taken, a number of them walked out, and when the last person present had voted, the president pro tem, Manderson, of Neb., saw Woods was beaten and he sent out and called in senators till he had 24, the same as the democrats had, and then he gave the casting vote for Woods. The testimony taken against Woods, is to be published.

Court.

Work has been going steadily on. The grand jury is done, and gone home. Becher who was up on charge of stealing a valuable ring of Mrs. Hodge was discharged for want of sufficient proof. Hartman, the man who had the trouble in his family and threatened to kill Simeon Maurer, had to give $100 bonds to keep the peace. Evans, who killed the Negro at Butler, will be tried next term. Sabina was divorced from Edward Bretz, and Peter, from Laura E. Freed. There was no court yesterday, but will be to-day.

New Spring and Summer Millinery.

Miss F. A. Husselman went up to the city last week to attend the openings and to study and work in the trimming rooms and returned Friday with a large stock of fresh millinery. She will be glad to show them to all her friends and everybody that would be interested in what is new and novel in her line. Call and see them early and get prices which will be the lowest to start with and at the same time something nice and stylish. Store room over Lipsett's grocery, Corunna, Ind. 12 13

Commissioners' Court.

Since our last report the Commissioners received a petition for the Addison Baughman ditch, in Union. Viewers, Fred Gfeller, John Boots, Geo. Duncan. Meet at source, April 1.

C. P. Glazier, superintendent of the County Home, filed his quarterly report of the receipts and expenditures of the Home, as required by law to do once in three months.

Wednesday, March 16, the board passed the following order:

Whereas, The Board of Commissioners, Lyman Lockwood excepted, find that an indispensable public necessity has for several years past existed, and still exists to employ persons to assist the county surveyor in the performance of work with which he is charged as such officer, in order to preserve from filling up and from destruction hundreds of miles of public ditches in this county, and to preserve the public health, and the court finding it a physical impossibility for the county surveyor to perform such work, therefore it is ordered, that Frank Scholes be allowed the sum of $72 for such work done as per two bills on file. Lyman Lockwood, commissioner for the southwest district of said county protests against the allowance of the claims of Frank Scholes, for $72.

Then came the contest over the application of W. J. Miller for a license to sell liquor, a remonstrance having been filed by Peter Young. The next day, Thursday, the board met in the court room, and argument was heard and witnesses examined. After a full examination the license was refused.

C. P. Glazier was retained another year, as superintendent of the County Home.

The grand jury at their visit to the poor farm, last week, made the following recommendation:

We, the grand jury of DeKalb circuit court for the March term 1892, do recommend to the Board of Commissioners that an account of the apparent good care given to the farm and premises of the county infirmary, that the present incumbent, as superintendent, be retained in said position for the succeeding year, at the same salary as had been paid him the past year, to-wit; for the amount of $800. Respectfully submitted.

Beautiful Spring.

With the bright spring days come the glad tidings of a grand opening through the various avenues and channels of our existence. The cold, frosty months of winter have passed us by, and soon, very soon, the chapping winds of March, will way to the balmy air and sweet influences of beautiful spring, when dame nature loosens the imprisoning shackles that have been fastened about her, and takes up her abode with a newer existence. Ere long the leafless trees in grove and forest will be clothed in delicate garbs of emerald, enlivened by the gay little songsters joyfully twittering their melodious songs of praise as they flit from branch in the full enjoyment of a natural liberty rendered more enchanting by the sweet harmony of nature's musicians; the now apparently lifeless flowers will soon lift their drooping heads with gladness, their faces kissed by the morning air and nurtured by the gentle dews, which sparkle in the warm sunlight, until by and by from each tiny petal will shoot forth richly colored flowers, whose simple beauty lends a pretty contrast in harmony to the verdant carpeting of the earth's great drawing room. This is certainly a very inviting picture, and when wreathed in garlands of culture, produces a scene entrancingly beautiful. While new life is being infused into nature's realms, there is a new impetus lent to the business phases of our existence, and during the ecstasy of the moment, while undergoing the delightful consummation of real enjoyment, A. Lewis & Co., have something to offer in the line of lumber, lath, shingles and building materials generally, that please and at the same time interest those who intend to build as to quality, quantity and prices. There is a a very complete stock to select from and prompt service in filling all orders as soon as received. Office and yard, near the L. S. & M. S. elevators, Auburn.

Uncle Jonathan Swander is a pretty lively old chap for one of his years, and has had some interesting experiences. One of the strangest of these happened many years ago, when he and some friends were fishing at a small lake near Rome City. A young man of the party suddenly got up in his sleep one night, and coolly walked off into the water. It was shallow for a short distance, and Mr. Swander, who was awake, watched him till he reached deep water, thinking the cold bath would wake him. But as he kept right on, Mr. Swander sprang hastily after him just as he got beyond his depth, caught him and by main strength pulled him ashore. Even then, the young man did not seem to understand how he had got so wet. It was a thrilling incident, and Mr. Swander becomes intensely interested every time he relates it.

The cantata of Jephthah and His Daughter, as it was given at the Opera House, Friday and Saturday evenings, was simply grand—it was the best entertainment of the kind ever given in Auburn. The director, J. High Stauffer, of Loudonville, Ohio, is a master of his business, and is able to make it a success anywhere. He is, moreover, a gentleman of high character, of refinement, and conscientious in all that he does. Our people, especially the young people with whom he associated in this entertainment, speak of him in the highest terms of esteem. It is also, but just to say that the musical and dramatical talent of our Auburn young people contributed largely to the success of the cantata. The singing, both in chorus and solo, was very fine, while the dramatic work was no less creditable. The tableaus were beautiful and artistic, and everyone we have met speaks in praise of the whole entertainment. The patronage was fair, but no greater than would be given to a much poorer traveling show. Their expenses, of course were heavy, for about seventy, old and young took part, and then there was the hall for two nights, besides the smaller items of cost. There was work enough, both of hands and brain, put out on this to deserve double the receipts. The faithfulness, industry and perseverance of our young people, deserve all the encouragement we can give, and much more than ever has been given Mr. Stauffer is in Butler, this week, where we believe he will produce the fine cantata of "Esther the Beautiful Queen," and we can assure the good people over there, that he will make a success of anything he undertakes. We have no hesitation in saying they will be pleased with him

What has become of the committee that was appointed to solicit subscriptions to the new gas enterprise? We have not seen them doing much. Frank Hoff is now in Germany, but the rest are here. We hope to see them make an active canvass, for if an additional supply of gas can be obtained by boring for it, we surely ought to have it.

A dirty little trick was played last week on Charles Kirkpatrick of Richland township, by some smart Alec, who sent a letter to the COURIER saying that Mr. K. and Edith Yates were married at the residence of E. Tyler, last week, by Rev. Halkings. The name of Mr. Tyler was signed to the article and so, having no reason to suppose anything was wrong, it was published. Mr. Kirkpatrick says it is all a scurvy trick, and the one who did it will be called to account. In fact all four of the persons named in the item, are placed in a false position, and the COURIER itself was made an unwilling victim, though utterly innocent of any intended wrong. Whoever did it, will get nicely roasted, if he is ferreted out.

Clerk Bishop received a letter last week from Mrs. Prescott, whose home is at Battle Creek, Mich., asking information as to her husband, Jesse Prescott, the man who is reported to have married Hattie Baker, of this place. She asks if he obtained a divorce here, or got a new license. Mr Bishop says he has issued no such license nor has there been such a divorce case in our court, and he so informs Mrs. Prescott. It begins to look as if Prescott is a first-class rascal.

Starving Peasants Attack a Mayor's House but Are Driven Off—Roger Q. Mills Elected United States Senator—Wisconsin's Apportionment Bill Unconstitutional—Home for Printers.

STARVING PEASANTS

Make an Attack Upon a Mayor's House But Are Driven Off.

Buda Pesth special: A serious riot is reported in the town of Orecho, where the peasants have for some time been in receipt of public relief. The inhabitants of the place have complained for some time past that the distribution of bread was not fairly conducted. Finally they broke out in revolt against the officials and besieged the Burgomaster's house. They smeared the house with tar, and then set it on fire, and drove back the frantic inmates when they endeavored to escape. Fortunately a number of farmers, who heard of the uprising, and of the revengeful designs of the excited rioters, gathered to the rescue and after a desperate struggle, drove off the besiegers, saving the lives of the Burgomaster and his family.

Boyd-Thayer.

Omaha special: John M. Thayer by his attorneys, Joseph Blair, C. A. Goss and ex-Judge Reese, has filed in the Supreme Court at Lincoln a motion asking that the judgment of the court, granted March 16th, on the mandate of the United States Supreme Court be set aside and that he recover his costs. He further asks that the execution awarded be recalled, and vacated and set aside; that he be given leave to file a reply to Boyd's answer in the case, and that a day be set for trial. The court took the matter under advisement. It will be several days before the court will decide on the motion. If it is granted the whole case will be retried, but all this time Boyd will remain in the executive chair as a writ of ouster can not issue.

Mills Elected Senator.

R. Q. Mills has been elected by the Texas Legislature to the United States Senate in the place of Horace Chilton, who was appointed by Gov. Hogg to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John H. Reagan. Mills received 120 votes on the first ballot, his election being practically unanimous. Chilton withdrew from the contest, in a note addressed to the Chairman of a Caucus of his friends. He said that, while he preferred to fight the battle out to its logical conclusion, he realized that his election was impossible under the circumstances, and rather than involve his friends, who, while preferring him, had been instructed by their constituents to vote for Mills, he would withdraw.

A Big Strike.

A special from Ottawa dated the 24th inst., says: At midnight the Canadian Pacific conductors, brakemen and switchmen on the Cartior, Chapleau and North Bay divisions went on a strike. To-morrow the men on the Eastern division will strike, paralyzing the entire system from the Atlantic to the Pacific involving 10,000 miles of road. This evening several hundred men were sworn in here as special constables to go to various parts of the line to protect the company's property and employes. One of the new conductors was shot at Fort William last night, and another at North Bay to-day. The shooting was done by strikers.

Home for Printers.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, has accepted an invitation to deliver the dedicatory address at the Childs-Drexel home for printers, at Colorado Springs, on the 12th of next May. This is the institution founded by George W. Childs, in the aid of which all the union printers in the United States contributed on a certain day each year the price of 1,000 ems. Senator Gallinger was a printer in early life and naturally feels complimented at being called upon to participate so prominently in an event which is to be historical. The 12th of May, it might be added, is the anniversary of Mr. Childs' birth.

Fire at the Capitol.

Quite a fire occurred in the document room of the National House of Representatives, which was caused, it is thought, by a lighted cigar being thrown among the documents. This is the third occurrence of fire this session and the fifth which has occurred in this portion of the building in recent years. Several hundred books were destroyed, and a few engravings. The damage will probably reach about ten thousand dollars.

The Kaiser Is Better.

It is semi-officially stated at Berlin that the Kaiser is much better in health, and that his ear malady is, for the present, not active. The Kaiser's physicians have concluded against having an operation performed, as proposed by Dr. Bergmann for the relief of the ear trouble.

The Election of Diaz Necessary.

Gen. Trevene, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Presidency of the Republic of Mexico, denies that such is the case, and declares that the re-election of President Diaz is necessary for the prosperity and welfare of the country.

A Bridal Party Blow Out the Gas.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stewart of Millersburg, Ohio, stopped at the Buchtel Hotel at Lima, Ohio, on their bridal tour. They blew out the gas. About midnight the door to their room was forced open and they were found asphyxiated.

Stanley's Trip.

The London World states that Henry M. Stanley will go to the Congo this year, in the interest of the Congo free state and remain in Africa for a long period.

Unconstitutional and Void.

The Supreme Court of Wisconsin has declared the apportionment bill, passed by the last Legislature, as unconstitutional and void.

The Blizzard's Work.

St. Louis special: The severe snow and wind storm which has raged during several days past over the Rocky Mountain country from Wyoming to Central Texas, has been exceedingly severe upon live stock. In Southern Colorado the loss to cattle and sheep will be very great while thousands have been frozen to death in New Mexico and Northern Texas. It is estimated that 20,000 cattle have perished along the line of the Denver, Texas and Gulf road between Trinidad, Col., and Fort Worth during the past week and as many more north and east of Trinidad.

The storm, however, has been the salvation to the wheat crop in Northern Texas, which looks finer than at any time during several years past, and gives promise of producing a larger yield than last year.

CAPRIVI WILL STAY.

That Is, If the Kaiser Requests Him To.

Berlin special: Both Caprivi and Minister Zedlitz are awaiting the action of the Kasier on their resignations, and it is believed that the Kaiser's sudden departure from the city was to avoid being forced to an immediate decision. It is also stated that Chancellor Caprivi resigned because he felt bound to sustan Minister Zedlitz, and not from any personal devotion of his own to the education bill, and that, if the Kaiser commands Caprivi to remain as Chancellor, the command will be willingly obeyed. It is believed that Count Zedlitz will persist in resigning under any circumstances. Among the National Liberals there is great rejoicing, and congratulations are pouring in upon Dr. Miquel for his firm stand against the education bill. Dr. Miquel, however, is reserved, and has not given any public expressions of satisfaction over his triumph.

London special: The St. James Gazette says that the Emperor William is a difficult master to serve. He believes that he holds his crown direct from God and that he has an inspired knowledge of what is good or evil for his people. He thinks that it is needless to secure the good will of the people.

The Evening News says that the Kaiser has again been checked in his progress to omnipotence.

The Pall Mall Gazette says that the crisis is simply that the Kaiser has wisely changed his mind, and that, as he cannot resign, his ministers must. The situation would only be serious if Chancellor Caprivi should insist upon following Zedlitz. The Kaiser has shown that the theory of absolutism could be qualified by a fairly keen sense of popular opinion.

CHICAGO "BOODLERS."

A Dozen Aldermen Indicted and More to Follow.

Chicago special: A sensation was sprung upon the citizens of Chicago, when an even dozen of members of the City Council were brought before the grand jury to answer to charges of boodling in connection with recent granting of franchises to various corporations, most prominent among them the recent Compressed Air Motor franchises for street railways. It was developed that the grand jury had been investigating the actions of the City Council and it is stated upon good authority that indictments have been found against ten and probably twelve of the guilty officials. The charges are numerous and have an air of guilty corruption that it will be hard for the defendants to explain away. It is stated that one member of the Council has turned State's evidence and has given up the whole matter to the grand jury, together with $1,200 which he received as his share of one bribe which was taken by himself and colleagues.

A member of the grand jury, who is thoroughly acquainted with the case, was seen and while he would give no names, or the nature of the evidence, he stated emphatically that sufficient evidence is already in sight to send several aldermen to Joliet for good terms.

CAPRIVI RESIGNS.

The Great Statesman and the Kaiser Differ on the Educational Bill, with the Above Result.

Berlin special: The report of the Chancellor's resignation has excited the greatest sensation throughout the city and crowds throng the Unter den Linden discussing the ministerial crisis. Caprivi offered his resignation at the Cabinet meeting as the result of the protracted contest on the education bill, which the Chancellor, as Prussian Premier, has championed from the first.

There is no definite information as to the action of the Kaiser on the Premier's resignation. It is known that the Kaiser has apprehended for some time an event of the kind on Caprivi's part and has also been much disconcerted by the trouble which the education bill has aroused. The Kaiser got out of his bed against the advice of his physicians in order to confront the approaching political storm.

A HORRIBLE TALE.

Twenty Million People Sick and in Danger of Starvation in Far Off Russia.

A special cablegram to New York from St. Petersburg contains the following appeal from the committee of American citizens who were sent to Russia to aid in alleviating the distress of the famine-stricken people of that country:

"If the American people knew the extent of the suffering in the famine districts of Russia they would everywhere come to the rescue. Twenty millions of people are affected and in danger of death from starvation. Typhus fever is raging in many provinces and horses and cattle are perishing of hunger. Does this not appeal to the hearts of those able to help? Russia is deeply grateful to the American people for what they have done. The distribution of supplies is under the direction of the American Minister and an excellent committee. Nothing will be wasted. Every particle of food will be properly distributed. Help us.

"RUDOLPH BLANKENBURG,
"A. K. DREXEL, JR.,
"ALEX W. BIDDLE,
"Committee of American citizens sent to Russia."

Judge Woods Confirmed.

Judge Woods of Indiana, despite the fight that has been made upon him, has been confirmed as a judge of the new Federal Court. The Senate in executive session confirmed the following nominations: William A. Woods of Indiana, Seventh Judicial Circuit; William L. Putnam of Maine, First Circuit; Emanuel Shipman of Connecticut, Second Circuit; George M. Dallas of Pennsylvania, Third Circuit; Nathan Goff of West Virginia, Fourth Circuit; Andrew H. McCormick of Texas, Fifth Circuit; William H. Taft of Ohio, Sixth Circuit; Walter H. Sanborn of Minnesota, Eighth Circuit; Joseph McKenna of California Ninth Circuit; Chas. T. Bogg of California, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy. Judge Woods was seen by a reporter after the above confirmations were received. He heard of the action of the Senate with complacency, and when asked if he had anything to say, said he didn't care to express himself. His confirmation has been resisted by Senator Voorhees and others. The new Court of Appeals was established to relieve the Supreme Court of the United States, which is more than three years behind in its work

Big Money Appropriated for Western Waterways.

The river and harbor bill, as reported to Congress, has the following appropriations recommended in it: Ohio—Harbor at Sandusky, $10,000; Ohio River, $60,000; Ohio River below the mouth of Beaver River, for construction of moveable dam, $100,000. Illinois—Calumet, $75,000; Illinois, $100,000. Wisconsin—Fox River, $75,000; Menominee, $20,500. Minnesota—Red River of the North $12,000. Indiana—Wabash below Vincennes, $60,000. Michigan—Saginaw, $100,000; Black River, at the mouth, $10,000; Rouge River, $11,690; Detroit River, removing shoals from Detroit to Lake Erie, $30,000; Grassepointe channel, $10,000; Black River, opposite Port Huron, $10,000.

Frightful Accident in a Saw-Mill.

East Jordan (Mich.) special: The boiler of the East Jordan Lumber Company's Mill, No. 2, known as the "Big Red Mill," blew up, instantly killing the following persons: William Beach aged 18, unmarried; Simon Carney, aged 26, unmarried; Peter Sheldon, aged 22, unmarried; John Brown, aged 20, unmarried; Bert Cook, aged 30, leaves a widow; Emanuel Hunt, aged 40, leaves a widow and one child. Those dangerously injured are: Sanderson Rienhard, badly injured about the limbs; John Ringle, seriously injured about the head, will die; Anozi Christy, seriously hurt and recovery doubtful; James Smith, seriously injured. The mill, valued at $10,000, is a total wreck. The cause of the explosion is still unknown.

Ran Into the Ditch.

A Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western passenger train ran into the ditch about twenty miles west of Findlay, Ohio, by the breaking of a rail. Alex Shannon, the engineer, and E. E. White, the fireman, were fatally injured, being pinned under the engine. Luther M. Myers, City Marshal of Findlay, had his shoulder crushed. Lydia Eaton had her right leg seriously hurt. Jane Thurston suffered a crushed foot. A number of others received slight injuries.

It is remarkable that the list of fatalities was not larger as the engine and two coaches, in which there were twenty-five passengers, were demolished. The loss to the railroad is about $25,000.

Big Fire in Chicago.

Fire broke out in the Burton Block, corner of Clinton and Van Buren streets, Chicago, occupied by several manufacturing firms. The fire was caused by an explosion in the basement and spread rapidly. During the progress of the fire the fourth floor fell carrying all of the floors with it and forcing out the front wall. Thirty firemen were working in front, and for a moment it was feared that many had been killed or injured by the falling bricks. Only two were injured, however, policeman John Mitchell and fireman Martin McAboy being slightly hurt. This is the fourth time this building has been on fire in the last three years. Loss about $100,000.

Miners and Police.

London special: News received from Durham is to the effect that the miners on a strike are desperate, owing to what they consider their desertion by the federation. The miners are gathering in crowds and are very turbulent. When the police attempted to disperse the disorderly crowds they were met by a violent resistance and several sharp encounters occurred. A force of soldiers are held in readiness to assist the police. The Durham miners are on a strike against a proposed reduction of 10 per cent. in wages. They number in all about 90,000 and have a strong union distinct from the Miners' Federation.

Peoria Printers May Strike.

Trouble is threatened between the publishers and the Typographical Union of Peoria, Ill., on account of a new scale that the printers are seeking to enforce. The new scale is an advance of nearly twenty per cent. over the old one and cannot be met by some of those employing printers, all of whom have signified their willingness to accept the old scale, which is claimed to be out of proportion to that paid in similar cities. One or two establishments will suffer, while many printers will be thrown out of employment.

Dreadful Accident.

D. M. Peterson, agent of the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City railroad at Decatur, Ind., was run over and instantly killed. A freight train was making a running switch when he came out of the freight house. Two cars were coming back on the main track, while he was going across to the side-track on which the engine was. His foot caught in a frog, and, while pinioned, the cars struck him in the back, bearing him down, running over him lengthwise, so that death was instantaneous.

Victory for the English.

London special: The prospective appointment of Mr. Herbert Vaughn, Bishop of Salford, to be the successor of Manning, as Archbishop of Westminster, and presumably also a cardinal, is considered a victory for the English Catholic, as distinct from the Anglo-Irish who favored Bishop Hedley of Newport.

Indiana Clay and Coal.

State Geologist Gorby has arranged for an exhaustive report of the clay and coal deposits of Indiana which will be embodied in the nineteenth report of the stone and coal fields, which, when completed, will contain much information.

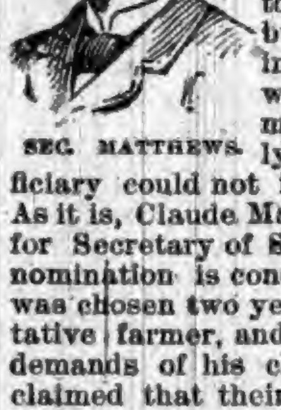
GOOD MEN AND TRUE.

INDIANA STATE OFFICIALS ARE POPULAR.

Their Services Have Been Invaluable, and They Will Be Renominated by the Democratic Convention—What They Have Done for the State.

May Be Governor.

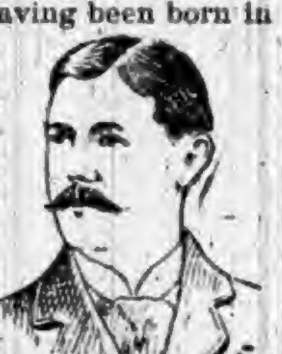
Indianapolis correspondence: Time out of mind in Indiana it has been customary to reward with a second nomination the faithful public servant who has borne the heat and burden of one campaign for office, and the present Democratic State officers are therefore looking with a good deal of complacency upon the approaching State convention, for they feel that their calling by the party, whatever may be the result of the election, is sure. In the present instance custom has been doubly strengthened by the personal popularity of the men who will ask renominations at the hands of the party, and the doubt is not whether each will be nominated for his present position by acclamation, but whether the Secretary of State, who headed the ticket two years ago, will not be taken from the list and nominated for the governorship. This would be to break the custom, but it would be such an innovation as the party would deem it wise to make, and one, certainly, to which the beneficiary could not in conscience object. As it is, Claude Matthews is a candidate for Secretary of State, and to him the nomination is conceded to belong. He was chosen two years ago as a representative farmer, and in obedience to the demands of his class, who have long claimed that their interests have suffered by reason of the fact that State positions of honor and emolument were not open to the farming classes. Matthews is not only a farmer but is one of the very best in the State.



SEC. MATTHEWS.

A Capable Auditor.

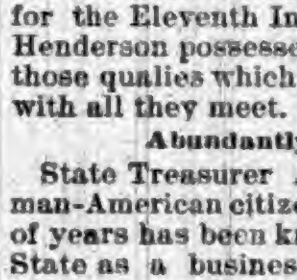
J. O. Henderson, Auditor of the State, is a native Hoosier, having been born in Howard County forty-two years ago, and lived there continuously till he was elected to his present position. His father founded the Kokomo Dispatch. In 1876 the son entered upon an active career of journalism that has made him one of the best-known newspaper men in the State. About the same time he entered into politics, and for ten years past has been regarded as one of the brightest young leaders of the Indiana Democracy. For several years he was Chairman of the County Committee of Howard County, and in 1885 was appointed by President Cleveland as Internal Revenue Collector for the Eleventh Indiana District. Mr. Henderson possesses in a rare degree those qualies which make men favorites with all they meet.



AUDITOR HENDERSON

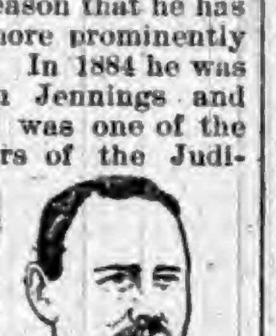
Abundantly Qualified.

State Treasurer Albert Gall is a German-American citizen, and for a number of years has been known throughout the State as a business man of more than ordinary popularity. He was educated in the public schools of this city, and in 1864 engaged in the carpet and drapery business, which he still carries on, having been remarkably successful and having made a large number of friends throughout the State. He never aspired to office till some of his friends brought him out as a candidate for State Treasurer in 1890. Though there were several candidates before the convention, he was nominated on the second ballot, and proved as popular as a candidate as he had been as a business man.



TREASURER GALL.

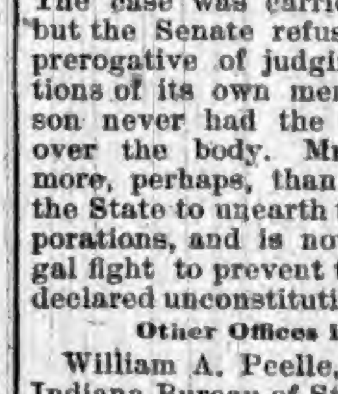
A. G. Smith, Attorney General, is possibly the best known of the several State officers, for the reason that he has been before the State more prominently than any of the others. In 1884 he was elected Senator from Jennings and Jackson Counties, and was one of the most energetic members of the Judiciary Committee during that session. Before the Senate adjourned he was chosen President pro tem. of the body. This opened up an entirely unexpected field, and led to some of the most sensational scenes that were ever enacted in a legislative body. In 1886 Lieut. Gov. Manson resigned to accept a government appointment, and in the election that year R. S. Robertson was chosen to succeed him. The Democrats denied that a lieutenant governor could be elected to fill a vacancy, and when Robertson appeared to preside over the Senate his claims were ignored and he was ejected from the Senate chamber by order of Smith, who was presiding. The case was carried into the courts, but the Senate refused to surrender its prerogative of judging of the qualifications of its own members, and Robertson never had the honor of presiding over the body. Mr. Smith has done more, perhaps, than any other man in the State to unearth the taxables of corporations, and is now engaged in a legal fight to prevent the law from being declared unconstitutional.



ATTORNEY GENERAL SMITH.

Other Offices in Litigation.

William A. Peelle, Jr., Chief of the Indiana Bureau of Statistics, is a native of Wayne County and has lived in this city since 1874. When Neff was elected Secretary of State in that year Peelle came here as his deputy and served two terms under J. G. Shanklin, who succeeded Neff in 1878. In 1883 Peelle was elected Chief of the Statistical Bureau by the Legislature, and re-elected in 1885, 1887, and 1889. In the latter year Gov. Hovey denied the right of the Legislature to elect the Statistician, and suit was brought by his appointee for the office. The litigation thus inaugurated dragged on for two years, when the Supreme Court decided that the office should be filled by popular election. Peelle was nominated in 1890 and elected in November of that year.



W. A. PEELLE, JR.

IN a criminal lately beheaded in France the beats of the heart were noted during more than six minutes, and experiments were made to demonstrate the independence of the ventricular and articular contractions; this is the first time such observations were ever made on man.

STATISTICIANS estimate that there are over 3,000,000 women in this country who are engaged in work which is not domestic. Of this number 275 are ministers and 75 lawyers.

B. M. WADKINS of Goodview, has invented a machine for the manufacture of binder-twine out of straw or prairie grass. Mr. Wadkins has been experimenting with this machine for several years, and thinks he has completed an apparatus that will save farmers thousands of dollars. M. Wadkins says when his machine is once in operation the "twine trust" won't be "in it." He has had hundreds of offers from Eastern capitalists wanting to take stock. Steps will be taken to organize a stock company and have the plant located at Farmland.

THE most disastrous fire in the history of Bedford occurred recently, when eleven business blocks, composing half of the south side of the public square and three residences adjoining, were burned to the ground. Of the fourteen buildings there was insurance on but three and on these for small amounts. The fire was discovered in the chicken-house of W. A. Jones, a groceryman and poultry-dealer, and was evidently the work of an incendiary. Before the fire company could reach the scene the flames had communicated to the frame store buildings near and in a few minutes the whole block was in a blaze.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

MEASURES CONSIDERED AND ACTED UPON.

At the Nation's Capital—What Is Being Done by the Senate and House—Old Matters Disposed Of and New Ones Considered.

The Senate and House.

In the House, the 15th, on motion of Mr. Durborow, the Senate joint resolution was passed authorizing the Librarian of Congress to exibit certain documents at the World's Fair. The House then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Blount, of Georgia, in the chair) on the free wool bill. Mr. Coombs (New York) concluded his speech in favor of the bill. Others took part in the debate. In the Senate, Senator Morgan introduced a bill to increase the facilities of the Postoffice Department for obtaining the use of buildings for postoffice purposes. It proposed to interest private capital and enterprise in the construction of postoffice buildings on long terms of lease and to have fixed a maximum rate of rental. It was referred to the Postoffice Committee. Mr. Peffer introduced a bill which was referred to the Finance Committee, to regulate the value of certain coins and pieces of money and to give all sorts of current money the legal tender quality and to prohibit and prevent discrimination in favor of gold coin or bullion as money. Mr. Hale presented the conference report on the urgent deficiency bill, and it was agreed to. The Senate then proceeded to the consideration of the Military Academy appropriation bill. It was passed, and the Senate went into executive session. When the doors reopened the Senate adjourned.

In the House on the 16th, on motion of Mr. Richardson of Tennessee, a concurrent resolution was agreed to for the printing of 45,000 additional copies of the special report on the diseases of the horse. Mr. Joseph of New Mexico, from the Committee on Territories, reported a bill for the admission of New Mexico as a State of the Union. Placed on the House calendar. Mr. Smith of Arizona, from the same committee, reported a bill for the admission of Arizona. Same order. In the Senate House bill ratifying the act of the Arizona Legislature appropriating $30,000 in aid of the exhibition at the World's Columbian Exposition was reported and passed. Mr. Hale, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported a bill for the construction (by contract) of three battle ships of from 7,500 to 10,000 tons displacement, two armored coast defense vessels, five gunboats of 800 to 1,200 tons displacement, and eight first-class torpedo boats. Referred. Mr. Peffer introduced (by request) a bill with the following comprehensive title: "Creating a fund for the payment of pensions and for setting our army of idle laborers at work on extensive public improvements, for the removal of the strongest incentive to crime among the poor and to vice among the rich, for protecting the American from the influx of undue alien competition; and for other purposes." The fund contemplated in the bill is to be furnished by a graduated tax on incomes and real estate. Referred.

The tariff debaters in the House had a large gallery audience up to adjournment the 17th. The debate thrashed over old straw and was on the whole uninteresting. Payne, of New York; Rayner, of Maryland, and Ellis, of Kentucky, were the speakers. In the Senate Mr. Fry reported the Senate bill making Council Bluffs, Iowa, a port of delivery, and it was passed. Mr. Hawley reported a bill to amend the statute relative to certificates of merit to enlisted men of the army (the amendment being to change the word "privates" into the words "enlisted men"), and it was passed. Mr. Peffer introduced a bill establishing an electric experimental station for the purpose of investigating and determining whether electricity can be profitably used and applied as a motive power in the propulsion of farm machinery. Referred to Committee on Agriculture. The Senate then proceeded to the consideration of executive business, and soon adjourned.

In the Senate, on the 18th, on motion of Mr. Allison, the bill establishing a port of delivery at Des Moines, Iowa, was taken from the calendar and passed. Several bills were made special orders for next week, to come in after the West Virginia direct tax bill. In the House, Mr. McMillin, of Tennessee, from the Committee on Rules, reported a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to what sum of requisitions for payment under contract, otherwise for the various branches of the public service, were presented between the 3d and 29th of February, for which warrants or drafts were not issued for payment prior to March 1, 1892. Adopted. The Springer free wool bill was then taken up. A controversy sprung up between Messrs. Williams and Walker, of Massachusetts, relative to a personal attack of the former on the latter contained in a speech printed in the journal, but never delivered in the House. The matter was finally disposed of by referring the subject to the Committee on Printing for investigation, and the House proceeded to the consideration of the private calendar.

Sunday Newspapers.

BROTHER JOSEPH COOK intimates that Sunday newspapers are published to make money. "Well," rejoins the Boston Herald, "what is a Monday lectureship for, anyhow?"

JOSEPH COOK complains that Sunday newspapers are published to make money. Horse and horse! That is what the high and mighty Joseph lectures on Monday for.—Kansas City Journal.

THE Rev. Joseph Cook has enunciated the belief that Sunday papers are published to make money. He is to lecture in St. Paul in a few weeks, and there is no intimation that he will refuse to be paid. In fact, it is suspected that he lectures to make money.—St. Paul Globe.

MR. JOSEPH COOK should straightway submit a bill to the General Court, making it a finable offense for a man or woman to be seen with a Sunday newspaper in hand, with a proviso, of course, for the imprisonment of publishers and newsvenders who dare to imagine that the Puritanic Sabbath of old church and state times long since passed into innocuous desuetude.—Boston Globe.

THE clergymen made quite a demonstration against the Sunday newspapers up at the State House yesterday; but the Sunday newspapers will not reciprocate in kind. On the contrary, they welcome the aid of the ministers of the gospel in the work of enlightening and regenerating mankind. The Sunday newspapers will continue to do their share of labor in the vineyard, and they beseech the pulpit to lend its valuable co-operation as hitherto.—Boston Herald.

The Big Oil Trust.

THE Standard Oil Trust can afford to dissolve now, if the law really insists. But supposing it had to return the millions it has made by its monopoly!—Buffalo Express.

STANDARD OIL by any other name will smell just as sweet, its revenues be just as enormous, the methods of its manipulators just as odious.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

THE decease of the Standard Oil Trust is announced to occur March 21. But those oil men are slippery fellows, and the trust's death may be something like that of the lottery.—Boston News.

Sued by the Mafia.

IF the Italian bandits strung up by the New Orleans mob were worth $30,000 apiece, then the bills for damages put in against the Government of Chili by the American sailors of the Baltimore are very moderate.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

THE heirs of the six Italians slain by the New Orleans mob two years ago have sued that city for damages. Somebody is responsible for those murders, and the trial of these cases ought to show who. If mob law is constitutional law there the sooner the public knows it the better.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

A Pair of Jacks.

By Lulu Jamison.

CHAPTER I.

"Well, here I am," soliloquized Jack Beverly as he stood on the platform of a small country station. "I suppose that is the village through the trees yonder. I wonder what sort of hotel I'll find there. First rate, Frank says. But I know just how far his opinion goes. However, the scenery is promising, and I dare say I can stand a few weeks of this. So far so good. Now to see about my trunk and then——"

"Hello! where is my trunk?"

With the question on his lips the speaker moved down the narrow platform without encountering the familiar object he sought.

A small trunk of black leather, bearing his initials but no further resemblance to his property, was the only object in sight.

"A nice piece of business," he muttered. "What's to be done, I wonder. Ah, a man at last. Perhaps he can throw some light on the subject."

"Your trunk, sir," repeated the newcomer, when the grievance was explained. "Isn't that it, sir?"

"That thing!" Jack gave rather an uncomplimentary glance toward the small object of black. "No, mine does not resemble that in the least. They have failed to put it off evidently, and meantime I am greatly inconvenienced."

"I am very sorry, sir. No mistake in checking it, I suppose?"

"Mistake—no. I bought my ticket for Weston, and received my——"

"Ah," interrupted the man, with a smile of intelligence, "this is South Weston. Weston is five miles above."

Jack looked slightly bewildered.

"South Weston," he repeated, in perplexed tones; "I don't understand."

"No, sir; a very natural mistake. Two names much alike. I'll telegraph for your baggage. What name, please?"

"Name? Oh, my name—Beverly, but wait a second. There's no necessity to send for the thing. I'll take the next train to Weston."

"If you are Mr. Beverly, sir, you don't need to go to Weston."

Jack turned with a decided start to see the station master nodding familiarly to a short stout man who had come rather noiselessly upon them.

"I'm sorry I'm late, sir," continued the intruder. "Maje was in one of his tantrums. The carriage is right here, if you'll follow me."

An expression of surprise passed over the man's somewhat stolid face.

"Mr. Millard's, sir," he answered. "Your letter was delayed; we didn't get it until this morning. The old gentleman and Miss Millard expect you."

"The deuce they do," muttered Jack under his breath. "Millard! Millard! Ah, the name of Frank's charming friends; and my letter? Oh, Frank's, I dare say. Peculiar, though, I declare. I wonder if this fellow is perfectly sane."

"Look here," he added aloud; "are you quite sure that Miss—, that is, Mr—. Oh, confound it. Are you sure I am expected?"

The old man evidently thought he had wasted sufficient time in idle questioning, for his answer was somewhat short. "Mr. Beverly is expected, sir; I was told to meet him."

"All right," was the agreeable answer. "I cannot be mistaken in my own identity. Under the circumstances, I suppose, I should telegraph for my trunk. What is your name? Toby, eh? And this is the carriage and Maje. Well, Toby, let me know when we reach our destination."

With these words Jack stepped into the carriage, lit a cigar, and settled himself to enjoy the picturesque scenery about him.

"Here we are, sir."

After twenty minutes' riding Toby's head was thrust through the window with this information.

"Are we?" questioned Jack, recalling his wandering thoughts and turning his attention to the house before him. It was a long, low structure of stone and wood, surrounded by broad verandas and a quaint, old-fashioned garden, whose beds and borders were a medley of bright-hued flowers.

"Here comes Miss Millard, sir."

Again was Toby's head thrust through the window, and Jack found a fresh object to engage his attention. This time it was a girl riding towards him.

Whether she was pretty he could not decide after his first brief scrutiny, but her attire was highly disillusionizing. The faded, ill-fitting waist and skirt had evidently been diverted from its original use, and dignified into a riding habit, and the battered straw hat, confined beneath her chin by an almost colorless piece of ribbon, bore ample proof of long and hard service.

"An ill-dressed woman is always an abomination," commented Jack, "but that rig rather beats anything I've yet come across. I begin to think this family slightly off their mental balance. Confound that hat. It hides her face completely."

"Back already, Toby?" asked a fresh, clear voice, in a lowered tone, as the owner of the old hat came to a standstill.

"Yes, Miss Mary, and I've got him."

"Oh, Toby," was the answer in a half whisper. "What a way to express it. He may think we have some designs upon him. Is he in there?"

"Yes, miss," returned Toby, glancing through the carriage window to assure himself on this point.

Mary slipped from her saddle.

"I suppose you are Mr. Beverly," she said, looking rather curiously at Jack. "I am glad to see you, Mr. Beverly. Won't you come in. I will tell grandpa you are here."

The tone was warm and cordial, and Jack found himself studying intently the dark, haughty face.

It held all the charm of caprice and illusive moods. No feature was perfect. The mouth was too broad, the nose too short, but the eyes were clear and beautiful, the complexion rich and warm, the lips full and mobile.

"Frank was right in one particular," was his mental comment, as he followed Mary through the broad hall into the ample parlor.

"I'll tell grandpa you have come," Mary said again when they had reached this room. "He is quite an invalid. I fear you will find us both rather prosy. We have so few visitors. As a rule, we don't like them.

"That is rather plain spoken, isn't it?" she added with a slight accession of color, "but you must understand what I mean. Grandpa has decided that we shall be friends. He has been looking forward to your visit for some time."

"Well," commented Jack, as she left him to his meditations, "I must say I cannot understand this extraordinay interest in my humble self. If Frank holds the key to the riddle, I'll have it."

The riddle, as Jack called it, seemed more of a riddle than ever, when a few minutes later Mr. Millard welcomed him with the most cordial warmth.

Quite overpowered, Jack could only murmur his thanks, while the old gentleman followed up his first remarks by a number of questions, most of which, he answered himself.

"You are not like your father, my boy," he said, sinking back in his chair, and observing Jack with a scrutinizing interest. "You don't remember him, I dare say. We were great friends. His death affected me deeply, and it was only quite recently and by the barest chance that I heard of your existence. Well, well, how time flies! But reminiscences are always painful; let us talk of something more cheerful."

When supper was over, and Mary had left them for a few moments, Mr. Millard began to dilate upon the beauties of the country about them.

"I seldom go beyond my garden gate," he concluded, "but Mary knows the locality thoroughly."

"Then I hope Miss Mary will consent to play the guide for my benefit," remarked Jack.

"Yes, yes," put in the old gentleman; "she will. As I say, she knows the place thoroughly. She has lived here so long and been so much alone, it has been a solitary existence for her—very solitary. She has had no friends; no social advantages. Her lack of knowledge on many points might impress a stranger unfavorably. I have foreseen all the possibilities arising from such social isolation without possessing the power to avert them. You will excuse me for speaking in this way," he broke off abruptly, as an expression of pain flitted across his face. "These thoughts constantly obtrude themselves. They pain me inexpressibly. I have broken all my old ties. Mary is the one link that holds me to earth—her welfare my own interest in life."

These words, expressed with a peculiar earnestness, moved Jack deeply. He endeavored to put his own thoughts and feelings into words, but found it well nigh impossible to do so.

"Miss Millard does not happen to miss any of these advantages," he said at last. "Perhaps lack of worldly knowledge is to be preferred to an excess. She is——"

"Grandpa, are you discussing me?"

Both gentlemen turned with a slight start to see Mary standing in the open doorway.

"You were talking about me," she continued in a voice that held a hint of sharpness in its usual clear tone. "Please don't do so again, unless I am present to have my say."

"A spoiled child, as you see, Beverly," interrupted the old gentleman, with quaint humor. "I have found it impossible to deny her anything. Now I am allowed no rights whatever. Sit down, Mary; we will promise to be less personal in future."

Long after he was in bed that night Jack's thoughts constantly returned to Mary. Her bright, changeful face, her quaint, original sayings, even her very gestures, he recalled with wonderful vividness.

"Why didn't Frank give me some idea," he asked himself. "The slightest hint that I was to meet the most extraordinarily self-opinionated young woman, ever fashioned by the hands of the Almighty. How she would make some of Madam Grundy's votaries stare and start. I have an idea I sha'n't find my visit dull. I'm a lucky devil, any way you put it, and I must thank Frank for this last stroke of good fortune. By the way, I wonder how Frank discovered the friendship between my father and Mr. Millard, and why did he not tell me of it? I'll tax him with it when I write. Now it is but a poor part of wisdom to exhaust my mental forces in this way, so to sleep and dream."

CHAPTER II.

Mary Millard had no recollection of either mother or father. The one early event which had impressed itself upon her memory was the death of her grandmother.

She often recalled with painful vividness her grandfather's passionate grief, and the bitter cry with which he had clasped her to his heart:

"You are all I have in the world, Mary."

She was but seven years old when they came to live in the old house in the quiet New York village.

Contentedly self-buried, Mr. Millard devoted himself to his books, and apparently cared nothing for the world which circled round the changeless habits of his daily life. Mary's delight, however, knew no bounds. The beauty of life is irrepressible, and her heart was open to its faintest impression.

"We must call it Robin's Rest," she declared; "the trees are literally alive with robins. Oh, grandpa, I shall be so happy here."

And certainly she was happy as the violet in the shadow of the wildwood, or the birds who sang in the trees around here.

Her education, so far as books went, was gained from her grandfather, though the task of studying was not one to which she took kindly.

She learned more readily from nature itself. Her powers of observation were quickened and sharpened, and the very solitariness of her life gave a warmer tone to her imagination.

But what her grandfather regretted most deeply was her lack of friends, or friends of her own age and condition, South Weston being made up of hard-working farmers and their families, none of whom were interested in anythin higher than their stock and crops.

Under such conditions the years had passed, and Mary was eighteen before she herself realized the fact.

There was no change in her feelings or views of life, but she was conscious that her grandfather's eyes followed her with a deeper sadness than formerly.

One day he said to her quite suddenly: "Mary, do you realize that you are a woman?" Mary was decidedly startled at this intelligence.

"Indeed, I don't, grandpa, and I don't wish to. It will seem like being some-one else."

They were together in the study; Mr. Millard in his accustomed chair, and Mary in her corner beside him.

"Yes," he continued after a second's silence, "you are eighteen, and at that age——"

"One is supposed to be a woman," put in Mary, rising from her stool and walking across the room with a half-serious, half-comic air.

"It is rather hard, grandpa, that one must be, whether one wishes or not. Now look at me, please. Am I taller than I was a month ago? Am I the least bit wrinkled, or, has my hair turned gray? No, no," she added with a shake of the head, "it isn't any use. Let us talk of something else."

She was back in her place, her hand upon his knee, her bright face raised to his. He shook his head with a half sigh.

"Most young ladies——" he began.

She raised her hands with a protesting gesture.

"If you have any consideration for me, grandpa, don't bring up most young ladies. They and I have nothing in common. Let us drop the subject. Do, for one more interesting. Please tell me what Jeannette means by her dark hints about a visitor. Surely we are not going to indulge in anything so giddy."

She gave him a half-laughing, half-questioning glance, and clasping her hands about her knees, she rocked backward and forward, with a sort of rhythmic motion.

"What has Jeannette told you?" he asked, smiling at her expression.

"Oh, a whole rigmarole, in odd bits and at odd times. I'm to dress better because he is rich and used to fashionable girls. I'm to dispense with my uncouth manners because he is accustomed to lady-like females. In short," she added, with fine scorn, "I'm to be a perfect little prig to suit his fastidious taste. Now, grandpa, if you have invited a man of that description to visit us I cannot help saying you've done a most foolish thing. Didn't you reflect how dreadfully plain we'll seem in contrast to his people? and don't you know that while I am perfectly contented with my life and everything here, I'd feel like killing a man who'd dare to look down on me or you. Men like him are sure to break out some time, and I know I'll break out too. Who is he, anyhow?"

"After such a tirade, I am almost afraid to say," was the laughing response. "But," he added more gravely, "I hope I can trust you to be a polite little hostess. I am particularly interested in this young Beverly. His father and I were old and dear friends. Circumstances, however, caused us to lose sight of each other. He went to California, married there, and died a few years later, leaving this son, of whose existence I heard only a few months ago. I wrote to him immediately, receiving quite a characteristic letter in answer. This visit is the result of my invitation. I am anxious for you to like him and to make his stay with us as pleasant as possible. I am sure he cannot be otherwise than agreeable, as I hear only the best accounts of him."

"It sounds very nice," said Mary, with a reflective air, "but it strikes me he will have to be agreeable to make up for the disturbance he'll create."

Three days later Jeannette was putting the guest room in order, and Mary was watching operations.

"Look here Jeannette," she cried gayly, "I believe you consider him a 'fairy prince.' I never saw you beat that old bed so hard before."

"I want to make it comfortable, Miss Mary. Your grandpa's guest mustn't have nothing to complain of."

"He'll be an ungrateful wretch if he does complain," returned Mary with decision. "We are going to give him a royal welcome. I bet he never had such a big bed before in his life. I hope he's tall. You didn't hear grandpa say, I suppose?"

"No, I haven't heard nothing about his length or width either, and I don't care, neither. I only know you are wearing me to a bone, with them self-willed ways of yours."

"To a what?" cried Mary with a quizzical glance at the portly frame before her. "Oh, Jeannette, you are provoking sometimes. I suppose you are still harping on my clothes. You'd have me get a lot of new dresses just for that man. I hate new dresses. Besides, they take a lot of money, and I shouldn't amount to anything after all my trouble. If my old rigs are good enough for grandpa, they are good enough for any man in creation. I don't care a snap of my finger for that Beverly, or whatever his name is. He'll be sure to imagine I'm dressing for him, so if my clothes are outrageous he can't imagine it, that's all there is about it. I'd like to see him laugh at them. Just let him dare."

ROSEBERRY, the famous jumping horse, died in Chicago of injuries received in an attempt made to clear a bar 7 feet 5½ inches high. His record was 7 feet 5⅝ inches. The pathos of Roseberry's death will perhaps lead to considerable talk of the cruelty of forcing dumb animals to tests of agility and speed. But in such a case as this the extenuation is almost adequate. If the performances of the animals were perfunctory the cruelty would be obvious, but the race horse loves the track even better than the jockey, and it is not a forced supposition that Roseberry had a consciousness of the feat which he attempted and a strong delight in the attempt, and was, all in all, as free a moral agent in the matter as his rider. Men are committing suicide every day in a wild struggle to accomplish the impossible. There may be a stronger pathos in the death of a horse under similar circumstances, but the principal reasons for this are the uniqueness of the event and the fact that the beast has no tongue with which to describe the humiliation of his defeat or the agony of his last hours.

HAS the American girl learned to cook? A poet in the Chicago Herald leads us to think that she has. Not long ago the main body of United States poets was occupied with showing that, however great our girls' attractions and accomplishments might be in other respects, they didn't know how to cook. This new Western bard drops that subject as if the cooking propaganda had been successful, and takes up the misfortune that, although the knowledge of the women of to-day is immense, they will "get off a street car backward." Next to acquiring the habit of having her change ready to hand at the elevated stations, the most valuable improvement of which woman, bless her heart, is susceptible lies in learning to face the horses when getting off the street cars, and, in getting on and off, always to take hold of the handle toward the front. We say this not for our own particular benefit, meaning man's, but for woman's.

JULES VERNE has been speculating again. He now claims to have discovered what the world will be like after ten centuries shall have rolled around. Mr. Verne is a more careful prophet than some alleged statesmen have proved in this country when prophesying and speculating regarding political events. It would be well for other prophets to consider the propriety of placing the date of events foreseen at as safe a distance as the French novelist. They would thus escape the humiliation that makes their slumbers uneasy.

IT is gratifying to note that national legislation for the protection of railroad employes is already being arranged for. If it be possible to find a uniform car coupling that is satisfactory it should be promptly adopted in interstate commerce.

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Many Odd, Curious, and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day.

From the German.

A.—You are a regular spendthrift. Here I find you drinking champagne out of a beer glass.

B.—You call me a spendthrift and yet you want me to spend money buying wine glasses when I can worry along with an ordinary beer glass.—Texas Siftings.

Time and Money.

"Time is money, my dear," he said, hustling around in a great hurry.

"Come off," she replied tartly, "I've got plenty of time to buy a bonnet but I don't get the bonnet, just the same."—Exchange.

Doing Her Share.

A poor woman applied to the lady in charge of a charitable association:

"Have you a husband?" inquired the lady.

"Yes'm," answered the woman, "but he's poorly and can't make a living."

"How many children have you?"

"Thirteen, mum."

"Thirteen!" replied the lady, with surprise.

"Yes'm, thirteen."

"You must have had some twins."

"No'm," the woman replied, innocently, "there ain't no twins. I though I was doing my share with one at a time."—Texas Siftings.

A Judicious Choice.

Mae—Well, I had four proposals last night.

Maud—Indeed! Who were they?

Mae—Well, there were Jack and Tom and Ned and that frightful Mr. Pigsfoot.

Maud—Which did you accept?

Mae—Mr. Pigsfoot.

Maud—What in the world did you take him for?

Mae—Well, you see, he is in the glue business and I thought he would be the most likely to stick.—Boston Courier.

A Haunted House.

Featherstone—Do you believe in ghosts?

Travers—Well, for years I have been living in a haunted house.

Featherstone—You don't tell me? Who is it haunted by?

Travers—By my tailor.—Clothier and Furnisher.

He Was Conscientious.

Editor—You say you wish this poem to appear in my paper anonymously?

Would-Be Contributor—Yes; I don't want any name to it.

"Then I can't publish it."

"Why not?"

"Because I am conscientious about this matter. I don't want an unjust suspicion to fall upon some innocent person."—Texas Siftings.

Sanitary Item.

Mamma (to daughter)—Now, Eugenie, this is a new life to both of us. If your poor, lamented father were alive we wouldn't be reduced to the necessity of keeping a boarding-house.

Eugenia—Well, mamma, there doesn't seem to be any other course left to us.

Mamma—I know it, Eugenia. You must be very circumspect, and, while polite to all, you must, in your late lamented nautical father's words, "repel boarders."

Eugenia—Don't you think, mamma, we ought to leave that to the hash?—Exchange.

It Was Funny.

"Well, this is funny."

"What is?"

"This word in this item. Just look here."

The compositors laid down their sticks and crowded around the funny man to look at the word.

The word was "funny."

But the compositors didn't think it was funny, so they returned to their cases.—Cape Cod Item.

Her Speech.

Americans, we are often told, have a natural turn for speech-making.

A birthday gift by the father and the three daughters of the family to the mother was thus naively announced to that lady by the youngest, a girl 10:

"Dear mamma, this is presented to you by your three children and your one husband."—New York Tribune.

Not the Right Sort.

Visitor—How do you like your new minister?

Mrs. Muggs—He won't last very long. His wife is too worldly minded.

"Really?"

"Yes. It's perfectly scandalous. All her dresses fit her."—New York Weekly.

Changed the Subject.

He (gently)—Are you not afraid some one may marry you for your money?

She (sweetly)—Oh, dear, no. Such an idea never entered my head.

He (tenderly)—Ah, in your sweet innocence you do not know how coldly, cruelly mercenary some men are.

She (quietly)—Perhaps not.

He (with suppressed emotion)—I—I would not for the world have such a terrible fate happen to you. The man who wins you should love you for yourself alone.

She—He'll have to. It's my cousin Jennie who has the money, not I. You've got us mixed. I haven't a cent.

He—Er—very pleasant weather we're having.—New York Weekly.

MRS. POTTER PALMER wants a newspaper published at the fair managed, edited, written, set up, and printed by women. If Mrs. Palmer were familiar with the personnel of a printing office she would recognize that this would necessitate a girl "devil"—surely a thing not to be thought of in connection with woman's sphere.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

CORRESPONDENCE

WATERLOO.

Rev. Keller and Elder Ackerman were here Saturday.

Geo. Wareham has been quite sick, and still is at this date

Supt. Canniff passed through here on the 9th, while inspecting the Lake Shore road.

Mrs. Dr. Carpenter's father, R. W. Bills of California, Mich., was here to attend the funeral of the Doctor's daughter.

William Fetters of near Summit, returned from Salem, Oregon, the 9th. He reports the city being very prosperous and expects to return west after visiting his parents a short time.

Mrs. Stevens has had another relapse. She has not recovered her usual health, since her first attack, and is feeling quite disheartened.

Saturday morning, a lone robin, and the only one seen by the writer, thus far this season, was noticed from the window, seeking, on the sheltered side of a brush pile, doomed to the fire, a safe place away from the blustering snow storm. Some crumbs were thrown out for it, when affrighted, it flew away.

Died, Monday forenoon, Nora Dell, aged 14 years, 1 month and 20 days, youngest daughter of Dr. T. Y Carpenter. The afflicted family have the sympathy of the entire community. They have made hosts of friends since coming here, who vie with each other in showing kindness in every possible way, in this sad time.

Jimmy Duncan came home sick last week from Toledo. It commenced with a severe pain in one of his arms which upon examination showed two small red pimples. A poultice was applied without deriving any benefit. Upon reaching home he had medical attendance at once, and his, was pronounced a case of blood poison; and that amputating the arm will do no good, since it is through his whole system. He is kept under the influence of morphine constantly, the pain is so intense, and the flesh thus far affected looks ready to drop off. He is spoken of as a promising young man, and is a member of the M. E. church here.

Our town has been over-run for ten days past with entertainments of various kinds. Saturday evening a colored troupe at the opera house were well patronized; Monday evening Miss Thompson, the elocutionist, personated many noted characters, Talmage, Ben Butler, Belva Lockwood and many others Tuesday evening a theatrical performance, "Bubbles" and Wednesday another company enacted a play of some sort. Each church has its prayer-meeting and most of them two, as the young people have theirs separately; then each church have their socials; the young people of the various churches have their religious society, meeting each week, with a union meeting once a month; the missionary society of each church, the W. C. T. U. and Loyal League, besides the Relief Corps, the Rebecca lodge; then the various lodges gentlemen belong to; all of these meeting weekly, and most of them having yearly conventions, some semi annual, and most giving entertainments every few weeks for the purpose of adding to their funds. The marvel is people have the strength and find the time for so much aside from their regular duties and business.

BUTLER.

Father Noel is very poorly at this writing with meager hopes of recovery.

Dry, dusty roads in March is one of Butler's few experiences. We are enjoying them now.

The cold, dry weather of last week effectually dried up maple sugar making in this vicinity.

An infant child of Mr. Miller's, living in the Hopkins house at the west end was buried Sunday.

Jonathan R. Snively, a former resident of Butler, but now of Wichita, Kan., for eight or ten years, is spending a few days among the scenes of his childhood. He was caught in the whirlpool of Wichita's boom and came near being caught again by the under tow, and swept from his footing. He succeeded in catching on to a tuft of prairie grass, and thus held on, until some of his more fortunate friends came to his relief. He has partially recovered and is now talking life insurance for what Banta and Beers have left of the New York Life Insurance Co.

The writer visited the Northwestern Infant Boomer last week and was a little surprised to find the bulk of the boom on paper—but he did see a bridge for a railroad but no railroad for the bridge. The citizens are making a strong effort to boom the place, but the more cautious ones are biding their time, and say if the boom actually does strike the place they will be "in it." Some enterprising parties are trying to get an option on all the land around the place, and have succeeded in a measure, but have been very careful to let go, in case the boom don't stop there. All in all our little sister does herself much credit in aspiring to a city of 500 in less than three years. We hope to see her realize on her expectations. Poor little Summit feels blue over the outlook, and somebody tried a few nights ago to reduce her business facilities by burning one of the stores—too much insurance put the fire out.

CONCORD.

Our supervisor was out scraping the roads Monday but housed up his scraper Tuesday and concluded to wait till spring to finish his road work.

After a pleasant visit with her parents and other friends, Belle Melton returned to Auburn Monday and will hereafter be found in the family of James Henderson.

Mrs. George Hull is still confined to her bed with a complication of diseases, supposed to be the result of the grip. Mrs. James Peters is also suffering from the grip.

Jacob Krabill will soon quit working on the section and will move on his father's farm near Mt. Hope. Jake's friends at this place are sorry to see them go, and his good natured smile will be sadly missed from among us.

Mrs. Laura Kosht died at her home near Auburn Monday, March 21. The funeral was held at the M E. church at Auburn on Wednesday. She was a daughter of Wm. Kruse and leaves a baby daughter four days old, a young husband, a father and mother and five sisters to mourn her death. They have the sympathy of the entire community.

Daddy Smith was down and put his sawmill in running order last week and will saw up the logs this week that have been hauled in. He found a good many of his tools missing, among the rest two good canthooks which he had locked up in the tool room in the top of the mill. Some one had torn a portion of the roof off and in that way had taken the tools out. Daddy has his opinion as to who it was.

Singing school at Butler Center Sabbath evening, H. J. Hyatt, teacher. He has four schools in progress and would take a couple more classes. Any community wishing a teacher in vocal music would do well to engage his assistance as he is making it a specialty and tuition very reasonable.

ALAS!

How wretched is the man who has fallen a victim to Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, or diseased Liver, with all the horrible attendants. Look upon the picture. Poor man, being tired of dragging out a miserable existence, he is the picture of despondency; altogether, he is rather a forlorn specimen. Do we pity him? Of course; but at the same time feel assured that in a measure he is to blame for the bad state into which he has fallen. A sure, safe, speedy and easy cure can be found in Simmons Liver Regulator—Nature's own remedy. No mercury or deleterious drugs, not unpleasant to the taste, and always reliable—just such a remedy as you can pin your faith to without a shadow of disappointment. Read the testimonial, don't take our word for it:

"I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator which gave me relief, without any interruption to business." J. HUGG, Middleport, Ohio.

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn, Ind. tf

The dishwater in which plates and dishes are washed in Paris is only renewed once in twelve months.

A Positive Fact.

Ladies do not delay your valuable time by waiting and suffering, but secure a bottle of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and be cured of your monthly trouble either in old or young. It is the very best preparation I ever prescribed in my extensive practice. It has given the best best results in the greatest number of cases of female troubles of any medicine that I ever used. I do not make a practice of using or recommending patent medicines, but this remedy is prepared by a very competent physician and chemist of my acquaintance and I can cheerfully and conscienciously recommend it as the best. $1 a bottle.

"Educators are certainly the greatest benefactors of the race, and after reading Dr. Franklin Miles' most popular works, cannot help declaring him to be among the most entertaining and educating authors."—New York Daily. He is not a stranger to our readers, as his advertisements appear in our columns in every issue, calling attention to the fact that his elegant work on nervous and heart disease is distributed free by our enterprising druggist F. E. Davenport. Trial bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine are given away, also book of testimonials showing that it is unequaled for nervous prostration, headache, poor memory, dizziness, sleeplessness, neuralgia, hysteria, fits, epilepsy. 2

Since the passage of the bill for subsidizing steamers which carry the mails the Shipbuilders' union has increased in membership fully 50 per cent.

Strong Witnesses.

Among the thousands of testimonials of cures by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, is that of Nathan Allisons, a well-known citizen of Glen Rock, Pa., who for years had shortness of breath, sleeplessness, pain in left side, shoulders, smothering spells, etc., one bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and one box of Nerve and Liver Pills, cured him. Peter Jaquet, Salem, N. J., is another witness, who for twenty years suffered with heart disease, was pronounced incurable by physicians, death stared him in the face, could not lie down for fear of smothering to death. Immediatialy after using the New Cure he felt better and could lie down and sleep all night, and is now a well man. The New Cure is sold, also free book, by F. E. Davenport. 2

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1860—Continued.

Illustrative of this progressive spirit in Auburn it may be said that it was on the records of an early church of our town, that a worthy woman desirous of raising some money in a pleasant way for her society, prepared a supper, invited friends and charging each a small sum, tendered the proceeds to the church and that body so far from being gratified, seriously contemplated a resolution of censure for having acquired money that way.

In these days of socials and excellent suppers with literary entertainment at times added, for ten to twenty-five cents, it is worth while to revert to the way these affairs were conducted some thirty years ago and to note that in 1860, views had changed and churches gave their approval and support to measures whose well understood object was to replenish a church treasury by the conversion of the generous contributions of food by members into cash received from patrons.

As an example of methods in 1860, we recall the holding of a festival at the Weaver House on April 3rd by ladies of Auburn and vicinity to which general invitation was publicly extended. The bill for a couple was placed at seventy-five cents and for a gentleman alone, at fifty cents.

The attendance was as large as expected, the fare was plenteous and excellent, the occasion one of interest and enjoyment and the entire proceeds were faithfully appropriated toward the purchase of a bell for the building then used as the Presbyterian church.

By recent enactment and energetic enforcement of laws against the use of the postal service for the advertisement of the Lousiana and other lotteries and gift enterprises, these debasing schemes to rob the many to enrich the few, have been throttled and are certain to be exterminated by the vigilance of postmasters and the decisions of the highest courts.

In 1860, the confidential lottery letter offering a prize to the recipient as an incentive to the patronage of his locality was a common and successful trick and lotteries were frequently held in the towns and cities of this country.

On Feb. 14, St. Valentines' day, a "grand distribution" by lottery was advertized to be held in our neighboring town of Waterloo. To be sure the grand prize promised was but $2,400.00, but William Fearnside the enterprising projector had prepared numerous other attractions comprising lands, lots, watches, sewing machines, 2,000 books, 1,000 rings, 1,000 lady's belts and 3,480 pictures. The chances were favorable, at least for a picture, the precursor of the more recent almost ubiquitous chromo. All communications with this scheming stranger were strictly confidential and the result of the drawing if held is not on record.

The nearest approach made by the Auburn tradesman to the awards of chance has been the distribution of tickets proportionate to the extent of goods purchased, followed by a drawing and award of a gold watch, a jeweled ring or other valuable.

In 1860, Amzi Seely, David Buchanan and Alexander Provines constituted the board of county commissioners of whom the last named, yet rugged and hearty is sole surviver thoroughly conversant with the exciting history of those days, of which he was an active participant, and by occupation, a prosperous farmer of Jackson township.

By the board above named, Union township was divided east and west on the center section lines for election purposes and Adam Stroh was appointed inspector for the north half, to hold election at Waterloo.

Bids having been invited on contracts to care for the poor at the county farm, Nathan H. Mathews was awarded the position on his offer to pay the county $2.50 per acre rent for the farm and to board the paupers for $2.00 a week each.

With no occasion nor thought of reflection upon the present incumbent, there are not wanting those who consider a contract of this kind far preferable in a business way to the present fixed salary and disposal of farm products.

The spring term of the DeKalb circuit court was marked by the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Knapp, a woman eighty-four years of age, on the charge of murdering her husband.

The aged couple had lived together as man and wife about fifty five years. They had been married in Germany and emigrating, came to America. In Union township, DeKalb county, their joint labor and fugality secured them a home. Children meantime during the lapse of time grew to maturity and left the homestead, except one who has been for years and will be till his demise, an inmate of the county asylum.

The case was heard in the month of April, before Hon. Ed. R. Wilson circuit judge. John Colerick Esq. was the prosecuting attorney and the prisoner was defended by the law firm of Dickinson & Blair, John Ralston was clerk; W. W. Griswold was deputy clerk and S. W. Ralston, sheriff.

The charge was sustained and the jury of which Dwight Mooly was foreman, rendered their verdict in accordance with the facts. Her conviction, after a futile attempt to secure a new trial, was followed by sentence to confinement in the southern penitentiary for life yet the motive for the crime was not developed and the age of the woman appealed for compassion.

While in the county jail, in a fit of desperation, she attempted to kill herself by disemboweling but survived the very serious injury inflicted.

On petition of leading members of the state legislature, appointed as a committee to visit the prison she was pardoned by Gov. O. P. Morton, set free and lived several years with a daughter in Ohio.

The age, sex and crime of Mrs. Knapp, combined to excite popular interest in her trial, and save the cases of Abbott convicted of the murder of Houlton and Kessler of Harner, our community has been remarkably free from the commission of grave crimes and stands high in the ranks of the law abiding.

PROFESSOR JOHN L. SULLIVAN'S arms have been tied up for some months by a contract which required his exclusive devotion to the histrionic art. But now Mr. Sullivan's arms are free and have begun to swing. Gentlemen seeking a fight need not go to the expense of advertising. Call early and avoid the rush. Also, look out for that tremendous Sullivanesque rush when the fight opens.

MONTREAL has a very interesting lawsuit over the responsibility of a theater manager. When the Abbey-Grau Opera Company went to Montreal the manager advertised that Mme. Scalchi would sing in a certain performance. As Mme. Scalchi is very popular in Montreal, there was a big sale, and a great many people were disappointed when it was announced that the favorite contralto was too ill to take her part. Their disappointment changed to indignation when they found that Scalchi was well enough to sing in Boston that same night, and that she had no intention of singing in Montreal. Several wealthy patrons of the theater have brought suit against the management for obtaining money under false pretenses, and they propose to test the law as to whether a theater manager is responsible for his announcements.

ETHEL OSBORNE, the unhappy London society woman self-convicted of perjury, has been sentenced to nine months' imprisonment at hard labor. The deplorable scandal has served at least to show in Captain Osborne, who has loyally and gently sustained and cheered his wife throughout the whole affair, a gentleman such as London society seldom offers for the admiration of the world. The trial and its end have also demonstrated that English law is inflexible and remorseless—when the culprit does not wear a title.

THE New York Court of Appeals has rendered an opinion which shows that married women in that State are still in bondage. A women fell down a coal-hole and sued for damages, recovering $500. The defendant asked for a new trial on the ground that the woman was working for her husband, and that the court had taken into account her loss of wages. The Court of Appeals reversed the decision and sent the case back for a new trial. It held that the services of a wife belonged to her husband, and she cannot recover any wages even if she holds his written promise to pay. He cannot compel her to perform any work for him except household duties, and if she does any other she can not compel him to pay for it. Therefore, all the plaintiff is entitled to recover is such sum as will compensate her for personal injuries, but nothing for loss of wages.

SCHWEINFURTH, the unspeakable leader of that refuge at Rockford impiously called "heaven," is defendant in the Circuit Court to a charge of alienating the affections of a Chicago matron, and will be called upon to defend a suit for $50,000 damages. The false prophet announces as his line of defense the "showing up" of the husband's character. That husband, the plaintiff, is a man of wealth and comfortable income, whose home has been ruined by the influence of the bogus christ. His wife has gone from him in a manner worse than death. His daughters are poisoned with the baneful doctrine, and all the earth holds dear for him is sinking in the bottomless slime of that "prophet's" following. The mormons at Nauvoo were never more dangerous to society than is George J. Schweinfurth. Within or without the law there should be some method of whipping him out of the country. The admitted right of all men to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences grants to no man immunity in this wholesale debauching of women.

TWO CITIZENS of Chicago have returned to this country after an enforced absence of twenty years. When they went abroad in 1872 they embarked in extensive financial transactions, making the Bank of England their base of operations. After a brief period of prosperity their careers as financiers were abruptly terminated, and they were compelled to resort to the business of oakum picking, which was not so agreeable as bank plucking, though attended with less risks. They would be picking oakum at this time if it had not pleased the British Government to grant them tickets-of-leave, which have enabled them to secure greatly needed recreation. It is possible, of course, that Messrs. George and Austin Bidwell have sincerely repented of the crimes which condemned them to penal servitude for life in British prisons. All things are possible, and their repentance may be included among the possibilities. But nothing in the conversation of the Bidwells points to penitence. Austin Bidwell is reported as even boasting of their crimes, and he takes pride in the fact that "they taught the great moneyed institution of the enemy of their country a lesson." No one certainly would desire to interfere with honest efforts by these men to accomplish a reformation of their lives, or to atone as far as possible for the mistakes of the past. But it is not out of place to suggest that under all the circumstances they would do themselves and their cause no harm by being a trifle more modest when speaking of the operations which have made them notorious. An affected modesty, no matter how patent its insincerity, would become them better than the boasting in which they indulge.

A Geological Puzzle.

Rev. Owen Watkins has been prospecting in Mashonaland in the interests of the Wesleyan Missionary Society. In a recent letter he says he is presumably the first white man to see the Mount of Footprints, which he thus describes: "At last we came to one large mount of folks on the top of the hills. Here are thousands of impressions on the granite rock. Hundreds of human footsteps, thousands of footprints of animals—lions, jackals, wolves and antelopes. On the top of the mount the appearance is as if a crowd of animals and men had rushed together in fright. At whatever period these footprints were made, it must have been before the outer surface of the rock had hardened. The distance from where the footprints begin to where they culminate on the mount is 200 yards."—St. James Gazette.

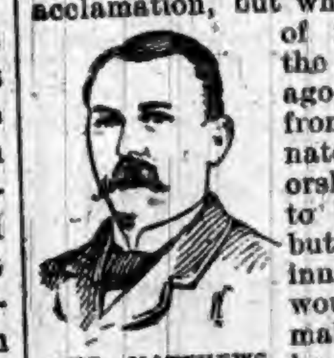
May Be Governor.

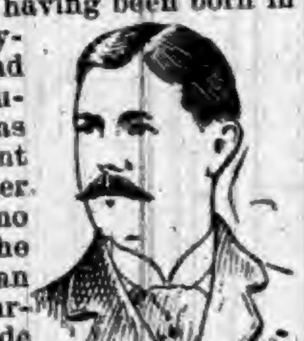
Indianapolis correspondence: Time out of mind in Indiana it has been customary to reward with a second nomination the faithful public servant who has borne the heat and burden of one campaign for office, and the present Democratic State officers are therefore looking with a good deal of complacency upon the approaching State convention, for they feel that their calling by the party, whatever may be the result of the election, is sure. In the present instance custom has been doubly strengthened by the personal popularity of the men who will ask renominations at the hands of the party, and the doubt is not whether each will be nominated for his present position by acclamation, but whether the Secretary of State, who headed the ticket two years ago, will not be taken from the list and nominated for the governorship. This would be to break the custom, but it would be such an innovation as the party would deem it wise to make, and one, certainly, to which the beneficiary could not in conscience object. As it is, Claude Matthews is a candidate for Secretary of State, and to him the nomination is conceded to belong. He was chosen two years ago as a representative farmer, and in obedience to the demands of his class, who have long claimed that their interests have suffered by reason of the fact that State positions of honor and emolument were not open to the farming classes. Matthews is not only a farmer but is one of the very best in the State.



SEC. MATTHEWS.

A Capable Auditor.

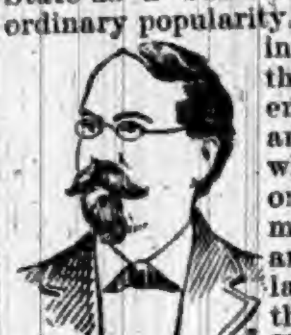
J. O. Henderson, Auditor of the State, is a native Hoosier, having been born in Howard County forty-two years ago, and lived there continuously till he was elected to his present position. His father founded the Kokomo Dispatch. In 1876 the son entered upon an active career of journalism that has made him one of the best-known newspaper men in the State. About the same time he entered into politics, and for ten years past has been regarded as one of the brightest young leaders of the Indiana Democracy. For several years he was Chairman of the County Committee of Howard County, and in 1885 was appointed by President Cleveland as Internal Revenue Collector for the Eleventh Indiana District. Mr. Henderson possesses in a rare degree those qualies which make men favorites with all they meet.



AUDITOR HENDERSON

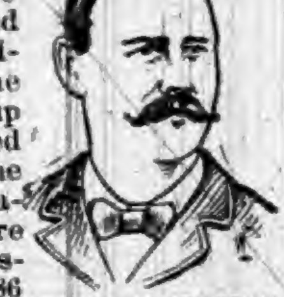
Abundantly Qualified.

State Treasurer Albert Gall is a German-American citizen, and for a number of years has been known throughout the State as a business man of more than ordinary popularity. He was educated in the public schools of this city, and in 1864 engaged in the carpet and drapery business, which he still carries on, having been remarkably successful and having made a large number of friends throughout the State. He never aspired to office till some of his friends brought him out as a candidate for State Treasurer in 1890. Though there were several candidates before the convention, he was nominated on the second ballot, and proved as popular as a candidate as he had been as a business man.



TREASURER GALL.

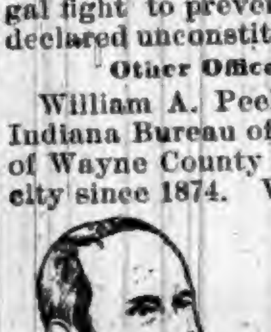
A. G. Smith, Attorney General, is possibly the best known of the several State officers, for the reason that he has been before the State more prominently than any of the others. In 1884 he was elected Senator from Jennings and Jackson Counties, and was one of the most energetic members of the Judiciary Committee during that session. Before the Senate adjourned he was chosen President pro tem. of the body. This opened up an entirely unexpected field, and led to some of the most sensational scenes that were ever enacted in a legislative body. In 1886 Lieut. Gov. Manson resigned to accept a government appointment, and in the election that year R. S. Robertson was chosen to succeed him. The Democrats denied that a lieutenant governor could be elected to fill a vacancy, and when Robertson appeared to preside over the Senate his claims were ignored and he was ejected from the Senate chamber by order of Smith, who was presiding. The case was carried into the courts, but the Senate refused to surrender its prerogative of judging of the qualifications of its own members, and Robertson never had the honor of presiding over the body. Mr. Smith has done more, perhaps, than any other man in the State to unearth the taxables of corporations, and is now engaged in a legal fight to prevent the law from being declared unconstitutional.



ATTORNEY GENERAL SMITH.

Other Offices in Litigation.

William A. Peelle, Jr., Chief of the Indiana Bureau of Statistics, is a native of Wayne County and has lived in this city since 1874. When Neff was elected Secretary of State in that year Peelle came here as his deputy and served two terms under J. G. Shanklin, who succeeded Neff in 1878. In 1883 Peelle was elected Chief of the Statistical Bureau by the Legislature, and re-elected in 1885, 1887, and 1889. In the latter year Gov. Hovey denied the right of the Legislature to elect the Statistician, and suit was brought by his appointee for the office. The litigation thus inaugurated dragged on for two years, when the Supreme Court decided that the office should be filled by popular election. Peelle was nominated in 1890 and elected in November of that year.



W. A. PEELLE, JR.

IN a criminal lately beheaded in France the beats of the heart were noted during more than six minutes, and experiments were made to demonstrate the independence of the ventricular and articular contractions; this is the first time such observations were ever made on man.

STATISTICIANS estimate that there are over 3,000,000 women in this country who are engaged in work which is not domestic. Of this number 275 are ministers and 75 lawyers.

NOTE FROM SALISBURY.

HE WOULD RENEW THE MODUS VIVENDI.

His Lordship Insists, However, that the Pending Treaty First Be Ratified, and that Provision Be Made for the Assessment of Damages.

Salisbury Sauce.

Lord Salisbury has replied as follows to Sir Julian Pauncefote in response to Mr. Wharton's note:

"In reply to your telegram notice has been given to owners of ships sailing for Behring Sea that both agreements at present under discussion between Great Britain and the United States—that as to arbitration and that as to an intermediate arrangement—may affect the liberty of sealing in Behring Sea. They have, therefore, notice of their liability to possible interruption, and will sail subject to that notice. The question of time is not, therefore, urgent.

"Inform the President that we concur in thinking that when the treaty has been ratified there will arise a new state of things. Until it is ratified our conduct is governed by the language of your note of the 14th of June, 1890. But when it is ratified both parties must admit that contingent rights have become vested in the other, which both desire to protect.

"We think that the prohibition of sealing, if it stands alone, will be unjust to British sealers if the decision of the arbitrators should be adverse to the United States. We are, however, willing, when the treaty has been ratified, to agree to an arrangement similar to that of last year if the United States will consent that the arbitrators should, in the event of a decision adverse to the United States, assess the damages which the prohibition of sealing shall have inflicted on British sealers during the pendency of the arbitration, and in the event of a decision adverse to Great Britain should assess the damages which the limitation of slaughter shall, during the pendency of arbitration, have inflicted on the United States or their lessees.

"As an alternative course we are also willing, after the ratification of the treaty, to prohibit sealing in the disputed waters if vessels be excepted from prohibition which produce a certificate that they have given security for such damages as the arbitrators may assess in case of a decision averse to Great Britain, the arbitrators to receive the necessary authority on that behalf. In this case a restriction of slaughter on the islands will not in point of equity be necessary.

"Her Majesty's Government are unable to see any other than one of these two methods of restricting seal hunting in the disputed waters during the arbitration which would be equitable to both parties."

Salisbury States His Terms.

A later note from Lord Salisbury to Sir Julian Pauncefote says:

With further reference to your telegram, I am not prepared to admit, as I gather that the President thinks, that we have objected to the arbitrators having jurisdiction as to the damages inflicted in the past by the party against whom the award is given. I only objected to her Majesty's Government being liable for acts they have not committed. I am ready to consent to reference on this point on the following terms:

That in case the arbitrators shall decide in favor of the British Government, that Government may ask them further to decide whether the United States Government has, since 1885, taken any action in Behring Sea directly inflicting wrongful loss on British subjects, and, if so, to assess the damages incurred thereby.

That in case the arbitrators shall decide in favor of the Government of the United States that Government may ask them to decide further whether the British Government have, since 1885, taken any act on in Bering Sea, directly inflicting wrongful loss on the United States or their lessees, and, if so, to assess the damages incurred thereby.

The note to Sir Julian Pauncefote of June 14, 1890, referred to in Lord Salisbury's reply, is as follows:

WASHINGTON, June 14.—With reference to the note which I had the honor to address you on the 11th I desire to express my deep regret at having failed up to the present time to receive from you the assurance which I had hoped to receive, that during the continuance of our negotiations for the settlement of the fur seal question British sealing vessels would not be interfered with by United States revenue cruisers in the Behring Sea outside of territorial waters.

Having learned from statements in the public press and from other sources that the revenue cruisers Rush and Corwin are now about to be dispatched to the Behring Sea, I cannot, consistently with the instructions I have received from my Government, defer any longer the communication of their formal protest announced in my notes of the 23d ult. and the 11th inst. against any such interference with British vessels. I have accordingly the honor to transmit the same herewith. I have, etc.,

JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

(Inclosure.)
(Received June 14, 12:35, 1893.)

The undersigned, her Britannic majesty's envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States of America, has the honor, by instruction of his Government, to make to the Honorable James G. Blaine, Secretary of State of the United States, the following:

Her Majesty's Government has learned with deep regret from notices which have appeared in the public press, the accuracy of which has been confirmed by Mr Blaine's statements to the undersigned, that the United States have issued instructions to their revenue cutters about to be dispatched to Behring Sea under which the vessels of British subjects will again be exposed under the prosecution of their legitimate industry on the high seas to unlawful interference at the hands of American officers. Her Britannic Majesty's Government are anxious to co-operate to the fullest extent of their power with the government of the United States in such measure as may be found to be expedient for the protection of the seal fisheries. They are at the present moment engaged in examining, in concert with the Government of the United States, the best method of arriving at an agreement upon this point. But they cannot admit the right of the United States of their own sole motion to restrict for this purpose the freedom of navigation of Behring Sea, which the United States have themselves in former years convincingly and successfully vindicated, nor to enforce their municipal legislation against British vessels on the high seas beyond the limits of their territorial jurisdiction.

Her Britannic Majesty's Government are therefore unable to pass over without notice the public announcement of an intention on the part of the Government of the United States to renew the acts of interference with British vessels navigating outside the territorial waters of the United States, of which they have previously had to complain.

The undersigned is, in consequence, instructed formally to protest against such interference, and to declare that her Britannic Majesty's Government must hold the Government of the United States responsible for the consequences that may ensue from acts which are contrary to the established principles of international law. The undersigned, etc.

MRS. RICHARDS, of Montana, who offered to give the last nail to be driven into the Woman's Building, is having it manufactured at Butte City, after her own design. The nail will be twelvepenny in size, and will be composed of the principal mineral product of the State. The nail when driven will pass through a medallion of very elaborate design, comprising the coat-of-arms of Montana—a setting sun behind a mountain line. The sunset will be composed entirely of sapphires, the mountains of gold, and the valleys of silver.

Bad Boy—Mamma wrote it; but, please ma'm, she had sister Jennie in one arm, crying with a bumped head, and brother Willie in the other with a cut finger, and a lot of sewing on her lap, and she was rocking the cradle with her knees, and she had to write with her toes.

A Lucky Escape.

Fortunate is the man or woman residing in a malaria-ridden locality who escapes the dreaded scourge. Not one in a thousand does. When the endemic is a periodical and wide-spread visitation, it is just as common to see whole communities suffering from it as single individuals. The most vigorous constitution is not proof against it—how much less a system feeble or disordered. As a means of protection against malaria, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the supreme medicinal agent. It will uproot any form of malarial disease implanted in the system, and even in regions where miasmatic complaints are most malignant and deadly, such as the Isthmus of Panama, Guatemala, and the tropics generally, it is justly regarded as an efficient safeguard. No less efficacious is it as a curative and preventive of chronic indigestion, liver trouble, constipation, rheumatism, kidney complaints, and la grippe.

The Plural of Tablespoonful.

When a boy I spent much time in surgery, where I was allowed to assist in dispensing. I can remember being rebuked for venturing to write "tablespoonsful." I was told that it implied the swallowing of the spoons as well as of their contents. It should be written tablespoonfuls. A short time ago my doctor prescribed for me a mixture, of which I was to take two spoonfuls three times a day. This I did with benefit to myself; but if I had swallowed six spoons a day, full or empty, you would not be troubled with this note.

THE CORDAGE TRUST.

AN ABSOLUTE MONOPOLY OF PRODUCTION.

It Manipulates the Markets and Gets from Its Tariff Tax an Enormous Profit—Where's That American Tin Plate?

A Veritable Octopus.

Hemp and its substitutes, manila, sisal grass and jute, constitute the raw material of two important industries, those of cordage and bagging manufacture. The most important of these is the cordage industry, which comprises the production of all classes of ship and other cordage, rope and binding twine. It is seldom that these products are manufactured in separate establishments. Nearly all the materials used are imported, and the establishments in the industry are quite widely diversified throughout the country. A scheme to combine all these establishments into a gigantic trust would have been considered impossible several years ago. Now, however, after the people have become accustomed to the sight of trusts and combines, its successful accomplishment excites little comment.

The growth of the present Cordage Trust from the so-called association which loosely bound the manufacturers together previous to 1887, when the present trust was formed, has been so gradual that except among the interests directly affected it has excited but little interest.

Previous to October, 1887, the cordage manufacturers were in a combination or pool, the object of which was to fix prices. But, like other loose arrangements of this kind, the members were not slow to break the agreements made when they found it to their advantage to do so. Early in 1887 this pool fell to pieces of its own weight and an era of free competition followed till October, when the nucleus was composed of the following concerns: Elizabethport Cordage Company of New Jersey, and the Tucker & Carter Cordage Company, L. Waterbury & Co. and William Wall's Sons, all of Brooklyn.

Around this nucleus of four concerns have been gathered forty-five other establishments in the United States and Canada, until now the trust controls over 90 per cent. of the production of cordage, rope and binding twine.

At the time of its organization in 1887, the trust announced as the object sought by its formation, an increase in the profits to be derived from a lower cost of materials by the removal of competition in the market, and from the economies to be derived from a decrease in the cost of production. It was asserted time and again that no attempt would be made to raise the prices of its finished products.

These claims were repeated at the time of its reorganization as a corporation, and finally in February last in the annual report to the stockholders in the following terms: "Through these advantages secured by the control of many mills, and their management under one direction, the company hopes to be enabled to secure an increased margin of profit without increasing the prices of its product to the consumer."

Has the trust up to the present carried out this promise, or, if not, is there any likelihood that it will do so in the future?

In the following tables are shown the average monthly prices since 1885 of the raw material and finished product. The articles, the prices of which are given, are manila hemp and manila cordage 7-16 of an inch in diameter and larger:

	1886.	1887.	1888.	1889.	1890.	1891.
Cordage	11.70	11.51	11.15	14.57	14.53	9.94
Manila	7.68	8.54	9.04	13.00	9.77	7.85
Difference	4.02	2.97	2.11	1.57	4.76	2.04

These figures would be misleading without explanation. The high prices of the raw material prevailing in 1889 were in part due to a shortage in the crop, but chiefly to the manipulation of the market by a combination of the Cordage Trust and English brokers. In the fall of 1888 this combination began to corner the product with such complete success that during a large part of 1889 they controlled nearly all of the stock. The prices prevailing in 1889 were these at which the trust was willing to sell, and not the prices which it paid for the raw material. By this corner of the material the trust was able to keep up the price of cordage to the high averages shown for 1889 and 1890, until it had succeeded in working off the whole stock on hand. The difference between the price of the finished product and of the raw material for 1890, as shown above, was about the actual average difference in 1889 also. This shows that the trust succeeded in making enormous profits entirely at the expense of the consumers.

The reduction in the price of cordage in 1891 was made for a purpose. During the whole year the Trust was negotiating for the control of the independent establishments, and its success depended upon its ability to force these outsiders to terms. For had the Trust kept prices up, the outside establishments would either have refused to join the Trust, or would have held out for more favorable terms than they would have been willing to accept under other circumstances.

By October, 1891, the Trust had so far succeeded in securing control of the competing mills that it was able to advance prices again. As a result, the price of cordage has been raised from 8¾ cents per pound to the present price of 11¼ cents per pound. And this advance has been made directly in the face of a declining market for the material. The present price of manila for shipment is 6¾ to 7 cents per pound. The difference between this price and that of the finished product is, therefore, 4.38 cents per pound. The promise made by the Trust, that the increased profits which it hoped to secure from organization would not be at the expense of the consumer, has been completely forgotten.

In spite of the fact that the Cordage Trust engaged in open war during the whole of last year with the independent manufactories for the purpose of forcing them into the Trust, it was able to make very large profits. During the fiscal year ending October 31, 1891, the Trust made a profit of $1,406,313, which enabled it to declare dividends of 8 per cent. on the preferred and 9 per cent. on the common stock, and at the same time left a balance of $106,313. As a result of the higher prices since October, the Financial Director of the Trust felt justified in making the following report for the quarter ending January 31 last: "It is very difficult at this time to give an accurate estimate of the profits of the business for the quarter ending January 31. I feel safe in stating, however, that after deducting expenses, rentals, and all fixed charges, these profits will be found sufficient to pay the entire annual dividend of $400,000 on the preferred stock and a quarterly dividend on the common stock, besides leaving a large surplus." Should this rate of earnings be continued throughout the year the Trust will be able to pay the dividend of 8 per cent. on the preferred stock, 12 per cent. on the common stock, and have $1,000,000 besides to be added to the "large surplus" earned during the past quarter, which later will be increased 300 per cent.

Just so long as the high tariff on the products of trusts is allowed to stand and prevent competition, just so long will the trusts use it to exact from consumers all the profit it allows.

Tin-Plate Truths.

In order to determine the much mooted question whether tin plates are yet made in this country except for political purposes, the Secretary of the Tin Plate Consumers' Association has sent out to the members of the association the following circular:

"In furtherance of the objects of the Tin Plate Consumers' Association the directors respectfully request the members of the association to furnish monthly returns of all American-made tin plates purchased by them, beginning with the month of January, 1892; also stating whether any American-made tin plates have been bought by them previous to the first of same month, and, if so, what quantity, sizes and kinds.

"The names of those forwarding the information will be regarded as confidential by the directors, and will not be published. Respectfully yours,

"ROBERT GANZ, Sec'y."

In response to this circular 115 replies have been received, of which exactly 100 declare that the writers have not bought any American tin plate. Here are a few samples of the replies received up to date:

California—San Francisco: We have not been able to obtain any American made tin or terne plates so far.

Connecticut—New Haven: We use only highest grade tin plate, and we have not heard of any of these being manufactured.

Illinois—Chicago: Haven't been able to find any.

Dundee: The tin plate which we use is not yet made in the United States.

Highland: Obtained none up to date.

Chicago: None of any kind except a sample box of 20 by 28 terne

Indiana—Vincennes: We have not had any American made tin plate yet.

Indianapolis: We have obtained no American tin plates whatever.

Kentucky—Louisville: I cannot buy any that I know of.

Louisiana—New Orleans: As yet have not been offered any.

Maryland—Baltimore: Have not been able to obtain any. Have neither bought nor been offered any American tin plate.

Ridgely: We have never seen a sheet of American made tin plates, and never had any offers or quotations.

Massachusetts—Boston: Have not seen or heard of any American tin plates in this market.

Boston: We have not bought nor have we been offered a single sheet of American tin plate.

Michigan—Adrian: We have not been able to find any tin plates suitable for our use, except imported articles. If you know of any manufacturers of the article, we would like to have their address.

Missouri—Kansas City: On Dec. 3 last we ordered a carload lot of tin plates for January delivery from American manufacturer. There is no immediate prospect of getting same, and we will cancel order.

Nebraska—Omaha: None offered, and we do not believe there is any in the market.

Iowa—Sioux City: Five boxes.

New York—Brooklyn: Have neither bought nor had any offered to me. Have not been able to find any suitable for my purpose on making inquiry.

Buffalo: Have not bought any tin plate manufactured in this country; none offered at any price.

New York City: Have not seen any except in Tribune newspaper.

Waverly: None offered.

Woodstown: Have not bought any American tin plate. Do not know where it is made.

Ohio—Cincinnati: We have not bought or seen any American tin or terne plates for commercial use; only political.

Pennsylvania—Philadelphia: We have not been able to buy a single sheet of American tin plate.

Pittsburg: Cannot get any. Would like to.

Wisconsin—Milwaukee: We have not had any American tin plate offered to us, consequently have not made any purchases.

Of the fifteen replies stating that the writers have purchased some American-made plates the following are examples:

Ohio—Cleveland: One box; but price too high for us.

Pennsylvania — Philadelphia: Five boxes. We have had no plates offered to us by any manufacturer. The above were bought to try the quality.

The entire purchases up to the present, since the duty went into effect, and since it has been claimed that American-made tin plates have been put on the market, have amounted to only 665 boxes, or an average of less than six boxes to each of the firms which have sent in reports. And yet the high-tariff journals all over the country are making the claim that we already produce several thousand boxes per day. But what, if this claim is true, becomes of all this tin plate?

Heavy Wage Reductions.

The following is a partial list of the wage reductions which have been announced in the high-tariff journals since January 1, 1892:

"The reduction in the wages of the employes of the Brooke Iron Company, at Birdsboro, this county, announced some time ago, took effect, and all the puddlers, heaters, and other employes continued at work, excepting some of the nail feeders. The firm employs nearly 400 hands."—Philadelphia Ledger (Rep.), Jan. 27, 1892.

"The wages of the puddlers in the employ of the Chesapeake Nail Works at Harrisburg, Pa., have been reduced from $4 per day to $3.50 per day, taking effect on the 15th inst.,"—Iron Age Feb. 18, 1892.

"On the same day a reduction in wages varying from 7 to 11 per cent. went into effect at the Central Iron Works, Harrisburg, Pa."—The Iron Age, Feb. 18, 1892.

"The puddling department of the Central Iron Works at Harrisburg, Pa., shut down Saturday night, throwing between 200 and 300 men out of employment. The men would not accept the reduction."—Boston Commercial Bulletin, Feb. 20, 1892.

"Cofrode & Saylor, of the Reading Rolling Mill, at Reading, Pa., on Thursday night notified their employes of a 10 per cent. reduction of wages, to take effect next week. The firm employs about 630 hands."—The Iron Age, Feb. 25, 1892. Also by Associated Press, Feb. 19.

"Early last week the Jefferson Iron Works of Steubenville, Ohio, notified their nailers of a reduction in wages amounting to 25 per cent."—[This was afterward withdrawn.]—The Iron Age, Feb. 25, 1892.

"The Columbia Iron and Steel Company, of Pittsburg, whose plant is located at Uniontown, Pa., have made a demand for a reduction of 25 per cent. in the wages of their employes."—The Iron Age, Feb. 25, 1892.

"The Pottsville (Pa.) Iron and Steel Company will reduce the wages of its 600 employes at Pottsville 10 per cent."—Boston Commercial Bulletin, Feb. 20, 1892.

"PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 28.—Following the discharge of the puddlers from all the furnaces at J. Painter's Sons mills last week came the dismissal of 200 puddlers on Saturday by Jones & Laughlin. * * * There is but one thing to do, and that will be to reduce the wages of puddlers."—Special dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean (Rep.), Feb. 29, 1892.

"LAWRENCE, March 1.—A cut in the wool sorters' wages at the Arlington Mills goes into effect to-day. It is said that 12,000,000 pounds of wool are used yearly at the mill, and that the price list now going into effect will reduce the wages of the men in the aggregate 20 per cent."—Special dispatch in the Boston Herald, March 2, 1892.

"A reduction of wages of about 10 per cent. took place yesterday in most of the piece-work departments of the Singer Sewing Machine Works."—Associated Press, March 2, 1892.

"It has been definitely decided by the tin-plate manufacturers that wages on black plates must be reduced."—Special dispatch from Pittsburg to the Philadelphia Press (Rep.), March 2, 1892.

"We can state that all the nail factories in the Pittsburg district are being operated under private arrangement with their men as regards wages to be paid for cutting nails. While it is true reductions have recently taken place at one or more mills, the men have no recourse in the matter."—The Iron Age, March 3, 1892.

In nearly every one of the above cases the manufacturers appeared before the Ways and Means Committee asking for higher duties on their products, not, however, for themselves, but for their workmen. Chief among them were those who intended to manufacture tin plates. Now that the duties on tin plates has been increased from 1 cent to 2 2-10 cents per pound, instead of raising wages, they have ordered a reduction of the wages of the workmen who are engaged in rolling black plates for tinning. They are bound to appropriate all the tariff bonus for their own profit, and by their organization are able to add a little more to it by making a reduction in wages, and yet, in spite of this, they pretend that the tariff is for the benefit of the workmen only.

Comparative Wool Prices.

Demand and supply regulate the prices of wool, as of other products. But in the wool trade certain factors enter more prominently than in the trade in most other articles. The quality and availability of wools are powerful factors in determining demand, and therefore prices. Similarly changes in fashion, by stimulating or decreasing demand, affect prices equally with changes in supply. Thus, during the past year, some wools have greatly fallen in price, while the price of others has been well maintained. Each variety of wool produced has a use for the purposes of which it is better than any other wool grown. The price of wool, therefore, does not depend upon the relation between the general demand and supply, but rather upon the relation existing between the demand and supply of each particular variety. The general expression, therefore, that "wool is up" or "down" carries with it no real significance.

Various attempts have been made to compare the prices of certain wools in this country and in England for the purpose of determining the effect of the tariff upon prices, but usually without satisfactory results, for the comparisons have included varieties of wool entirely dissimilar. There are two varieties of wool which approach each other very closely in quality, use, and condition. In addition to this, accurate records of their prices have been kept. These are Ohio medium fleece washed and washed Port Philip fleece. The former is a standard variety in the United States and the latter in England. For these wools a comparison is possible. The following table shows the average yearly prices in gold in Boston and London respectively. London quotations are those of Windeler & Co., and the American prices are taken from Mauger & Avery's wool circular:

	Ohio med. Cts. per lb.	P't Philip. Cts. per lb.		Ohio med. Cts. per lb.	P't Philip. Cts. per lb.
1866	45	47½	1879	37½	41¼
1867	36¾	43¾	1880	51 3-5	45 1-5
1868	33	[illegible]	1881	45 4-5	41
1869	37¼	34	1882	45 1-5	43 3-5
1870	40 4-5	34 1-5	1883	41 3-5	42
1871	50 3-5	42 1-5	1884	36	39 2-5
1872	60 2-5	51 4-5	1885	33 1-5	35 2-5
1873	48 3-5	52 1-5	1886	35 4-5	38
1874	48 3-5	51 3-5	1887	36 4-5	32 1-5
1875	44 4-5	48	1888	34	32 1-5
1876	38 4-5	41 4-5	1889	37 3-5	36 1-5
1877	41	41 4-5	1890	36 4-5	33 4-5
1878	39 2-5	41 1-5	1891	36	.....

Port Philip fleece has averaged higher for thirteen years and lower for twelve years than Ohio medium fleece. For the twenty-five years ending in 1890, Ohio medium has averaged 41.48 cents per pound, and Port Philip fleece 41.08 cents per pound, showing a difference in favor of the former of .44 cents. If we eliminate the prices for 1871 and 1872, when speculation was rampant in this country and wools were contracted for on the sheep's back at from 65 to 70 cents per pound, we arrive at the following averages for twenty-three years: Ohio, 40.26 cents per pound, and Port Philip 40.52 cents per pound, showing a difference in favor of the latter of .26 cents per pound. During the whole period both wools have risen and fallen together.

From every point of view this showing is a remarkable one, and deserves careful consideration on the part of those who believe that the wool grower in the United States can derive any good results from a high duty on wool.—New York Daily Commercial Bulletin.

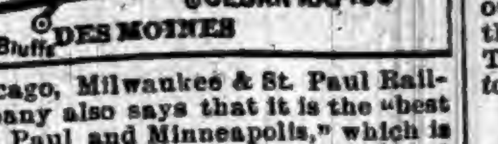
Terrorite.

The inventor of terrorite, the new explosive, said to be more powerful than dynamite, died recently. His name was Dimetry Mindeleff. He was about fifty years old. His advanced ideas brought him into disfavor with the Russian Government, and he was obliged to emigrate to America. As a chemist Mindeleff had more than a national reputation, and several of his important inventions have been patented—among them being a new method for the reduction of cobalt and nickel ores, the destruction of phylloxera by means of pyroligneous acid, and the invention of terrorite, a high explosive that threatens to effect a revolution in warfare and mining.

The Shortest Route.

Nearly every day you read in some newspaper that such and such a railroad has the shortest line from one important city to another.

One railway company will advertise that it is a "short line from Chicago to Omaha." A competing line then positively states that it is "a shorter line from Chicago to Omaha than any other," and now the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway insists that it is "the shortest line from Chicago to Omaha," and proves it by this map:



The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company also says that it is the "best line to St. Paul and Minneapolis," which is a fact, with "electric lighted trains" and reading lamps in each berth, so that one can read all night long if he has a book and doesn't want to sleep. It brags about the "finest dining cars in the world," with the best of meals served on imported china by the most expert and civil colored waiters, at 75 cents, while the lines east of Chicago charge a whole dollar.

And—once more—the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway opens up a new through car line from Chicago to Denver, via Omaha and Lincoln, and it isn't long before the whole world says to itself that "shortest line from Chicago to Omaha," that "best line to St. Paul and Minneapolis" and that "new route to Denver" must be the only first-class railroad in the western part of the United States, and what the whole world says must be true.

The address of the passenger agent in Chicago is 207 Clark street, and everybody who wishes to travel over the best road in the West goes there to purchase tickets and secure sleeping car reservations.

Points About a Good Horse.

There are some points which are valuable in horses of every description. The head should be proportionately large and well set on, the lower jawbones should be sufficiently far apart to enable the head to form an angle with the neck, which gives it free motion and a graceful carriage and prevents it bearing too heavily on the hand. The eye should be large, a little prominent, and the eyelid fine and thin. The ear should be small and erect and quick in motion. The lop-ear indicates dullness and stubbornness; when too far back there is a disposition to mischief.—Rider and Driver.

Democratic Caucuses.

The democratic voters are called to meet in the several townships

Saturday, April 16, 1892,

at 2 p m to select delegates for the various conventions. The following table shows the democratic vote for secretary of state in 1890 in the first column; the second column shows the number of delegates each township will have in the state, congressional, senatorial, judicial and joint representative conventions; the third column shows the number of delegates to the county convention:

	Vote.	Dist. Del.	Co. Del.
Butler	98	½	10
Concord	224	1	22
Fairfield	211	1	21
Franklin	127	1	13
Grant	202	1	20
Jackson	172	1	17
Keyser	593	3	59
Newville	62	½	6
Richland	179	1	18
Smithfield	146	1	15
Stafford	50	½	5
Troy	55	½	6
Union	460	2	46
Wilmington	334	2	33
Totals	2916	16	291

Necessary to a choice in the county convention, 146. It is hoped every democratic voter will attend these caucuses.

BREKS ERICK,
Chairman.

March 23, 1892.

NOTE. In Union township, Auburn, the caucus will meet at 4 p. m. so all can attend.

Congressional Convention.

The Congressional Convention is at Kendallville, April 26. The number of delegates from each county will be:

DeKalb	16	LaGrange	8
Allen	48	Steuben	7
Noble	15
Whitley	12	Total	106

W. W. ROOKHILL,
Chairman Democratic Congressional Com.

THE Bering Sea matter is settled and another piece of nonsense ended.

THE incorporated towns of DeKalb county, should now select their election boards for the May election. The town clerk does this.

THE democrats of the House, in a contested case last week, seated the contesting republican and turned on the sitting member who was a democrat. This seating of the man who was clearly elected, though of the opposite party, it is said completely paralyzed the republican members.

HARRISON, last week appointed Hon. John H. Baker of Goshen, to take Judge Woods' place as district U. S. judge No better choice could have been made, and it is in pleasant contrast with the promotion of a corrupt man like Woods. Should the opportunity ever occur, it is not likely Judge Baker will ever reverse his own decision to save a political boss for punishment.

NOBLE and Whitley counties will hold their judicial convention at Kendallville on the same day the congressional convention is held there. This seems like a good plan, as both counties will have a full attendance that day any way. Why could not DeKalb and Noble have their senatorial convention there on the same day? It would save an extra trip. Let us think it over.

THE article we have elsewhere, as to the delegate from this district to the national convention, was put in type a week ago, but crowded out. On looking it over, we wish to say it had no reference to Dr. Nusbaum, who is a candidate for the position, as we know that he will be guided, as all delegates should be, by the sentiment of the district. There is little doubt at this date, but the Indiana delegation will cast a solid vote for Gov. Gray. But should he decline, or fall out of the race, we feel just as sure that the vote of the state would go to Cleveland, should Cleveland be in the race, for there is no doubt but the democrats of Indiana are for Cleveland. Should Cleveland not be in the race, then Indiana delegates would go to Gorman, Palmer, Boies and any of those who have the confidence of Indiana democrats. This is Dr. Nusbaum's position. Like all true democrats, he believes in giving a vote in accordance with the wishes of his district. His district, will no doubt give him instructions something like the above, and he will follow it conscientiously. DeKalb should give him a solid vote in the meeting on the eve of the state convention at Indianapolis, and if he fails to get the place, we insist that some one similarly pledged to obey the people, be selected.

A Pleasant Meeting.

We clip the following from the Coldwater Courier, of last week;

"One very enjoyable social event of the week, was the surprise party Wednesday evening, at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Greenamyer, of about twenty-five friends and neighbors, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. York, just before going to their former home in Auburn, Ind., having resided here the past year, to care for their invalid mother, Mrs. Norton. The greetings and social converse were followed by refreshments after which came the presentatation by John Evens in behalf of the company, of a beautiful berry dish as a slight token of their appreciation and esteem, to which Mr. York responded in a very feeling and acceptable manner. The good wishes of a large number of Coldwater friends will accompany them to their home in Auburn.

G. A. R. Excursion.

The Lake Shore will on April 5th and 6th, sell tickets from Auburn to Fort Wayne and return, at the rate of 65 cents good going on the date of sale and returning not later than April 9, on account of state encampment of G. A. R. of Indiana.

National Delegates.

We have been criticised for saying that delegates from this district ought to be Cleveland men. Well, let us see What are delegates? They are men chosen to attend a certain gathering or convention, to carry to that convention the wishes of the people at home. In the present case, all the people cannot go and they have decided that a single vote shall go for each body of, say 20,000 voters. So the delegate goes, and his votes in the convention, should express the feeling of the 20,000 left behind. If the majority of the 20,000 favored either Hill, Cleveland, Gray, Gorman or Palmer, the delegate should feel like voting accordingly. No one will deny this. Now, we feel certain that more than three-fourths of the voters, perhaps nine tenths, are for Cleveland. This being the case, would it be honest or proper for a man who is for Hill, or Palmer, or Gorman, and who is opposed to Cleveland, to go as a delegate and misrepresent the district? Certainly not. The COURIER, as would all the democrats of the state, would be glad to see Gov. Gray nominated. But we think there is just now, not much show for him. The people's next choice is Cleveland. We have talked with hundreds of people living in the district, and this is almost the universal sentiment. That is why we have said as we have, that a delegate for this district must be one who agrees with the popular sentiment, else he should be honest with the people and refuse to go. The people should be properly represented.

Town Politics.

Town Clerk Geo. Grund, has taken the first step towards getting ready for the town election in May, by appointing his two assistants on the election board. They are W. B. Brown and H R Culbertson. This reminds us, that we have a spring election. All the officers are to be chosen except, Councilmen Lanning and Ensley. who hold over. We have heard no candidates to take the places of Mr. Harter, Mr Sheffer and Dr. Matheny. We understand that Clerk Grund, Treasurer Jones, and Marshal Pfeffer will be candidates for re-election, and we believe there is not likely to be any opposition to them They have all done well.

People's Party.

A meeting of the members of the People's Party of Union township will be held in Auburn

at 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of electing delegates and other business that May be brought before the convention.

We publish an obituary of Clement Hoffman, who, as is believed, accidently shot himself last Friday. His mother, Mrs. C. C. Hoffman, was absent, at the time attending the interment of Mrs. Fickes, at the cemetery north of there and there was no one at home but the young man, Miss Mattie Hoffman and a young lady friend. Clem, had a sort of shop fixed up in which he could tinker up old guns, for which he had a mania. He was fixing an old barrel up so as to use cartridges, and it is supposed had put in a cartridge and in some way exploded it, the ball entering his brain. The report brought Miss Mattie to the room, and then she called Shelby Hine, who lives near, and the above is his version of the story, and is probably correct. It is a sad affair.

Friday afternoon the bell called a fire, and at the same time heavy smoke could be seen near the Wabash elevator at the south end. The engine and hose cart were prompt in starting, but the engine stuck in the terrible mud in the low part of Cedar street, and the hose team had to come back and help pull it. The entire building could be seen in a blaze at the time the engine started and of course but little could be saved, though the ruins were put out at once. and the fire kept from spreading to other buildings. The building burned, was Fred. Funk's barn He had taken out his cows and a calf into a field that morning but his horse was in the barn, and so sudden was the fire that it was hard work to get the horse out. It proved to be the work of some little boys who had fixed up a sort of fire place with some bricks lying near the barn, and in some way the dry litter near the barn caught, then ran into the barn. A little girl near by, ran into the house and said the boys had set the barn on fire. Mr. Funk hurried out, and did all he could, but by the time the horse was out, it was past saving. Two other buildings caught, also, but the neighbors, and the engine saved them. The building was fully insured.

A few years ago, the magnificent grocery, queensware, glassware and crockery establishment of Hebel Bros, was known and recognized as the "Little Candy Store on the Corner." They did business in this small way for awhile, but by zealous and persistent effort, real energy, business tact and commercial aptitude, the business gradually grew until its extent compelled them to abandon the little corner building, which at once demanded the construction of the spacious and substantial brick that now poses as a monument to business enterprise at the corner of Main and 7th streets. It extended as far east as Raut's shoe store, and as far north as the width of one room, and answered their purposes for a short time. But soon it became necessary for them to still enlarge their storage capacity. This was done by building an addition on the north. Mr. Potter occupied the front part as a shoe store, while the firm used the back part as a queensware and glassware adjunct to the grocery. This year, the two rooms have been converted into one large double apartment, where is to be seen in a gorgeous array of artistic profusion almost anything the heart could wish for in the line of groceries, general produce, merchandise, queensware, glassware, porcelain crockery, etc., from a common clothes pin to the most elaborate China tea set. Thus from a small beginning Hebel Bros., have carved their names in flaming letters high up on the monument of success through the prosperity of a business legitimately honorable and profitable to themselves, and a credit to "Auburn, the fairest city of the plain."

The Union is a great government, whose emblem of liberty floats gayly in the breeze of a sweetly independent nation; its rich folds kissed by the softest rays of golden sunlight, which heightens its beauteous coloring and discloses a supremacy without one stripe obscured or one star obliterated. The Union brand of cigars does not float in the breeze or kiss the warm rays of the sun, but it maintains its original qualities and prominence upon the market to a remarkable degree.

The eminent scholar of the Dispatch, who boasts that he was "educated at the expense of the great state of Indiana," criticises Applebee's lecture on Shakespeare. But others in whose literary judgment we put far more faith, say the lecture was good—excellent, and while admitting that some left the room, they say it was because the room was too cold to be comfortable. The Dispatch has a grudge against the lecture course, or else is not capable of appreciating a lecture on Shakespeare—possibly both.

Curt Armstrong, who has been working off and on for the Garrett Goose Egg, setting type, was told last week by the precious gang, that Mr. Campbell, of the Dispatch, had said that he, Armstrong, was a drunken bum of a printer, and he was urged to go up and "lick the editor." He tried to carry out these instructions by stopping Campbell in the street, and picking a quarrel, making rather a cowboy display of a knife. Campbell refused to quarrel, and went off. This was last Friday. On Saturday forenoon, Armstrong went into the Dispatch office again and demanded an apology. He was fired out. At noon, when Campbell went to his boarding place, Armstrong followed him up street till Campbell turned the corner at Dr. Johnston's office, when he ran across to overtake him. The people who saw it say he had a knife, and used vile language. Campbell warned him off, and enforced his warning by pulling a revolver. Armstrong left. Campbell says he did not use the offensive language imputed to him, and we believe him. The Clipper gang are notorious liars, and are always trying to lie someone into a quarrel. If Curt wants to retain the few friends he has, he will do well to drop the Clipper gang and put up his knife. The two are sufficient to work him into the penitentiary.

The people are highly pleased with her work in the school, and don't thank the unknown correspondent for the lie he told.

Lieut. L. B Baker, the captor of the assassin Booth gave the closing lecture of the course last Friday evening. It was a most excellent and instructive story by a plain man, of the responsible and dangerous part he had taken in the chase and capture of Booth, that closed this chapter in the darkest part of our nation's history. There is no question as to his knowledge of what he himself had done, and we cannot but regret that more of our people, especially students of history did not hear it. An opportunity like this is not likely to return.

Marshal Pfeffer took in one of the two young bloods who stood around the streets so long Saturday morning daring each other to a mortal combat that neither seemed anxious for. The thing became a nuisance and Joe told them to stop. One of them, Will Denner, got "sassy," and the marshal went for him. The fellow ran east, and being fleet of foot and half scared to death, seemingly escaped. But the marshal watched his chance, and a little later caught his game hiding behind Brown, Culbertson & Boland's store. A good fine taught the chap that Auburn proposes to keep order.

Rickel & Sprott have purchased the right of a most valuable invention, the Bew spring buggy back. It is a device by which all the jar and wrenching of one's back, by the usual immovable buggy back is avoided. No matter how rough the road, when the body is thrown backwards against the supporting back, there is no jar, for this device, a spiral spring at each side, allows the back to give way gently, and there is no shock. We believe it will come into general use. We have not learned whether they will establish a plant and manufacture it, or will have it used by other manufacturers. They have also bought of Mr. Bew some other ingenious patent devices, one being a noiseless milkshake machine, and one, a combined ice-pick and holder,—two articles that will be extremely handy in every family.

Chili Will Allow the Claims of the Baltimore Men—Negroes Sold as Vagrants—A Dreadful Find—The Elder Successfully Floated.

A DREADFUL FIND.

A Former Wealthy Citizen of Cincinnati Found Dead and Eaten by Rats.

The badly decomposed body of a man was found by workmen in the cellar of the Manley Building, at Steubenville, Ohio. The man was hanging by his neck between the second and third cellar steps. In his right hand was grasped a screw-driver while in his left he held a large grainsack. Near his side was a ladder leading to the trap door which opened into the store above. The body was identified as that of Henry King, an ex-saloon keeper, and painter by trade. Portions of the body had been eaten away by rats. The store over the cellar was lately occupied by Thomas Odbert, who made an assignment March 20th. It is conjectured that King had forced his way into the cellar through the front entrance to rob the store, while it was temporarily closed. He was seen on Washington's birthday, when he was drinking heavily and it is thought on that night he made the attempt at burglary and slipped off the ladder, in his intoxicated condition, and slowly strangled to death. He was formerly well-to-do, his parents being wealthy residents of Cincinnati, but his wife left him, since which he has gone to the bad.

The Claims of the Baltimore Men Will Be Allowed.

Santiago special: Minister Egan, it is said, will not move in the Carleson case except to refer it to the State Department at Washington. The claims of the Baltimore men are causing considerable discussion here. It is the general impression that when the claims are presented to the Chilian Congress the sums agreed upon will be voted as not in any wise acknowledging the right of the demand, but as a charitable humane act, similar to the precedent established by the United States in the case of the Chinese killed at Rock Springs.

Was He Hypnotized?

Cleveland special: Frank R. Draeger of Fort Wayne, Ind., walked up to a boarding house at No. 39 Jennings avenue, called Mrs. Jennie Fitch, the wife of an Ohio Valley railway brakeman, to the door and after shaking hands with her, shot her through the body five times. Draeger made no attempt to escape, and when asked why he had shot the woman would only reply: "For reasons of my own. I've been under her hypnotic influences for five years. Saturday I managed to break away from this influence, and at once set out to kill her. I am glad I succeeded."

Tourgee Talks.

Chicago special: Judge Albion W. Tourgee, the noted author and champion of the rights of colored men, who is in the city, says that he did not see how any colored man in these United States can sing "America," and that the proceedings at the Bethel African M. E. Church here recently did not surprise him. Continuing, he said that the question of the rights of the negro must be carefully dealt with, and, if not, this country will experience an uprising that will surpass in its horrors anything the world has ever seen.

From Ear to Ear.

Abraham Cooley, a farmer, living one and a half miles west of Richmond, Ind., cut his wife's throat from ear to ear with a razor and then committed suicide by drawing the blade across his own throat. Both were dead when discovered a short time after the tragedy. Cooley had showed some signs of mental depression for some days. Cooley was a wealthy man and had a good farm and other property. He was about sixty years of age and his wife about fifty.

On a Strike.

Three hundred discontented Italians, employed on the grading of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad, east of Alliance, Ohio, have inaugurated a strike. They demand an increase of wages, and declare work will not be resumed until their claims are fully justified. Peace prevailed, but violence is liable to break out at any moment, as the strikers are of the lowest and most degrading type of civilization.

The Behring Sea Controversy Settled.

The treaty convention providing for arbitration in the settlement of the differences between Great Britain and the United States over the jurisdiction of Behring Sea has been ratified by the Senate by a unanimous vote. The secret session which resulted in the ratification lasted two hours.

Negroes Sold as Vagrants.

A sale under the the vagrant act took place at Fayette, Mo., recently, at which three negroes were sold on the dock to the highest bidder. One brought $25, another $5 and the third $1. The negro element is highly indignant and threaten revenge.

Talmage Won't Edit.

The report that the Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage would leave Brooklyn for England next fall to take charge of the paper edited by the late Rev. Dr. Spurgeon is denied by the Rev. Dr. Talmage.

A Duel to the Death.

Jesse Cobb and James Howard, rivals in love, fought a duel with knives at Salem, Ky. Howard was killed. Cobb has fled.

The Elder Successfully Floated.

The North German Lloyd steamship Eider, which went ashore on Altherfield rocks, off the Isle of Wight, on the night of the 21st of January, has been successfully floated off the reefs into deep water and towed into Southampton.

Five Miners Killed.

A terrific gas explosion occurred at the American sulphur mines, Lake Charles, La. Five of the six men working in the shaft were instantly killed.

A Gasoline Explosion.

Adrian (Mich.) special: While Mrs. Henry Lards, wife of Turnkey Lards of the County Jail, was cleaning the carpet of one of the rooms of her home on Erie street with gasoline, a gasoline stove in an adjoining room exploded. Her two children, a boy of 2 and a girl of 3 years, were in the room with her. In an instant the room where the mother was at work upon the carpet was ablaze. The clothing of all three became ignited and the mother and older child ran screaming into the yard, forgetting the little boy. Neighbors came to the rescue, but not until the clothing had been burned off the mother and little girl. The little boy was burned to a crisp. Mrs. Lards and the girl are thought to be fatally burned.

A HOT SKULL.

Spills Its Torturing Melt On Nine Brawny Bodies.

The converting department of Carnegie's steel plant at Homestead, Penn., was the scene of a terrible accident recently, by which nine men were injured, four of whom will die. Their names were Arthur McQuirk, Albert Williams, Andrew Stoffield, and Peter Woods, all married; Thos. Harding, John Shields, James Baird, Frank ..bel, and John Gwinn. The four first named were fatally injured. The accident happened during a melt in the converting, and was caused by the skull or debris, falling from the shields over the Bessemer converter and breaking the pressure pipe. This caused the vessel, which was filled with molten steel, to turn on its trunnions, throwing the metal into the pit. The falling metal covered nine of the workmen, frightfully burning four of them and painfully injuring the others. The injured were given every possible attention, and with the exception of the four mentioned, will soon be out again. All of the injured were removed to their homes in Homestead.

W. L. Abbott, Chairman of the company, says the accident was an unusual and unavoidable one. It was the first accident of the kind that had ever happened at the works. The skull, or debris, is a collection of cinder, small portions of steel and other matter that is thrown from the converting furnace by the heavy pressure of air that is forced through the melting metal.

Mr. Abbott gave it as his opinion that no one could be charged with carelessness, as the firm, as well as the men, had taken every precaution to avoid all danger.

THEY WERE RASCALS.

Further Exposures in the Ohio Bank Failure.

Cleveland special: New developments have been uncovered in the Paige bank defalcation at Painesville, Ohio, that have caused a sensation in local financial circles, and several Cleveland capitalists may be hard hit. When David Paige, a brother of the cashier of the defunct Painesville bank, contracted for certain work upon the New York aqueduct, it became necessary to secure some one to indorse his paper. He obtained the aid of John Huntington, a millionaire, and his brother-in-law. The latter indorsed a number of notes given by Paige, Cary & Co. As far as known, all this paper was for four months. Two years ago John Huntington, with shattered health, left Cleveland for Europe. He is now at Carlsbad. It was known by Huntington's family here that when the notes expired the indorsements by him were not renewed. In spite of that fact renewed paper continued in circulation, and Huntington sent word by cable that he had not indorsed the paper. The members of his family and local bankers held a consultation. Thousands of dollars' worth of Paige, Cary & Co. paper bearing the indorsement of John Huntington is held in this city alone. There has been a partial record made of $285,000 worth in local banks.

COTTO ELECTROCUTED.

The Current Turned Off and On Four Times.

Jeremiah Cotto, the murderer of Louis Frankeloso, was executed in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison, New York. This was the eighth execution by electricity. It possessed peculiar interest, because it had been reported that Cotto had been suffering a dreadful fear of his approaching death and because it seemed probable that he would break down and make a pitiful scene in the execution-room. But Cotto's courage had seemed to increase with the approach of death. The nervousness which had almost prostrated him in the days preceding seemed to leave him and he went to death calmly.

The current was turned off and on four times. After each application Cotto showed signs of apparent life, moving his hands and opening his eyes. There was no movement of the chest, however, as there had been in other cases. At the first sign of life the current was turned on again. After the fourth shock there was no signs of life and the doctors declared the man dead. There was no burning, but steam arose and there was scalding of the parts where the electrodes were applied.

That Sugar Combine.

Philadelphia special: The sugar refining plant of Harrison, Frazier & Co. was formerly transferred to the American Sugar Refining Company, the consideration being $10,000,000, one-tenth of which was paid in cash, and the remainder on exchange of sugar trust certificates for Harrison, Frazier & Co. stock. The announcement did not create much surprise in local sugar circles, as it had been predicted for several days. The only effect that it had was that of raising the price of sugar trust stock on the several exchanges of the American Sugar Refinery, and it is probable that Claus Spreckels will turn over his refinery. Such is the impression prevailing among sugar brokers, who have been following the workings of the sugar trust among the Philadelphia refineries of late. In consequence of the trust having absorbed the Franklin refinery the McCahan Sugar Refining Company, which was incorporated last year with a capital of $3,000,000, has increased it to $5,000,000, and has decided to begin building a plant at once.

Paige Has Skipped.

R. K. Paige, cashier and head of the Citizens' Savings and Loan Association Bank of Painesville, Ohio, which closed its doors last week, has fled for parts unknown. It has been learned that Paige, besides realizing on all his personal property before the bank failed, issued a large amount of worthless paper. Holders of $6,000 worth of these notes have already presented them, and this probably represents a small portion of Paige's speculations. It is also charged that Paige's personal friends were allowed to enter the bank the night before the failure, and take out what money they paid on deposit. This practically cleans out the safe, and other depositors will get nothing.

Two Hoosiers Get There.

The President has sent to the Senate the following names: Stanton J. Peelo of Indiana, to be Judge of the Court of Claims, vice Glenn I. W. Schofield, retired. To be United States district attorneys: William K. Townsend of Connecticut, of the District of Connecticut; John B. Rector of Texas, for the Northern District of Texas, John H. Baker of Indiana, for the District of Indiana. Elery P. Ingram of Pennsylvania, to be an attorney of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania; Alexander P. Colesbury of Pennsylvania, to be United States Marshal for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

The G. A. R. Encampment.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator McMillen providing for an appropriation of $100,000 to pay the proper and legitimate expenses attending the reception and entertainment of such honorably discharged union soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the War of the Rebellion as may attend, as delegates or otherwise, the twenty-sixth national encampment of the G. A. R. in Washington. One-half the sum named is to be paid out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated; the remainder of the revenues of the district.

A Jealous Husband Kills His Wife.

Samuel Oleson, a well-known mill man of Wheeling, W. Va., suspected his wife of infidelity, and traced her about the city in company with a male friend. Oleson became enraged, went home and accused the woman. She denied the charge, and he struck her two terrible blows over the head with a poker, fracturing her skull and inflicting fatal injuries. Oleson's sister interfered, and he turned on her savagely knocking her senseless, and then twisting his hands in her hair, literally tore half her scalp off. She may recover from the shock. Oleson is under arrest.

Henry Smith Hanged.

Henry Smith, a negro, was hanged in the jail yard at Louisville. When he mounted the scaffold Smith, whose courage had never left him, stepped to the front and made a short speech. He said he had nothing to say but to welcome death. He was satisfied that he would pass into that world where there was nothing but happiness. He closed with a fervent amen. He then stepped on the trap. As the noose was put around his neck Smith laughed and said: "Be careful." He was smiling all the while.

Looking for an Unnatural Brute.

Boston (Ind.) special: If John Lane can be found, he will be hanged. The dead body of the 5-year-old child of Clara Osborn, killed by his brutality, was found lying at the house which he had just vacated when indignant neighbors burst the doors open and pushed their way into the place. They found that the child had been beaten until its body was completely covered with bruises and its arm and back broken. Lane in the meantime decamped, but searching parties are out in every direction, with the purpose of lynching him if caught.

A Duel with Rifles.

A duel was fought near Breaux Bridge, La., between James Hollier and David Ruse in a heavy rain. Winchester rifles were the weapons, and fifty paces the distance. The men stood their ground honorably, exchanging shots without damage to each other. The duel was brought about by the political situation in the State. Ruse is a hot McEnery man, while Hollier supports Foster. The sheriff sent a dispatch to stop the duel, but the deputy arrived too late.

Jack the Ripper.

London special: The Scotland Yard people scoff at the alleged confession of Deeming to the Whitechapel murders. Deeming confessed the last Whitechapel murder, which was committed February 13, 1891. Scotland Yard has conclusive evidence that Deeming was in jail at Hull at that time for robbing a jeweler. This fact discredits his alleged confession to the Whitechapel business, though there is no doubt that he is guilty of the Rainhill crime.

A Catalogue of the Week's Important Occurrences Throughout the State—Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Suicides, Etc.

A Valuable Report.

The report of State Statistician Peelle, as far as completed, makes a showing of valuable and entertaining facts and figures. It is shown that the total of county expenses for the year ending May 31, 1891, is $6,786,013, a decrease of $120,066 from the previous year's expense on this account. The counties of the State paid out on account of the poor, $882,874, an increase over the previous year of $125,898. The report being statistical alone, advances no cause for this large increase, amounting to about 20 per cent. The cost of roads was $104,860, a decrease from the former year of about $74,000. In the bridge expense account, however, the amount expended was $100,000 more than in the previous year. This seems to indicate that the people are beginning to realize that under the present State system, or lack of system, the money expended on the highways is practically thrown away, while the improvements in bridges are of more permanent and enduring character.

The following summary contains the totals of the several items found in the tables for 1891:

County officers (except Co. Sup'ts)	$553,939
Grand and petit juries	325,272
Coroners' inquests	27,588
Enumerating, assessing and appraising	208,494
Road viewing and surveying	40,558
County Sup'ts and institutes	110,638
Criminals and prisons	152,986
Poor farms	305,508
Paid by trustees on account of poor	577,506
Roads and highways	104,860
State benevolent and reformatory institutions	70,598
Public buildings and repairs	714,102
Ditches	156,528
New bridges and repairs	553,034
Interest on county bonds	231,139
Interest on free gravel road bonds	102,082
Interest on county orders	50,504
Books and stationery	174,826
Printing and advertising	65,325
Redemption of county bonds	349,179
Redemption of free gravel road bonds	431,143
All other expenses (miscellaneous)	1,477,144

The amount of bonded indebtedness paid during the year was $349,179. The gross debt of the counties, including bonded and floating, was $5,719,558. The sinking fund amounts to $556,457, and the free gravel road bonds, $1,428,672. The bonded indebtedness of cities as reported by 161 officers of corporations was $8,329,093, and the sinking fund $214,665. Sixty-five towns reported no bonded indebtedness.

During the year under consideration, 26,734 civil cases and 9,226 criminal proceedings occupied the attention of the courts. There were 7,644 indictments returned. There were 1,899 foreclosures of real estate. The reports of real estate transfers show an aggregate of 75,516, at a valuation of $70,287,386.

Plums in Sight.

If the Postoffice Building Bill that recently passed the Senate should meet with favorable action in the House quite a number of thriving and prosperous cities in Indiana will be greatly benefited. Just where these buildings would go is a matter of interest. The law provides that in all cities where for the past three fiscal years the gross receipts of the postoffice has been annually not less than $3,000 nor more than $9,000 the building shall not cost more than $20,000, the site included. Where the receipts have been more than $9,000 a year and not less than $90,000 a year for three years past the building shall cost in no case more than $75,000, but may equal the aggregate of the gross receipts for three years, provided the sum be within this limit. The following table gives the cities in Indiana that can, in the course of time, if the bill becomes a law, be beneficiaries under it: The gross receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, is given, and the census of the city according to the enumeration of 1890:

Cities	Gross Receipts.	Population.
Anderson	$14,723	10,741
Columbus	11,937	6,719
Connersville	10,386	4,548
Crawfordsville	13,275	6,089
Elkhart	25,021	11,260
Frankfort	10,985	5,919
Goshen	14,368	6,033
Greencastle	9,146	4,390
Huntington	10,154	7,328
Kokomo	12,749	8,261
Lafayette	30,343	16,243
Laporte	13,101	7,126
Logansport	17,904	13,398
Madison	9,585	8,936

Michigan City	9,546	10,776
Muncie	15,931	11,345
Peru	10,084	7,028
Richmond	33,888	16,608
Shelbyville	8,591	5,451

Valparaiso	13,270	5,090
Vincennes	12,654	8,853

THE following are the smaller towns that would be entitled to the twenty-thousand-dollar buildings:

Angola, Auburn, Attica, Aurora, Bedford, Bloomington, Bluffton, Brazil, Columbia City, Danville, Decatur, Delphi, Franklin, Greensburg, Hammond, Jeffersonville, Kendallville, Lagrange, Lawrenceburg, Lebanon, Ligonier, Mishawake, Mt. Vernon, New Castle, Noblesville, North Manchester, Notre Dame, Plymouth, Portland, Princeton, Rochester, Rushville, Seymour, Sullivan, Tipton, Union City, Warsaw, Washington, Winchester.

IT costs $13,000 per year for the city of New Albany to keep its streets in repair.

STEPHEN REESE, a carpenter of Terre Haute, fell from a house and was badly hurt.

JAMES LONG, aged 58, of Danville, while in a fit, fell into an open fire and was burned to death.

THE Humane Society of Fort Wayne is after policemen because, 'tis said, they beat drunken men with their clubs.

AUGUST WILKES of Michigan City, put his pipe in his coat pocket and then hung the coat on the wall. He is without a coat now. It caught fire from the pipe.

CAPT. DON CARLOS ROBINSON, aged 76, the veteran boat-builder and founder of the Madison Marine Railway and Shipyard at Madison, in conjunction with Capt. Alexander Temple, died after a lingering illness of several months.

ELLA WALTERS, the daughter of William Walters, the convict serving a twenty-one year sentence at Jeffersonville for killing a man named Sterrett in Jeffersonville, in 1886, is suspected of having killed her mother at West Baden in January. The girl is queer in her head, and recent developments at a hotel where she was employed in Jeffersonville have aroused suspicion.

A PECULIAR end came the other day to the Dunlap-Cornealis fight, which took place near Princeton, March 25. It will be remembered that Cornealis struck Dunlap over the head with a heavy club. It was thought Dunlap could not live, but he recovered, and was placed in jail, a raving maniac from the effects of the injury. Cornealis escaped at the time. The other day, while officers were giving him a chase, he ran on a bridge crossing a stream near town, and was surprised to behold an officer come up from the opposite end of the bridge ready to take him. Cornealis, however, leaped from the bridge into the water and, it is supposed, took a cramp, for he sank before he could be rescued.

THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

WORK OF OUR NATIONAL LAWMAKERS.

Proceedings of the Senate and House of Representatives—Important Measures Discussed and Acted Upon—Gist of the Business.

The National Solons.

In the Senate, on the 22d, the bill for the relief of settlers on public lands was passed. In the navigation bill, the committee amendments reducing the total appropriation from $16,000,000 to $15,000,000; reducing the annual expenditure under the bill from $3,333,000 to $2,000,000; reducing the amount fixed for that part of the river from the mouth of the Illinois to the mouth of the Ohio from $6,000,000 to $5,000,000; and the annual expenditure therefrom $2,000,000 to $1,000,000 were all agreed to. Afterward the total appropriation was increased from $15,000,000 to $18,750,000. The words "For the general improvement of the river and for the building of levees" were struck out. An amendment was agreed to assigning $3,750,000 of the total amount to the improvement of the river between the mouth of the Illinois and St. Paul, Minn., of which not more than $75,000 shall be expended during any one year. An amendment to insert the words "Of the navigation of the Mississippi River" was also agreed to. The bill was then passed. The next bill was the one appropriating $1,745,816 for the purpose of securing the early completion of the canal and for the locks at the cascades of the Columbia River. It was passed without any discussion. Yeas, 46; nays, 4. The next bill, appropriating $2,866,356 for the construction of a boat railway, and of the necessary marine apparatus and appliances at the Dalles and Celilo Falls and ten mile rapids on the Columbia River, and in the improvement of Three Mile Rapids was also passed without discussion.

In the Senate, the 23d, an executive message from the President of the United States was delivered by Mr. Pruden to the Vice President, when the Indian appropriation bill was taken up. The first important amendment was that of striking out of the bill the proviso requiring army officers to be detailed as Indian agents. Mr. Morgan moved as a subsitute for the House provision one directing the President to appoint Indian citizens of the United States as Indian agents when in his judgment such appointment might contribute to attach the Indians to civilization and to the Government of the United States. Without action on the question the Senate adjourned. In the House, after transacting some routine business, the free coinage bill came up for discussion again. The first speaker of the day was Representative Pierce, of Tennessee. In concluding, Mr. Pierce cited the speech of Mr. Mills in the last House in support of free coinage, and insisted, that the gentleman from Texas, to make his record consistent, must support the bill now before the House. Mr. Stone, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Lynch, of Wisconsin, opposed the measure, declaring that its chief end was to make something out of nothing; its chief purpose is to make 70 cents worth 100 cents. Mr. Stout, of Michigan, also raised his voice in opposition, and Mr. Fitch, of New York (a Democrat), earnestly opposed the passage of the bill. Mr. McKeighran, of Nebraska, one of the People's party Representatives and a member of the Coinage Committee, and Mr. Bushnell, of Wisconsin, spoke in favor of a proposed amendment providing that hereafter the silver dollar shall contain one ounce troy of pure silver. After a speech by Mr. Perkins, of Iowa, in opposition to the bill, the House took a recess.

On the 25th in the silver contest in the House motions to adjourn, to take a recess till the 26th, and to adjourn till the 28th, were all voted down, and then Mr. Bland, stating that it was evident that no fair vote could be taken, moved an adjournment, which motion was carried. The silver bill now goes on the calendar, but it is probable that the Committee on Rules will at an early day report a resolution for its further consideration. The interest in this measure excludes thought of everything else in the House. At one stage of the proceedings, Mr. Bland, the persistent advocate of the bill, was recognized by the Speaker, and in a quiet tone of voice demanded the previous question on the pending bill. After exciting debate, the Speaker ordered the roll call, and the result was a tie—148 for and 148 against. This shows strength very nearly evenly divided. Several members were not present. In the Senate, the correspondence received from the President relative to the Behring Sea troubles was made public. It reveals a very ticklish situation. The President sent to the Senate the following nominations: Stanton J. Peelle, of Indiana, Judge of the Court of Claims, vice Glenn C. Scofield, retired; United States District Judges—William K. Townsend, for District of Connecticut; John B. Rector, for Northern District of Texas; John H. Baker, for District of Indiana; Ellery P. Ingham, United States Attorney; and Alexander P. Colesberry, Marshal for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

A message from the President, transmitting a communication from the District Commissioners, accompanied by a letter from the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the G. A. R. Encampment, to be held next September, was laid before the Senate on the 25th. An appeal is made for $100,000, one-half to be paid by the District for the expenses of the encampment. The President says: "It seems to me that it will be highly appropriate for Congress suitably to aid in making this demonstration impressive." The Senate then went into executive session. Mr. Wilson, from the Judiciary Committee, reported a bill changing the time for holding the Circuit and District Courts of West Virginia, and it was passed. Senate bill appropriating $400,000 for a public building at Helena, Mont., was passed. The Senate then adopted resolutions offered by Mr. Stanford in respect to the memory of Senator Hearst. Eulogies were delivered by Senators Stanford, Vest, Stewart, Voorhees, Bate, Dolph, Morgan and Felton, and then, as a further mark of respect, the Senate adjourned till the 28th. The House went into committee of the whole on the private calendar. Three hours were consumed in the consideration of the bill for the relief of the personal representatives of Henry H. Sibley, the inventor of the "Sibley" tent, but no determination was reached. The committee having arisen, the House adjourned.

Hailed with Joy.

THE cargoes of food sent from this country to the starving people of Russia would not feed the Czar's army very long.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

HER long voyage of mercy ended, the Indiana has entered the harbor at Libau. Thus bountiful liberty tempers the wind to the shorn lamb of autocracy.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

WHILE we are feeding and clothing the Czar's peasantry with our money he is spending theirs in building new fortifications in Poland for their further repression.—New York Advertiser.

WHILE this national offering will succor many a perishing Russian peasant, recent reports indicate that it will be but a drop in the bucket in relieving the stricken empire.—Minneapolis Tribune.

AMERICA'S gift to starving Russia has been received at Libau with acclaim. It is pleasant to know that the cargo of flour will be distributed through the agency of a well-chosen special committee, instead of being intrusted to the tender mercies of the Czar's venal subalterns.—Boston Globe.

Flighty American Women.

THE recent shooting at Yokohama will be a striking proof to the Japs of the superiority in culture and civilization claimed by America and England.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE Hetherington-Robinson affair at Yokohama closely resembles the Deacon-Abeille tragedy at Cannes. The honor of American husbands is being very tragically vindicated all over the world of late.—Boston News.

THE shooting of Abeille by Deacon and Robinson by Hetherington emphasizes the good old lesson that if a man wants a wife it's safer in the long run to get one of his own rather than to fool with the wife of the other fellow.—Philadelphia Call.

A Pair of Jacks.

BY LULU JAMISON.

CHAPTER III.

After a dreamless sleep in his great four-posted bedstead Jack awakened in the cool, fresh morning to find the bright sunlight pouring through the broad, deep windows.

He required some seconds to accustom his eyes to his new surroundings, then bouncing out of bed and dressing with unusual haste he found his way to the garden.

"Ah," he said, inhaling with keen enjoyment the pure, fresh air about him, "what a contrast to the city! I wonder if she is about."

"You shouldn't speak your thoughts aloud, if you don't wish people to hear them. Have you just come down? I've been up for hours. Maje and I have had a glorious gallop."

Jack turned with a slight start, to see Mary standing in the path beside him.

"How did you get here without my seeing or hearing you?" he questioned with some astonishment. "Did you rise from the ground or drop from the clouds?"

"Neither, inquisitor. I am only an ordinary mortal, so ordinary that I am about starved at the present moment. Do come to breakfast, please."

"Certainly," returned Jack, following obediently, "with great pleasure. I have not been riding, but my appetite has assumed extraordinary proportions, I confess."

Mr. Millard was seated in the dining-room reading, but as they entered he laid his book aside, and after kissing Mary greeted Jack with kindly warmth.

"I hope you are both in good appetite," he said, as they seated themselves about the table. "I can safely count on Mary, I think."

"Always, grandpa. More particularly this morning I am ravenous, and I see muffins. Under the circumstances I must begin my breakfast.

"Grandpa," she added, when the first edge of her hunger was borne away, "Mr. Beverly has confessed to being something of an artist. That something is his qualification, not mine. He has also promised to show me some of his sketches, provided I show him some views worth copying. I think that must be a pleasant way of making one's living. Painting pictures, I mean."

"Yes, my dear," smiled her grandfather; "but with Beverly it is an amusement, rather than a profession."

He turned his eyes questioningly upon Jack.

"I must confess to having made it my profession," returned that young man, pausing in the act of buttering his muffin.

The old gentleman appeared puzzled.

"You surprise me. I understood you practiced law. Is it possible I imagined it, or could I have been thinking of your father? How well I remember his first case. What a fine start it gave him. I told myself then he would surely sit on the bench some day. Vain prophecy. Alas, how time flies; it seems but a few years since, and yet——"

He sighed and fell into a musing mood.

"Evidently off his mental balance," thought Jack, surprised at the information he had just received. "Father never had a law case to my knowledge. Perhaps I'm off too. It would not surprise me in the least. I wonder if I shall hear any more new points in my history."

In this he was disappointed. Mr. Millard preserved an almost unbroken silence during the rest of the meal, and immediately at its conclusion withdrew to his library, telling Mary to take good care of Jack.

"That leaves me to your tender mercies," said Jack when they were alone. "What do you intend to do with me?"

"I don't know," she said quite seriously. "What would you like?"

"Suppose we walk," he suggested.

"Well. Oh, I forgot, I have not fed the chickens yet. I must do that first."

"All right; let me help you."

"You," she repeated with an irrepressible smile. "Well, yes, you may, but I warn you in time. You don't known what you bargain for."

"I'll bear the consequences. Lead on."

Thus commanded, Mary tied her hat under her chin, and with Jack in her wake, proceeded to the kitchen.

"Is the chickens' breakfast ready?" she asked, walking in upon the astonished Jeannette. "Mr. Beverly made me forget the poor little things. I hope they have not starved to death."

"I wonder what you can be thinking of, Miss Mary," was the answer, as Jeannette gave a comprehensive glance at Jack standing meekly in the doorway.

"Of the chickens, of course," responded Mary, composedly. "Mr. Beverly intends to keep off the old hens and roosters. He will be useful as well as ornamental."

Jack bowed gravely at this allusion to his double capacity, while Jeannette continued to look mildly shocked.

"I'll feed them chickens myself," she finally declared, with ungrammatical decision.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," was the equally decisive reply. "Here is the pail, Mr. Beverly; please carry it."

"Certainly," was the prompt response, as Jack brought down a pile of kettles and pans in his effort to reach Mary the more readily. "Any damage?" he added, stopping short.

"No, sir," answered Jeannette; "but I do feel so ashamed of Miss Mary."

"Come," said Mary, with imperious brevity; and, Jack obeying promptly, they were soon the center of a group of expectant chickens.

"Evidently this pail appeals to their appreciative minds and palates," remarked Jack; "or is my manly beauty the attraction?"

"The pail, certainly," returned Mary, with dissilusionizing assurance. "Now, I will show you what to do. This is only for the mother hens and young chickens. I feed them here, and I always have such a time to keep the older ones from getting in. See that opening there? That is where you are to stand and keep a sharp watch. They will get in if you give them a crevice. First drive those little ones in. Pshaw! You'll frighten the life out of them. See—this way. Shake your apron at them."

"But I have no apron," expostulated Jack.

"Well, you must shake something; your coat will do. There, they are in. Get a stick, quick, and should another chicken try to pas, strike it, if you can."

Mary gave these instructions with the utmost gravity. The ludicrous side of the situation did not appeal to her in the least, and Jack, quite carried away by the excitement of the chase, had no time for any other consideration.

"You look tired already," observed Mary, after a few seconds, as Jack paused from his apparently laborious efforts to mop his brow. "Take care; there is an old hen and a red rooster coming up behind you. Send them flying; I detest both of them. Sho! Sho! Didn't I tell you not let her in?"

"Is she in?" cried Jack, in distressed tones. "Confound her, she was out a second ago. Here, you white imp, come out. No, you don't. Get out! Get out!"

"Say 'Sho,'" interrupted Mary. "They don't know what 'Get out' means. Look, quick! There's another rooster trying to get between your feet. I don't believe you are much help, after all." Mary come to this conclusion as the rooster succeeded in eluding Jack's stick, and with outspread wings and a shriek of victory sailed into the forbidden Eden.

"Help?" he repeated in disgusted tones, "who can help with such slippery creatures? I'd like to break that thing's neck."

"Pshaw, how a man can work himself up over a little thing. You've made more fuss this single morning than I have done in a hundred."

"I think you tremendously ungrateful. For my part I think it worse than breaking stones on the street. I'll keep on banging if you say so. The things are like Pat's fly; I think I have them, but when the stick comes down they are not there."

"Of course they are not. No sensible chicken would be. I'd be delighted, though, if you could manage to catch that old rooster. He is the greediest thing imaginable, and is always getting what is not intended for him. He has the luck of finding the biggest worms, and when—— Oh, dear, I shan't talk any more. You have let about a dozen chickens in."

"So I have," was the contrite answer. "They are worse than eels. Confound them! How shall I get them out?"

"Impossible," said Mary, with a resigned air. "I suppose it isn't so bad. Everything is almost gone. Rather warm, wasn't it?"

"You are making game of me," returned Jack, detecting the spice of mischief in her words. "I call that ingratitude."

"Oh, no. Please don't think me ungrateful. I am really much obliged, and to reward you I shall take you for a nice walk and show you some of the loveliest views imaginable."

"You can be kind sometimes," he replied, as she ran off.

CHAPTER IV.

DEAR BOY—I write this, hoping to find you in the land of the living—a possibility I somewhat doubt, in view of the late unconscionable tricks played by that thermometer of yours. I find it quite pleasant, not to say gratifying, to read that the mercury stands at 98 deg. in New York, and then look abroad upon my own cool retreat.

Weston is as pleasant a village as one might wish to see, and its surroundings would make an artist wild with delight. Not being an artist—a profession to which my friends here insist upon relegating me—my staid, legal mind manages to preserve its accustomed balance.

Before leaving the city, I told you my address would be South Weston, that being, as I then supposed, the one given me by Mr. Millard. I have since discovered my mistake. A most fortunate incident put me on the right track. On the car I got into conversation with a gentleman who lives in Weston, and knows Mr. Millard intimately. He immediately gave me my true bearings.

This saved me some annoyance, though I had some slight trouble about my trunk. I have been puzzled to know how I should have gotten South Weston in my mind. I asked Mr. Millard about it, but he appeared quite unable to understand. To admit the plain truth, I cannot quite understand him. He is a most pleasant and agreeable gentleman, but his attitude toward me is certainly not what his letter led me to expect. They were more than cordial. He has never mentioned my father's name, and the letters which passed between us are as though they never were. He doesn't mention them and I don't. You will be surprised to hear also that I have been allowed to take up my quarters at the hotel, when you know I had quite expected something very different. Surely, I was never more mistaken in the terms of an invitation in my life before.

Meantime affairs are very pleasant. There is a Mrs. Millard, a fact that rather surprised me. She is a most charming woman, and her daughter, Miss Ellis, or Miss Kilty, as everybody calls her, is equally so. Under the circumstances I spent a large portion of my days at Glendale.

I wish you would find time to run up here for a while. This delightful air would infuse new life into your veins.

The hotel which I honor by my residence is called Fair View, a piece of conceit and delicate sarcasm which I highly appreciate. It is full at the present time, so my landlord informs me, and between ourselves, he is, not unfrequently, in the same condition himself. However, he is free, white and twenty-one, and I won't begrudge him his little irregularities. In fact, no one does, unless it be his wife, a most remarkable woman, who manages the house and her poorer half in a manner calculated to win the admiration of a Dame Van Winkle. In my estimation, the one wise thing John Shrimp ever did was to make Matilda Butler Mrs. Shrimp.

Matilda, so the story goes, was mistress of a country hotel, less pretentious even than this present Fair View, when the worthy John happened along and took up his residence there.

John was a logician in his way, and thus he argued, as did the worthy Bitteredge before him, Matilda being single, obliges me to pay my board. Matilda, being Mrs. Shrimp, gives me my board for nothing. Therefore, Matilda shall be Mrs. Shrimp.

Result: For fifteen years Matilda has boarded John Shrimp for nothing. Come and have a glimpse of this shining example of wedded bliss.

Come, I say, but don't expect first-class accommodations. You may share my room. It is the best that could be done for me under existing circumstances. I have this on the authority of Mrs. Shrimp, accompanied by one of her sweet smiles, and prefaced by the request to be allowed so to speak.

It has its drawbacks, however, among others, a lack of substantiality in chairs, bed, etc. I admire a certain steadiness in furniture as well as people. If you fancy the daily routine of my life I can promise you plenty of it. Immediately beneath my window is the residence of a comely sow, who is at present rearing a thriving family, and my interest is always keenly alive to the interesting, not to say instructive, spectacle.

Don't let this brief description frighten you, for I really pine for a glimpse of your seraphic countenance. It is now almost mail time, and as I wish to get this in I must stop immediately. Write if you are alive, and come if possible. Yours, etc., JACK BEVERLY.

"One duty accomplished," soliloquized the writer of the above, as with a grand flourish he signed his name. "Astonishing what a bore writing is at times. Now what to do with myself. A distressing point to consider. I wonder if one couldn't die of stagnation here. I might under other circumstances. Ah! I had almost forgotten my letter. I will mail that and then run over for a chat."

This slightly ambiguous conclusion was evidently highly gratifying to the speaker's feelings, for he smiled quite cheerfully as he changed his coat, took his hat from the peg on the door and left his room.

Ten minutes' walk brought him to the postoffice, and upon his inquiring for the mail, one letter was handed to him. As the writing was quite strange he turned the envelope several times, examining it critically.

Gaining no information in this way, he went to the corner by the window, and breaking the seal, read with much surprise the several closely written pages.

"DEAR JACK—Your letter received and much appreciated. Under present circumstances I scarcely hoped to be remembered at all, and my disappointment in that particular is therefore the more gratifying.

"Upon reflection, I don't feel grateful at all. After your pitching into me I feel decidedly ungrateful, not to say belligerent. What have I told Mr. Millard? you ask, with inquisitorial brevity. How under heaven did I find out so much about you, and why in the mischief didn't I let you into the secret? So you go on for a page or two. Now, my dear fellow, just cool off a bit. There's nothing in the world to get into hysterics about. In substance, I told Mr. Millard that you were my friend and an exceedingly nice young man in every respect. What more would you have?

"As to family history, relationship, genealogy, and such intricate subjects, I know as little of yours as I do of my own. I refrain on principle from becoming interested in such unsatisfactory researches. My own family has never been particularly distinguished, thank heaven, and if I should, by some remote chance, become great, I shall not be subjected to the painful experience of being overshadowed by my father nor grandfather. This with all possible respect for those two worthy gentlemen.

"Speaking of family ties naturally suggests Uncle John. The old sinner sent me an article the other day on 'How a Young Man Can Live on Ten Dollars a Week.' I returned it with elaborate thanks, and the mild inquiry as to whether it might not be applicable to old men as well. No answer as yet.

"The city gets on pretty well without you. A few people are still left. We are not a deserted village by any means, though your quarters look dismal enough. Scenery with you attractive, you say. I'll warrant you find a certain pair of eyes attractive, too. Well, I don't blame you. I've been there before, you know.

"By the way, I ran across John the other day. He inquired for you most particularly. There's a young stranger at his house—weighs ten pounds, and is said to resemble his father, so far as a pronounced color permits one to judge. If you had married Mrs. John, as we thought one time you might, this joy would have been yours. Do you feel no regret? Answer in your next. In haste,

"FRANK."

"Frank," repeated Mr. Jack Beverly, turning the letter in various directions, with the air of one expecting Frank to look out upon him from its pages. "Who in the devil is Frank? And who is John, and Mrs. John, whom I might have married, and the young visitor? Confound it, I wonder who is trying to play a joke on me. A mighty poor one, I must call it. Frank! Frank! Did I ever know anyone by the name of Frank? Never to my certain knowledge."

He knitted his brow over this effort at recollection, and looking straight before him, gave vent to a long, low whistle. Then once more reading his letter without gaining any wisdom thereby, he put it in his pocket, with the words, "I'll find the writer of this brilliant effusion before I die. Now to see if Miss Kitty is at home."

With this idea in view, he sauntered out into the shady street, and walked for some distance in deep thought. Turning from the little village into a well-kept road, he soon reached a handsome, modern-looking residence, surrounded by beautifully laid out grounds.

"Ah, she is there," he said softly, as a tall, fashionably dressed girl rose from the hammock and came to meet him with the words:

"I thought you might come this afternoon. Mamma is out, and I have been dreadfully lonely."

THE latest trick with English horse fanciers is to send the animals to a warmer climate for the winter. It is not to be wondered at that with the enormous sums of money which are invested in some of the stars of the turf all possible means should be taken to insure their health, but the idea of sending them abroad is a novel one. It may not be long before in the columns of fashionable intelligence in the newspapers there will be announcements that Mr. Racing has decided to send his horse Highflier to Florida for the cold weather, that Mr. Runhard will winter his stud in the South, and that Mr. Betting will accompany his ten thousand dollar stallion Kiter to the south of France for the trying months of spring weather. It will be a boon to paragraphers, at least.

UNLIMITED assurance was possessed by the young man from Tennessee who lately sought admission to West Point, and thus closed his application to the superintendent: "I want only to study military tactics. I want to stay three years. I want $40 per month. At the end of the term I want a position over some army of the United States. I want you to send me a round ticket there and back. I think I am both physically and mentally qualified to fill the position. I will not be out anything, but I want the position. Please answer this."

TAKE good care of your stomach. It is not a pretty thing to talk about, but upon its condition depends the state of your temper, your ability to keep your friends, the pleasure you will find in sleep, and two-thirds of your enjoyment in life. If it is full, your conscience does not trouble you. If it is empty or out of order, you are likely to behave in such a way that even your own mother will see faults in you. Half of the heartaches in the world, and all the "unsatisfied longings" that distress poetical people, may be traced to a stomach that does not work right.

A TELEGRAM from Athens, Ga., tells of a sensational contested will case that will soon come into the courts involving the property of the dead poet, John Howard Payne, provided the original manuscript of "Home, Sweet Home," can be found. There should be no difficulty about that, as it is on exhibition in a museum in nearly every city.

It appears in the Moniteur, of the Island of Mauritius, and the stamp which the young lady must possess is valued at about one thousand dollars on account of its rarity.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC —AND— Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. The masonic fraternity of this place are refitting their Hall, putting in many pieces of new furniture and supplying themselves with new regalia and paraphernalia; and altogether are coming out in fine style. This pioneer secret order of this place, finds her laurels in danger of being carried off by a more vigorous young order that has measured swords with its ancient rival.

Died at his home in Butler, March 23, after a lingering illness of several weeks in the 79th year of his age, Nicholas Noel. Deceased was born in Westmoreland, Summersett county, Penn., Dec 9, 1813, from which he moved to Shanesville, Tuscarawas Co, Ohio, with his parents in 1816. Here he grew to manhood, receiving the ordinary common school education that the western wilds afforded. He here learned the carpenter's trade, and pursued it almost uninteruptedly during his life. On July 2, 1834, at that place he was united in marriage to Susan Shawler. He lived in Shanesville about twenty years when in 1854, he and his family of five children started to this county, taking stage to Massillon, Ohio, then cars to Alliance, thence to Cleveland, Toledo and on to Coldwater, then by team to a farm near the John Houlton place, east of Hamilton, known as Jones farm. In the spring of 55, having completed the dwelling now owned by A. J. Mason & Son, just west of the new M. E. church, he moved into what was then the best dwelling in Norristown—having lived a few weeks in the old log school house just across the street. He lived in town about eight years, when he purchased a farm about one mile south of town, where he lived until one year ago, he sold this place and moved into town, purchasing the Rogers dwelling two blocks west of the old M. E. church Mr. Noel continued to work at his trade and has built or had the contract to build nearly all the older houses in town. He joined the Lutheran church at Shanesville, O., and remained a member until he came to Butler, then joined the M. E. church and remained a faithful member until about eight years ago, he again united with the Lutheran church remaining faithful until his death. He leaves his aged partner with whom he he lived most happyily nearly sixty years, three daughters and one son, a number of grandchildren and several great-grand children, He was a kind, affectionate man in his family, a worthy member of the church of his choice, an upright and honorable citizen. His funeral took place from the Lutheran church, Rev. Steward of the M. E. church of Columbia City, officiating. Thus has passed away another of the older residents of our place. But a few years more and there will be none left to tell the story of the early settlement of our place.

REV. H M LAMPORT.

The People Mourn the Tragic Death of a Good Man.

Killed by the cars! That in brief, was the dispatch that reached Auburn Saturday forenoon. All sorts of wild rumors were at once afloat, for all were his friends, and the news sent a terrible shock into every heart. One dispatch followed another rapidly, and by little additions, the sad story grew into terrible minuteness. A. B. Richards started on the noon train, went to Kendallville and then to Osceola, and on his return the full account was given. Friday, Mr. Lamport had gone up to Osceola to accompany his aged mother to the home of her son-in-law at that place. That evening about seven o'clock, he went to the station to take the train home. His brother-in-law, Henry Boles, went to the train with him. They walked, for the Bowles home is near the railroad and but a short distance west from the station on the north of the track. The two men were approaching the station, walking on the north track, there being four tracks at that point. They were going east, Mr. Lamport walking near the right hand rail and Mr. Boles at his left, near the left hand rail. A work train came from the west on another track, ran on by them, and as it was being followed up by a regular freight train, it hurriedly opened the switch at the east end and ran its cars westward on the north sidetrack. There was no signal out and it is supposed the two men, who were probably engaged in conversation, saw nothing of the rapidly approaching train and the first car, an empty flat, struck them full in the body. Mr. Lamport fell outside at the right, with left leg across the rail and Mr. Boles in exactly the same way on the left rail, and they were dragged a short distance, and were left outside the track, each with the leg crushed that had been caught. The suddenness of the shock had thrown both their hats onto the flat car, and there the hats were found at seven o'clock next morning. Mr. Boles was not missed that night, though when the family arose next morning, and found he had not come home, a search was at once started. The two hats were seen first lying on the car, which had been left there the night before. Then the two bodies, stiff in death and from exposure the long, and rather cold night, were lying, one on one side and the other on the other side. There was no evidence of a struggle on the part of either, and they were probably killed by the shock when struck. The terrible news spread at once and a telegram was sent to Mrs. Lamport at Kendallville. When the news reached Auburn, there was genuine mourning everywhere, for Mr. Lamport's five years hard work in the church here had endeared him to all. A. B. Richards took the first train for Kendallville and from there accompnined Mrs. Lamport to Osceola returning that evening with the first definite news. The two funerals were set for Monday, Mr. Boles' being in the forenoon, at Osceola, and Mr. Lamport's in the afternoon at Mishawaka. The friends in Auburn secured a special train that left Auburn Junction at 10:40 a. m., bringing about forty friends from Garrett. About 100 more went from here, a number from Waterloo, some from Butler, then from Kendallville and Ligonier, the total reported on the train being 320. At Mishawaka the residents also gathered in, swelling the attendance to about 500. About twenty ministers were present, and all had a good word, and a sad farewell, for their departed brother. Then he was laid to rest in the cemetery across the river near the Grand Trunk station. It would be a work of love to write chapters on the character of this truly noble and good man, who has been cut off in the day of his greatest usefulness, but words seem weak; they cannot express the sorrow of our people, or their deep sympathy with the worthy woman, and her young children, so suddenly and so cruelly bereft. Mr. Lamport is dead: the good he has done, and his life work and the influence of his Christian character will live after him.

Rev. H. M. Lamport, was born in St. Joseph county, Ind., May 3, 1849 and met his death by accident at Osceola, Ind., March 25, 1892, aged 42 years, 10 months and 22 days. In the fall of 1872, as he was about returning to Evanston to continue his studies in the University, Rev. W. S. Birch, at the time presiding elder of Ft. Wayne district, secured him to fill out the conference year on the Huntertown circuit. After six months successful work on this charge, he decided to continue in the active ministry and was admitted to the North Indiana Conference at its session in the spring of 1873, and was appointed to the Hamilton circuit. He served this charge two years, when he was appointed to the Fremont circuit, where he remained two years. His next appointment was the Butler circuit, where he remained three years. He then served the Bristol station three years, when he was appointed to the Ligonier station and remained in charge three years. His next was at Auburn station, where he remained five years, being one of the first brethren of the conference to fill out the new limit. In the spring of 1891 he was appointed to Kendallville station by Bishop Joyce, which proved to be his last appointment. He was married to Mary J. Dailly, May 27, 1875. Three children were born to them—Willie, now aged 13 years, Addie, 9 years and little Jennie, a sweet babe of four months. Mr. Lamport was the second of a family of four children, Mrs. Boles, of Osceola, A. L. Lamport of Garrett, and Mrs. Buck of South Bend, who with their aged mother, still survive him. him. His father passed on before him in August 1890. He was a dutiful son, a loving brother, an affectionate and tender husband and a devoted and faithful father. His home was the dearest spot on earth to him, and it was his anxiety to reach as soon as possible his little family, that caused him to start out on that fatal evening journey.

ASHLEY.

The New Town Near Hudson.

Last Friday, Mr. Rickel, of the Real Estate firm of Rickel & Sprott, introduced to us, Mr. Theo. Gary, of Macon, Mo., who is the manager of the syndicate that has bought up the land for the new town near Hudson. It is to be laid out on the farm that ex-Treasurer Gonser sold to them, or at least partly on his land. This brings the greater part of the town in DeKalb county, while the railroad itself will be in Steuben, or at least its main line will be. Here will be located the division shops, and about them, the new town will be built. The shops will be about half a mile from the village of Hudson, but of course the two will grow together at once. To give a better idea of the new enterprise and of the people backing it, we clip the following article from Mr. Gary's home paper, the Macon, Mo., Times, of March 11:

"For some time the intimate friends of our enterprising fellow citizen, Theo. Gary, have known he was associated with some gentlemen in an enterprise by which some new towns are to be located on the extension of the Wabash from Chicago to Detroit, now being constructed. The arrangements have all been completed and the company organized under the laws of Indiana. Mr. Gary is the manager and active representative of the corporation. No better man could have been found for the place. He is peculiarly well suited for the position, and will attain as high a degree of success as is possible. The principal town to be located will be midway between Chicago and Detroit, and will be a division. Contracts have been secured on 800 acres of land for the town site, and the railroad company have appropriated $150,000 to be expended this year in division improvements. The name of the town is to be Ashley, after President Ashley of the Wabash company. The railroad company expect to have regular trains running over the new line by the first of October. The new town will be in a fine farming country, where farming land is worth from $75 to $125 per acre. Within 1½ miles is a lake, which will supply an abundance of water. The new road between Chicago and Detroit is a link to connect the Wabash west and east. It will complete the line from Omaha, Kansas City, and St. Louis via Chicago and Detroit to New York. Track laying on the new line will commence in about ten days. As said, the new town of Ashley is to be the division between Chicago and Detroit, and shops will be constructed, $150,000 having been appropriated by the railroad company for that purpose. It is also expected to secure within two years the Toledo and and St. Louis division. The town company is a strong one, and its members know exactly what they are doing. Mr. Gary will be in Indiana, at the seat of operations, most of his time after the first of April. He will at once erect an office on the town site, and will commence a boom that is expected to result in a town of 5,000 people within two years. We are assured that the new town will not be hampered with any old towns of consequence near it. Sorry to have Mr. Gary away from Macon so much as he will be, but can assure his associates and others who may become interested that his will be a master hand in making a city out of Ashley. With the general division and shops of the great Wabash road, he will certainly succeed."

New plan to elect a president, is to have the electors from each state divided according to the vote of the people. Thus: If Indiana has 250,000 republican votes and 240,000 democratic votes, she would have about 8 republican and 7 democratic electors though under the present law, they would all be republicans.

The Ft. Wayne Monday Times is a new candidate for the newspaper circle of Ft. Wayne. Gart Shober, the editor, is no chicken in the business, having done solid service in this field before. So, of course, he gets out a readable, crisp, live paper, which will no doubt be appreciated by the people of that substantial city. By the way, we learn that Mr. Shober, who is also a musician of ability, will soon publish a musical journal in Ft. Wayne. We see no reason why this last idea at least, should not prove a success. We hope both may.

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn, Ind. tf

A Much Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of the best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smilingly saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come. 4

Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. A Contractor's Advice.

Messrs. Dullam Bros.—Gentlemen:—I take great pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullam's Great German blood, liver and kidney cure. I can safely say that I never took such medicine as that to cleanse the liver, stomach and kidneys. I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion, and loss of appetite and sleep. One bottle did for me more good than six months' other treatment, and I feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try it and get cured. Yours Truly,

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1860—Continued.

While the people were agitated by indications of secession and threats of disunion, they were deeply interested in the cause of education, never had Auburn schools been better attended nor more ably conducted.

It was stated by Andrew Larimore who had been granted the use of the school house by Messrs. Pearce and Griswold, school trustees, without rent for a spring term, that the Auburn Institute then in its third term of fourteen weeks, had been attended during the current year by two hundred and forty pupils.

There were students in the high school department not only in the higher mathematics, astronomy, botany and mental and moral science but in Latin and Greek and the advantages offered at Auburn for schooling began to attract attention and augment attendance.

Hitherto a part of the town board had been detailed by the remainder to act as school trustees but at the municipal election of May, 1860, a new departure was taken by the election of three school directors. This board was composed of Wesley Park, John M. Miller and E. B. Mott who in their official capacity engaged Chester P. Hodge as principal of the Auburn Seminary, as the school building began to be called. Prof. Hodge was employed for fall and winter terms at $50.00 per month with Marilla Platter, Sarah V. Wheeler and Hannah Davis as assistants.

The fall term began Aug. 27th and closed Nov. 16th. Among foreign scholars in attendance were Hadessa George, M. B. and F. Willis, Miss Childs, Edwin and J. McAllister, Emma and Sarah Fuller, George Buchanan, Wesley and Matilda Walsworth, J. R. Shoper and Ella Lessig. The tuition derived from foreign pupils for the term amounted to $77.00 showing the confidence of patrons and popularity of the school.

Following his term of select school in the spring, Mr. Larimore retired with credit from teaching and returned to the practice of medicine, a profession he had pursued in former years.

He entered into partnership as physician and surgeon with A. Goeriz in an office located one door south of the Franklin House and the firm enjoyed a full share of the work of caring for the afflicted.

Prior to the opening of the winter term, a successful teacher's institute was held in the seminary at Auburn during the last days of November, at which Rev. Edward Wright presided and Chester P. Hodge and J. H. Moore were instructors.

Lack of space conjoined with want of of interest prevented a publication of the proceedings but the beneficial results of the session remained the same.

J. S. Cosper, Laura A. Nimmons and Hadessa George were appointed to read essays at the next institute but before that time arrived, Cosper had enlisted in the Eleventh Indiana and later gave his life for his country in battle at Champion Hill, Mississippi. Miss Nimmons in time became Mrs. William Best and removed to Minnesota and Miss George is well known in Auburn and vicinity as Mrs. A. J. Ralston.

Nearly a quarter century had now elapsed since Park had built his cabin on the banks of Cedar Creek and given the locality the name of Auburn, and more than that number of years had gone by since John Houlton with "three hired men, a yoke of oxen, a cross cut saw and fro" had built upon the forty he had entered in Franklin township, the log house in which he was yet living, and popular interest throughout the county having been awakened by Widney's Pioneer sketches, the matter was agitated of forming from the founders of the county and county seat, a pioneer organization.

In furtherance of this praiseworthy object, a meeting was held at the court house to take the necessary steps towards calling the old settlers together on the first Tuesday of the following September to celebrate the day in an appropriate manner. Remarks well calculated to awaken general interest in the proposed meeting and celebration were made by Wesley Park, chairman, followed by the appointment of two committees.

The central committee was composed of Wesley Park, Lewis Blair, S. W. Widney, S. W. Sprott and D. W. Altenberg, and the general committee was made up of a pioneer from each township whose names in the usual order of call from Butler to Troy were Abraham Fair, Samuel Henderson, John Blair, John Platter, John Rose, George Egnew, W. Park, Joshua Feagler, William Story, Isaac B. Smith, John Houlton and A. S. Casebeer all of whom so far as known to the writer, have passed to the "Better Land."

It was determined at this meeting that all who should have been residents of the county, twenty years at the time of the proposed assembly and celebration, were to be especially invited to attend.

This placed the limit at 1840, which date has subsequently been extended to 1845 and the time approaches when to recruit numbers a further extension will become necessary.

The annual meetings of old settlers, held for convenience of access, generally at the county seat, have been largely attended and have been the occasion of many happy renewals of the oldentime friendships.

As the years go by, the assemblies of the people whose labors did so much to reclaim nature for the present advanced cultivation, have attracted popular interest and have become a fixed and anticipated feature among the few anniversaries of our people.

An historical society ought to be organized in connection with the old settlers organization and the narratives of pioneers yet living would give present pleasure and prove of lasting importance to "generations yet to be."

Resolutions of Respect.

We the committee appointed to draft resolutions on the death of Mrs. Barbara Crouse, beg leave to submit the following:

Whereas it has pleased the Allwise God to remove by the hand of death the mother of our beloved sister, Mary C. Gordon;

Whereas, there comes to the heart of each member of our order, feelings of sympathy realizing that a mother has gone out to return no more. Yet we mourn not as those who have no hope, knowing that He who has said, "I will never leave nor forsake thee," was with her to the end.

Resolved, that it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed, to say that in regretting her removal from our midst, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard.

Resolved, that we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased in the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them to Him who orders all things for the best, and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

Asleep in Jesus blessed sleep.

Many persons are unable to sleep on their left side. The cause has long been a puzzle to physicians. Metropolitan papers speak with great interest of Dr. Franklin Miles, the eminent Indiana specialist in nervous and heart diseases, who has proven that this habit arises from a diseased heart. He has examined and kept on record thousands of cases. His New Heart Cure, a wonderful remedy is sold at F. E. Davenport. Thousands testify to its value as a cure for heart diseases. Mrs. Chas. Thousands testify to wonderful cures from using it for nervous diseases, dyspepsia, nervous debility, dullness, confusion of mind, headache, etc. Four doses of this Nervine cured Mrs. W. E. Burns, South Bend, Ind., who had been suffering with constant headache for 3 months. Trial bottle and elegant book free at F. E. Davenport's. 4

GROVER TALKS TARIFF.

A ROUSING SPEECH BY THE EX-PRESIDENT.

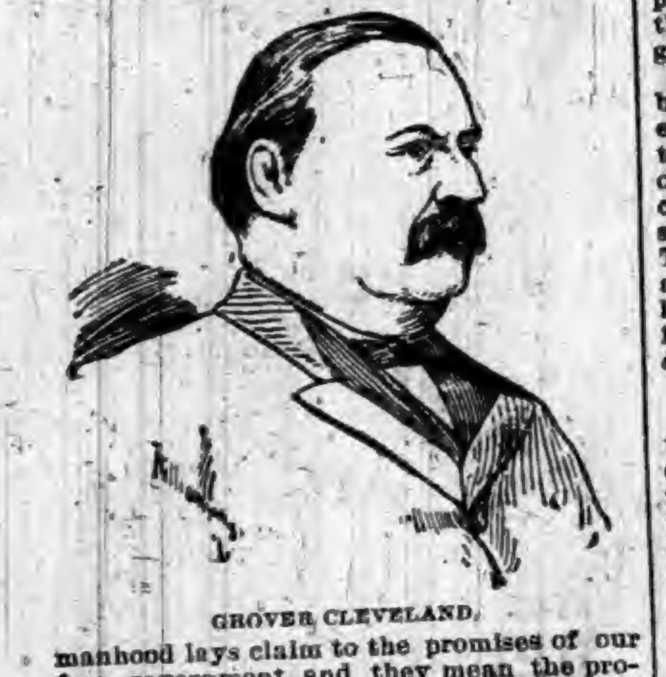
An Immense Meeting at Providence Addressed by Cleveland—He Advises the Democrats to Keep Up the Fight for Reform—Iroquois Banquet.

Cleveland's Address.

The democratic big half of the Rhode Island campaign reached the climax at Providence when the thousands of the citizens and visitors gathered in the great opera house to hear words of wisdom from the lips of ex-President Grover Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland spoke as follows:

MY FELLOW CITIZENS:—I have found it impossible to decline the invitation you sent me to meet here to-day the Democracy of Rhode Island. I have come to look in the faces of the men who have been given the place of honor in advance of the vast army which moves toward the decisive battlefield of next November. I have not come to point the way to consolation in case of your defeat, but I have come to share the enthusiasm which presages victory. I have not come to condole with you upon the difficulties which confront you, but to suggest that they will only add to the glory of your triumph. I have come to remind you that the intrenchments of spoils and patronage cannot avail against the valor and determination of rights; that corruption and bribery cannot smother and destroy the aroused conscience of our countrymen, and that splendid achievements await those who bravely, honestly and stubbornly fight in the people's cause.

Let us not for a moment miss the inspiration of those words, "the people's cause." They signify the defense of the rights of every man, rich or poor, in every corner of our land, who by virtue of simple American manhood lays claim to the promises of our free government, and they mean the promotion of the welfare and happiness of the humblest American citizen who confidingly invokes the protection of the just and equal laws.



GROVER CLEVELAND.

The covenant of our Democratic faith, as I understand it, exacts constant efforts in this cause, and its betrayal I conceive to be a crime against the creed of true Democracy.

Those who oppose tariff reform delude themselves if they suppose it rests wholly upon appeals to selfish considerations and the promise of advantage, right or wrong, or that our only hope of winning depends upon arousing animosity between different interests among our people. While we do not propose that those whose welfare we champion shall be blind to the advantages accruing to them from our plan of tariff reform, and, while we are determined that the advantages shall not be surrendered to the blandishments of greed and avarice, we still claim nothing that has not underlying it moral sentiment and consideration of equity and good conscience.

Because our case rests upon such foundations, sordidness and selfishness cannot destroy it. The fight for justice and right is a clean and comforting one; and, because the American people love justice and right, ours must be a winning fight.

"The government of the Union is a government of the people; it emanates from them; its powers are granted by them, and are to be exercised directly on them and for their benefit."

This is not the language of a political platform. It is a declaration of the highest court in the land, whose mandates all must obey and whose definitions all partisans must accept. In the light of this exposition of the duty the Government owes to the people, the Democratic party claims that when, through Federal taxation, burdens are laid upon the daily life of the people not necessary for the Government's economical administration, and intended, whatever be the pretext, to enrich a few at the expense of the many, the governmental compact is violated. A distinguished Justice of the Supreme Court, with no Democratic affiliations, beloved and respected when living by every American, and since his death universally lamented, has characterized such a proceeding as "none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation."

The Democratic party still champions the cause which defeat could not induce it to surrender, which no success short of complete accomplishment can tempt it to neglect. Its position has been from the first frankly and fairly stated, and no one can honestly be misled concerning it. We invite the strictest scrutiny of our conduct in dealing with this subject, and we insist that our course has been open, fair, and consistent. I believe this is not now soberly denied in any quarter.

Our opponents, too, have a record on this question. Those who still adhere to the doctrine that an important function of the government is especially to aid them in their business, those who see in the consumers of our land forced contributors to artificial benefits permitted by govermental favoritism, those who see in our workingmen only the tools with which their shops and manufactories are to be supplied at the cheapest possible cost, and those who believe their is no moral question involved in the tariff taxation of the people, are probably familiar with this record and abundantly satisfied with it. It may, however, be profitably reviewed by those who believe that our consumers are entitled to be treated justly and honestly by the government, and that the workingman should be allowed to feel in his humble home, as he supplies his family's daily needs, that his earnings are not unjustly extorted from him for the benefit of the favored beneficiaries of unfair tax laws.

Claims of the Protectionists.

This, then, is the record: When we began the contest for tariff reform it was said by our Republican opponents, in the face of our avowals and acts, that we were determined on free trade. A long advance was made in their insincerity and impudence when they accused us of acting in the interests of foreigners, and when they more than hinted that we had been bought with British gold. Those who distrusted the effectiveness of these senseless appeals insulted the intelligence of our people by claiming that an increase in the cost of articles to the consumer caused by the tariff was not a tax paid by him, but that it was paid by foreigners who sent their goods to our markets. Sectional prejudice was invoked in the most outrageous manner, and people of the North were asked to condemn the measure of tariff reform proposed by us because members of Congress from the South had supported it.

These are fair samples of the arguments submitted to the American people in the presidential campaign 1888. It will be observed that the purpose of these amazing deliverances was to defeat entirely any reform in the tariff, though it had been enacted at a time when the expense of a tremendous war justified the exaction of tribute of the same people which in time of pease became a grievous burden, though it had congested the federal treasury with a worse than useless surplus, inviting reckless public waste and extravagance, and though in many of its features the only purpose of its continuation was the bargaining it permitted for party support.

There were those, however, in the ranks of our opponents who recognized the fact that we had so aroused popular attention to the evils and injustice of such a tariff that it might not be safe to rely for success upon a bald opposition to its reforms. These were the grave and sedate Republican statesmen who declared that they never, never could consent to subserve the interests of England at the expense of their own country, as the wicked Democrats proposed to do, and that they felt constrained to insist upon a tariff, protective to the point of prohibition, because they devotedly loved our workingmen and were determined that their employment should be constant, and that their wages should never sink to the disgusting level of the pauper labor of Europe, but that, in view of the fact that the war, in which the tariff then existing originated, had been closed for more than twenty years, and in view of the further fact that the public treasury was overburdened, they were willing to readjust the tariff if it could only be done by its friends instead of "rebel brigadiers."

I will not refer to all the means by which our opponents succeeded in that contest. Suffice it to say they gained complete possession of the Government in every branch and the tariff was reformed by its alleged friends. All must admit, however, that either this was not done by the people's friends or that the effort in their behalf badly miscarried or was ungratefully remembered, for a few weeks thereafter a relegation to private life among those occupying seats in Congress who had been active in reforming the tariff occurred, which amounted to a political revolution. These victims claimed that our voters failed to indorse their reform of the tariff because they did not understand it. It is quite probable, however, that if they did not understand it they felt it and that, because it made them uncomfortable, they emphatically said such a result was not what they wanted. At any rate, the consumer has found life harder since this reform than before, and if there is a workingman anywhere who has had his wages increased by virtue of its operation, he has not made himself known. Plenty of mills and factories have been closed, thousands of men have lost their employment, and we daily hear of reduced wages, but the benefits promised from reform, and its advantage to the people who really need relief are not apparent. The provision it contains, permitting reciprocity of trade in certain cases, depending on the action of the President, is an admission, as far as it goes, against the theory upon which this reform is predicated, and it lamely limps in the direction of freer commercial changes. If "hypocrisy is the homage vice pays for virtue," reciprocity may be called the homage prohibitory protection pays to genuine tariff reform.

The workingmen who have been deceived by the promise of higher wages and better employment, and who now constantly fear the closing of manufactories and the loss of work, ought certainly to be no longer cajoled by a party whose performance has so clearly given the lie to its professions. The consumer who has trusted to a reformation of the tariff by its friends, now that he feels the increased burden of taxation in his home, ought to look in another direction for relief.

Will Stick to the Tariff.

If the Democratic party does not give to the State of Rhode Island during the present session of Congress the free raw materials she needs, it will be because a Republican Senate or executive thwarts its design. At any rate, nothing shall divert us from our purpose to reform the tariff in this regard, as well as many others, be the time of its accomplishment near or remote.

It would doubtless please our adversaries if we could be allured from our watch and guard over the cause of tariff reform to certain other objects, thus forfeiting the people's trust and confidence. The National Democracy will hardly gratify this wish and turn its back upon the people's cause to wander after false and unsteady lights in the wilderness of double danger.

Our opponents must in the coming national canvass, settle accounts with us on the issue of tariff reform. It will not do for them to say to us that this is an old and determined contention. The ten commandments are thousands of years old, but they and the doctrines of tariff reform will be taught and preached until mankind and the Republican party shall heed the injunction, "Thou shalt not steal."

As I leave you let me say to you that your cause deserves success. Let me express the hope that the close of your canvass will bring you no regrets on account of activity relaxed or opportunities lost. Demonstrate to your people the merits of your cause and trust them. Above all things, banish every personal feeling of discontent and let every personal consideration be merged in a determination, pervading your ranks everywhere, to win a victory. With a cause so just and with activity, vigilance, harmony and determination on the part of Rhode Island's stanch Democracy, I believe you will not fail.

IROQUOIS CLUB BANQUET.

In Jefferson's Honor—Also to the Glory of Cleveland.

The Iroquois Club dined at Chicago the other night in the big, flower-decked dining-room of the Palmer House in honor of the 139th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson. Then, having honored the day sufficiently by clinking glasses to the memory of that sound old Democrat, the party put in the rest of the evening listening to the praises of another good Democrat, Grover Cleveland by name. It was properly not a Jefferson dinner, although Thomas Jefferson's name had the place of honor in the list of toasts, and nearly everybody who spoke said something about that modest old gentleman who hitched his horse to a fence and went up to speak his inauguration speech. But Jefferson was dead a long time, and grass was growing around his grave before the oldest man whose whiskers swept the table at the Palmer House was born, and, in fact, he was only a foil behind which the Iroquois Club might elect another hero who is very much in the flesh.

It was a Cleveland banquet all through. At the head of the toast list was printed one of Mr. Cleveland's sayings:

"The nation's strength is in her people. The nation's prosperity is in their prosperity. The nation's glory is in the equality of her justice. The nation's perpetuity is in the patriotism of all her people."

The speakers were all Cleveland men, and most of them have been marked in their thick-and-thin advocacy of the ex-President.

"WHY don't you marry, Mr. Bachelor?" "Well, I've been trying for years to find a girl." "Have you got any money?" "Enough, I guess." "Then you just hold still awhile, and the girl will find you."

PRICES OF TIN PLATE.

HOW MR. CRONEMEYER JUGGLES FIGURES.

He Tries to Show that Tin Plate Prices Have Not Greatly Advanced—Tariffs and Exports—Coffee Is Taxed—Effect of the Wool Duty.

Cronemeyer's Compilation.

Some days ago we noticed the simultaneous publication in several high-tariff journals of some remarks about the price of tin plate said to have been made by William C. Cronemeyer, who was for some years Secretary of the American Tinned Plate Association, and is now the President of the United States Iron and Tin Plate Manufacturing Company. Mr. Cronemeyer has for years been familiar with statistics relating to tin plate, and the assertions ascribed to him were so far from the truth that we were unwilling to believe that he made them. It now appears, however, that these statements concerning prices were made by Mr. Cronemeyer in a letter written by him on Feb. 8 and read at the recent convention of the Western Packers' Canned Goods Association. They were as follows:

"Two years ago the duty was only 1 cent per pound, or $1.08 per box, and a box of coke tin plate cost in New York $5.20; to-day the duty is 2 2-10 cents per pound, or $2.37 per box, and the price of coke [tin plate] in New York is $5.35 per box; increase in duty $1.30 per box, increase in price only 15 cents per box."

This has been going the rounds of the high-tariff press. The Chicago Inter Ocean published it with the customary comments, forgetting that it had published only six weeks earlier in its own trade reports a table of prices which showed that the price of tin plate in February, 1890, "two years ago," had been only $4.50, instead of $5.20. The Tariff League's Bulletin, or American Economist, brought it out for the benefit of the 2,000 journals to which it supplies McKinleyism in stereotyped plates. In many places it served as a text for learned discourses in journals that do not look to the Bulletin for all their high-tariff essays. The Portland Oregonian appears to have relied upon a treacherous memory, for it surpassed Cronemeyer in the following assertion:

"Two years ago the duty was only 1 cent a pound. Now the duty is 2 2-10 cents; yet the price is no higher."

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle quoted the assertions of Cronemeyer's letter, and remarked that "this trifling increase is not perceptible to the consumer of the retail grocer, and is but an insignificant item to the canning trade." We might point to dozens of papers which have asked their readers to believe this story about the price of tin plate "two years ago." The truth is that the price for the month of February, 1890, was $4.50, and that the price declined in the following three months. In May, 1890, it fell to $4.35, and from that point, immediately after the passage of the McKinley bill in the House, it began to rise. The price when Cronemeyer wrote his letter, $5.35, was $1 per box higher than the price paid just before the passage of the bill in the House, and 85 cents higher than the price in February, 1890. No one is more familiar with the history of prices in the tin-plate trade than Mr. Cronemeyer has been for some years.

It is announced that this same William C. Cronemeyer has been appointed by the Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association a member of a committee of two persons which is to "have full charge of the matter of an exhibit at the Republican convention at Minneapolis." Mr. Cronemeyer, as Secretary of the American Tinned Plate Association, had "full charge" of an exhibition of tin plate in Pittsburg, in September, 1889. While conducting that exhibition he published and distributed a circular in which he and his association said:

"To counteract and offset the selfish greed of these importers is the aim of the American Tinned Plate Association, and for that purpose it has erected this plant to awaken the interest of the public and to demonstrate that tin plates can be made here as well as anywhere in the world. And it is a fact, and we can prove it by figures, that they can be made here and sold with profit at present selling prices."

What were those prices? The Iron Age shows that tin plate was selling here then at $4.30 per box, and that the price had not been higher in any of the preceding months of that year. This price was within five or ten cents of the lowest on record. It was lower than the price of tin plate when the higher duty was demanded by Cronemeyer and his associates from the McKinley Ways and Means Committee. But even at those figures it was possible, Cronemeyer and his association said, to make tin plate here and sell it at a profit under the old duty of 1 cent a pound. At the Minneapolis convention Cronemeyer should resurrect and explain the circular of 1889, but before the date of that convention he should withdraw the deliberate misstatements in his letter of Feb. 8, 1892. Cronemeyer professes to despise a "tin-plate liar."—New York Times.

Effect of the Wool Duty on Sheep Growing.

"Who has been benefited by the tariff reduction on wool in the last thirty years?" The above question is being asked in "protective" journals, and we suppose is asked in good faith. The high tariff was first put on wool in 1867. It remained until 1883, when there was a very slight reduction, which was more than made up by the McKinley bill in 1890. It is not at all improbable that the organs of high taxes are ignorant on this point, therefore, we take pleasure in correcting them.

In connection with their statement of an alleged reduction of thirty years' standing the organs present the following figures as to flocks:

	1875.	1891.	Decrease.
New England	1,440,000	1,105,000	335,000
Middle states	3,959,200	2,380,900	1,578,300
Western States	15,301,300	14,120,632	1,180,678

The Tribune has frequently pointed out—even as early as ten years ago—that the number of sheep in Indiana fell off several hundred thousand from 1870 to 1880, during our highest tariff on wool.

But the editor who calls the last thirty years of our wool tariff a "reduction" shows ignorance of the subject.—Rockville (Ind.) Tribune.

Coffee Taxed.

The proclamation of the President imposing the duties fixed by the "reciprocity" section of the McKinley tariff, which was foreshadowed by the notice given on Jan. 8 last, has been issued, to take effect immediately. It applies to the products of Colombia, Hayti, and Venezuela only. It is the belief of the merchants interested that it will seriously affect our trade with these countries. The only products really affected are coffee and hides, on which duties of 3 and 3½ cents per pound respectively are imposed. Our imports of these articles from the above countries amounted to $15,295,628 of coffee and $1,690,264 of hides in 1891, or 15.9 and 6 per cent. respectively of the total imports. Venezuela coffee is unlike that of any other country and generally commands a higher price in the United States than is England. The only effects of this will be to compel the American consumers of coffee to pay the duty.

No good results are possible from the use of the "reciprocity club." Its only effect will be to engender hatred against us. In fact, it is probable that the President would never have exercised his authority to impose these duties had not the exigencies of politics made it necessary. But, why select these insignificant countries? Could not the reason advanced for not including the Argentine and Uruguay in the list, to the effect that their present poverty and financial distress precluded any arrangement with them, be stretched to apply to Venezuela, Hayti and Colombia also? The very fact that these countries have not been included will have the effect of still further increasing the prejudice against us. It will be hard to find any justification whatever for this new restriction of trade.

Tariffs and Exports.

The advocates of a high tariff have been doing their best to show that our export trade has not decreased since the enactment of the McKinley tariff law. Their object is, of course, to prove that a high tariff on imported goods received in payment for exported goods does not cut down export trade. The returns of our export trade for the seven months ending with Jan. 31 last, as compared with the same months last year, is a complete proof that high tariffs do decrease exports. Our exports have been as follows:

Products of—	1891, Seven months.	1892, Seven months.
Agriculture	$407,991,950	$513,501,289
Mining	12,936,890	12,024,258
Forest	16,971,213	15,442,018
Fisheries	4,039,391	3,753,671
Manufactures	97,188,098	96,101,574
Miscellaneous	1,914,969	2,462,849
Total	$541,102,350	$643,345,857
Total except of agriculture	$133,110,391	$129,754,568
Breadstuffs	$ 67,634,073	$193,549,034
Agriculture except breadstuffs	$340,357,886	$320,042,255

To be sure there has been a large increase in the sum total of reports, but this increase has been made up entirely of wheat and other breadstuffs. In fact, the total exports of all other goods other than products of agriculture have decreased over four and a half millions. At the same time all agricultural products other than breadstuffs have fallen off over twenty millions. It will be seen, therefore, that the only increase has been in breadstuffs, and since European crops were largely a failure in 1891 not even a total prohibition of imports could have prevented the starving people of Europe from buying our breadstuffs. As a matter of fact, therefore, these figures are a complete refutation of the claim that a high tariff does not injuriously offset our export trade.

Pets on Men-of-War.

On board a man-of-war there are usually several pets. Their presence is not frowned upon by the authorities, for the life of a sailor is monotonous, and a harmless diversion is welcome to both officers and men. Some one of these pets is usually a favorite, and is recognized by all, from the captain to the apprentice boy, as the ship's mascot, says the New York News. The cruiser Baltimore has for her mascot a goat.

When she was put in commission he was duly entered on the ship's papers as "William Goat." He is an old salt, having been brought up in Uncle Sam's navy from a kid. The first cutter is the only boat in which he will allow himself to be taken ashore. He listens to the service every Sunday morning in an exemplary manner.

The Richmond had at one time a hog for a mascot. He used to take a bath every morning, and always presented an attractive exterior. His favorite amusement was to pace the deck half the night with the precision of an officer of the watch. When he got almost too fat to move he was allowed to die a natural death. His shipmates would have regarded it as cannibalism to send him to the cook's coppers.

As for eating a rasher
Of what they took pride in,
They'd as soon think of eatnig
The pan it was fried in.

Monkeys are common on board ships serving in tropical and semi-tropical waters. The Yorktown, the Yantic and some other ships carry mastiffs. Many carry cats, and Cape pigeons are pets with the vessels on the Pacific station.

The Chicago, the flagship of the White Squadron, now in South American waters, has a pet parrot. It has but one grave fault for a sea-going bird. It has learned several words of command, and can imitate the voice of nearly every officer on board. Its delight is to yell out when the men are at dinner, "All the first cutters"—accompanying the words with an excellent imitation of the boatswain's pipe—and send the crew tumbling up from below.

When the Thetis was in the Arctic she had a seal for a pet, but soon tired of it. All it would do was to eat seven meals a day, bathe in a tub and lie on its side on the deck to be scratched and petted. All attempts to make a learned seal of it were utter failures.

Prices for Human Flesh.

The story of the Austrian missionaries who recently escaped from Khartoum, as published in the London Graphic, is one of extraordinary interest. They confirm the report that Khartoum has been practically laid waste by the Mahdists and that Omdurman, adopted as the seat of government, has now a population of 120,000. Only a few years ago it was a mere straggling village; now it extends for over six miles along the west coast of the Nile. Among its more ambitious public buildings are the palace of the Khalifa, the mosque, the Mahdi's mausoleum, the barracks of the Jehadieh, and the slave market. Omdurman is not the only slave market in the Soudan. According to Father Ohrwalder, one of the escaped captives, there are important markets also at El Fasher and Beni Shangul. These, however, are not so much markets as collecting and sorting stations, and the trade transacted is strictly wholesale. Thence the pick of these human chattels are sent to Omdurman, where no time is lost in offering them for sale. The market is a large stone building, situated in the busiest portion of the town. It has a raised veranda, and an inclosed open space in front. The dealers assemble in groups on the veranda, where, reclining on straw mats, they smoke their nargilehs and drink their coffee. The prices of slaves vary according to the purposes for which they are required. Able-bodied men bring from $20 to $25, young boys from $5 to $7.50, women suitable for domestic service from $15 to $20. The highest prices are paid for young and pretty girls varying from 10 to 16 years of age.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

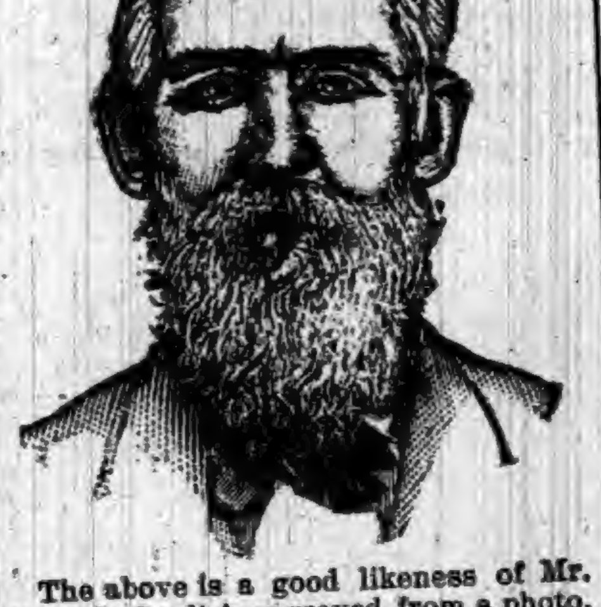
INDIANA NEWS.

Information of Especial Interest.

No doubt many readers of this paper will recognize in the picture below a gentleman well known in Central Indiana, whose word is as good as a Government bond with those who are acquainted with him.



The above is a good likeness of Mr. Geo. C. Cradick engraved from a photo, taken a short time ago and sent to Dr. Kilmer & Co., with his letter and package of gravel he speaks about, which was dissolved and expelled after using three bottles of Swamp-Root. The following is Mr. Cradick's unsolicited account of his distressing and painful case.

GOSPORT, Ind., Jan. 18, 1892.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.:

I do not know how to express my heartfelt thanks to you for the benefit I have received from using your Swamp-Root Kidney, Liver and Bladder Cure. I am now 63 years old, and have suffered almost death for about three years. I had given up to die, but as I profess to be a Christian man and a great believer in the prayer of the righteous, I prayed that God would send something that would prolong my life, and I feel thankful to him and you for the means that was sent. May God spare your life many years yet, that you may hear the great good that your medicine is doing. On the 20th of August, 1891, Mr. Frank Lawson, your agent at Spencer, persuaded me to take a bottle on trial. I have taken three bottles and it has brought out of my bladder lime or gravel which I have saved in quantity the size of a goose egg, and I now feel like a new man. May God bless you and your medicine. I remain your humble servant,

Box 273. GEORGE C. CRADICK.

SECOND LETTER.

DEAR DOCTOR—I take great pleasure in answering your letter, which I received today. You say "you would like to publish my testimonial in your Guide to Health for a while." I have no objections at all, for I want to do all in my power for afflicted humanity. I send by this mail a lot of the gravel (about one-half of what I saved) that the Swamp-Root dissolved and expelled from my bladder.

Two years ago last September I was taken with pain almost all over me, my head and back, my legs and feet became cold, would get sick at my stomach and vomit often, suffering a great deal from chills, and at times these were so severe that I thought I would freeze to death. The condition of my urine was not so bad through the day, but during the night, at times, I had to get up every hour, and often every half hour. I suffered terribly from burning and scalding sensations.

Would urinate sometimes a gallon a night, then it seemed my kidneys and back would kill me. I had been troubled with constipation for many years, but since using your Swamp-Root have been better than for a long time. The medicine has helped my appetite wonderfully, and it seems as though I could not eat enough.

I live about six miles in the country from Gosport. I was born and raised here, and have been a member of the M. E. Church for forty-two years.

Pardon me for writing so much, for I feel that I would never get through praising your great remedy for Kidney, Liver and Bladder troubles. Your true friend.

GEO. C. CRADICK.

Those who try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root have generally first employed the family physician, or used all the prescriptions within reach without benefit. As a last resort, when their case has become chronic, the symptoms complicated, and their constitution run down, then they take this remedy, and it is just such cases and cures as the one above that have made Swamp-Root famous and given it a world-wide reputation. Certain Statistics About Sugar.

Following are some interesting statistics of the rapidly developing sugar industry of Argentina: The area of the cane plantations this year is 42,500 acres, which, at the usual rate of production, will yield 1,879,000,000 pounds of cane. The area of cultivation in 1889 was 34,250 acres and the yield was 1,507,000 pounds of cane. The gross value of the crop this year is estimated at $12,750,000 as compared with $6,165,000 in 1889. There are thirty-six sugar factories representing a capital value of about $30,000,000 in gold. The actual production in 1889 was 77,000,000 pounds, and this year's yield is estimated at 99,000,000 pounds or 82,500 hogsheads.—New Orleans Picayune.

The Economy of the Egyptians.

A curious illustration of the domestic economy of the Egyptians have been met with in the unwinding or the bandages of the mummies. Although whole webs of fine cloth has been most frequently used, in other cases the bandages are fragmentary and have seams, darns, and patches. Old napkins are used, old skirts, pieces of something that may have been a skirt; and once a piece of cloth was found with an armhole in it, with seams, gusset and band finely stitched by fingers long since crumbled and their dust blown to the four winds.

PAPER quilts are said to be coming into extensive use abroad for the poorer classes. They are composed of sheets of brown paper sewed together and perforated all over at a distance of an inch or two apart. This is then covered with chintz or cretonne on one side, and lined with patchwork.

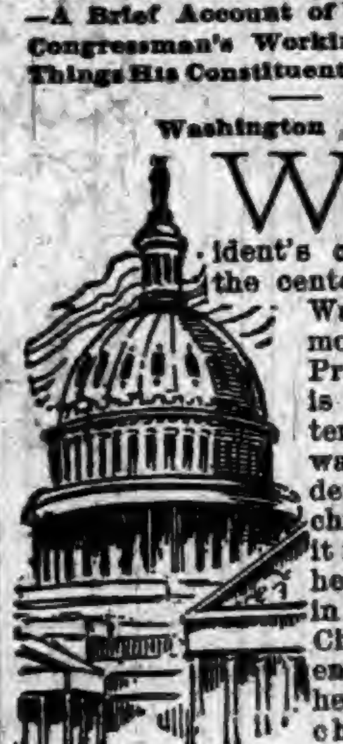
LIFE AT THE CAPITAL.

HOW THE PRESIDENT SPENDS SUNDAY.

The Church of the Covenant and Its Pastor—A Brief Account of What Occupies a Congressman's Working Hours—Some Things His Constituents Desire to Know.

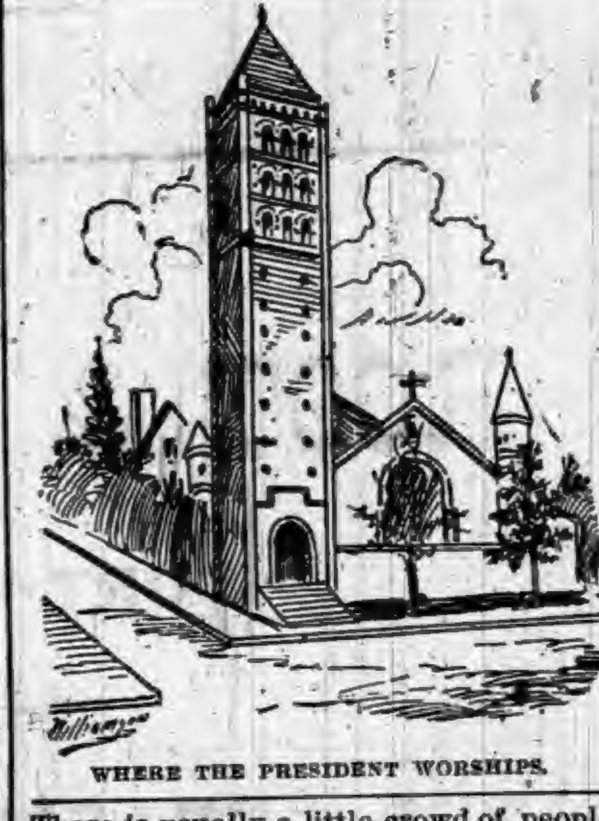
Washington Letter.



WASHINGTON correspondence: The President's church is always the center of attention in Washington Sunday mornings, and the President at church is the center of attention within its walls. The President is a regular churchgoer. By this it is not meant that he is every Sunday in his pew at the Church of the Covenant. Sometimes he goes to other churches, sometimes he does not go at all, but as a rule he is in his pew before the organ sounds at the Church of the Covenant on Sunday mornings. Often the Sunday school children get a glimpse of him just as the exercises are closing and they are ready to pass out, for the Sunday school services are now held in the body of the church since the injury to the chapel by fire some weeks ago.

The President goes to church very much as other people do. About 10:45 the carriage from the White House stables puts in an appearance at the entrance of the Executive Mansion, the door-keeper notifies the President and family that the carriage is ready, and they take their seats behind the pair of spanking bays, with driver and footman sitting high in front, and are whirled away down Connecticut avenue past the Russian, Italian and British legations to the door of the church.

The President and his family always enter at the side door. The main entrance of the church fronts on Connecticut avenue, but the entrance to the chapel is on N street. This is a little more retired. There are less gaping crowds and the presidential carriage always turns quietly in on N street and the family utilize this entrance, as indeed, do many other pew holders, whose seats are well at that end of the church.



WHERE THE PRESIDENT WORSHIPS.

There is usually a little crowd of people who know this habit of the President's, about the N street entrance when he drives up. They are few, however, and very respectful. Usually the President is accompanied by his wife, sometimes by Mrs. McKee, sometimes by Dr. Scott, the venerable father of Mrs. Harrison—sometimes by both. The entrance to the church is usually so quietly made that few people are aware of it until the family are safely ensconced in their pew.

Dr. Hamline, who is the pastor of the President's church, is a comparatively young man, a graduate of one of the great educational institutions of the country, a close student and a hard worker. His sermons are all carefully prepared, and delivered from manuscript, but so well delivered that the listener seldom thinks of the fact that they are being read. Dr. Hamline does not allow the fact that he has a President and many other people of social and official distinction in his congregation to tone down his presentation of gospel truths.

The income of the Church of the Covenant is a very handsome sum. The pews bring a rental of from $25 to $40 per annum for each person occupying them, and the morning collection runs pretty well up to a $100 a Sabbath. Dr. Hamline receives a salary of $6,000 a year, and has often been offered more than that to go elsewhere. It is stated that he recently received an offer of $12,000 from a Western city, but preferred to remain in Washington. He has also had flattering offers from New York, and has persistently, but gracefully declined anything looking to take him away from his charge here, to which he is greatly devoted.

A Congressman's Day.

One day taken apart from all the rest in the existence of a Congressman is not apt to be marked by great adventures or enlivened by an exciting incident. Most days of the average member of the House are repetitions each of the other. A review of the twenty-four hours made by a member before closing his eyes for a night's rest puts him to sleep with the thought that the lot of a legislator is not always a happy one, and that statesmanship is the least of things that enter in his day's toil.

Your correspondent asked one of the oldest members of the House to keep a record for him of one day of Congressional life. This is it in brief: Eight o'clock, breakfast; 8:30, opened mail and laid aside all newspapers with marked articles for future examination. Read upward of ninety letters on all sorts of subjects, of which the following are twenty examples: One is from a veteran asking for information about his pension. He gives no postoffice address, and I am oliged to write a letter to the Pension Office to secure his address. Another correspondent wants a number of old volumes of geological survey, which, upon investigation, I find are not to be had. A veteran writes that he communicated with the Pension Office December 7, 1891, and got a communication from them nearly a month later which made no reference to his letter. Wants me to go to the office to see if his communication was received. Another letter requires me to go to the pension office to ascertain what there is defective in the application of the writer for a pension. A gentleman from the Agricultural Department requests me to accompany him to my home, where he is to deliver a lecture to some of my constituents. Another wants the Congressional Record sent to him. An applicant for pension wants to know where his papers are. One of my constituents writes for me to secure him a place in the Government departments. Another wants his pension matters looked up, but does not give the number of his case. Another wants a position in the Government printing office. In another letter the gentleman gives an account of trouble he is having over the exaction of duties from him for goods brought to the custom house. This requires investigation at the customs division, Treasury Department, and an examination of the law, which shows the duties were properly collected. The pension office notifies me of the allowance of a pension. The office also wants to know how an applicant for pension in my district spells his name. Another correspondent wants information as to the foreign insurance companies doing business at the national capital. A pension applicant wants to know all about the surgical report in his case. Another wants me to have a medical examination as to his condition made at his home, because he is unable to travel. Another letter is on the subject of river and harbor improvements. Another gentleman wants me to ascertain what action has been taken in some land case he has before the Government.

These are examples of requests contained in nearly a hundred letters. Each one requires a reply and most of them involve writing letters to the departments or making personal visits. Many require long personal examinations of department records and an unwinding of lots of red tape. Most of the matters are such as must be looked into before going to the Capitol.

After this I go to the committee work. There is a different committee for every day in the week, with subcommittee work besides, and on Saturday, besides several subcommittees to look after, I have various departments to visit. At 12 o'clock I entered the House, introduced bills, chased around after the Speaker's eye, listened to debates, took part in general legislation, answering letters between times, answered roll calls and received visits from a large number of constituents and other persons who called me out by card. Five minutes is allowed for lunch meanwhile, and at 6 o'clock I dine. At 7 I again turn to my mail and to the newspapers and to pamphlets and a world of other printed matter. This occupies me until 11 o'clock, when, for the first time during the day, I get a chance for general reading and for study, which occupies me for an hour or more, until drowsiness compels retirement.

This is the average humdrum day with a Congressman, which is repeated every twenty-four hours, and involves an immense amount of labor without interest.

Earthquake-Proof.

In all countries where earthquakes are of common occurrence the art of constructing buildings in such a way as to resist the effect of the shocks has been studied, and, as always happens, experience has proved the best teacher. An extraordinary opportunity to compare the strength of buildings thus made with others built after the ordinary European fashion was furnished by the terrible earthquake in Japan last October.

Professor John Milne, one of the foremost authorities on the subject of earthquakes, studied the effects of this great shock, which destroyed over 40,000 houses, and reports that "in many places so-called 'foreign' buildings of brick and stone, undoubtedly put up in the flimsiest manner, lie as heaps of ruin between Japanese buildings yet standing."

Some of the Japanese castles and temples escaped, though situated within the district where the shock was most destructive. Professor Milne attributes this, in the case of the castles to their pyramidal form and to the moats that surround them, and in the case of the temples to the multiplicity of joints between the roof and the supporting columns, the effect of which was to produce a "basket-like yielding" when the temples were shaken by the earthquake, thus preventing the breaking of the walls.

In some of the Western States where tornadoes occur a similar problem is presented, but so far no method of constructing a house that will enable it to resist the tornado's fury has been invented, and the only alternative has been to dig underground chambers near the houses, into which families can flee for safety.

Probably a Japanese would consider one of our tornadoes as a thing far more to be dreaded than the earthquake of his native country.

New England Bear Hunting.

"Charles Smith, the Jackson bear hunter," said a trapper, "followed a track through the snow some winters ago and finally it disappeared in a ledge. He was bound not to give it up that way so he made him a torch, and taking it in one hand and his single-shot rifle in the other, he entered the den. He wasn't long in spotting a pair of eyes in advance of him, and he fired. Retreating until he was satisfied the bear must be dead he again entered, but there the eyes were, apparently as before. Again he fired and when he next entered the cave he found that he had killed two bears, and both big ones. The most bear I ever got in one day was when I went to visit one of my traps and found an old she bear in the trap and two cubs sleeping by her side. In less than three minutes I had three dead bears, and if those two cubs, killed cold, weren't juicy eating I'll miss my guess. I got $54 out of that morning's work. You see it makes quite a difference in the profits of bear hunting whether we kill our game in New Hampshire or Maine. Here the bounty is only $5, while over the line it is $10. So, unlike Sawtelle, we are anxious to prove that we do our killing in New Hampshire. For instance, if I trap a bear in Maine, I try to get him across the line before knocking him in the head. One I loaded into a cart and drove up into the dooryard of one of the selectmen of a neighboring town just across the border, and there dispatched my bear and called for and received my order, making $5 in a few hours by so doing."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Deaths from Hydrophobia.

A notable decrease in the number of deaths from hydrophobia is observed by the Registrar-General of London. The deaths from this disease had been thirty in 1869, and had averaged twenty-four annually in three years, 187-1888-1889, but there were only eight in 1890 and fewer than in any year since 1868.

COL. J. SUMNER ROGERS, of the Michigan Military Academy, writes from Orchard Lake, Mich.: "In firing an eight-inch mortar recently we were successful in making an instantaneous photograph of the same, catching the shell about twelve feet from the mouth of the mortar." The view of the cannon-ball is clear.

"JAKEY, my son, dake longer stebs und you von't vear out your shoes so quick."

To Cure Sleeplessness.

Druggists tell us that there is a growing demand for various medicines and preparations containing opiates in one shape or another. People wreck their nervous systems by injudicious habits of life, and the result is unsound sleep, dyspepsia and countless other evils. A little advice to such persons may not be out of place. They should, of course, be careful to abandon that method of life which brings them into physical disorder. Their complaint may be fed by tobacco; narcotics should be avoided. One cause of their trouble may be that they take insufficient exercise. Perhaps they drink too much tea or coffee, or eat too much flesh meat. There are a thousand practices allowed by convention which are in themselves harmful and prejudicial to health.

The quantity of sleep may be improved by diminishing the length of time spent in bed. A hot shower-bath at bed-time cleanses the skin and predisposes to sleep. Many a toiling business or literary man goes to bed tired and worn out, only to toss from one side to another. His brain is hot and full of blood, while his feet are cold. He thinks over again the thoughts that have been engaging his attention during the day, or does over again the business that has called forth his energies for twelve or sixteen hours past. His night is a round of tossing to and fro. Is there any wonder that, failing to find out what is the true and natural remedy for his pains, he resorts to opiates, which he knows will give him temporary relief?

There is one sure and safe way to remedy his pains. If, after leaving work, he would take a brisk walk of a mile or two before going to bed, and then, after the walk, hold his head under a stream of cold water, he would find relief—that is, supposing he does this when he is first troubled with sleepless nights. But, no; if he lives a half a mile or more from his work he takes a car home, and, throwing off his clothes, goes to bed as quickly as possible.

The want of balance between mental and physical labor is a fruitful cause of sleeplessness. Many a business man, whose duties keep him in an office all day, would improve his health a great deal if he were to fit up his attic as a carpenter shop and spend an hour therein after supper. This, of course, would be beneficial only if he happened to have a liking for mechanics; then he would find his occupation afforded him amusement, mental occupation and muscular effort in just the proper proportions.—Herald of Health.

A Hungarian Village.

Stuhlweissenburg is a village of perhaps 25,000 people. In America it would be a city, but in Hungary it is a village, and properly one. It is a village in every respect. The streets are narrow, crooked and wretchedly paved, there are no sidewalks to speak of. The houses are nine-tenths of them but one story, and date back hundreds of years, the hotels are two stories in height and there are one or two buildings of recent date, owned by Jews, of three stories.

The business part of the village is all on two streets, and consists of perhaps fifty of the most wretched and insignificant shops (there are two or three respectable dry goods concerns conducted by Jews), the average value of the goods in each not amounting to $100. The population is purely agricultural. Away from the two principal streets are long rows and straggling rows of dwellings, all alike, inhabited by farmers who reside in the village, where beer-halls and spirit-shops are convenient, and go out to work their lands miles away. It is in Hungary as in Germany—the farmers congregate in villages rather than live on their land. —Nasby in Exile.

Cold Baths for Typhoid.

The system of cold baths in the treatment of typhoid fever as employed in Germany has been put to the test by Dr. Josias, and he reported to the Societe des Hopitaux that during the years of 1888 and 1889 he treated thirty-six cases of typhoid fever by cold baths; that is to say, with water at 18 degrees C., repeating these every three hours. Of thirty-six cases the experimenter obtained thirty-three recoveries. Drs. Renoy and Richards, who, on their side, had followed this method, obtained 103 recoveries out of 108 cases.

The Plea of Insanity

Cannot be urged in extenuation of the conduct of hosts of people who constantly inflict injury upon themselves, and lay the foundation for serious and disastrous bodily trouble by the use, in season and out of season, upon slight necessity, and without discrimination, of drastic vegetable cathartics and poisonous mineral cholagogues—notably the various forms of mercury—to relieve simply constipation, a complaint remediable at any stage by the persistent use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This famous remedy never gripes, evacuates too copiously, or weakens the bowels. If there is any other tonic aperient in or out of the pharmacopœia of which this can truthfully be said, we are unaware of it. Abandon the fatuous habit of dosing and use this benign regulator, which also sets right weakened stomachs and disordered livers. Rheumatism, neuralgia, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, malaria, debility, and kidney complaints are troubles all conquerable by the Bitters.

How Much He Knew.

A colored porter at a Washington hotel had charge of the hats of the guests who went in to dine. His accuracy and promptness in giving every man his own "tile" as he came out of the dining-room excited one gentleman's curiosity.

"How did you know so well that this was my hat?" he asked.

A smile lighted up the ebony face as he bowed politely.

"Boss," he said, "I didn't know it was yours, but it's de one you give me!"

ONE of the simplest cures for cinder in the eye is that of a common flaxseed. One or two of these may be placed in the eye without injury. They shortly begin to swell and exude a glutinous substance that covers the ball of the eye, enveloping any foreign substance that may be in it; then seed and irritant may be washed out.

A Brilliant Discovery in Dermatology.

It is said that superfluous hair can be permanently removed without pain. An interesting and valuable discovery has recently been made by John H. Woodbury of 125 West 42d street, New York City. It is a remedy for the permanent removal of superfluous hair, consisting of a fluid which is applied to the hair follicle by means of an electric needle. It is designed to be used by patients at their homes, and is said to be fully as effectual as electricity. Full particulars in reference to this valuable remedy are found in a little book of 128 pages, which is sent to any address for 10 cents, on application to the discoverer.

J. D. McAnally, who now has a saloon in Waterloo writes us, that he is going to keep a register of the ages of all who buy liquor at his bar. In this way he hopes to shield himself from trouble in selling to minors. But it is doubtful whether it will prove a protection.

A close observance of the Golden Rule has led many obedient servants to rejoice in the supreme consciousness of having done what was commanded from an unquestioned authority. We would not presume upon human weakness for an indulgence to place the Golden Rule cigar on a standard of excellence with that Rule which has governed the universe for ages, but we do mean to say that many have found that brand to be an article of real merit.

The Mortgage Bank & Investment Company of Fargo, North Dakota, write us that they have farms for sale which they have obtained at very low prices under foreclosure which they will sell at from $4 to $7 per acre accepting $50.00 when the contract is made, the balance to be paid in yearly installments. Most of these farms have considerable of the land under cultivation and houses and barns already built. They also say that they will lease sheep and cattle on shares to the party purchasing the farms. This would seem to be a prime opportunity for ambitious young men to obtain a start in life.

DEMOCRATIC state convention, April 21.

A RICH find of silver is reported near Los Angeles, Calif., which bids fair if it holds out, to beat all others.

MINNESOTA democrats last week selected their delegates to the national convention and gave them instructions to vote for Cleveland.

SEVERAL general windstorms in the west during the past week, extending over a large territory. Many lives lost, about fifty in Kansas alone.

REPUBLICAN papers can talk about all gerrymanders but their own. As they have done three-fourths of this political work, it is singular they never told how wicked it was.

A. J. BAXTER of Butler, is a candidate for delegate to the national convention as a pronounced Cleveland man. He was a delegate to St. Louis four years ago, and of course voted for Cleveland.

THE Dispatch has another baby whine at the commissioners because they hired Mr. Glazier another year and pay him the old price $800. How would the Dispatch man like to care for about thirty paupers for that sum, and then agree to make the farm self-sustaining?

THE democratic congressional campaign committee has been reorganized, with Congressman John T. Mitchell, of Wisconsin, as chairman. Congressman McClellan is again the member for Indiana. What a pity he could not remain in congress. Our foolish two-term rule kicks a man out as soon as he learns the business.

THE Waterloo Press speaks of James Provines as a candidate for treasurer. He is now the chairman of the republican county committee, but that would not prevent his running for the office if the bosses wished it. We are told he is also an Alliance man. If so, it looks a little queer that the republicans would have an Alliance man for county chairman.

JUDGE LOWRY who is a candidate for appellate judge, was appointed to that place by the legislature two years ago, but a republican supreme court knocked him out. Now let the people take hold, give him the nomination and elect him, and we would like to see the court that would knock him out then. He is perhaps, the best fitted for the position of any man in the state. There should be no opposition to his nomination.

In the Same Grave.

Funeral directors often have sad incidents come within their knowledge, as might be supposed. Geo. McCord, who does this work for the Schaab Furniture Co., tells of a pathetic case of this kind. It will be remembered that the young wife of Wm. Kosht died March 21, and was buried the 23d, leaving a little babe but two or three days old. Last week, the babe also died and the doubly bereaved father, came to Mr. McCord, and asked if the little one could be put into the coffin with its mother. Mr. McCord thought it could be done, as the mother had been enbalmed arterially, and this method preserves them so fully from decay. So next day he met Mr Kosht and several carriages of friends at the cemetery where the young mother was buried. The casket was taken up and opened, and it was found, that she was perfectly preserved, every feature remaining as natural and presentable as on the hour, twelve days before, when she was laid to rest. The husband and friends looked again on those features they had thought never to see again. Then the little one was gently laid in the coffin beside her, its tiny face nestling against hers, a last look was taken, the coffin closed, and once more lowered to its final resting place. The earth again fell on the silent home of the dead, and then they were left to their endless rest, mother and babe, though they had been divided in death, they were united in the grave.

The M. E. Ministers.

The conference at Anderson made many changes, but of course many remain at their old posts. Mr. Wooton comes back to Auburn and we believe that will suit all our people, for he has proved an earnest and able worker. J. M. DeWeese goes from Waterloo to Bourbon; D. S. Hollopeter to Churubusco; C. M. Hollopeter to Coesse; A. L. Lamport stays at Garrett we are pleased to say; M. H. Smith, Huntertown; C. M. Elliott, Leo; J. J. Fred to Spencerville; H. Lacy, to Edon; F. M. Lacy, to Perkinsville; J. K. Walts, to Winchester; J. M. Driver, Columbia City; E. P. Church to Larwill; J. M. Baker, Mentone; W. S. Stewart, North Manchester; B. C. Smith, Pierceton; A. W. Lamport, Wabash; J. S. McElwee, Bunker Hill; H. J. Norris, Logansport; C. H. Wilkinson, Kenia; C. C. Cissell, Fountain City; C. C. Cissell jr. Butler circuit; J. A. Fire Loss Paid.

L. J. Gengler of Garrett, does a big fire insurance business, and don't wait for grass to cover the burnt site, before paying the money. Charles Huyck of that place had his house burn last week, as noted by the COURIER, and before twenty-four hours had elapsed—while the embers were yet alive. Mr. Gengler had paid the insurance, $1,000. It was insured in the Manchester Ins. Co., and the promptness of the payment, speaks well for the company and for Mr. Gengler, as their agent.

Meeting of Directors.

The board of directors of the N. E. Ind. Agricultural Association will meet at the secretary's office in Waterloo, at 1:30 p. m., of Monday, April 11, 1892 for the transaction of important business. This is the regular April meeting provided for in the by laws. Let all directors attend who can possibly do so.

Talking about quality,—please bear in mind that Quality is the pass-word to our store and Low Prices our countersign. Were it not so, so many Auburn people and people from other parts of the county would not come to our store.

We invite you to call and give us a trial.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottle free at Robbins & McCords' drugstore, regular size, 50c. and $1.00. 4

Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse, until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullam's Great German Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, can say I am in better health than I have been for twenty years and am now 60 years old, but feel as young as at thirty. $1 a bottle.

The Reading Room, which is supported by the voluntary subscriptions of our citizens is just now in urgent need of the amounts due on first and second assessments to meet current expenses, and the managers hope that all who have generously subscribed for this purpose will promptly hand the amounts to the secretary, McDougall, and thus enable him to meet the small obligations still outstanding.

The people interested in the Evergreen cemetery have seen a notice in the Courier for the past two weeks, asking them to attend to their interests there. We wish to add a word or two. The assessments are like taxes, provided for by law, and as they are only $1 a year they should be prompty paid. There are many expenses connected with the grounds that must be met. A sexton must be employed to keep the grounds in order. John Sawyer has been selected for the coming year, at the reasonable salary of $32.50 a month, and the conditon of his own lot shows his good taste and skill. The grounds will not suffer at his hands. He will dig all graves, making his charge to the parties, and turning the money over to the cemetery association. The people who are interested in this corporation are among our best citizens, including Dr. Johnston, Enos Casebeer, Mrs. Mary Ehlers, Mrs. May Dills, Sylvester Kutzner and many others. Let us see the cemetery properly attended to and improved.

The rains may fall, the floods come, and solid foundations be swept away, and promising candidates sometimes run for office and are defeated, but none of those sad disasters can have any effect upon the reputation the Bill Head cigar has enjoyed in the past, nor can they detract from its present popular demand. It is a standard brand, which has been placed upon the market with that degree of scrupulous care which characterizes the action and motives of interested manufacturers.

There have been for some time past, Bible readings at the church of God, on Jackson street, conducted by a A. Harding, which have become quite interesting to those who make the Bible a study. Each Sunday afternoon, a subject is taken up and considered from every bearing given upon it in references. His subject next Sunday afternoon will be the "Distinctions between the Moral and Ceremonial Laws." All who are interested in this class of study are cordially invited to attend.

Cold winter has thrown off his chilly mantle of frost and biting winds, to exchange them for the more genial garb of spring. But a little while ago, cold rains, driving sleet and icy air, where the things which increased the discomfort of mankind, fed the grip and weakened the vitalized forces of humanity. Now, after the lapse of a few short weeks, we poor, ungrateful mortals are brought to view a scene so entrancingly contrasting in its nature as to call forth hearty exclamations of glad joy at the new beauties surrounding us. Bright sunshine, warm rains and real summer like changes in the atmosphere have rendered existence more delightful and filled the hearts of all with glad anticipation for the days which are soon to come, when buds, flowers, bush and tree develop to that state of serene lovliness where mind can drink at the fountain of divine inspiration and appreciate the mysterious works of entire supremacy. Truly the spring and fall seasons of the year are most impressive, and imbue us with an almost incomprehensible intelligence of providential magnanimity.

Fire! fire!! fire!!! This strange, startling and unwelcome announcement pealed forth with an awful distinctness above the roar of winds, falling rain, crashing thunder and keen flashes of lightning, Tuesday morning, when the quietness of our little city was serene and the inhabitants had abandoned all worldly care and were wrapped in that deep, unconsciousness of dreamless and refreshing slumber, which cometh at the wee hours of the early morning, before the dawn appeareth. What meant that wild alarm, which aroused the village from its solemn repose? Ah, there was hurrying to and fro,—people hustling from warm beds to the muddy street, to find the lurid glare of a small conflagration filling the air with its uncertain light, as it gained power from a burning building in the south end of town, where licking flames mounted the breeze and apparently rendered more gruesome by their reflection against the darkened sky. A large crowd soon gathered at the scene of action, which proved to be the house owned by Peter Showalter, burning to the ground. The Hoosier Boys were at their respective posts in due season and it was not long before the cooling influence from the rubber hose manifested itself with telling effect. The fire cisterns were all too far away, so the engine was stationed on the bridge which crosses the ditch at Trentman's office and water was taken from that. Had the wind blown from another direction, it is probable that great damage would have been done. But the wind being favorable a steady stream of water soon subdued the flames and everything was made safe once more. There being no accidental cause, apparent, for this fire, it is supposed to be still another example of the fiendish and cowardly work of an incendiary. The property, we understand, is insured. The family that was living in the house moved out Monday, only a few hours before it was burned.

We publish this week a list of the allowances made by the town board the past year, and also their annual financial statement. Everybody should read it. The board has done a good deal of needed work, and have been as economical as possible, but improvements cost money.

Is it not about time the Dispatch opened up on the city finances, "just before election," as it promised to do each year? Possibly the "expose" may be omitted this year, as the board is partly republican. The fact is, the Dispatch is not honest in its pretensions to honesty.

Myers & Myers, at Kutzner's feed barn are handling a good style of road wagons, buggies, windpumps and drive wells. They are experienced in all articles and work of this kind and will give you a good article at a reasonable rate. Call on them and they will talk business. 16

The railroad that Auburn tried a little to get a few years ago, the "Three I's," which is now leasing two lines to let it up to New Buffalo on Lake Michigan, is now trying to get a line up to Goshen, and then across Lagrange and Steuben counties. The Lake Shore road has put a few miles to the old Canada Southern, to reach from Fayette to the Wabash line. Now perhaps these two may unite.

The town board, at its Monday meeting closed up the business of the year, making a very satisfactory showing. They talked about having shade trees trimmed up higher, and will probably advise such a course, but will not pass an ordinance. There will probably be an effort the coming year to improve West Seventh street. The cost will be considerable, but seems absolutely necessary, and will likely be borne jointly by property owners and the town. The terrible condition there for the past few weeks, proves we can not put it off much longer. The reports, etc., that closed the year's work appear in the Courier today.

Result of City Elections in the West—Six Tons of Gun Cotton Creates Sad Havoc in Russia—The Chinese Will Cut Us Off—Reed Will Not Resign.

THE ELECTIONS.

Result in Some of the Principal Cities of the West.

A special from Chicago says: The aldermanic and town elections passed off quietly here though the vote was the heaviest ever cast in a municipal election. At midnight the returns are nearly all in, showing that the Council has changed but little in complexion. A number of independent candidates were elected but the loss of seats is about equally divided between the Republicans and Democrats. A number of aldermen who were conspicuously connected with the charges of boodleism recently investigated by the grand jury were retired. Alderman Cullerton who has been the leader of the Council for twenty years was defeated by Rhodes an independent. North and south towns went Democratic while the Republicans retain control of the west town offices. Municipal elections were held throughout the State, the Australian ballot law being introduced in many places. The issues were purely local.

St. Joseph, Mo.—In the city election the Republicans elected the Mayor, City Treasurer, Auditor, Police Judge and City Attorney. The Democrats elected four aldermen, making the Council a tie.

Milwaukee—Late returns indicate the election of P. J. Somer (Dem.) for Mayor, over Bechner (Rep.) by a majority of from 2,500 to 3,000 together with the whole Democratic ticket. The Council will be very close, probably a tie.

Frightful Explosion.

St. Petersburg special: The explosion of a smokeless-powder factory belonging to the Government, caused several deaths and frightful havoc. Six tons of gun cotton were in the factory at the time of the explosion, the cause of which is unknown, as not one of the nine workingmen who were in the factory survived. The building was blown to atoms and the inmates with it. The largest part found of the victims was an ear and a part of a skull at a distance of 200 yards. The remnants of the building were mingled with shreds of flesh. Even the foundations of the factory were torn up. The sound of the explosion was heard for many miles. Eight men, who were at work a quarter of a mile away from the scene, were so badly hurt by the flying fragments and the concussion that they are in a critical condition. Although the cause of the explosion is said to be unknown, the Russian police ascribe it to Anarchists.

Mysterious Murder.

Minneapolis special: Mrs. Anthony Patrasch was called from her bed early the other morning to identify the body of a dead man found lying in her hallway. A neighbor living in the same building had stumbled over it. The body was that of her husband, who had left home to go to work. There was a bullet hole through the right temple and under the body was found a 38-caliber revolver. Mrs Patrasch insisted that her husband could never have taken his own life, as he never carried a revolver, and she believed that some man whom he had quarreled with shot him for revenge.

Robbed By Two Masked Men.

Two masked men entered the house of Rev. R. A. Martin, at Denver, Ark., and with drawn revolvers compelled the minister to show them where his money was concealed. The minister offered some resistance, but was threatened with death and he gave up his money. He finally directed the robbers to the place where $200 was concealed, and the men secured it and left.

A Hero Rewarded.

The London Board of Trade has presented a watch and chain to Capt. Willegerod of the North German steamer Spree in recognition of his services in saving the crew of the steamer Absynnia which was buried last December. The second and third officers received binoculars, and each of the crew received $15.

Egan Coming Home.

No significance is attached to the fact that Minister Egan has been granted leave of absence and will soon return to the United States. It is said at the State Department that Mr. Egan is only coming home for a short rest and will then return to his post of duty. His leave of absence is not in the nature of a recall.

"Kiss Me and Make Up."

Wm. Maier, a baker of Wheeling, W. Va., quarreled with his wife. Early next morning when he rose to go to work he asked his wife to "kiss and make up." She refused and he drew a revolver and fired four shots into her head, any one of which being sufficient to kill her instantly. Maier is still at large.

Will Not Resign If He Knows It First.

Ex-Speaker Reed, who is at Newport, was shown a dispatch from Washington, stating that he contemplated retiring from Congressional life after the end of his present term. Mr. Reed denied the report and laughingly said: "I haven't heard of it myself."

The Chinese Will Cut Us Off.

A special from Washington says: The Chicago minister informed Senator Sherman that if the Chinese exclusion bill became a law, China would sever all diplomatic relations with this country.

Monument to John Brown.

The colored people of Washington have perfected an organization for the purpose of collecting a fund to be used in erecting a monument to John Brown. An executive committee has been appointed which will develop a plan for securing money.

Fred Pfeffer Signs at Last.

Fred Pfeffer, the veteran second baseman of the Chicago Base Ball Club, has signed a contract to play with the Louisville team at a salary of $4,000.

Ran Into a Switch.

Princeton (Ind.) special: A terrible case of negligence occurred on the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis railroad. A train going East at a rate of twenty miles an hour ran into an open switch at Beck's siding and dashed into some freight cars. The engine, with nine cars, was completely demolished.

Following are those injured:

Pete Delaney, fireman, head and face badly cut.

Harry Cramer, conductor, body rolled and bruised; not seriously.

T. J. Roberts, brakeman, head and face badly cut, legs and arms terribly crushed.

FEMALE ROBBERS.

Six Young Women, in Male Attire, Carry on a Successful Stage Robbing Business.

Salmon City (Idaho) special: A few days ago the fact of numerous stage hold-ups in this section of the country was noted, and the belief expressed that sensational developments would follow the working of a clue which the Sheriff was following. These developments have come, and there now board with the Sheriff a man and seven women, or rather one woman and six girls. The belief was strong that old man Harvey and his family were responsible for the numerous robberies, and this belief has now become a certainty, for the girls were caught in the act by a clever scheme worked by the officials. It was found that the stages were robbed on the side of Harvey's, from that ranch after they had left there. An east-going stage would be robbed east of Harvey's, while a west-going one would be held up on this side. The Sheriff concluded that the old man and his girls had more to do with it than any one else, and so set a trap which worked well. There were certain spots along the road where the robberies were done, an in one of these places the Sheriff, with ten men, waited while the stage stopped at the house. the driver being previously instructed to betray fear of robbery because he carried a money box. The bait took, and when the stage people were eating dinner the girls disappeared, and soon the Sheriff and his party in ambush saw six young men sneak into the little canyon and hide themselves close to the road. When the stage came along the bandits went forth and stopped it at the point of their guns, but the Sheriff was also there and took in the whole gang, which proved to be composed of the girls who had left the house. When the arrest was made, one of the girls weakened and told the whole story. She said she never liked the work and was glad they were caught. They were trained to it by their father and mother, and the proceeds were shipped East for sale, so as not to excite suspicion in the country.

OPTION BILL AMENDED.

HATCH'S ANTI-OPTION MEASURE FINISHED AT LAST.

Prohibitive Taxes Prescribed for Speculative Dealers and Severe Penalties Provided for Evasions—License of $1,000 a Year to Be Levied.

Objects of the Bill.

The House Committee on Agriculture has formally adopted the report prepared by Mr. Hatch's subcommittee in favor of the anti-option bill. The measure as agreed upon is the Hatch bill with some modifications in line with the suggestions made some time ago by Senator Washburn. The bill does not propose to interfere with future contracts for the delivery of actual products, but it levies a special tax on those dealers in options or futures who at the time of making such contracts or agreements are not the owners of the articles to be sold and delivered, or have not by purchase acquired the right to their future possessions. These dealers are required to pay $1,000 annually as a license fee for conducting their business and shall also pay the further sum of 5 cents a pound for every pound of raw or unmanufactured cotton, hops, pork, lard, bacon, or other edible product of swine, and the sum of 20 cents a bushel for every bushel of wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, grass seeds and flaxseed. Records of these transactions are to be kept by the dealers and by the boards of trade where they may be made, and reports are to be submitted regularly to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who will collect the taxes. All dealers in options or futures are to be registered, and all transfers or assignments of contracts shall be in writing and signed in duplicate, with the date and length of the option explicitly stated. False or fraudulent entries are made punishable by a fine of from $1,000 to $20,000, or imprisonment from six months to ten years, or both. Commission merchants who simply desire to conduct a business of making, transferring or assigning future contracts or agreements of the legitimate sort will be required to pay a fee of $2 a year. Failure to make proper reports to the internal revenue department is made punishable by a fine of from $100 to $5,000.

Chairman Hatch thinks that the bill as reported will prevent "wind speculations" and dealings in puts and calls, which are already prohibited by most of the boards of trade.

MILLIONS BURNED UP.

Loss of Life and Property by a Cotton Fire in New Orleans.

Property valued at $4,000,000 was destroyed and a hundred or more persons robbed of their homes by fire at New Orleans, Sunday. Flames were discovered among some cotton in front of the so-called fireproof press on North Front street. The department responded promptly, but the wind was so high and the cotton so dry that it burned like tissue paper. The firemen worked like demons to arrest the progress of the flames, but all their efforts were unavailing. Chief O'Connor sounded a repeated alarm, which brought more engines to the scene, but they had no effect whatever. The woodwork cracked and fell to the ground and the bright flames leaped upward from every part of the compress.

After three repeated alarms a general alarm was sent in, and all the engines in the city, with the exception of two or three, were called out. The fireproof press had about 10,000 bales of cotton stored in it. This was entirely consumed.

In half an hour after the flames had started the fire-proof press was totally consumed and the flames communicated to an adjoining press. In this press was stored 50,000 bales of cotton, some of which was taken out to a place of safety. The major portion, however, was in flames in a short time, and it was impossible to save it.

Suddenly a small flame was seen to leap skyward from a corner of the Independence press. In a second almost the entire square was ablaze, and the flames formed almost a solid block of fire. In the yard were stored some ten thousand bales. This proved excellent fuel for the flames, and in a little time it was consumed.

The total amount of cotton burned, as near as can now be ascertained, is estimated at 80,000 bales, held by factors and commission merchants, and covered by their open policies. Much of this cotton will be sent to the pickeries and saved, so that the total loss will probably not exceed $30 a bale, making the total on cotton between $2,000,000 and $2,250,000. Loss on presses and sheds estimated at $150,000. It is thought the fire started from a cigarette which some person threw among the cotton.

While the firemen were fighting the cotton fire an alarm was given of another at Laurel and Third streets, about twelve blocks away. The fire began with the sacrifice of two young lives. A little daughter of Mrs. Valentine was filling a coal-oil lamp when it exploded. The flaming oil was thrown over an infant sister and both children were burned to death. The flames spread out on their mission of destruction making a huge funeral pyre for the unfortunate little ones. Chief O'Connor sent several engines to the scene, but before they could get down to active work a dozen houses were in flames. Alarms were sent in and every engine on both sides of the river was summoned to the scene. The heat was intense, and for this reason it was almost impossible to get near the burning buildings, the wind in many instances blowing tongues of flames across the street.

The flames spread in every direction owing to varying winds. The fire swept across Laurel street with a rapidity that was at once alarming and soon the section bounded by First, Third, Laurel and Magazine streets, four squares, was ablaze, and the wooden buildings were devoured as if they were so much chaff. Magazine street staid the march of the destuctive element westward and acted as a barrier on the south. Every building in the four squares mentioned except four was destroyed. Most of the houses were small, but some very handsome houses on Magazine street were destroyed. Hundreds of people have been left homeless by the fire and in many cases nothing will be saved. The scene presented was truly one of desolation. Nothing remains of the many handsome buildings embraced in the four squares but tall, gaunt-looking chimneys, like huge spectral forms standing guard over the blackened ruins. The losses by this fire are estimated at $250,000. It is believed that the buildings are mostly insured.

THE resources of a shoe factory in Leicester, Eng., have been immensely increased by the adoption of electric power. The installation is to be further enlarged, and when complete it will include two engines of 150-horse power for the driving of the dynamos for light and power. Fifteen hundred people will be employed and the factory will produce 50,000 pairs of shoes a week.

THE NATIONAL SOLONS.

SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Our National Lawmakers and What They Are Doing for the Good of the Country—Various Measures Proposed, Discussed, and Acted Upon.

Doings of Congress.

The silver bill being shelved, the House on the 29th proceeded with the consideration of the free-wool bill, the entire day being devoted to debate. Mr. Stewart of Nevada gave notice in the Senate that immediately after the morning hour on the 4th prox. he should call up his free coinage of silver bill, now on the Senate calendar, with an adverse report. The nomination of John H. Baker to be United States District Judge for Indiana in place of Judge Woods, was taken up by the Senate in secret session and confirmed. The Senate also confirmed the nomination of Milo A. Jewett, consul at Sivas, Turkey, and D. T. Hindman, of Britton, S. D., agent for the Indians at the Sisseton agency, S. D. The credentials of Roger Q. Mills as senator from Texas were laid before the senate, together with a letter from Mr. Mills saying that he had transmitted his resignation as a congressman to the governor of Texas. The senate by a unanimous vote ratified the Behring Sea treaty without any restrictive conditions.

The Springer free wool bill was the only subject of discussion in the House of Representatives on the 30th. In the Senate the Indian appropriation bill was resumed, and the discussion which was begun last week on the subject of army officers being assigned to the duties of Indian agents was again taken up. After much debate, Mr. Hawley moved to amend the House provision by adding to it a proviso that whenever the President shall be of opinion that the good of the service especially requires it, he may appoint a civilian. This was agreed to, and without reaching a vote on the amendment to strike out the House provision the Senate adjourned.

On the 31st Mr. Morgan introduced a series of resolutions directing the Committee on Finance to inquire into the causes of depression in agriculture and business, and the effect of the silver act of 1890. Discussion, by Mr. Sherman and Morgan, followed, and the resolutions were laid on the table until the following day. In the House the pension inquiry took a decidedly political cast when Mr. Enloe asked Gen. Raum if the bureau was not used for political purposes. The Commissioner replied that he never wrote a letter to a medical board or to examiners requesting the performance of any political act. The most significant event in the tariff discussion was the presence on the floor of ex-Representative McKinley, now Governor of Ohio, the author of the law against which all the Democratic speeches were directed. He was warmly greeted by the members of both political parties and paid close attention for a time to the speech of Representative Wheeler, of Alabama, in support of the free wool bill. The Senate accepted the recommendation of the House that army officers shall be appointed Indian agents. The Indian Bureau was badly defeated in this matter.

After the transaction of routine business, the 1st, the House went into committee of the whole on the free wool bill. Mr. Cox, of Tennessee, spoke in favor of the bill and in general denunciation of the protective system. Mr. McRae, of Arkansas, described the abuses arising from the protective tariff. Mr. Watson, of Chicago, expressed the sentiment of the third party on the tariff question. Mr. Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, criticised the Democratic policy and answered the attacks made upon the McKinley act. At the suggestion of Mr. McMillin it was ordered that the general debate on the free wool bill close with the session of the 2d. The Senate resumed consideration of the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Hansbrough offered an amendment for a commission to negotiate with the Turtle Mountain band of Chippewa Indians in North Dakota for the cession of the right and interest which they claim in their lands. Agreed to. Finally the bill was reported to the Senate from the committee of the whole. Mr. Dawes moved to strike out of the bill the provision for the assignment of army officers to the duties of Indian Agents, and consented that the motion should go over till the 4th.

WALL PAPER

[illegible] Michigan Ave., Detroit, Mich.

A Pair of Jacks.

By Lulu Jamison

CHAPTER V.

"I've found a New York paper at last, much to my surprise. I did not believe this place could boast the possession of one."

"But now that you know it can, your opinion of us is raised, I dare say. We are slightly civilized, you see."

Jack made no comment upon Mary's decidedly sarcastic words, but throwing himself upon the grass beside her, he began to unfold his paper. Presently changing his mind he refolded it and turning toward her said, somewhat irrelevantly:

"Do you ever grow lonely here?"

She looked at him with some surprise, and answered with unusual decision:

"Never. It is just the life I love. I have grandpa and the horses. If I were obliged to live in the city I firmly believe I would lose my mind. But of course you can't understand such perverted taste. You think New York heaven."

"The next thing to it," was the imperturbable answer. "If one could only have all the money one could spend."

"Most people don't know when they have enough," returned the wise Mary. "The more they have the more they want. What is money, anyway? If I have enough to eat and a horse to ride I am satisfied. I don't care for dressing—not a snap of my finger. I could have as nice dresses as most girls, if I wished for them, but I don't, and I haven't met the man or woman yet whom I would take the least trouble for. Now I am going to join grandpa. I see him in the walk over there. You may do as you please."

"Thanks," said Jack, gravely, rising to his feet; "then I have an ungracious permission to fellow you? Won't you try to treat me a little more kindly? Make an effort, as Mrs. Chick would say. By-the-way, you are not acquainted with Mrs. Chick."

"No. I think I should change my name were I in her place."

"Do you dislike it? To me it is pleasantly suggestive."

"I dare say, since she is your friend."

"Now that you put it quite plainly, I believe that she is my friend. I have sometimes considered the advisability of falling in love with her."

"The love that stops to consider is scarcely worth having," commented Mary. "I suppose Mrs. Chick is a widow. I don't admire widows. Does she live in New York?"

This question, put in all sincerity, was rather too much for Jack. Throwing back his head he laughed uproariously.

May watched him with growing anger.

"Why do you laugh?" she asked, as calmly as her feelings would allow.

Jack's only reply was another uncontrollable burst of mirth.

"You are laughing at me!" she cried with blazing eyes. "How dare you laugh at me? Tell me, this instant, what I have said or done. Tell me, I say."

Her passion sobered Jack.

"Please forgive me," he said penitently. "I am not laughing at you. Rather at what you said. Not that, either—that is—— Pshaw! I'll tell the truth. Mrs. Chick doesn't really exist, you know. She is a character in one of Dickens' novels, and your——"

"Never mind explaining any more," she interrupted, biting her lips fiercely. "I may as well tell you now that I never read. I haven't the slightest idea who Dickens is, and no curiosity whatever on the subject."

"I hate him!" she cried fiercely to her own reflection in her mirror that night. "I do thoroughly hate him. He thinks me an ignorant little goose, and so I am. I never so truly despised myself. But he sha'n't remind me of my shortcomings; indeed, he sha'n't. I suppose he thinks I will take anything from him, because I am a country girl and know nothing of city ways and manners. He shall find out his mistake. He sha'n't patronize me. If it were not for grandpa, I'd make this place too hot to hold him."

With this conclusion she walked to the window, and, looking down upon the line of light from the library window, once more began her self-comments.

"Just as I thought. They are together. I wonder if grandpa by any possibility could grow to like him better than me. If I thought that, I—would hate him in earnest."

She compressed her lips tightly, and leaving the window, she paused in the center of the room with an air of irresolution.

Then, growing suddenly determined, she thrust her bare feet into a pair of well-worn slippers, and made her way down a narrow back stairway into the the room where Jeannette was making preparations for bed.

"Mercy, save us," cried the somewhat startled woman, as the flying figure burst rather precipitately upon her. "You've nearly frightened the wits out of me, Miss Mary. Why ain't you asleep?"

"Because I'm too much awake. I want to talk." Jeannette sighed audibly. For her to go to bed under present circumstances, was out of the question. "You see I grow tired of talking to myself," explained Mary, seating herself on the bed and dangling her feet from side to side. "So I decided to come down and have a chat with you. Do you say you are not sleepy?"

"There'd be no use saying I was," was the answer, with commendable resignation.

"True," returned Mary with a reflective air. "How long has Mr. Beverly been here, Jeannette?"

"Mr. Beverly," repeated Jeannette, surprised at the unlooked-for question. "A week, I believe. No, more than a week. Ten days."

"Ten days. That all? It seems more like a month. Don't you think he has considerable—assurance?"

"Assurance, Miss Mary? I don't know what you mean. I'm sure I never met a pleasanter young man."

"Oh, indeed. I see how it is. He has gotten around you, just as he has around dear, innocent, unsuspecting grandpa. I dare say you'd both go down on your knees and thank heaven for the privilege of worshiping this superior individual. It is certainly strange how some people can be imposed upon. Thank gracious, my eyes are open."

"Dear me," commented Jeannette, as she gave Mary a rather curious glance.

"No; he can't deceive me," pursued Mary, dangling her feet with a rapidity that kept time with her thoughts. "I thoroughly detest him. He is always making me angry. And then I am rude, and grandpa is ashamed. He forever puts himself where he isn't wanted and expects me to dance attendance on him. He's eternally bringing up his horrible, noisy, dirty New York, as though that were the only place in creation, and the women there the only ones who know anything. I call that assurance. Indeed it is more than assurance. It is impudence."

"Pooh," commented Jeannette, with some contempt.

"Don't pooh me, Jeannette; I hate it. You know nothing about it. You don't know about Mrs. Chick and all the other abominable women he's always bringing up, just to have me ask about them, and show what an ignoramus I am. I can't imagine why you or grandpa did not make me read when I was young."

"It was as much as mortal could do to make you learn your letters. That wore me terrible."

"I wish," continued Mary, undisturbed by this explanation, "I wish I knew every book by heart, good and bad alike. Wouldn't I make his hair stand on end with some of my quotations. It is well enough for you to look horrified. I don't care to shock you, but I do literally pine to shock him."

"You are doing it, Miss; you are doing it fast enough. I know your grandpa'd be ashamed enough to hear you talk, and I know I'm ashamed the way you treat Mr. Beverly. Having him after them chickens every morning, in all that mess, spoiling his shoes and his clothes and——"

There was an irrepressible burst of merriment from the listening Mary.

"If you had been there this morning," was her only reply to this reproof, "actually, you would have laughed yourself into hysterics. He ran after an old hen and had such a tumble."

"I seen it," was the severe reply, "that good-for-nothing thing that ain't laid an egg this week."

"The very one. She can run, though. He kept screaming that he had caught her, when he really had only a handful of feathers from her tail, and she was out of sight before he could get on his feet."

Mary gave way to another burst of merriment at this remembrance.

Jeannette regarded her with a reproving air.

"I'm ashamed to see you laugh over such a thing, Miss Mary. A gentleman like him——"

"I must have laughed, if it had happened to myself," answered Mary, "and as for him—look here, Jeannette"—she broke off abruptly, skipping from the bed and standing before Jeannette, with a proud air—"can it be possible that you think him better than we are? Because he isn't. Let me tell you, I do not consider him my superior by any means, and, as for grandpa, his equal has not been created yet. What is your opinion now?"

"My opinion is, you'd better go to bed, instead of sitting here, talking a pack of nonsense. If you go on as you've been doing, I don't know what Mr. Beverly will think of you."

"And I don't care," rejoined Mary, sharply. "I dare say he doesn't trouble himself to think of me at all."

"Most likely not," was the provoking reply. "He has too many other girls to think of, let alone you."

"Of course he has. Didn't I make the same remark a second ago? There's no necessity for you to repeat it—none at all. I can't imagine what has put you in such a disagreeable humor. Do sleep it off, for mercy's sake."

The conclusion of this speech was lost in the noise of the door, which Mary closed with a bang after her.

"How provoking Jeannette can be sometimes!" she soliloquized, hastening along the hall. "I'm afraid her supper disagreed with her."

"Whose supper?" inquired a voice from the surrounding darkness.

"You," cried Mary, facing Jack. "What a faculty you have for putting yourself where you are not wanted!"

"Come, Miss Mary, that is very severe. I am going to my room, and there is no other way, I believe. I overheard your remark. If it is a case of indigestion I have an infallible cure."

"It is not a case of indigestion—merely a case of being disagreeable."

"Oh. Then I suppose Jeannette is the offender. What did she say or do?"

"Nothing that concerns you."

"Are you positive of that?" he asked, trying to see the outlines of her face in the shadow. "I thought possibly my name had been mentioned."

Mary's face grew warm, but she managed to answer calmly:

"We have other subjects of conversation besides you. Good-night, sir."

"Good-night, madame."

"Sometimes I wish I were one of the leaders of society," she cried, throwing herself upon a chair in her own room.

CHAPTER VI.

Several mornings later Jack came down expecting to take his usual ride with Mary. He found her standing before the stable door, looking slightly disconsolate. "I'm not going to ride this morning," she called out, when he was some yards off.

"Not ride?" he repeated, directing an inquiring glance at her habit.

"I dressed to go as usual," was the response, "and now I discover that Toby took my saddle to be fixed yesterday, and forgot to get it last night. There's no other side saddle, and so——"

"You can't go. Too bad," said Jack. "Never mind, we'll have a walk instead."

"How easily you take it," she answered. "It makes me angry to see people take a disappointment easily. I get raving when I can't have what I want. You may take a walk if you wish, but I sha'n't. I intend to go to my room to stay there until breakfast time."

"I wish you would change your mind and be more agreeable."

"I can't, really. When I am disappointed I like to be as disagreeable as possible."

"Still you might make an effort," he suggested with a half-suppressed smile. "You remember my friend, Mrs. Chick——"

"Look here," she cried, turning sharply upon him, "if you do not wish to make me your everlasting enemy, never mention that abominable Mrs. Chick again. If I were in your place now I should take a ride. If you do not, you'll have to wander alone until breakfast time, for I positively won't amuse you."

"I dare say there's nothing better to do," commented Jack, "considering it is just six now. Heavens, what an unearthly hour to get up."

"He is going," mused Mary turning when she had reached the front door, to see him in the act of mounting his horse. "What a piece of good fortune. I'll just wait to see which road he takes, and then I'll have my ride, side saddle or no side saddle."

Two minutes later she was quite satisfied on the desired point, and hastening to the stable she rather surprised Toby by asking him to saddle Prince immediately.

"But, Miss Mary——" expostulated the old man.

"I know," she put in with a quick frown. "Beggars can not be choosers. I'll manage with a man's saddle this morning. I dare say I won't tumble off. You needn't speak about it, Toby. Explanations are always tiresome. Is Prince ready? All right, I'm off then. Don't forget about keeping quiet, like a dear man. Oh, I'll be careful; this is really quite fine. Well, Prince, my boy," she added to her horse, "we sha'n't follow Maje, shall we? And I think you will have to go a little more carefully than usual, else I may find myself on my head in the road there, with something broken in the bargain. This seat isn't the steadiest in creation, or the most comfortable either. Really it is too bad of Toby to be so forgetful. A little slower, Prince, please."

Prince appeared to understand, and settled down into an easy canter. But Mary still continued to shift uneasily in her saddle and to make frequent remarks upon its unpleasant qualities.

"It is no use, Prince," she said at last, coming to a standstill after about ten minutes' riding. "I must either sit on this saddle the proper way or give up riding altogether. I'd like to be a man for about two hours, I will, too, as far as I can. Prince, you don't see anyone in sight, do you? Neither do I. And there isn't likely to be, either, on this road. So here is for comfort, if not safety, and a good, long gallop."

No sooner had the words passed her lips, than with a dexterous motion she slipped into the only position intended for the saddle she used.

Quite satisfied with this change, she gave Prince the rein and galloped off, serenely unconscious that there had been a silent spectator of her unusual performance.

Jack had followed the road he had first taken for some little distance, when he came to a broad pathway through a woods. "Wagons have been over this, why not a horse?" he soliloquized. "I'll try, anyway. It looks promising."

He did try it, penetrating for some distance through the fresh, cool depths. Presently he came to a clearing, from which the view was unusually fine. In a second he was off his horse, taking a rough sketch of the landscape before him. It was while engaged in this occupation that he heard the sound of an approaching horse, and looking out from the trees, which effectually screened him, he recognized Mary.

After her declaration that she could not ride, he was slightly surprised, and wisely decided not to let her know of his presence. The next moment her change of position converted his surprise into consternation, and, scarcely able to credit the testimony of his eyes, his glance followed her down the road.

"Heavens, what a girl!" he soliloquized, as a vent for his feelings. "She beats anything I ever came across. I wonder what her grandfather would say to see such an exhibition as that. Wouldn't she lead any poor chaperon a dance? She believes herself unobserved, and I wouldn't dare to enlighten her."

He endeavored to look unconscious when he met her in the dining-room an hour later.

Fortunately, perhaps, there was no opportunity for conversation before Mr. Millard joined them.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A Description of Tennyson.

Sir Edwin Arnold gives us this striking pen portrait of the poet laureate in the Forum: Everybody knows by photograph the manner of man Lord Tennyson is—surely a beautiful face, if ever the adjective could be applied to masculine features, and never more beautiful in any stage of life than now, when age has fixed all the finer features and lent them a new dignity and majesty. Everybody is familiar with the broad forehead, the clear, deep eyes, the strongly cut nose, and finely chiseled lips, the long hair fringing those temples—shrines of high thought—and the genial, massive and commanding aspect of the poet. Albeit past his eighty-second birthday, Lord Tennyson's figure is only weakened, not broken, by age. His hair preserves much of its old, dark color, and, excepting in places, is hardly more than "sable-silvered." His spirit is as alert, his glance as keen and alight as ever. Though he does not rise upon our entrance, making no ceremony with friends, he leads at once an animated conversation. It is a summer day, or rather early autumn, but the weather has been chilly, and the winds are blowing from that dreadful quarter, the east, so that the poet is wearing a loose wrapper, and around his neck a white silk handkerchief loosely knotted. By the way, on the left side of his neck there lodges a small brown birthmark, very characteristic, as if a drop of dark wine had dropped there and had stained the skin. His hands are manly and powerful in outline, but delicate and finely formed, as those of a poet should be. On his head, as an additional protection from the caprices of the English weather, he wears a small black velvet cap. These precautions are the more necessary, because not long ago he was suffering sadly from rheumatism and bronchitis, which at one time, indeed, filled all his friends with anxiety, and became for weeks together a national concern. And a certain shadow overhangs the hospitable abode, moreover, from the illness of Lady Tennyson (always a great invalid, but recently and to-day in positive danger), so that our first inquiries are made in an anxious and subdued tone; nor does the conversation fairly commence till we have been a little reassured by the last report of the Doctor. We shall not see the gentle face of the poet's wife today, she is hopelessly imprisoned in her room; but upon the wall hangs a charming portrait of her in oils, by Watts, and she is known far and wide in the neighborhood for her kindness of heart and graceful charities.

A Pretty Window Ornament.

Get a piece of sponge—the coarse, cheap kind is the best—and, after wetting it thoroughly with warm water, squeeze it gently so as to wring out most of the water, but not all. Have ready some seeds of rice, oats, millet, barley, grass and red clover, and push them into the holes of the damp sponge. Now hang it up in a window where it will get the sun during part of the day, taking care to sprinkle it with a little water every day for a week, so that it may be kept slightly moist. Soon the little spear-like leaves will begin to shoot from every part of the sponge, and as they increase in length, a beautiful green fringe will be seen falling down over this rustic basket and covering it on every side. It will remain green and refreshing to the eye for a long time. If carefully tended and sprinkled the clover will bloom.

SECRETARY TRACY says that the next thing of navy designers to study out is some device for doing away with coal on cruisers. Perhaps the progress of civilization would be at least equally served if the inventors should let the coal alone and devise some plan for doing away with the cruisers.

HE BARKED AT DEATH.

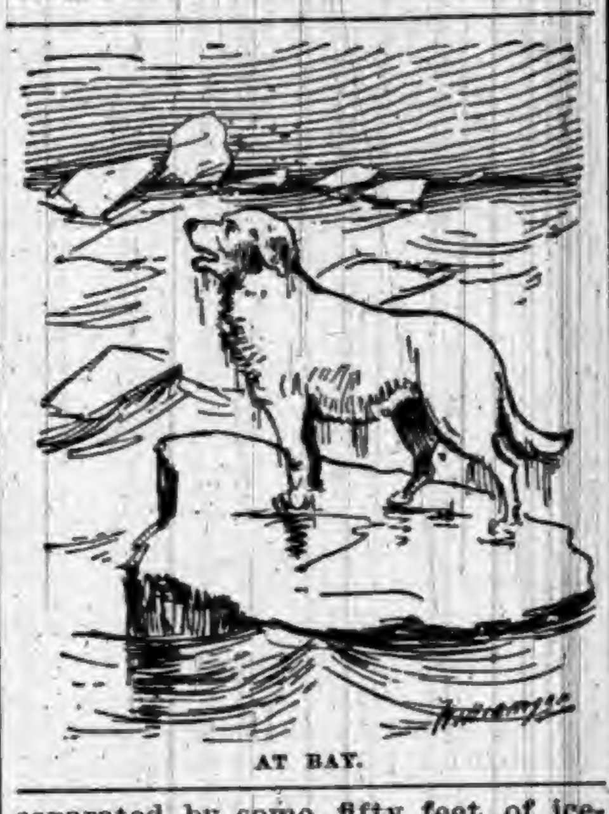
A NEWFOUNDLAND DOG'S STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

The Pathetic Incident the Waiting Passengers at the Oakland Station of the Illinois Central Railroad Witnessed Not Long Ago.

Overwhelmed by Fate.

Fully a hundred people waiting at Thirty-ninth street for an Illinois Central suburban train one morning not long ago witnessed a big, noble-looking Newfoundland dog make a losing fight with fate on a cake of ice out in the lake. The splendid creature had evidently been on the treacherous crystal raft all night, for he was literally coated with ice and frost, while his hind quarters were almost totally useless, evidently being frozen.

Every few moments he would utter a howl or cry so piteously as to resemble the death moans of a human being. Now and then he would look toward the shore from which he was separated by some fifty feet of ice-clogged water and slippery piling, as if pleading with all his might for some one to lend him a helping hand. Then, when no help came, for it would have been madness in anyone to have tried to reach him, he would look about him at the gulf of angry water, drag himself a little way up and down the rocking death raft, and then sink exhausted with his nose upon the ice.



AT BAY.

So deeply did the desperate plight of the noble fellow impress the spectators, that a score of women turned away to hide their tears, while several men forgot their business and made a tour of various small boat-houses in the vicinity to see if some plan for rescuing the dog could not be devised. But all to no avail.

Suddenly, far out in the lake, a mighty wave, crested with huge, jagged blocks of ice, was seen rolling in toward the shore. There was something indescribably awful in the din and roar made by the grinding and crashing of that incoming battle line of ice.

At the sound of the tumult the Newfoundland turned, and facing the oncoming mountain stood for a moment as if struck motionless with fear. Then, as a proud, fearless soldier of fortune, who, when brought to bay by overpowering forces, turns derisive, the great fellow began barking [illegible] a fog trumpet square in the [illegible] his foe.

[illegible] he felt the forerunner of the [illegible] commotion jar his foothold the doomed brute seemed to bark the louder, more derisively.

A great cheer went up from the men and women now gathered at the scene. The dog heard it and turned his face for a moment upon the source, as though saying:

"Hush! Watch how a dog of Newfoundland can die!"

Scarce had he turned upon his foe again and uttered another bark of mockery when that wickedly plunging battle line of ice blocks, streaked with the foam of their long race, bore down and ground the noble brute, as millstones grind a grain of wheat.

A dog had shown men how to die.—Chicago Tribune.

Tom and the Dentist.

Surely this is the golden age for domestic animals. Our horses and cows and dogs are attended in sickness by doctors who have received their diplomas from a university; there are homes for lost dogs, and retreats for stray and friendless cats. Everything is done to make these humble friends of ours happy.

The latest departure is that of cat dentistry, a story of which is told in a recent issue of the New York Times. It runs as follows:

"Mr. Wright's Tom at one time was the possessor of a full set of false teeth. Two years ago the cat was kicked in the head by a drunken rough; the lower jaw was completely broken, and only the two large fangs were left in the upper jaw. A friend of Mr. Wright's, a young student of dentistry, took a cast of the cat's mouth with great difficulty. He manufactured a set of teeth and a rubber plate for the upper part of the cat's mouth, which it fitted perfectly. In time the cat grew accustomed to its new teeth, and wore the plate for more than a year. Last fall, however, in a battle with a neighbor's cat, Tom's set of teeth dropped out just at the critical moment, and, besides the breakage of the plate, he received a tremendous thrashing.

"Since that time the cat has been practically toothless, but he manages to flourish in spite of his loss, being a fine-looking fellow weighing nearly thirteen pounds."

Rubber Horse-shoes.

A recent English invention is a horse-shoe of rubber set in the recess of a metal frame. It is especially adapted to cities where there are many asphaltum, wooden, or other smooth pavements, for it is impossible for the horse to slip.

The Locomotive.

A Westerner has invented a unicycle or locomotive wheel about ten feet in diameter, by means of which he says he can travel eighty-three miles an hour. The rider sits within, not outside, the wheel.

GANTER'S MAGIC CHICKEN CHOLERA CURE!

Thousands of dollars worth of chickens are destroyed by Cholera every year. It is more fatal to them than all other diseases combined. But the discovery of a liquid remedy that positively destroys the Microbes has been made. Half of the young chickens are killed by Microbes before they are fryers. A 50-cent bottle is enough for 100 chickens. It is guaranteed. If, after using two thirds of a bottle, you are not satisfied with it as a cure for Cholera, return it to the druggist from whom you purchased it, and he will refund your money.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Alfred Bartholomew returned from Michigan Wednesday to accept a position with A. V. Sinclair, grocer and provision dealer.

Rev. J. M. DeWeese has been assigned for the coming year to the pastorate of the M. E church at Bourbon, to which place he will remove his family.

Friday evening of last week the Alpha Zeta society was entertained the Amphicyons at the home of Agnes Maxson who is a member of the Alpha Zeta. There were forty present, and they claim to have had a pleasant time, divided between conversation, music, and games. An abundance of dainties had been provided for the guests, which seemed fully appreciated. As the hour for parting arrived cards were served, each containing a number, and in order to find their company two cards must hold the same number. After much search, and fun it was found no two cards did match, when it dawned upon them that Friday was April 1st.

Thursday evening of last week, Ethel Waterman entertained the Christian Endeavor society together with invited guests, numbering in all about thirty. The occasion was in honor of George Kennedy, who goes in a few days to his new home at Mt. Vernon, O. A very interesting musical and literary program was fully carried out. An important feature was the presentation by Mrs. Harriet Dickinson Ettinger to George, of a very finely bound book of Josephus from the members of the society. The presentation was very fine. Refreshments both toothsome and dainty were served. The remaining hours were given up to sociability and games until the "noon of night" came all too soon. Cards were served, half having on them the first two lines from a verse of some poem with author's name, and on the other half, were found the two last lines. By mating the cards the holders found their company when leaving the hospitable mansion.

The Minerva Club gave a reception Saturday aftesnoon, April 2, from 2 to 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Mattie E. Beidler, in honor of Mrs. Chloe Kennedy, who leaves soon for her new home at Mt. Vernon. O. The subject was first spoken of in the class last week giving but a short time for preparations. Mrs. Beidler's rooms were handsomely decorated, portieres and drapery adding to the effect, with plants in many places, and a high bank of flowers in one corner. The windows were darkened, and all the lamps provided with red shades. A family of owls consisting of mother bird, another half grown, and a nest of young birdlings, attracted much attention. About one hundred persons were present during the afternoon. The table in the dining room was lighted by a large Astral lamp in the center with a large and high silver candlestick in which burned a sperm candle at either end. The silver tray and snuffers were conveniently near. The bill of fare was abundant, varied and daintily prepared. One of the lady hostesses dispensed the fragrant coffee at each end of the long table, while others served the guests and noted that nothing was lacking. The reception committee were at their posts to receive the visitors, who after greeting the lady in whose home we were, and Mrs. Kennedy, for whom the reception was given, (both of whom stood on a large white fur rug in the parlor, near the hall), were taken around the rooms (of which there were three, transformed into a bower of beauty,) introduced to others if that were needed, or comfortably seated, until invited out to lunch. It was a disappointment that the guests invited from Auburn did not feel safe to accept on account of the short time intervening between trains. It was believed when the arrangements were made, that a call of three-quarters of an hour could be counted on, leaving fifteen minutes in which to reach the station. Mrs. Moses Willis all were pleased to see. She however did not return the same day.

BUTLER.

John Plow, who continues to fill his place in the Wabash shops, has been laid up by illness the past week. He left for Peru last Monday to undergo treatment in the hospital for a short time.

Owing to the absence of the M. E. minister last Sabbath in attending conference, the church had no public service. The membership was scattered among other churches, some being quite well filled.

Warren Blackwell has bought the Noel farm just south of town, paying about $75 per acre. Mr. Sol. Conner its recent purchaser, will perhaps move back to town, but we hope he will not again identify himself with the saloon business.

Dr. Barnett has removed to North Manchester and Dr. W. F. Shoemaker of Metz has moved into his residence and office. The Doctor is a young man, but has had quite an experience and comes to us well recommended, and bids fair to control a liberal share of patronage.

John Williard an old and highly esteemed citizen who lived with his daughter, Mrs. Solomon Bardner 1½ miles south of town, was buried last week. This leaves but a single surviving member of this interesting family that have had their home among us for more than thirty years.

The Butler electric light company is having considerable trouble with their enterprise. Their engine proves too small for their machines, or their machines are too large for their engine. The indications now are that some mistake has been made either in the size of the machines or in the power of the engine, and that a radical change will have to be effected before we will enjoy much light on the subject.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Burdette on Easter Eggs.

For one thing, I observe that "Easter eggs" are quite a feature of the festival. Now, when I was a boy we had no such nonsense says Robert J. Burdette in the April Lalies' Home Journal. We had "aig" always. "Easteraigs." usually pronounced in one word. We used to color them with calico; fast colors. A week before Easter somebody would go to the store to buy the calico with which to print the "aigs." "Is this fast colors?" And the clerk would lift his hand to heaven and swear that the deluge couldn't fade one ray of the brightest tint in the figure. After securing his affidavit, we would tie the "aig" up in a bit of that print and boil it. The calico would come out of the ordeal pure spotless, whiter than snow and the "aig" would be a thing of beauty in dots and leaves and twigs.

The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex Sold by Robbins & McCord, druggists, Auburn, Ind tf

A Contractor's Advice.

Messrs. Dullam Bros.—Gentlemen:—I take great pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullam's Great German blood, liver and kidney cure. I can safely say that I never took such medicine as that to cleanse the liver, stomach and kidneys. I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion, and loss of appetite and sleep. One bottle did for me more good than six months' other treatment, and I feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try it and get cured. Yours Truly,

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1861.

The stability and strength of state and nation are founded upon unquestioning submission to the expressed will of an accepted majority. Their greatest peril has been and is, the great, inviting field for partisan chicanery in event of a close and disputed election.

Accepting as conclusive the sectional and plurality vote that elected Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, deprecating secession much but dreading civil war more, the people of the North were ready to make even humiliating concessions for the sake of union and peace, and were incredulous that sectional antipathies cultivated by extremists could bring about a disruption of the republic.

The planter's oligarchy interpreted a republican triumph as the knell to slavery extension and political dominance, and every consequent movement was initial to the formation of a Southern Confederacy. Foreboding clouds hung heavy upon the political horizon and cast dark shadows upon the future of the country.

Keenly alive to the gravity of pending events, the citizens of Auburn, in common with those of ten thousands of northern towns and cities eagerly caught up every item of political import while a chaotic confusion of sentiment included opinions ranging from the most radical, to the ultra of conservatism.

But when the tocsin of war was sounded by secession guns in Charleston harbor, DeKalb county stood not idly in the background although few counties in the northern part of Indiana, met more opposition of various character.

Political differences were hushed for the time by the declaration with united voice that the government must be upheld and the Union preserved. All classes were fired by patriotic ardor. War meetings were held at Auburn and the other towns of the county, and strong resolutions expressed the temper of the people.

Patriotism was not confined to party, nor enlistments to republican families but political zeal and the mutations of the war finally fermented differences that divided our people and threatened strife at home.

At the first, young men went to the war in squads of from two to forty to fill the complement of other localities in various regiments; then a full company from DeKalb county, among whom were a number from Auburn and vicinity, was on Sept. 24, '61 mustered into the service of the United States at Camp Allen, Ft. Wayne, as Company H., of the 30th Indiana, and this was followed by two companies, one from Auburn and vicinity, and the other from Newville township, and these were on Nov. 22, mustered in as companies, K and F, of the 44th Indiana.

In the ranks of the former, marched the Auburn contingent of upwards of a dozen men, but of the 300 men who had in these two regiments gone to the war, Newville township was the banner locality, since of 170 voters, forty had volunteered to help put down the rebellion.

There is no place in these sketches, nor is there any need to follow to their many bloody battle-fields those noble men. Their history has already been written in the annals of their country; their names have been worthily inscribed upon the roll of honor; their martial memories will last while the republic endures and it remains in these fragmentary reminiscences to disclose occasional glimpses of past events within the rifts of the clouds of obscurity and oblivion fast settling upon Auburn during the war, and to recall in part contemporary proceedings at home.

The struggle begun for the Union, the actual and anticipated departure of many young men for the front, the deep feeling awakened in the community and in the families thus bereft of their best and bravest, together with strong desire of the public in general to demonstrate their allegiance to the nation, found fit expression through the time-honored medium of a Fourth of July celebration at Auburn.

A called meeting was largely attended and committees were appointed as follows:

On arrangements, W. Griswold, W. Park, S. B. Ward, A. J. Hunt, Thomas Weldon and C. A. O. McClellan.

On finances, Thomas D. Gross, Joseph Stiefel and A. B. Park.

On speaker, Dr. A. Goeriz, R. B. Catlin, G. Wagoner and G. W. Stahl.

Of the thirteen but four are living in Auburn to-day, and these are Rev. Mr. Ward, Mr. Wagoner, Mr. Stahl and Judge McClellan.

The momentous issues pressing into the foreground were already relegating the old-fashioned time-honored anniversary to the rear, but yet once again the day was to be remembered in a well planned program.

At day-break a salute of thirty-four guns was fired under direction of Thomas Weldon, and the stars and stripes, under orders of Wesley Park, were raised at the firing of the seventeenth gun.

Dr. J. N. Chamberlain presided as officer of the day, assisted by twelve vice-presidents; one from each township, representative men, namely, George Easley, George Barney, J. E. Rose, Dr Winslow, D. Buchanan, John Jackman, A. Provines, Henry Fusselman, Elgar Treeman, Washington Teeters, R. Lockhart and W. R Emerson.

The chief marshal was Wyllys Griswold who seems on all public occasions to have been ubiquitous and conspicuous and his assistant marshals were Augustus Leas, John Dills, Dr. Madden, A. D. Van Wickle, G. W. Merrill, Dr. W. M. Mercer, G. R. Hoffman and V. Weaver.

(To be continued next week.)

ISAAC P. GRAY.

[Muncie Daily Herald.]

Governor Gray's candidacy is based on the ground that the nomination is likely to come west. His friends have never based it on other grounds. That there is a growing sentiment among democrats throughout the country in favor of nominating a western man on account of the party situation in New York, none will deny. If that sentiment shall dominate the convention when it assembles, why should not Indiana be given the nomination? It is the only state in the great northwest which has cast its electoral vote for the democratic national ticket since the war. Iowa gave Harrison 31,827 majority, Illinois gave him 22 042 majority, Ohio gave him 19.599 majority. Wisconsin gave him 21,271 majority, Indiana is the logic of the situation, and Isaac P. Gray is the only western candidate mentioned whose nomination would give assurance that the electoral vote of his state would be cast for the ticket.

Several states in the northwest have elected a democratic governor in an off year, but such success has never had any perceptable effect on the presidential vote. Yet notwithstanding these indisputable facts which give Indiana the vantage ground, it is demanded by certain parties that Governor Gray shall stand aside; that the state convention shall not indorse his candidacy and that Indiana shall not present a candidate. Any man of ordinary political intelligence will readily understand what is sought to be accomplished by that demand. It is to deprive Indiana of any possible chance of obtaining the nomination. Illinois will commend Palmer, Iowa will commend Boies, Wisconsin will commend Vilas, and other western candidates will say that Indiana has no candidate; that if Indiana had desired to present a candidate, her state convention would have named him and commended him to the consideration of the national convention and directed her delegation to place his name in nomination.

If Governor Gray's candidacy is not indorsed by the state convention and, his candidacy will not be given consideration in the national convention; and if the nomination comes west, some other western state will get it, but the nominee will have to depend on the fighting democracy of Indiana for his election.

Penny Collections.

County Superintendent Merica reports the following penny collections received from the several towns and townships up to date. This is the collection that is to used in making the educational exhibit for Indiana at the world's fair. In 1876, when the editor of this proper was county superintendent money was raised for the same purpose, but the method of raising it was not as good a one as that under which this "penny collection" is made. In 1876 such schools as choose to do so, had an entertainment of some sort, and either took up a collection or charged admission. The sums so raised were turned over to the superintendent, taking his receipt, and he in turn, paid it over to the state authorities and still holds their receipt for it. Mr. Merica is following a similar course, and his receipts from the state will show that he has accounted for every penny that came into his hands. We hope he may be successful in getting the county's full quota.

The fourth Friday in November, 1891 and the eleventh day of February, Washington's birthday (old style) 1892, are to be set apart, as Exposition days, on which a program of patriotic, historical and social exercises is to be rendered by the school. For the first Exposition day it is suggested the schools take up the study of the life of Columbus, his voyages and his discoveries; also patriotic songs, recitations and facts, by pupils and teacher, relating to the Columbian Exposition.

For the second day let the exercises be of much the same character historically treating of the war of Independence and progress of the nation.

On each of these days a collection is to be taken as follows:

From the pupils, one cent; from the teacher's, ten cents; from the principals of high schools, twenty-five cents; from county superintendents, city superintendents, township trustees, members of school boards of towns and cities and college professors and presidents, fifty cents.

Financially Embarassed.

A large manufacturer, whose affairs were very much embarassed, and who overworked and broken down, with nervous exhaustion, went to a celebrated specialist. He was told that the only thing needed was to be relieved of care and worry, and have a change of thought. This doctor was more considerate of his patient's health than of his financial circumstances. He ought to have advised him to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the best remedy for nervous prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness, headache, ill effects of spirits, tobacco, coffee, opium, etc. Thousands testify to cures. A GOOD CROP OF NEWS

GATHERED FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

NEGROES DROWNED.

Over One Hundred of Them Perish in the Tombigbee River Floods.

Columbus (Miss.) special: Later advices from the low lands just south of here indicate that over 100 negroes have been drowned in this county. It will be weeks before anything like a correct estimate of the loss of cattle can be obtained. The bodies of horses, mules and cows are constantly floating down the Tombigbee. For miles on both sides of the river there remain nothing but poverty and desolation. Dr. J. D. Hutcherson, one of the largest planters in this State, has just returned from one of his plantations in the northern portion of the county and reports great destitution from the overflow of the Butahatchie. He lost seventy-five head of cattle and one of his laborers. Most of the county bridges have been swept away and it will be weeks before ordinary traffic will be regularly resumed.

Bloody Battle Between Officers and Rustlers.

Gillette (Wyoming) special: Nate Champion and fifty men are surrounded by 100 men under Fred Hesse and Charles Ford at the T. A. Ranch. Two hundred shots have been exchanged. The fighting is done with Winchesters, Indian fashion, at long range. Sheriff Angus and posse, who left the other day to maintain order, are cut off from the town. A number of men are known to have been wounded, and some killed. About forty rustlers have passed through town en route to the scene of battle to help Champion and his men.

Caspar (Wyoming) special: A man from Riverside, who arrived here, reports that the 150 deputies of Sheriff Angus attempted to arrest the invading army and killed twenty-eight of them and lost eighteen of their own men.

Fifty Lives Lost.

A dispatch from Tokio says that a conflagration there did enormous damage. The dispatch is vague as to which portion of the city was burned over, but states that 6,000 houses were destroyed. The loss of life was heavy. Up to the present it is known that fifty of the natives lost their lives and a number are still missing. The houses that afford fuel for fires are of light wooden or bamboo construction.

Open to Settlers.

The President has issued a proclamation opening to settlement all those portions of the Arapahoe and Cheyenne reservations not alloted to the Indians in severalty. Noon on the 19th of this month is the time fixed for the proclamation to become effective. These lands are located in Oklahoma Territory and consist of some four million acres.

Families Burned Out.

Fire, which originated in a saloon, swept through the Italian quarter of Chicago, and made fourteen families homeless. The loss is not over $4,000, although five buildings were destroyed. There was a panic among the seventy people who were driven out by the flames, and several were overcome by smoke, but no fatalities occurred.

Fatally Hurt.

A large separator connected with the battery of boilers in Oliver & Roberts' Mill, Pittsburgh, exploded, seriously and perhaps fatally injuring James Rodgers, the engineer. Michael McCullough, Frank Ross, and Dennis Donovan were painfully scalded. The mill was completely wrecked by the explosion.

Fire at Springfield, Ohio.

The Winters Printing and Lithographing Company's Plant at Springfield, Ohio, was destroyed by fire. Forty thousand dollars worth of finished lithographs were burned. The total loss is about $60,000; insurance, $50,000. This company had contracts for furnishing the World's Fair lithographs.

Conger for Harrison.

Col. A. L. Conger, Republican National Committeeman from Ohio, who has been looked upon as a stalwart Blaine man has announced himself in an interview as for Harrison. Col. Conger said he was convinced that McKinley will not allow his name to be used.

Invitations to Six Governors.

Gov. Fifer of Illinois, Gov. Chase, and the Governors of Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, and Kentucky have partially accepted invitations to participate in the dedication of the new college building at Valparaiso, Ind., in May.

Arch Bishop Ireland to Be a Cardinal.

Rome special: Secola affirms the statement that Arch Bishop Ireland is to be appointed Cardinal.

A Marble Bust of R. M. Hoe.

At a recent meeting of the New York Typographical Union, after the election of officers, Peter S. Hoe presented the society with a marble bust of R. M. Hoe, the great press maker.

Gold Mines in Venezuela.

Official dispatches bring information from Ciudad Bolivar, Venezuela, of the discovery of several gold mines of remarkable richness in the Guiana province of Venezuela.

Struck Slugger Sullivan.

Bloomington (Ill.) special: John L. Sullivan and the Duncan B. Harrison Company played here the other night and left for Decatur. At Clinton a big crowd rushed on the train to see Sullivan. One of them, a prominent citizen, pushed against Harrison, who knocked him down twice. The citizens held the train, got out a warrant and sent the Marshal after Harrison. He tried to throw the officer off the train, when the latter pulled a gun. Sullivan then came to Harrison's aid but was kept back by the officer striking him with a cane; and Harrison was taken from the train, the company proceeding without him. There was great excitement and it looked for a while as if the citizens would wreak dire vengeance on Harrison and the champion pugilist. Harrison was acquitted by the Police Magistrate and at once rearrested on a State warrant for resisting an officer.

INCENDIARY FIRE.

A special from Vienna, dated the 10th inst., says: Great excitement was caused this morning by another incendiary fire. A mansion on the Ringstrasse was reported to be in flames, and when the police and firemen hastened to the place, they found every evidence that the fire was the work of Anarchists. The flames had already gained considerable headway, but the firemen succeeded by extraordinary exertion in preventing the spread of what had threatened to be a serious conflagration. In their work they met, as on former occasions, with vexatious interference by the crowd that gathered to the scene, and who, undoubtedly, included a number of Anarchists. The latter tried to create a row, and pushed people in the way of the firemen, trampled on the hose and cut it in several places. There is reason to believe, also, that an effort was made to interfere with the water supply. Had the fire spread, it would have desolated one of the most aristocratic sections of Vienna. The Ringstrasse is one of the most splendid streets in the world. It is lined with the mansions of noble and wealthy citizens, against whom the Anarchists have of late directed their threats. In view of recent incendiary attempts the wealthier people are having their houses specially guarded, while the police force has been strengthened on the Ringstrasse, the Praterstrasse, and the other neighborhoods where the well-to-do reside.

A FIENDISH OFFENSE

Perpetrated Upon a Little Girl at Newark, Ohio.

Newark (Ohio) special: The most fiendish offense known to the annals of crime was perpetrated upon the 7-year-old child of Mr. A. T. Alward, Edna, recently. The little one is a pupil at the North School Building and at that time had received permission to retire to the water closet. She had hardly closed the door when a man forced his entrance and with his fingers most horribly mutilated her. Her screams, promoted by agony, aroused the teachers in the building and the fiend ran to make his escape. He was recognized, however, as one George Stottsberry, a former ball player in the Newark ball team. The police were promptly informed, and in a few minutes the Marshal had the fellow under arrest. He was lodged in the City Prison and great crowds were surging around the place and the prominent hotels talking of the crime. In the evening Stottsberry was transferred to the County Jail for safe keeping when the streets were crowded with people hollowing and clamoring for his immediate lynching.

WILD WYOMING.

A Sensational "Round Up" Anticipated.

Caspar (Wy.) special: The other night a special Union Pacific train came in here from the south loaded with armed men and stock growers' representatives. The rustlers had started a round-up with the intention of rounding up all the cattle north of here and in the Big Horn basin, and it is supposed these men are after them. Upwards of one hundred men left here, and along their line of march they compelled men to travel with them. Bert Lambert and Oscar Linman, sheep men of this place, were held as prisoners for six hours. No one can guess the outcome, but it is thought that blood will flow and there will be a clean-up of one side or the other. The regulators are led by some of the wealthiest men of the State, and the men are armed with improved weapons and ride fine horses. Never was there greater excitement than prevails here, as no one knows what such a powerful force will do or whom they are after.

BOLD, BAD BURGLARS

Terrorize Railway Employes and Rifle Freight Cars.

Corning (N. Y.) special: The Erie freight yard in this city was terrorized by a gang of the boldest burglars the other night with which the police have ever had to deal. They broke into freight cars, and when the employes tried to drive them away they flourished revolvers and put the employes in full retreat. An officer captured one of the burglars at 9 o'clock. An hour later the gang stoned the brakeman on an outgoing train and broke into cars, stealing a quantity of ladies' shoes. The police then captured three more of the gang, but only after some shooting, in which one of the robbers was shot. The others were chased a distance by officers on a locomotive, but they took to the woods and escaped. The gang were equipped with burglars' tools, and were undoubtedly professionals.

A Deplorable Tragedy.

A most deplorable tragedy occurred at Canton, Ohio, by which S. T. Waltenbaugh and John McCurdy lost their lives and Mrs. McCurdy was seriously wounded. The shooting was done by McCurdy. No particulars can be definitely given as there were no witnesses to the affray. Mrs. McCurdy is to weak to talk, all she could say being "John McCurdy shot Waltenbaugh, myself, and then himself." The supposition is McCurdy found Waltenbaugh and Mrs. McCurdy together in the room in which they were, and, in a fit of jealousy, committed the rash act.

Hearts of Oak Contain Natural Gas in Indiana.

Emery M. Smith, while cutting timber on his farm in Harrison Township, Knox County, Ind., made a strange discovery. He was chopping down a large oak, when suddenly his ax sank deeply into the rotten heart of the tree. Instantly a rushing sound like the noise of escaping gas was heard. Mr. Smith also detected an odor like that of gas. He struck a match and held it to the opening in the tree, when, to his consternation, it suddenly ignited, and a bright blaze shot ten feet from the tree and burned steadily for several hours.

Culmination of a Scandal.

S. G. Palmer is now under arrest at Clarion, Iowa, for the murder of Will Mills at Dawson, on the evening of March 16. The grand jury adjourned two weeks ago without making any investigation of the matter, and it is now said that the case was purposely delayed by the County Attorney. The tragedy was the culmination of a long scandal. Mrs. Palmer was found by her husband in the company of Mills in his house. Palmer, in his rage, struck Mills on the head, killing him instantly. Palmer has great political influence, having been defeated last year for Sheriff by only nine votes.

Arrest of Anarchist Agitators.

Berlin special: The large number of arrests of Anarchist agitators in Paris, Berlin and Madrid is probably done as a warning to that class against any contemplated disorder or violations of the law which may occur on May day. In Paris, particularly, the trials of those arrested will be pushed without any delay, not only with a view of keeping those gentlemen out of harm's way during the great labor demonstrations which will probably be made all over the continent on the first of May, but also a wholesome notice to their friends who have not yet been placed behind prison bars.

Wholesale Discharge.

Huntington special: There has been another wholesale discharge of men on the Chicago and Erie road. The other day orders were received to abandon all work trains on the air line and reduce the number of hands to three men and one boss on each section. The work train at Lima, on which about sixty men were at work was returned to this city and the men discharged. Another train working between Akron and Rochester, and a third from near Monterey were called in also. On each of these trains about forty men were employed.

Anarchists' Circular.

The leaders of the Anarchists in Paris have issued a circular warning the terrorist section of the party that its propaganda of dynamite is damaging to the cause and is profitable to the police. The circular appeals to the party not to permit itself to be carried away by beardless youths who are paid by the authorities to put back the hands of the clock of social revolution. The numerous confessions of Ravachol and the mystery which surrounds his present movements are increasing the belief of many people that he is an agent provocateur.

Two Hundred Lives Probably Lost.

London special: The British ship Baroda, from San Francisco, November 22, for Queenstown, has arrived at Crookhaven with the loss of her starboard bulwarks and boats. She was compelled to jettison 100 tons of her cargo on the passage. The steamer from Persia, laden with cotton and with 200 passengers on board, before reported overdue at Baku, a port of Russia on the Caspian Sea, is the Alexander Walkow. Fears are entertained that she has foundered and that all on board have been lost.

Two Girls Asphyxiated.

Catherine Erner, a German 20 years old, and another German girl named Hedwig, 25 years old, two domestics employed by William Hubbel, who has a restaurant and saloon at 192 Third avenue, New York, were found in their room on the top floor asphyxiated by gas. Catherine Erner was dead. The Hedwig girl was unconscious, and was removed in a dying condition to Bellevue Hospital. They had been in this country only a few weeks. Mr. Hubbel says that they were not accustomed to the use of gas.

The Indiana G. A. R. Commander's Staff.

James B. Cheadle, the new Department Commander of the Indiana G. A. R., will be in Indianapolis and will issue a general order shortly announcing the appointments on his staff. The Commander has given out the impression that he will re-appoint the present subordinate officers, Irvin Robbins, Assistant Adjutant General, and O. R. Weaver, Assistant Quartermaster General. The headquarters of the order will remain where they have been for the last two years.

Fired Young for Talking.

The Senate of the United States, in secret session, has declared vacant the office of executive clerk held by Mr. James R. Young of Pennsylvania, after a heated debate. Mr. Young was charged with betraying executive secrets, but no proof of his alleged guilt was brought forward. This suspicion was the outcome of the accurate reports which have appeared in the newspapers of the proceedings of the Senate in secret session on the case of Judge Woods of Indiana, and the Behring Sea treaty.

Impaled on a Cow's Horns.

Mrs. Lizzie Loshen, wife of a well-to-do farmer in Centreville, N. J., went out to give a cow some food. The cow overturned the tub in which the feed was placed. Mrs. Loshen attempted to right the tub, when the cow suddenly raised its head and Mrs. Loshen was impaled on its horns. She screamed for help, and, when rescued, it was found that she had been dangerously wounded in the stomach.

Loss of a German Bark.

New Orleans special: The German bark Charles Luling, from Liverpool, ran ashore April 5, while trying to enter the passes. She rapidly filled and sank. The vessel and part of the cargo of cement will be a total loss.

Fatal International Scrap.

Ishpeming (Mich.) special: A row between Italians and Irishmen at the Franklin Mine Station resulted in several men being seriously stabbed. One man named Kelly was killed and another will probably die. The Italians have not been apprehended.

The Southern Flood.

New Orleans special: All the wires between here and the vicinity of the flood are down and it is impossible to get any information from the overflowed district. The number of deaths is now estimated at fifty.

Nicaragua Canal.

Senator Stanford, in an interview recently favors the building of the Nicaragua canal, and says that the Government should have complete control.

STRAWS FROM THE RECENT SPRING ELECTIONS.

Results in General from Four Great States—Successful Working of the Australian Ballot Law—Local Issues Paramount in Many Places.

Change for the Better.

The first experience of Illinois with the Australian ballot system was eminently satisfactory. It resulted in a complete transformation of the polling places. The old familiar scenes were lacking. Ticket peddlers found their occupation gone, the crowds were absent, and the whole proceedings were most prosaic. Party lines were not strongly drawn, local considerations prevailing.

At Salem, Newton, Mt. Vernon, Benton, Lincoln, Alton and Ramsey, the Democrats were completely successful. At Clay City, Auburn and Quincy the result was about evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans. Springfield Republicans secured five of seven Aldermen, and the Democrats secured their town ticket. The Board of Supervisors is still Democratic. At Moline, Rock Island, Chatham, Illiopolis, Sumner and Vandalia the Republicans made clean sweeps, while at Whitehall and Carlyle the tickets were non-partisan.

At no places were very heavy votes polled, and from nearly all places came reports of defective ballots. There is need of further study, by voters, of the provisions of the law.

At Chicago there appeared to be pretty close partisan strife; but the appearances were deceptive, for the election was a struggle by the best element to rid the Council of the gang of boodlers that have been plundering the public right and left. The attempt was successful, to a degree, at least; for those who had learned the ropes and could steal with facility were retired, and their places filled by men who must learn the art before any crooked operations can work very great mischief.

In Wisconsin.

Milwaukee Democrats elected P. J. Somers Mayor, and the Council is a tie. The Labor ticket received a very light vote.

At Sheboygan Falls the Citizens' candidates for Mayor and Treasurer were successful, and the Democrats captured all the rest.

Eau Claire has a new Democratic set of officers, except Clerk and four Aldermen.

Medford has a new lot about evenly divided.

At Ashland William R. Durfee, Republican, was elected Mayor, and A. A. McDonnell, Democrat, City Treasurer. The Republicans secured four out of the six Councilmen.

A large vote was polled at Appleton. The Democratic ticket was elected as follows: Rush Winslow, Mayor; Charles Hillfert, City Treasurer; Henry Ryan, City Attorney; George Schuldes, Assessor.

At West Superior, J. W. Scott, Republican, was elected Mayor over William Noonan, Democrat. The entire Republican ticket is elected.

At Hudson the city election resulted in the election of the People's ticket. The Aldermen stand two Democrats and one Republican. The license people carried the city by over 100 majority, and the vote for electric lighting was practically unanimous.

John M. Kohler, Republican, was elected Mayor of Sheboygan. All Republican aldermen were elected. Governor Peck's majority there in 1890 was 1,100.

At Black River Falls no special effort has been made by the license people. The Republicans have carried everything except Treasurer and one Alderman. Chippewa Falls Republicans elect their city ticket by about 250 majority. The Council will stand eleven Democrats to nine Republicans, a Republican gain of three. At Marinette the straight Democratic ticket was elected.

With the Wolverines.

At Iron Mountain, in the new County of Dickinson, local issues stirred up much strife, bitter feeling, and a big vote. Party lines were not drawn. The Citizens' ticket defeated the City's and People's nominees.

At Port Huron the Republicans elected six out of ten aldermen, and five out of eight supervisors. John M. Gleason, Democrat, is elected Assistant Police Justice, having had no opposition.

Lansing cast the largest vote in her history, and chose A. O. Bement, Republican, Mayor. The Common Council is a tie, and the township offices evenly divided.

Alpena's election resulted in a complete victory for the Democratic ticket. The Common Council will be Democratic.

Bay City Democrats secure their Mayor, and the Council is a tie. In West Bay City the Republicans took everything.

Saginaw has a new set of Republican officials throughout.

Cheboygan also returned the entire Republican ticket.

At St. Ignace, also, the Democrats were completely successful.

Benzonnia Republicans cast 79 votes of a total of 117.

Pentwater Democrats get everything but clerk.

In Crawford County, Grayling elects a Republican supervisor by 5 majority.

Blaine elects the entire Democratic ticket for the first time.

Grove elects a Republican supervisor by a majority of 2.

Every township in Schoolcraft County went Republican except Seney.

Menominee Democrats scored a victory, electing all but one supervisor, two aldermen, and two constables. The Council will stand eight Democrats, two Republicans.

In the Hawkeye State.

At Des Moines the majority for C. C. Lane, Republican Mayor, is 794; for Brennan, City Collector, 1,107; for Eggleston, police judge, 1,477. The Democrats elected city engineer and market master. The Republicans elected their alderman at large and their candidates for aldermen in every ward, thus securing a majority of eight in the City Council. The Republican park commissioners have majorities ranging from 587 to 941.

At Davenport the election resulted in a Democratic victory at all points with the exception that the Republicans elected one Alderman out of six and his election is rather doubtful and may be contested. John C. Bills, a well-known lawyer, headed the democratic ticket as candidate for Mayor and the entire ticket went through.

Keokuk Democrats carried the city by nearly 400 majority. An Assessor and Aldermen were elected. The new council will be a tie, but a Democratic Mayor will cast the deciding vote.

Democrats made a clean sweep in Dubuque, electing every man on their ticket except the candidate for assessor. The election was for Mayor, assessor, auditor, and five aldermen.

Wets Win in Nebraska.

Elections for city officers were held throughout Nebraska. As a rule party lines were not drawn, the chief issue being whether prohibition or license should prevail. The wets carried nearly everything.

THOMAS GRANT had his toes crushed off at the malleable iron works in Marion. A melting pot fell on 'em.

SAMUEL GRABLE aged 91, an Indiana pioneer, died at Logansport. He cast his first vote for James Monroe.

MISS MARY MARSH of Washington Township, Grant County, has sued Henry Wysong, of that Township, for $10,000 damages for slander.

WILLIAM KNIGHT'S horses, hitched to a harrow, ran away near Marion. They were not injured, but it might have been a harrowing accident.

A GANG of thieves has taken Bedford. Several residences have been robbed. A gold watch and $248 was taken from Mrs. George Thornton's residence.

FARMERS near Seymour are getting ready to raise nutmeg melons in great quantities for foreign markets. The boys are also getting ready to steal 'em.

IN Goshen William Hass has sued William Twomey for $5,000 damages. He says he was injured that much by a scaffold falling while helping Twomey place a sign.

JOSEPH MIX of Anderson, although 78 years old, and a widower but six weeks, married Jane Leach, aged 50, because he had been warned in a dream to marry her at once.

IT is reported from Harrison Township, Knox County, that Emery Smith, a farmer, cut down a tree and found natural gas spouting from the stump. This story is not new.

LAWRENCE E. NAGEL, Fort Wayne, hit a railroad torpedo with an ax. He didn't know it was loaded. He went up in the air twenty feet, lost two fingers, and is now in the hands of a doctor.

A PETITION is being circulated in Jeffersonville for the pardon of Joseph Stulz. He was sent to the Pen. four years ago for perjury. He swore that Miss Carrie Ashley, whom he married, was of age, while she was only 15.

THE large peach-growers of Marble Hill, Jefferson County, say that the cold snap did not hurt the peaches in the peach belt. In Jackson and other southern counties the mercury fell to 28 degrees, and heavy ice formed. Early vegetables and tender varieties of fruits were killed. Apples are probably safe.

THE Marion City Council has decided to substitute a police board and police force for the Marshal and deputy marshals now employed. Marshal Morehead, who was elected as a Democrat, is to be retained, though the Council is solidly Republican, as an act of good faith toward the people who elected him. Fixed salaries will be adopted and no fees allowed.

THE merchants of Seymour have organized a branch of the Merchant's Mercantile Agency of Chicago, and elected the following officers: President, John J. Cobb; Vice President, L. D. Carpenter; Executive Board, F. S. Collins, W. E. Hoadley, Mike Fox, J. R. Williams, Simon Strauss, C. L. Thomas and Philip Fettig. The object is mutual protection by reporting persons that will not pay their bills.

THE Wabash Railroad Company, in its work on the Chicago extension, has struck a bad snag at Westville, Laporte County. The company has unloaded 3,000 car-loads of dirt there in a fruitless effort to fill up a sink-hole. It is the same hole in which the Canadian Southern builders sunk $75,000. There is apparently no bottom to it. The dirt that is put in during the day disappears at night. The hole puzzled the Canada Southern builders, and they quit it after putting 50,000 yards of dirt, besides all the rubbish and brush they could find. The distance across it is about forty rods.

THE Salem City Council has passed an ordinance prohibiting boys and girls from being on the streets, except when attended by parents or guardians, after the town clock strikes eight each evening. The fine ranges from one dollar to five dollars for each offense.

IN the case of Myrtle Whitman against Francis Whiteman for betrayal at Rensselaer, the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $5,000, after being out forty minutes. The defendant is married and a prominent farmer of Newton County, and the plaintiff is his cousin, who lived with his family in 1888, when 14 years of age.

HIRAM RUSKIN, Harry, and Thomas Rice, three boys near Waveland, were caught in the water by a dam breaking, and carried five miles down the stream. All were good swimmers and escaped drowning by catching hold of trees.

AT the home of Sarah Peters, in Brown County, her niece, Jane Wilson, was visiting, when the two, who had once been enemies, began handling a revolver. While in the hands of Sarah Peters the weapon was discharged. The ball hit the Wilson woman in the face, and passed downward, lodging near the jugular vein. She is in a precarious condition and may die. The Peters woman claimed that the shooting was accidental.

THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

WORK OF OUR NATIONAL LAWMAKERS.

Proceedings of the Senate and House of Representatives — Important Measures Discussed and Acted Upon—Gist of the Business.

The National Solons.

The time of the Senate was consumed on the 5th by consideration of the bill proposing to assign to army officers the duties of Indian agents. It was revealed that one of the causes of Indian turbulence is that different lots of bacon, 186,000 pounds in all, have been unfit for food when distributed. The House Chinese bill was referred to the proper committee. In the House, the time was passed over the free wool bill, and nothing was accomplished.

In the House, the 6th, the time alloted Mr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, to speak upon the tariff, was three times extended. Mr. Breckinridge was accorded an ovation when he closed, and for fully five minutes the House suspended business while members from both sides of the chamber crowded about him to congratulate him on the eloquence and force of his speech. Before the Senate, the Russian Minister, Struve, said that the Russian Government would ever hold the people of the United States and this Government in grateful remembrance for the magnificent manner in which they had come to the front in this distressful moment for the peasants who were suffering from a loss of crops; that the Russian Government had already contributed $110,000,000 for the alleviation of her peasants, and that the charity directed by our people toward them was being cared for personally by the Czar and Czarina. He said the suffering had not been half described to this country, and that our contributions were never more advantageously made.

In the House, the 7th, after the transaction of routine business, the free wool bill was called up, and after a short debate the bill passed. Ayes, 192; noes, 60. The House then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Blount, of Georgia, in the chair) on the Turner cotton bagging bill. After a short debate the committee rose and the House adjourned. In the Senate, a resolution was offered by Mr. Teller and agreed to, calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for a statement as to the amount of silver offered to the Government each month, since the passage of the act of July 14, 1890, by whom and at what prices, the amount of silver bullion purchased each month of that time, from whom, and at what prices, and number of days given the sellers in which to deliver the silver. During the discussion of the District appropriation bill, the bill to place wool on the free list and to reduce the duty on woolen goods was received from the House, and after the District bill was laid aside the wool bill was laid before the Senate by the Vice President and was referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. McCreary in the House, the 8th, introduced for Mr. Springer a bill to authorize the holding of an international monetary congress in Chicago, Aug. 3, 1893. Twenty-one delegates are to represent the United States, seven to be chosen by the President; seven by the President of the Senate, and seven by the Speaker of the House. The President's appointees are to be citizens not holding office; the others are to be Senators and Representatives. The appointments are to be divided as equally as possible between the political parties. The Secretary of State and the Director of the Mint are to be additional delegates. The President is authorized to invite foreign governments to send representatives, each government to determine the number of its representatives, but to be entitled to only one vote. The Secretary of State is to call the Congress to order, and is to preside until a permanent officer is elected. In the Senate, an appropriation out of the Treasury of the United States of $100,000 for the subsistence and quarters of the visiting old soldiers attending the National Encampment was agreed to—yeas, 41; nays, 10.

Walt Whitman.

SINCE the publication of his chief work, "Leaves of Grass," in 1855, he has been regarded as one of the brightest stars in our poetical firmament.—Minneapolis Times.

HE was an American of Americans. He was the friend of Lincoln, and, like Lincoln, he came close to the plain people from whom he and Lincoln sprung.—New York Recorder.

THE dilettante prettiness of most modern poems was not to his taste. He struck his lyre with his fist at times, instead of his finger tips, but the music was resonant and will reach posterity.—New York Herald.

WALT WHITMAN'S was a homely yet lovable character. Within his heart there dwelt a sturdy nobility that was ever asserting itself in his peculiar rhymes. His poetry was a flexible index to his soul.—Grand Rapids Herald.

UTTERING his message, convinced of his vocation, aware and awake to his power, he has never faltered. In obscurity and neglect, in poverty and persecution, he has continued true to his own ideals, and held steadily to his own conception of his duty as the chosen priest and poet of democracy.—Philadelphia Press.

OUTSPOKENNESS and love for his fellow-beings were the twin propellers of his published thoughts. He was in all essentials a man, and the world is the poorer for the loss of such. But his days of greatest usefulness were passed, his works will long outlive him, and he has obtained the rest he longed for.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

IN his writings he was hampered by no poetic forms of rhythm or meter, but embodied his spontaneous thoughts in the language they suggested to him. Many fine sentiments were embodied even in his "Leaves of Grass," though it transgressed the sterner proprieties and approached a forbidden realism.—Detroit Free Press.

NO POET ever wrote more individuality into verse. It was native Yankeeism of a decidedly Whitmanesque species that sprang from his pen. But the inspiration, aside from the revolutionary individuality of the form, touched universal intuitions which found echo in many tongues and climes.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Brother Jasper.

"DE sun do move" with Brudder Jasper now, sure enough, for he has just been married at the age of 80 to a bride verging on 60.—New York Press.

REV. JOHN JASPER, who declared that "the sun do move," has just been married at the age of 80. In Rev. Mr. Jasper's individual case the sun of love never sets.—New York Advertiser.

REV. JOHN JASPER, 80 years old, of Richmond, Va., he of "the sun do move" theory, was married recently to the Widow Cary, aged 59 years. It is a condition, not a theory, that now confronts the old man.—Philadelphia Record.

EIGHTY years old, Rev. John Jasper, famous for his theory that "the sun do move," has taken his fourth wife. The old man wanted someone to "keer" for him in his old age, and Richmond colored society is talking of the bride of sixty summers.—Buffalo Times.

THE marriage of Rev. John Jasper, the noted astronomical colored preacher of Richmond, Va., has caused an estrangement between himself and his daughter's husband, who had been living with him, and the son-in-law do move. "Dr." Jasper insisted on that.—Philadelphia Ledger.

HAVING satisfied himself that "de sun do move," Brother Jasper, of Richmond, has taken unto himself a wife—a fourth wife, to speak more accurately. The fact that the lady is the fourth to share Brother Jasper's lot would seem to prove that the wives do move, whether the sun is stationary or not.—Philadelphia Call.

BY LULU JAMISON.

"Look, grandpa, at my lovely flower," said Mary, showing him a really beautiful wild flower.

"It is very fine, my dear. Where did you get it?"

"About three miles from here."

"Have you been three miles this morning? I thought——"

Mary bit her lip at her mistake.

"I did not say I had gotten it this morning, grandpa," was her rather lame explanation.

"No; I thought you had not had your ride. Toby told me last night that he had forgotten your saddle. The poor old fellow was really distressed about it."

"He need not have felt so bad," rejoined Mary, looking up to find Jack's eyes upon her. Something in their glace was a revelation to her. The hot blood mounted to her brow, and an overmastering sense of shame swept over her. In the first bitter rush of this feeling, she left the table precipitately.

"Grandpa, I'm not hungry, and not well. Please excuse me."

These declarations, delivered in decidedly jerky tones, caused Mr. Millard to glance up in some surprise.

"Not well?" he repeated, fixing his eyes upon her face; "my dearest, you make me anxious."

"So like you, grandpa, to be anxious for nothing. Upon reflection, I feel wonderfully well, and have a very great appetite." With which assertion the contradictory Mary returned to her place and reveled in the highest spirits during the rest of the meal. Only occasionally, when by some chance she encountered Jack's glances, she colored warmly, and dropped her eyes in painful embarrassment. Her grandfather watched her gravely.

"I fear Mary is somewhat feverish," he observed, with much anxiety, to Jeannette, after breakfast; "the child is always so well that her slightest indisposition alarms me."

"Indisposition," repeated the practical Jeannette, "I call it temper, sir. Don't you worry about Miss Mary; I haven't known her all these years for nothing."

The gentleman appeared unconvinced, but he said no more upon the subject.

Meanwhile, the object of this mingled blame and solicitude was crouched in the depths of her grandfather's chair. Hearing Jack's step she snatched up the book closest at hand, and, without seeing a word before her, pretended to read.

"Is it interesting?" he asked, crossing the room with the air of one not quite certain of his reception.

Mary made no answer, and Jack approaching more closely, read the title over her shoulders. "So you read Homer in the original?" he said, very quietly.

Closing her book with a snap, she turned upon him; "I want to ask you a question," she said in a voice of suppressed anger. "Not Greek, but plain English, and I wish a plain answer. What did you mean by the look you gave me at breakfast? No evasion please. You know I took a ride this morning?" An inclination of his head gave an almost imperceptible assent to her question. She understood it, however.

"You know," she repeated, biting her lips fiercely. "How did you know? Did you—see me?" She brought out her words with difficulty, and again Jack assented.

"Where?" came more sharply than before. "Starting or—on the way?"

"On the way, since you will know the truth."

Her eyes fell, and once more the hot color burned in her cheeks.

"Thank you, Mr. Beverly," she cried, starting up with a passionate gesture, "I have another remark to make. It is plain English, too. I hate you!"

"Don't go," he pleaded, as she tried to pass him. "You forced me to tell you. You really did. I'm awfully sorry. I——"

"Sorry for what?"

"Why, for being there, and—and seeing you," he returned, taken at a slight disadvantage.

"Sorry for being there and seeing me," she repeated in a voice suspiciously near tears, and with her face persistently lowered. "What a kindly way to put it. To spare my feelings, I suppose. Don't try. I have none to spare. I like unladylike actions. I take to them quite naturally. I'm not ready to have lessons in deportment from you yet, and I wish to gracious you would go where I can't be meeting you at every turn."

"I will, by all means," he responded as she concluded her half-choked utterances. "I don't believe you mean a word of what you have said, though, not a word. I know——"

At this point Jack found himself addressing empty air. Mary had departed and for the rest of the morning remained invisible.

At dinner time she insisted on remaining in her room, claiming a headache as an excuse, but when her grandfather, considerably worried, came to inquire for himself, she told him she had never felt better, insisting, notwithstanding, on having dinner in her room.

Jeannette thought this a most reprehensible exhibition of self-will, and expressed her views quite strongly to the delinquent.

"And your grandpa worried nearly out of his wits," she concluded, "and wanting to send for a doctor."

"Why will grandpa be so foolish," said Mary in a slightly vexed tone. "I hope you won't let him do it, Jeannette."

"Of course I won't. You need a shaking-up much more than you do a doctor, my dear. And I'm thinking you'd better come to supper."

At supper Mary duly appeared, arrayed in a dress Jack had taken pains to say he disliked. Neither she nor Jack was especially talkative, and her grandfather, who was quite unobservant, was forced to keep up the somewhat flagging conversation.

As the evening was cool they went immediately to the parlor, where Mary, in an unusual fit of industry, got out some crocheting and began working on it, as though her very life depended upon what she accomplished.

"My dear," said Mr. Millard, breaking the rather heavy silence, "Jack is thinking of leaving us. You must help me to persuade him to prolong his visit."

"Don't you think we should consider Mr. Beverly, grandpa? Think how long he has been bored by us already and spare him further infliction."

Jack bit his lips, and turning from the window, where his fingers had been playing an idle tattoo, he addressed himself to Mr. Millard:

"I have already imposed too long on your kind hospitality. My visit has been so thoroughly enjoyable that I cut it short with regret, and if any one has been bored, Miss Mary has been the sufferer, I fear."

His glance sought the brown eyes, bending over the worsted, but Mary's work was evidently all-absorbing.

"We will not discuss your departure any further to-night," responded Mr. Millard, slightly pained at his granddaughter's manner. "To-morrow, I hope, will find you willing to give us at least a few days more of your company. I believe neither Mary nor myself is quite willing to let you go yet. Mary, why will you spoil your eyes over that work? Put it aside, my dear, and give us some music. Jack has never heard you sing."

"And he never will, grandpa. You know perfectly well that I don't pretend to sing, and that I never, under any circumstances, sing for any one but you."

"Nonsense, my dear; you have an excellent natural voice. Jack will agree with me, I am sure, if you will give him an opportunity to judge. I fear he may think you have no accomplishments."

"He knows better," she answered, with slightly darkening eyes. "He knows I can swim, and row, and ride"—she half paused after naming this last accomplishment, and, giving Jack a decidedly defiant glance, added, calmly—"two ways."

The next second she caught her grandfather's eyes fixed upon her in perplexed surprise, and with a remorseful air and a painful blush, she said, rather penitently:

"When you look at me in that way I feel like a savage. I am a savage, anyway, and plenty of others would be, too, if they dared. I hate people who won't do things simply because the world condemns them. They are nothing but hypocrites. They'd break a commandment of God sooner than commit a breach of etiquette. They are bound by such a wall of trusts and mistrust, that they lose every grain of individuality, and become such insufferable prigs that I should find it tiresome to look at them."

Mary concluded this somewhat forcible expression of her views with flashing eyes and a gesture of the hand that gave her words an impassioned emphasis. Then settling back in her chair she once more bent over her work. Jack did not attempt to conceal the admiration her attitude aroused in him, but her grandfather watched her more gravely.

"Don't mind this, Jack," he said at last; "I understand my little girl thoroughly."

"So do I," responded Jack much to Mary's chagrin.

When Mr. Willard left them a half hour later Jack brought his chair and placed it close by Mary's.

"Let me have that," he said, taking the work from her hand and putting it on the mantel. "Now please tell we whether I am to stay."

"Stay, of course," returned Mary, feeling that he had taken some of her spirit with her work. "I have some idea of politeness."

"The last part of your sentence rather spoils the first. Do you find politeness so hard to practice? You have almost turned your back upon me. That is really not good manners. Is it?"

"I'm not capable of judging. I know nothing of good manners. I pride myself an having particularly bad ones. You need not concern yourself in either event."

He elevated his brows very slightly.

"Needn't I?" he asked. "May I tell you just why and how far I should like to concern myself in your regard?"

He asked this last question pointedly, and with a new earnestness upon his face. Her eyes drooped. Something in his glance warned her, and rather precipitately she left her chair and walked to the window. Yet even in the dim light he saw the vivid color that dyed her face, and made a mental note of the fact.

In the moment that followed he had time to think. He was not a man given to impulse. Never before had he been conscious of a feeling stronger than simple admiration for any woman. But for this unconventional, self-willed little country girl he felt something deeper. Just what he scarcely paused to analyze. He was content to wait until time should make him surer.

These reflections passed through his mind with the rapidity of light, and the next minute he had joined Mary at the window.

"Let us have a light," he said briskly. "This twilight is melancholy. Do you think I can manage those lamps without blowing up the house?"

"I think you had better not try," answered Mary turning from her contemplation of the landscape outside. "I will light them, if you will close the blinds."

When Mary ran in to kiss her grandfather good-night, she placed her arms about his neck with unusual affection, whispering as she did so:

"I pained you to-night, grandpa; I know I did. I am sorry for it. So very sorry. I don't know why I should have been in such an ill-humor, but I was, and I do find it so hard to feel one way and act another. I intend to do better after this. Indeed I do. Now, kiss me and say you forgive me."

CHAPTER VII.

Meanwhile Jack was wondering what had become of his friends.

"Haven't heard a word from one of them," he told himself, when nearly three weeks had passed, and even voluble Frank had not sent a line. "I suppose I am entirely forgotten. It is rather trying to one's vanity to drop out of his friends' remembrance so soon. I never thought I could be content away from civilization, as it were. If I stay here much longer I'll begin to like these mid-day dinners and going to bed with the chickens and rising with the same."

Perhaps Jack would have been less surprised regarding his dilatory correspondents had he been able to read the letters Mr. Jack Beverly No. 2 had been receiving, and which puzzled that young man sorely.

On the day Jack had especially anathematized his friends, two letters, addressed to Mr. Jack Beverly, reached the Weston postoffice, and were handed to the young gentleman of that name.

The first was short and to the point:

"DEAR JACK: What in the deuce is the matter with you? Why don't you let us know whether you are dead or alive? Frank's written and I've written, and not a word in answer.

"Miss Harly has taken Newport by storm, but she pines for you, I am told on competent authority. For her sake, if not for ours, let us know if you have succumbed to the stagnating influence of that wretched place. Yours as usual,

"WILLIS."

The second epistle was equally short.

"Mr. Jack Beverly: Dear Sir," it ran, "inclosed please find the little account, which pressure of circumstances forces me to present. I am obliged to meet a heavy note in a few days, otherwise my claim would not be urged. Hoping you appreciate my position, and find it convenient to relieve me, I remain, dear sir, yours very truly, Thomas Bailly."

"The devil," muttered the young man regarding in some perplexity the letters he had just read. "This rather caps the climax. First Willis, whom I never heard of, berating me for not writing to other people I never heard of, and then Thomas Bailly firing his little account on me. By the way, where is the little account? Ah, this, I suppose."

This was a piece of white paper folded lengthwise, which, when opened, proved to be a bill for sixty dollars, for articles bought by Jack Beverly of Thomas Bailly, tailor.

"Well, Mr. Bailly, you have quite an imposing establishment," mused Beverly, looking at the pictured house at the head of the bill. "And you write quite a fine hand. But I'm inclined to think you've selected the wrong individual to spring your little joke on. Let me see. One evening suit. Haven't had a new evening suit in an age. Must really get one this winter. One pair of gray trousers. Never wore gray trousers in my life. I utterly abominate them. A mistake, certainly. The man must be crazy. He's got my name down fine, though. Where is the addres. Ah! 'Thomas Bailly, No. —, Broadway, N. Y.'"

"All right, Mr. Thomas Bailly. You'll hear from me, but not quite as you expect."

Without further reflection Beverly drew a small table toward him and in a moment had written the following:

"Mr. Thomas Bailly: Dear Sir—Your note and little account duly to hand. Both surprised me, the little account more especially. I feel obliged to confess that I have not the pleasure of your acquaintance, never had an article of dress out of your establishment, and never, under any provocation, wear gray trousers.

"I herewith return you the aforementioned account; for, while quite sympathizing with you in your present embarrassed condition, I have not yet reached that degree of prosperity which admits of my paying for other people's clothes. Yours, etc.,

"JACK BEVERLY."

"Short, sweet, and, I hope, convincing," commented Beverly as he read this effusion. "People talk of the difficulty of writing letters. I never found any. The next thing in order is to mail this, and to do so I must run the gauntlet of those young brats in the hall. I wonder what possesses people to have so many children. The law really should fix a limit. I am half inclined to draw up a bill for Congress to consider."

Two days later another communication from Mr. Thomas Bailly arrived.

"Confound the man," muttered Beverly, recognizing the writing. "What under heaven has he to say for himself now?"

"DEAR SIR—I am at a loss to understand your action in returning the bill I sent you. It is impossible that you have forgotten the articles ordered from my house in April last. I once more assure you of my regreat in being obliged to press my claim. But if you still refuse to recognize it, I must take steps to recover. I await your answer. Yours truly, THOMAS BAILLY."

"There is but one way to look at this thing," mused Beverly, tapping his boot thoughtfully. "This fellow is either a lunatic or a scoundrel, more probably the latter. Perhaps he will find this convincing."

This was merely three lines:

"MR. THOMAS BAILLY—You are either a d— fool or a d— scoundrel. In either case, you and your little account may go to the devil. JACK BEVERLY."

"I hope that is the end of it."

One hot day in June, 1860, a herdsman was driving a lot of cattle to a new ranch near Helena, Texas. It was hot, and he drove part way at night. In passing another herd the cattle became mixed. The next day about noon a dozen or so Texas rangers overtook the herdsman and demanded their cattle, which they said were stolen. They were a rough lot of men, with long hair, slouch hats, and covered all over with belts, pistols, bowie-knives. The herdsman was alarmed. It was before the day of law and court-houses in that region, and he knew that he had better shoot five men than kill a mule worth $5. He felt the responsibility, and offered to explain, but they told him to cut his story short. He offered to turn over the cattle not his own, but they laughed at that, and said they generally took the whole herd and hung the thief, to serve as a warning to others in like cases.

They consulted apart a few moments, and said:

"We've made up our minds to give you ten minutes to explain yourself; so you can begin."

The poor fellow was completely overcome. He looked at the men, turned pale, and commenced:

"How many of you men have wives?"

Four or five nodded.

"How many have children?"

They nodded again.

"Then you will know what I mean, and I'll talk to you. I never stole any cattle. I came here three years ago. I am from New Hampshire; I failed there in the panic of '57. I have been saving; I have paid part of my debts; here are the receipts (and he unfolded a lot of them). My friends live East, for I go from place to place and have no home here. I have lived on hard fare. I have slept out on the ground. I am a hard-looking customer, but this is a hard country; these clothes are rough, but I am honest. Days seem like months to me, and months like years. I expect to sell out and go home in November for Thanksgiving. You know, married men, if it was not for those letters from home (here he pulled out his wife's letters), I should give up; but I must get out of debt and live some way, men. I can't say no more, but if you must kill me for what I'm innocent of, send these home. Here are the receipts, my wife's letters; here's my Testament that my mother gave me; here's my little girl's picture—God bless her! (and he kissed it tenderly). Now, men, send these home—and can't you send half what the cattle come to? My family will need it much more when I am gone."

"Hold up now! Stop right thar!" said a rough ranger. "Not another word! I say, fellers, such men don't steal! You can go free. Give us your hand, old boy! That picture an' them letters did the business. But you're lucky, mind ye."

"I'll do better un that," said a rough ranger with a bowie-knife in his hand. "I say, boys, let's buy his cattle and let him go home now."

They did, and when the money was counted the herdsman was too weak to stand. The sudden change unnerved him completely. An hour later he left on horseback for a near stage-route, and when he left the rangers shook hands with him, cheered, and looked happy.—Our Dumb Animals

A COLUMN OF PARTICULAR INTEREST TO THEM.

What Children Have Done, What They Are Doing, and What They Should Do to Pass Their Childhood Days.

Nannie Was a Pilgrim.

Nannie and Rose are sisters, and with their parents they attend a Congregationalist Church called the Pilgrim Church. Once, when they were visiting some friends in a distant city, a lady asked the children what religious denomination they belonged.

"We are Congregationalists," answered Rose.

"Why, Rose Tyler, we are not!" cried Nannie, in astonishment.

"I am," replied Rose, smiling.

"Well, I am not," said Nannie. "I am a Pilgrim!"—Youth's Companion.

A Boy's Composition.

The cat lives in the house what time she does not live over to Jones' barn. She is real handy to throw stones at and to pull her tail and make her squawk. I make our cat squawk ten or six times every day, and the backs of my hands is drawed out in lines like a map, where her toe-nails has got hitched.

If I had invented a cat I should have made her without them nails. Cats is full of music. They have concerts every night in our woodshed, and no ticket to pay for. The rich and the poor alike are welcome to hear 'em.

Cats live on mice and what cream and beefsteak they can steal out of the pantry. Sometimes they catch chickens, and that makes the old hen mad, and the old woman that owns the chickens madder. And she goes for the cat with a broom, and the cat climbs a tree and sits there and lafs at her, and goes to sleep and dreams she is in a kitchen again, till it comes night, and then she climbs down back end fust and goes off to a concert to see the other cats. Thomas cats has the best voices and can sing bass and tenor both at once. It is nice to hear 'em, but when you sleep alone and wake up suddenly by hearing of 'em there is something or ruther about it that makes a feller's flesh creep and the cold shivers run down his backbone.

Cats can climb on telegraph-poles and sit on the ridge-poles of four-story houses without being dizzy-headed, and they can sleep with one eye open and lay awake with both eyes shut, and they can walk as soft as a feather and they can run like chain lightning. They don't like to swim, and they never do except it's an old cat that you want to get rid of, and you do her up in a bag with some bricks and throw her into the mill-pond off the bridge, and then she'll burst the bag and swim ashore and kite for home, so's to be there to welcome you when you git there, so's you won't feel lonesome.

Cats like to get on the spare bed, among the shams and things, and paw 'em all down into a nest, and they like to go to sleep in your best coat. I expect they enjoy the fun of hearing you swear the next day when you brush it. I should if I was a cat.

Kittens is cats when they are first born, and there is an awful sight of 'em. They keep coming right along without regard to wind or weather.

They are dreadful cats and can unwind more thread and tear up more fancy gimcracks that the girls make than any other known animal.

It an't lucky to kill a cat. I don't know why. It is good luck to have one come to you if you keep her. You get rich right away, or poor, I forget which. Every cat has nine lives, and they don't never die if let alone unless they have fits, which most of 'em have. A cat in a fit will beat a whole circus all to nothing, and the first thing you know she'll come right out of it and go to eating milk just as if nothing had happened.—New York Weekly.

Ten Little Pigs.

Ida and Jennie were two little girls who lived near the city. The electric cars passed by their home, and they often rode in them.

The little girls' papa was a farmer, and Ida and Jennie used to think it lots of fun to go to the big barn and feed the horses, cows and pigs. In the back part of the barn there was a pen of ten little pigs about three months old.

One day, when their papa had gone to Boston, Ida and Jennie ran out to the barn and opened the door of the piggies' pen.

Oh! what a squealing and jumping about those little pigs had.

The girls thought it was great fun. But when they tried to get the pigs back into their pen, the piggies would not go. Then Ida and Jennie began to cry. They knew that their papa would be angry, for he told them never to open the door of the pig-pen.

All at once the pigs ran out of the barn into the road as fast as their legs could carry them. An electric car was coming up the street, and the pigs were frolicking on the track in front of it.

"They will get killed!" cried Ida.

"What shall we do?" said little Jennie.

And then the little girl stopped crying and began to laugh. For there, in front of them, was the funniest sight they had ever seen.

The pigs had formed in a line, in double file, in front of the car, and were running ahead of it. Such antics as those pigs cut up. Everybody in the car was laughing.

Ida says she thinks the pigs were "playing horse," and thought they were drawing the car.

By and by the conductor of the car tired of the fun. So he rang the bell, and the car stopped. Then he and the driver helped the little girls to get the pigs back in their pen.

Ida and Jennie thanked the kind-hearted car men for helping them, and the car started on its way again.

When their papa came home that night they told him all about it. He did not scold, and laughed very much at what he called the "piggies' race." But Ida and Jennie never disobeyed again, and the pigs did not get another chance to play horse with an electric car.—Prince Tannatt Woods, in Our Little Ones.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure
The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Harper & Brothers have just published a little hand-book, invaluable to students, letter-writers, and literary workers, entitled Everybody's Writing-desk book. They now announce a companion volume, uniform in style, called Everybody's Pocket Cyclopedia.

The second article in the series of papers on "The Great Capitals of the World," now being published in Harper's Weekly, will be a description of St. Petersburg by Vicomte Eugene Melchior de Vogue. It will appear in the number of the Weekly published March 30, and will be superbly illustrated.

REPUBLICAN papers are busy telling how grateful the sugar beet men are for the McKinley law. Of course they are. They sell their sugar at 4 cents a pound and make a good profit. Then the McKinley bill forces the government to pay them 2 cents a pound more. That more than doubles their profits. Why shouldn't they like McKinley. Now, give Indiana farmers a bounty of 25 cents on each bushel of wheat they sell, and they will like McKinley too. Let's have a bounty on everything. If it is right for one, it is for all.

THE Dispatch has an article to prove that a "protection tariff brings in more revenue than does a tariff for revenue only." As our tariffs have been managed, this has sometimes happened, because the rates were put higher and higher, and of course the money came in. But a tariff laid for revenue only would have produced just as much revenue and would not have cost the people a cent for protection. Under a tariff for revenue we could pay the same 225 millions we now pay to the government, and would not be obliged to pay an additional 800 millions that we now pay to "protected industries." This 800 millions is a steal that is taken from the people to enrich those who make enough without it, and it is this steal that republican papers are defending.

They Have Started.

We announced in previous issues of the COURIER, that the Auburn Iron Works, which has been lately established in Stametstown, were making extensive preparations for the beginning of a permanent business in the line of general repairing. The new building is now completed, and the machinery was moved into it, last week, since which time the proprietors have been kept busy on custom work, which has been coming in at such a rate as to make it impossible for all customers to be accommodated, but they expect to catch up with the demand soon. Though this is as yet a small concern, it is surprising to note the amount of work that is being turned out by it. Auburn is noted for its many factories, which have been successful appendages to the prosperity of the town, and we are pleased to know that we can add to the sacred pages of history the advent of new ones, whose proprietors are seeking to conquer and to dare the perils of the troubled sea of business competition.

Election Notice.

I, George Grund, Clerk of the incorporated town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, do hereby certify that at a corporation election to be held on Monday, May 2, 1892,

the following officers are to be elected:
One Marshal,
One Clerk,
One Treasurer,
each for the term of one year;
One Trustee in First (1st) ward,
One Trustee in Third (3rd) ward,
One Trustee in Fourth (4th) ward,
each for the term of two years.

In testimony of which I have set my hand and affixed the seal of said town this Fifth day of April, 1892.

GEORGE GRUND, Town Clerk.

THE bill putting wool on the free list passed the House last week

SEND names to the COURIER of all delegates chosen at the various caucuses, this Saturday, April 16.

THE mormon temple at Salt Lake is now finished and was dedicated with great ceremony last week. It was begun in 1853.

CHICAGO went democratic by over 7,000 at the city election last week. It is believed it will remain so at the presidential election many claiming it will increase these figures.

WE HAVE received Judge McClellan's second speech in favor of his bill to provide for a graded income tax. His statements are simply unanswerable, and no one has ever tried to answer them as far as we know.

EX-CONGRESSMAN J. B. CHEADLE, of Frankfort was elected department commander of the Indiana G. A. R., at Ft. Wayne last week. Mrs. Judge McBride formerly of Waterloo, is at the head of the Relief Corps.

N. G. TAYLOR & Co., the tin plate firm in Philadelphia, that was so much bragged of during the Ohio campaign last year, has been destroyed by fire. The loss is $2,500 which shows it did not amount to anything.

ELECTION in Rhode Island last Wednesday gave the republicans the state by a small majority, 196, but two of the late officers were not elected, as they did not have a majority over all others, as required there. The legislature will elect them, as it is republican.

CAPT. E. H. FISHER, died at his home in Rome City, April 1. He had been for many years a prominent citizen of Noble county. He served in the 21st Indiana regiment, and while on a gun boat near Berwicks Bay, in February 1863, lost both legs by the premature explosion of a shell, they were going to fire. He had been county auditor for eight years.

CLAUDE MATHEWS, at present, secretary of state comes out in a plain, manly statement, that he is a candidate for governor, and as he is not mixed up in any factional fight, it is likely he will get it. He is a clean, honest, able man, against whom not a word can be said, as far as we have ever heard. The other candidates, are Speaker Mason J. Niblack, Martimer Nye and J. G. Shanklin.

SEVERAL meetings of would-be democratic bosses have been held at Indianapolis recently to decide what course should be taken with this or that matter that is to come before the democratic state convention. Who gave them the authority to settle these questions? How would it do to let the people decide such things, just as we have always done? On what meat do these, our Cæsars feed that they have grown so great?

THE Columbia City Post joins the COURIER in urging all candidates for national delegate to come out and show their colors, and then let the people select the one who represents them. Let them say whom they will support at Chicago, and then if the people choose a Hill man, a Gray man, or a Cleveland man, it will be done fairly, and no one will have any reason to complain. No candidate for delegate can reasonably object to this.

DEMOCRATS and Alliance people in Minnesota are trying to fuse, and so run but one ticket. In this way they can succeed and defeat the republicans who are the natural enemies of both. This looks to us like a sensible plan. The Alliance and the democrats hold in the main to the same doctrine, and there is no reason why they should not unite and in this way make certain of the reforms both are seeking.

RAILROADS are fighting the new tax law in the courts, because their taxes have been increased more than other taxes. Republican editors are at the same time trying to make the people believe the new tax and assessment law increases the taxes of the railroads less than on the people. But they are merely trying to deceive. The increase on railroads is very much greater than on other property. The figures show it, and the wrath of the railroads proves it.

THE democratic newspapers of the state are doing the party some harm by their injudicious course. Why should they take sides and engender a hard fight over the nomination of a presidential candidate? They would not do this in regard to state or local candidates. We have been of the opinion that the choice of candidates for president should rest with the delegates at Chicago. But here we have a hot fight going on in Indiana to decide the matter right now and here. Let the brethren look into a mirror and see how they appear under such circumstances. It is Hill and anti Hill; Cleveland and anti-Cleveland; Gray and anti Gray. Indiana never presented such a spectacle before. We believe all this should be stopped, and that right speedily. We can afford to wait; we can afford to trust this business to our delegates; and while, as we have often said, each district should see to it that a delegate is sent, who will represent the sentiment of the people of the district, his hands should not be so tied that he has no delegate power of choice, when the final struggle at Chicago shall come. The men mentioned for president and vice-president, a dozen or more of them, are all good men, and it must at last settle down to a question of running qualities. This paper like others, has a choice, but we shall not antagonize those who may not fully agree with us. We stand ready to support the nominee, no matter what his name may be. It is a question—not of name or of locality, but of principle. Let our brethren of the press of Indiana possess their souls in patience, and we believe all will be well. But if they persist in clubbing each other until no man feels safe, then if ill results follow, they must expect to be held responsible.

A WASHINGTON correspondent of the Indianapolis Journal seeks to place Congressmen Martin and McClellan in a false position. He claims they are using their position to work a game on pensioners. Nothing is farther from the truth. Whatever they do is for the direct benefit of the pensioners, and the latter are highly satisfied, and glad to get the work done. A congressman will help a claimant to get a pension if he can do so, and charges nothing. It is claimed that Judge McClellan helps pensioners to find the "status" of their claims, that is, how the claim stands or is getting along. When a soldier writes him he encloses a "congressional slip" a blank form made for such use, and sends it by mail to the pension department. Here the matter is looked up and an answer sent direct to the pensioner. This benefits the pensioner only. The correspondent also speaks of clerks of congressmen going to the pension department in person and getting the "status" of claims and charging a fee for it. But does any one believe they could do this for nothing any more than an abstracter could afford to go into our recorder's office and get a man an abstract for nothing? The examination of the records and papers by a pension agent or clerk, taking, often, as much time as the getting up of an abstract of title, and consuming, usually, at least half a day's time, is worth paying for, and a charge of from one to five dollars for such a service is perfectly reasonable and is no ways reprehensible. This privilege extended to the clerks of congressmen has no tendency toward defrauding soldiers, but is in a direct line for their benefit and in all cases has been gladly been made available by them to forward their claims and give speed to their allowance. The attempt to make political capital out of a matter which has been satisfactory to the soldiers and which has never been a subject of complaint by them, is utterly unreasonable, and will deceive no one conversant with the facts. A personal visit to the pension department by a congressman and examination of the records, consuming a half a day's labor in each case is practically impossible as a congressman receives from ten to thirty of such applications each day.

Still in the Lumber Business.

At this season of the year, most people who have building to do begin to look around and investigate as to where the materials can be bought the cheapest and where the best accommodations can be had. At this age when sharp competition cuts a prominent figure in the annals of a business world, it behooves the purchasing public to be conversant with retail stock quotations from more than one dealer, that they may be able to know when a real bargain is offered. Good material is one of the first considerations in the construction of a substantial building, just as essentially as as first class workmanship. The best mechanic that ever lived in the world could not rear a good building from poor materials; no more so, than the highest grade of art could be expected from an incompetent amateur. First buy the best lumber to be had, then secure the services of a capable carpenter to work it into your building, and you have the best assurance that it will stand the test of wind and rain, and come out triumphant through the scrutiny of a critically illiberal and selfishly prejudiced fraternity. A. Lewis & Co., have conscientiously laid in a stock of lumber, with a view of supplying the demand of every person who wishes to purchase lumber, lath, lime, shingles, mouldings, facings trimmings, etc. The stock is so complete and the prices so reasonable that patrons could not think of asking the firm to cut them.

AMUSEMENT.

The presentation of "Si Plunkard" at the opera house last night was witnessed by a good house and everyone was pleased. J. C. Lewis is a favorite here, and his company is better than ever. The company's orchestra is composed of artists and the music was well worth hearing. Charles Barnes' trombone solo was especially fine. Mrs. Lewis' "Dora Gage" was very good, and Maggie Rice's "Eliza Simpkins" was excellent. S. C. Young, W. C. West and Mr. Pierce did well. The specialties were good, and the stage setting in harmony, the threshing scene being particularly satisfactory. Mr. Lewis' little team of dogs was a feature that no one will soon forget. The plot of the play is loose-jointed and gives abundant chance for individual work, and the entire company made the best of their opportunity. Mr. Lewis strives to please and he certainly succeeded last night, as he always does.—Ionia, (Mich.,) Daily Sentinel, April 7, 1892.

This popular company will present that highly interesting drama, "Si Plunkard," at Eureka Opera House, April 22.

A new lot of Ladies' $3 Turn Shoes just in; fine style and good wearers.

Slippers! Slippers! Our stock is just coming in from the factories.

While we do not carry many novelties in the Slipper and Oxford line, we do carry a line that is hard to beat for style, wear and general make-up.

A WORD
to those who buy Oxford Ties:

It is the prevailing idea now-a-days to wear slippers nearly all the time, whether at the home or on the street. We have customers who buy $4 or $5 Turn Shoes and ask for a $1.25 Turn Slipper. We take this means to inform all readers of this "ad." that if they wish to buy a slipper for STREET WEAR buy one with a HEAVY sole, especially if you buy cheap slippers at $1.00, $1.25, or $1.50.

It costs nearly as much to make a Slipper as a Shoe. Bear this in mind please when you go to buy your Walking Shoes.

JAMES E. ROSS, Att'y for Adm'n'r
April. 6th, 1892. 16

SUPREME court of Indiana has just decided three important points in our election law. A voter must stamp the square by a candidate's name, if the vote is to be counted. (1) If the stamp does not touch the square, then no vote is counted for that candidate. (2) If election officers make a mistake by putting a ballot into the wrong box, it must nevertheless be counted as it was not the voter's fault. (3) If the poll clerks do not write their initials on the "lower left hand corner" but somewhere else, the ticket is still good if their initials are actually on the ballot somewhere. But of course the lower left hand is the proper place. These points should be preserved for future use.

Auburn is remarkable at present for its many pretty windows filled with lovely, blooming flowers, whose simple beauty bespeaks the coming joyful season in language so silent and fragrantly eloquent as to appeal to the delicate and most refined sensibilities of an appreciative mind, bearing high the royal banner of beauteous attractiveness and exquisite simplicity of naturalness, whose emission of sweetened odors at once introduce us to features of real joy and supreme contentment.

There is some inquiry why the the caucus for Union township was called to meet at 4 p. m. The reason for this is to give the men who work in the various factories a chance to get to the caucus. It is difficult to fix an hour that would suit all. The factory men could come in the evening but the farmers could not very well. The farmers could come at 2 p. m., but the factory men could not, so 4 o'clock was settled on as a compromise. We hope all who possibly can will attend, so that all will have a chance to help select the delegates. No effort will be spared to secure a fair choice.

Our little city has been unusally lively in a social way the past week. On Thursday of last week Mrs. Garwood entertained about 28 ladies at an afternoon pedro party. The ladies spent a delightful afternoon, Those who could not play pedro were interested in fancy work and conversation. All enjoyed an excellent lunch provided by Mrs. Garwood and served by herself and little daughter, Aileen, who proved herself to be a thoughtful and self-posessed little lady. We believe that an afternoon pedro party is a new thing in our city, but no doubt others will follow as this one proved so pleasant. On Friday afternoon Mrs. W. P. Harter and Mrs. John Robbins entertained a number of ladies at the Hollister House for tea. The ladies spent the afternoon with Mrs. Harter, repairing to the Hollitter House at 5 o'clock, and spending the evening with Mrs. Robbins. It was a very merry party, and the program was well carried out. The supper was most excellent, and does credit to Mr. and Mrs. Hollister. At each plate was laid a card, tied with ribbons and a verse written, suitable to the occasion and person receiving it. As each one was read, a fresh burst of laughter might have reached the ears of those who were near. The merry times were continued at Mrs. Robbin's until 8:30, when the guests returned to their homes expressing their thanks to their hostesses for the good time they had enjoyed. The party was given in honor of Mrs. C. H. Jackson of Angola, who is so kindly remembered by our people. A little later on the same evening, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Raut entertained the Pedro club with other invited guests at their home on North Main street. The evening was passed most pleasantly, and closed with a dainty lunch which was served in excellent taste. Tuesday evening, Mrs. A. R. Culbertson and Mrs. B. C. Robbins entertained sixty of their lady friends. It was one of the most enjoyable social meetings we have had. The lunch was served in courses and everything was in the very best of style, and e icited enthusiastic comments from all.

Editor J. E. McDonald of the Ligonier Banner, was here last Friday. He and Hon. E. B Gerber had been up to Montpelier to get information about the talked-of town north of Ligonier. Of course, they don't want a town there, but do not object to one farther east on the new Wabash, at Hawpatch.

John Marxer, of the firm of Lockwood and Marxer, cigar manufacturers, was made exceedingly happy sometime Saturday night, by the appearance of a little stranger at his home, who expects to stay with him, and wishes to assume the desirable name of Marxer. It is supposed John will want to put a new brand of cigars on the market, called, "Our Boy," in honor of the new member of that popular firm.

Wesley Jackman of Summit, was in town Friday last. We are glad to see that he agrees fully with the Courier on the question of congressman. He don't believe in this suicidal two-term business. He is enthusiastically in favor of keeping Judge McClellan in Congress and believes the people are also. Not that he has a thing against the very worthy men now asking for the nomination, but he feels that it is bad policy to have the district continually represented by new men.

Fred. Bunge gave us a sensible talk last week. He is one of the careful farmers who see that their farm machinery is kept under cover. As an example, he mentions his double wagon that Englebert Ashley made for him in 1863, and which is still good, and in constant use. Mr. Bunge came from Germany in 1854, crossing the ocean in a sailing vessel, being about six weeks on the sea. He worked on the section awhile, and afterwards joined his brother and Charles Schnell in Chicago. Later he returned to Auburn, and now resides near Butler.

Last Wednesday, the wires on the Postal Telegraph Line seemed to be out of order and messages wouldn't go or come, so Robert McDougall sent a boy east to see what was the matter, when it was found that the whole trouble was caused by an old-fashoned, out-of-date hoop skirt, which hung on the wire. The boy brought the ancient article of female attire home as a relic.

Nicholas Wierman of Corunna was here and reports surveyors running a new railroad through his farm just east of that place. They bear north crossing the Air Line track between Sedan and Waterloo going along north of Waterloo and Butler. It is to be an air line road between New York and San Francisco and is to go in a straight line a few miles south of Chicago. It looks like a wild scheme, but no one can say at present just what capitalists will do. But one thing is sure; all railroads must cross Indiana.

Will the Auburn Dispatch in future try to give a correct statement of Rev. R. Denk's discourses? Last week it failed to do so (see the Auburn Dispatch of April 7th). Pray tell us to what was this due,—to weakness of memory, lack of judgment, want of christian charity, impulse of deplorable prejudice, or to that kind of "religious liberalism" of the 19th century, which sound and profound philosophers and theologians tell us to be a legitimate child of atheism. Is the Auburn Dispatch aware of the difference between telling something to a congregation and proving something to a congregation? If it is aware, why does it assert the Rev. gentleman told to his congregation what he actually and forcibly proved? And if it is not aware, why does it dare criticise the Rev. gentleman's discourse despite its incompetency and incapacity?

STEEL RAIL TRUST.

IT KEEPS PRICES UP AND WAGES DOWN.

How This Grasping Monopoly Holds Its Tariff Mortgages Ready for Foreclosure—Reciprocity Helps the Foreign Consumer, Not the American Farmer.

A Gigantic Combine.

The combination which controls the production and fixes the price of steel rails is one of the strongest in the country. Unlike other combines, it has not been formed by the merging of all the interests under a central authority by a trust agreement. Under the circumstances, such a proceeding would have been quite impossible, chiefly for the reason that steel rails are not the sole product of any of the mills concerned. Then, too, the makers of steel rails are also very largely interested in the manufacture of other products, such as wire rods, armor and other plates, etc. The rolling of rails is but one of several lines of product. In short, each member of the combine has such a large number of interests more or less closely bound up in that of rail production that any attempt to consolidate under a single management all these widespread interests is out of the question.

The steel rail combine accomplishes all the ends for which trusts have been formed in other industries: the suppression of competition and the control of production and prices. The combine, as at present constituted, is composed of the following concerns. Opposite each is given its annual capacity in net tons, as stated by James M. Swank, General Manager of the American Iron and Steel Association:

	Net tons.
The Illinois Steel Co	1,035,000
Carnegie Bros. & Co	660,000
The Cambria Iron Co	225,000
The Bethlehem Iron Co	225,000
The Lackawanna Coal and Iron Co	500,000
The Pennsylvania Steel Co	500,000
Total	3,145,000

It will be sufficient to go back to 1880 to trace the history of this combine. In that year there were eleven producing steel rails, as follows: The North Chicago, the South Chicago, and the Union and Joliet Iron Works in Illinois; the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, the Cambria Iron Co., the Pennsylvania Steel Co., the Lackawanna Coal and Iron Co., and the Scranton Steel Co. in Pennsylvania; the Troy Steel and Iron Co., in New York; the Cleveland Rolling Mill Co., in Ohio; and the St. Louis Steel Co., in Missouri. During the five years following 1880, four other iron companies added steel rail mills to their plants—the Worcester Steel Works, Massachusetts; the Homestead Steel Works, Pennsylvania; the Southern Iron Co., Tennessee; the Springfield Iron Co., Illinois; and the Colorado Coal and Iron Co. To these must be added the Duquesne Works, built in 1886-1888, and the Maryland Plant of the Pennsylvania Steel Co., recently completed. This makes a total of seventeen separate works which were in operation or have been since 1880.

Of the fifteen works in operation in 1886 and 1887 the following have ceased producing rails: The St. Louis Steel Company, the Troy Steel and Iron Company, the Cleveland Rolling Mills Company, the Worcester Steel Works and the Springfield Iron Company. During the same period the other works have been consolidated as follows: The Illinois Steel Company absorbed the three Illinois works first mentioned; Carnegie Bros. & Company secured control by purchase of the Duquesne Steel Works and the Homestead Steel Works, and the Lackawanna Coal and Iron Company added to its original plant the Scranton Steel Works. This consolidation of interests was completed early in 1891, with the result that the steel rail combine now controls all the works making rails in the United States except the Colorado Coal and Iron Company, whose annual capacity is only 100,000 net tons.

Several more or less strong combinations have been formed since 1880 to control production and fix prices, but with varying success. Previous to the present combine, that of 1886 and 1887 was the most successful of all. In the fall of 1885 an era of active railroad construction was begun and continued throughout 1886 and 1887. As a result of the large demand for rails the combine was able to force the price up to the importing point in spite of the fact that the duty was then $18 per ton.

	1885.	1886.	1887.	1888.	1889.	1890.	1891.
	$	$	$	$	$	$	$
Pig iron	17.61	18.96	21.37	17.38	18.00	18.85	15.95
Steel rails	28.50	34.50	37.08	29.83	29.25	31.75	29.92
Diff'ence	10.89	15.54	15.71	12.45	11.25	12.90	13.97

The extent to which the prices of steel rails have been manipulated by the combine is well shown in the above tables. If it be the object of trusts which suppress competition to secure the economies which are gained by unifying interests and lowering the cost of production, and to divide the advantages thus gained between producers and consumers, this division has not yet been made by the steel rail trust. On the contrary, the combine has not only appropriated all the benefits to itself but it has added to its profits by increasing prices above the level prevailing under competition. Since the consolidation of interests early in 1891 not a ton of rails has been sold by the Eastern members of the combine at less than $30 at the works, or by the Western member, the Illinois Steel Company, at less than $31.50. These were the prices agreed upon at the meeting in Philadelphia a year ago.

The investigations into the cost of producing the various products of iron and steel by the Commissioner of Labor show the enormous profits of the combination. On page 168 of his report, the Commissioner says: "The department has been positively informed relative to the cost of making rails in several of the very largest establishments in the United States, and there is no shadow of a doubt in the mind of the writer that in these establishments the actual cost of standard rails is, and has been for some time, within a few cents of $22 per ton at the works." The facts on which Mr. Wright based this statement were collected by him in 1889 and 1890. Since then an important change has taken place. Not only have the prices of materials fallen considerably, but wages have been reduced from 10 to over 15 per cent. in the mills of all the members of the combination. These reductions have had the effect of reducing materially the cost of producing rails. In fact, well-informed persons are of the opinion that the total cost of production of steel rails is now below $20 per ton. On this basis the combine is making a profit of not less than $10 per ton for every ton of rails sold at the combination price.

Under ordinary conditions this high rate of profit would cause new plants to be put in operation, but such outside works as now have the machinery needed are either under agreements with the combine not to engage in producing rails, or realize that, if they should attempt it, the combine would at once cut prices and thus prevent them from competing.

The steel rail combine therefore is a monopoly of the worst character. By keeping up the price of rails it prevents the railroads from making needed repairs and extending their lines. This is clearly shown by the experience of the past year. And when, in spite of the combine, an era of railroad building begins, the price of rails is at once raised to the importing point with the result that the cost of such extension is greatly increased. The high prices ruling in 1886 and 1887 are a sufficient proof of this, and the competition of foreign rails, even at the high prices now ruling here, is prevented by the duty of $13.44 per ton. In short, in its absolute control over production and price, the steel rail combine has a mortgage on future railroad extension, with full power to foreclose it any time it sees fit.

Sugar Trust Profits.

The sugar trust has at last secured full control of the three large refineries, formerly independent, owned by Harrison, Frazier & Co., Claus Spreckles, and T. C. Knight & Co., for which it paid enormous prices. It is now, therefore, in absolute control of the sugar-refining business of the country, and is prepared to make full use of the tariff protection of one-half cent per pound afforded by the McKinley tariff.

When it was proposed to put all kinds of sugar on the free list, so as to prevent the trust from manipulating the market, the high protectionists in Congress insisted on a duty of one-half cent per pound on refined sugar to protect the trust. All the sugar, therefore, which enters into consumption, must pass through the hands of the trust.

As soon as the trust secured control of the outside refineries, it at once advanced prices, in spite of the fact that the raw sugar was lower.

Few people realize the enormous profit which it is now able to make from consumers. The sugar trust, previous to its recent increase of capital, was capitalized at $50,000,000, on which it has been paying 10 per cent. dividends and earning more. It has repeatedly been asserted by experts, and never disputed by any one, that these same refineries could be duplicated for $15,000,000; so that the trust has really earned somewhere between 30 and 50 per cent. on its actual value.

It is also said by experts that raw sugars can be refined for five-eighths of a cent per pound; some of the best equipped refineries being able to turn out their product profitably at one-half cent. In the difference between centrifugal and granulated all excess above this cost is refiners' profit. To-day centrifugal sugar is selling at 3½ cents and granulated at 4⅝ cents, a difference of 1⅛ cents, or the highest margin ever forced by the trust.

Now, taking the cost of refining at the highest figures claimed, ½ cents per pound, it requires only the simplest process of arithmetic to show that the trust is making to-day not less than ⅝ of a cent per pound profit. As a matter of fact it is probably making more. This means that, since a barrel of sugar averages 325 pounds in weight, the profit per barrel is about $2.03.

But to show the enormous profits on capital actually invested—something often overlooked—the following may be cited. One of the largest refineries of the trust is located in Brooklyn. It cost not over $4,000,000. Its capacity is 8,000 barrels per day. Taking the profits indicated above, and assuming that the refinery is in operation 300 days a year, though it runs with greater continuity, its daily profits are $16,240. This is $4,872,000 per year; which, allowing $4,000,000 as the cost of the refinery, is equal to a profit of over 121 per cent.

For the sake of clearness these items are repeated:

Cost of refinery	$4,000,000.00
Daily capacity (barrels)	8,000
Cost of centrifugal (raw) sugar	3½
Price granulated sugar	4⅝
Difference	1⅛
Cost of refining	½
Profit, per pound	⅝
Profit, per barrel	2.03
Profit, per 300 days	4,872,000.00

This shows why the trust was so anxious to have the duty on refined sugar left at half a cent per pound. Is it not about time that refined sugar be put on the free list so that the consumer may get the real benefit of the decreased taxation, instead of being forced to pay exorbitant profits to the trust?

"Reciprocity."

Reciprocity is Republican free trade; and, like Republican "protection," a "fake," so far as it concerns the mass of voters whom it is fondly expected to hoodwink. There is, however, this difference between Republican "protection" and Republican "free trade:" "Protection" benefits only the home manufacturer; reciprocity will benefit foreign consumers as well as home manufacturers. Both agree in that they can hurt, but cannot help, our own consumers and producers (outside of a few manufacturers), and for these reasons:

1. By the reciprocity clause the President is authorized to frighten foreign governments until they lower their import duties and lighten the burden on consumers. This he has done and is doing. The foreign consumer, who is being untaxed by reciprocity, may be thankful to his Republican friends in this country.

2. The clause does not authorize the President to lower any duties on our imports (the only way in which our tariff burdens can be lightened), but it does give him power to raise them and thus to increase the burden on our own consumers. This he has already done to scare foreigners who, imitating the United States, insist upon maintaining the same kind of "protection" that we have enjoyed for the last thirty years. Who shall be most scared at this threat? Foreigners, who are glad to sell in our markets, or our consumers, who are compelled to buy in them? If, McKinley says, the foreigner pays the tax, then our consumers need have no fear, but the foreigner should tremble. If the duties to be placed on sugar, coffee, tea and hides are not paid by the foreigner they will come out of the pockets of our consumers; in which case the latter should turn pale at the President's threat, for they are already attempting to carry unbearable burdens of this kind.

3. "Protection" has given manufacturers the monopoly of our markets. Reciprocity attempts to give them special advantages in foreign markets. This will be a boon to them, because, in order to prevent cheap goods (so detestable to many good Republicans), they have been maintaining trust prices at home. Now, if foreign Governments lower their duties so that foreigners can afford to buy of us, our manufacturers will be able to dispose of more of their surplus products at remunerative prices, and not be compelled, in order to prevent lowering home prices, to dump them on foreign markets at any price, as they often do now.

4. Reciprocity cannot help the farmer, for whose benefit it was ostensibly interlopated in the McKinley tariff bill, for the very good reason that the great bulk of the staple agricultural products, cotton, corn, wheat, meats, etc., are sold in markets that cannot possibly be changed by any reciprocity treaty. In 1890 our total exports of agricultural products were about $600,000,000. Of this amount, $380,000,000 went to Great Britain. This is the market that for years has determined the prices of our foreign products, and, so long as we must sell any considerable amount of our surplus in this market, it will continue to determine prices. For the lowest market in which products must be sold fixes prices in all other markets. Reciprocity treaties, which would make our products free in all the markets of the world, could not materially help the farmer; for two-thirds of his surplus products are now sold to free-trade nations, which have no "tariffs to swap." Even Blaine will not pretend that his reciprocity scheme will find markets, outside of Great Britain, for all of our farm products. The farmer now sells in a free-trade market, hence reciprocity cannot raise his selling price. He must buy in protected markets, or, what is the same, if he buys in foreign markets he must pay two-thirds the cost price of his goods to get them lifted over the tariff wall between the market and his home. Reciprocity cannot lower this wall, and hence cannot lower the cost of his goods laid down at his door. So far as the farmer is concerned the benefits of reciprocity are not reciprocal, and there is no more hope for him in Section 3 than in any other section of the McKinley bill.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The Ways of the American Juryman as Known in England.

The strange custom in America of appointing men to office without any regard to their previous career or occupation frequently leads to the most extraordinary incidents, which to English readers unacquainted with transatlantic life would appear extravagant, even if they witnessed them on the stage of some theater devoted to opera bouffe. Thus, what can be more comical than the conduct of the Dakota judge, a veterinary surgeon by trade, who was asked by a citizen to be excused from serving as a juryman on the plea that he had a sick horse. "Is it your sorrel mare?" inquired the Judge, his professional instinct getting for the moment the better of his judicial dignity. "Yes, your honor," replied the man. "The court will adjourn for one hour!" exclaimed the Judge. "I know something that will cure that sorrel mare inside of twenty minutes;" and thereupon the court linked arms with the juryman and, accompanied by the prosecuting attorney, the Sheriff and the prisoner, whom the Sheriff did not like to leave behind, sought the indisposed sorrel.

Nor was it so very long ago, says the Pall Mall Gazette, that a big raw-boned man at Julesburg, Col., declined to go on a jury because, as he expressed it, "he couldn't bear to serve under no man that he could lick," meaning the Judge. Now, the latter, when not dispensing justice from the bench, was dispensing drinks at the bar of the liquor saloon which he owned, and in his younger days he had acquired considerable fame as a bruiser. The dormant instincts of the latter awoke and arose to the surface on hearing the objection put forward by the refractory juryman.

Laying aside the judicial ermine, the court got down from the bench into the body of the court, requested the spectators to form a ring, and, with the clerk as timekeeper and the prisoner as referee, fought the large man for fifteen minutes, thoroughly removing the latter's hesitation to serving on that particular jury. As soon as his honor had accomplished this he resumed his seat on the bench and went on with the trial.

Cleaning Laces.

From woolens to laces is a wide step, but while on the laundry subject a word upon the cleaning of the latter. Never rub laces. If mussed roll upon a bottle or round stick, dampen slightly; when quite dry unroll and tack the lace with large stitches in folds of about six inches. Be sure that the edges are even. You will now have a sort of compress of lace. Drop this into cold water, in which put a little borax or ammonia, or both. Soak until the dirt is out, changing water if needful. Never rub the lace, but it may be gently squeezed now and then, lengthwise. When it is quite clean place it just as it is in the sun to dry, after which lay it upon the palm of the left hand and slap it vigorously with the right several times. Now remove the stitches by cutting; do not pull them; refold the lace, but in different creases, and repeat the process, but pat rather than slap the folds this time.

The result will be excellent; the lace soft and betraying no signs of its bath. It should never be ironed unless upon clothing where it cannot be removed. It is well, therefore, to use other than lace trimmings for cotton garments, unless one chooses torchon, a notable exception.

If other lace is chosen, however, it should not be much starched, if at all, and the iron should be used not along the length, but up and down. In this way the full effect of the width is kept, while by the other a wide edge appears narrower and the pattern distorted. After ironing the laundress should soften the lace by the gentle use of her thumb and forefinger, then gather it into little plaits, pinching them slightly, and, after shaking it out lightly, the lace edge will wear its best aspect.

A Short Chapter on Shoes.

Evening shoes almost invariably match the gown, and are often made of the same material. For black and white gowns, black shoes are worn, with paste ornaments. The newest ornament is in the form of a small diamond-shaped buckle, and has a scarf of satin passed through it to give a touch of color. In pale-blue, it suggests an opal surrounded by brilliants. The fine gold network may be seen as toecap and heel of many a shoe, sometimes over one color, such as blue or pink, while the rest is of plain black or white satin. These are the very smartest shoes. Some are of guipure, displaying the dainty stocking, and others are of Suede. Black patent leather shoes have often crimson bows, or two loops and a paste stud. Many of the cosy bed-room slippers are of pale-blue of bright red leather, with plush linings. Boots are warmer wear for winter than shoes, and some of the newest have the galosh as deep as the ordinary walking shoe, so that they can be easier cleaned, with less friction to the kid above.

BAYONETS were invented at Bayonne in 1670. First used in England in 1693. At first these had wooden handles fitting into the gun, but in 1699 the socket bayonet was introduced.

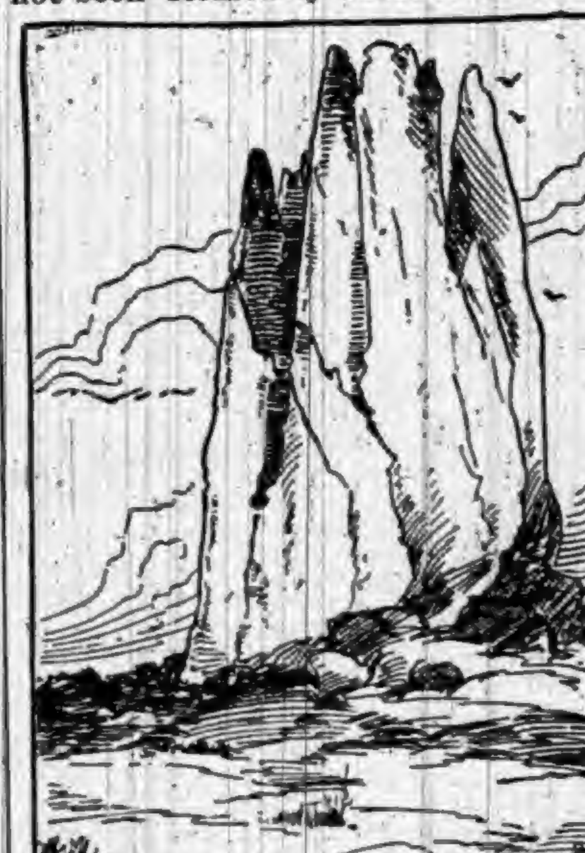
THE TOWER OF BABEL.

A Type of Rock-Weathering Common Near the Rocky Mountains.

The type of erosion of which the illustration is an example is not uncommon in the western highlands of the United States. A number of fine examples are found in the Garden of the Gods, Colorado, and many equally striking ones have been found in or near the various parks of the Rocky Mountains. Along the course of the Colorado River, usually between canyon walls, this type of rock-weathering is common. Frequently there is such an array of spires, monuments, and crested buttes, that among the Indians who occasionally make their way thither, the region is known as the "Land of Standing Rocks." A cluster of rocks of this character presents such a delusive appearance that on one occasion a party of the Geological Survey, for a moment deceived by the close resemblance, believed the cluster to be a city in the distance. In commemoration of the illusion they named it Goblin City. Several clusters became quite well known to travelers, among them the "Dutch Parliament," the "Cathedral Spires," "Gog and Magog," and "Old Mother Hubbard." One, the "Devil's Thumb," has already been described in the pages of this magazine.

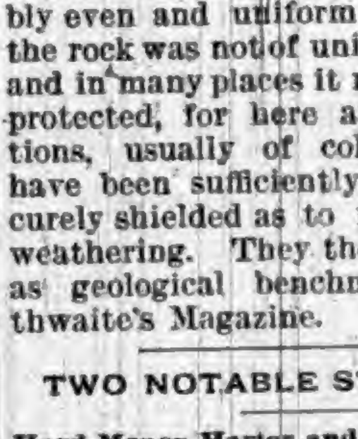
The formation of these fantastical specimens of natural architecture is interesting. They are not bowlders that have been dumped in their present position by water or by ice. It is hardly necessary to say that they have not been formed by successive accretion about a nucleus; on the contrary, in nearly every instance they are the result of circumdenudation. That is, they are the remnants of strata that formerly covered the entire surface to a depth equal to or greater than the height of the column. Had all portions of the rock—in most instances sandstone—possessed a uniform degree of hardness the result would have been a tolerably even and uniform erosion. But the rock was not of uniform hardness, and in many places it must have been protected, for here and there portions, usually of columnar shape, have been sufficiently hard, or so securely shielded as to resist ordinary weathering. They therefore remain as geological benchmarks.—Goldthwaite's Magazine.



TWO NOTABLE STATESMEN.

Hard-Money Harter and Mr. Silver-Dollar Bland.

Mr. Harter, says a Washington writer, is a man of independent means, and he is willing to spend money in carrying out his schemes. He first attacked silver through the Grand Army posts, and it cost him while he was doing it from $100 to $200 a week in postage and clerk hire. He next sent circulars to the bankers of the country, and if money and brains will accomplish what he wants he will probably succeed.



MICHAEL D. HARTER.

Mr. Harter is forty-two years old. He is a straight, business-like looking man, with a dark, rosy face, a bright, sparkling eye, and hair which is well sprinkled with gray. He dresses in business clothes, is quick in his movements, and is packed full of nervous activity. He is a well-read man, a pleasant talker, and a member of the most prominent Democratic clubs of the country. Mr. Harter has retired from business since he has taken up politics. Mr. Harter's home at Mansfield, Ohio, is a pretty red brick, with a large lawn about it. It is just opposite the mansion of Senator Sherman, and is presided over by Mrs. Harter, who has attracted attention as one of the finest-looking of the later arrivals in Washington society.

Silver-Dollar Bland is the reverse of Harter in every respect. He is short, fat and sallow. Harter's face is fresh. Bland's has a decidedly tanned look. Harter looks clean. Bland appears to belong to the great unwashed. He is undoubtedly clean, but he doesn't look it, and his pantaloons make one think of those of the late Senator Van Wyck, which were said to have been cut with a circular saw. Bland is about ten years older than Harter. It is now fourteen years since he got the silver dollar bill, of which Senator Allison is said to be the author, through the House, and it was through it that he had made his great reputation. He has been fighting for silver ever since. Mr. Bland is of medium height, and he would weigh about 175 pounds. His voice is deep, and his words come forth from rather a large mouth, the chin of which is ornamented with a sandy brown beard, and the upper lip of which has a mustache of the same color. Bland cares but little for appearances. He talks but little to those around him and he has none of the sociable qualities of Harter. He is a man of ability, however, and his character is above reproach.

A Model Husband.

Wife—I saw the loveliest lace spreads to-day, only $2.50, and I wanted them awfully, but I knew you wished to economize, and so I didn't get them.

Husband—That's too bad, my dear, you should have got them. Anything which adds to your happiness and brings gladness to your eyes, anything which lightens your domestic cares and gilds the lowering clouds, anything which borders with sweet flowers the thorny paths of duty and appeals pleasantly to your æsthetic nature, making life more worth living, home a paradise, you are welcome, double welcome to, my angel, if it doesn't cost more than $2.50.—New York Weekly.

The Collapse of a Rotten Tenement, With crumbling foundation and shaky, bulging walls, is not more certainly to be looked for than the sudden giving way of a constitution sapped by overwork, unremitting anxiety, or exposure to hardship and malign climatic influences. Against the disastrous effects of each and all of these, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an effectual safeguard. It fortifies the system against them by infusing into it fresh vigor begotten of renewed and complete digestion and assimilation of the food, and its consequent reparative action upon the exhausted tissues and impoverished circulation. No preparative for the undergoing, without injury, of an unusual amount of bodily or mental work, no means of averting malarial infection or disorders born of bad diet and impure water equals this superlatively fine defensive invigorant. Take it for dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, rheumatism, kidney trouble, la grippe.

Strange Change.

The prophetic transformation of "swords into ploughshares and spears into pruning-hooks" is realized in the present use of the remains of the American man-of-war Chesapeake, captured in 1812 in battle with the British frigate Shannon. The vessel was taken to England and sold to a miller, John Prior of Wickham. Mr. Prior built a new flour-mill from the timbers of the Chesapeake, and it is said the mill is in existence to-day, making good money for its owner. There may not be so much "pomp and circumstance" about it, but grinding flour is a more useful occupation after all, than carrying powder and shot.

A Walking Engine.

A New York genius has evolved a curious kind of a traction engine that has both wheels and legs. The end of the machine to which the six legs are attached is supposed to be the rear of the engine. The legs are operated by eccentrics and they work in pairs. The feet are shod with blocks of rubber to enable them to take hold of the ground. The originator of this novel species of draft animal confidently asserts that it will go astern as well as ahead and will climb any hill less steep than a pitch roof.

THE EASTER SERVICE.

I SAW a little saint on Easter Day;
She sat quite near me all the service through;
She heard each word the preacher had to say,
And left a scent of violets in the pew.

What need to pray to storied saints of stone
That from the niches high look coldly down,
When here beside me in the pew alone
There kneels a modern saint in tailor gown?

I thought of golden harps and angels' wings
E'en while I watched her downcast face so fair,
And as she turned I marked, 'mong other things,
In what a charming way she wore her hair.

Once, as the anthem sang, her eyes met mine,
The organ murmuring in a cadence sad;
And while my soul answered the theme divine,
I noticed what a pretty hand she had.

The preacher spoke, with words that would inspire,
Of heaven and hope—of Satan and of sin;
To listen one could sit and never tire—
There was a stunning dimple in her chin!

But when at home they asked me of the text,
I stumbled—stammered something about Paul;
And, somehow, nothing could I think of next,
For this—ah, me!—was all I could recall:

A scent of violets and a little glove;
A pair of eyes with lashes brown and long;
Two lips that seemed not made for prayer, but love;
And a sweet voice that sounded like a song.

Was she an angel sent for Easter Day
To bring to heaven the earthly thoughts of men?
Yet she looked human. Well, I dare not say;
But, to make sure, I'll go to church again.

—Kate Masterson, in Judge.

AN EASTER STORY.

AIN'T that bootiful?" whispered Mary, as the peal of the great church organ sounded through the open doorway.

"Luffly!" said Betty. "Let's go in!"

"Oh, no, no! I'm 'fraid!" gasped little Mary, pulling back.

"Why, Mary, it's a church! There are lots of children in there; I saw 'em go. They won't do nothin' to us. Come, I'm goin'."

Noiselessly the barefooted waifs climbed the stone steps and crossed the vestibule, and at last slipped inside the audience room.

Awed and half dazed, they hugged the wall tightly.

The church was very full, and people were standing all around the entrance.

Near the children was a deep window seat, banked with the choicest flowers. Mary was the first to spy it, and she tugged at her sister's dress, and pointed to the beautiful sight. Betty gazed in rapture, her lips formed into an "Oh!" which she dared not utter.

Then sweet, far-away music, that drew nearer and nearer, claimed their attention.

Soon they saw, coming through a doorway at the right of the altar, a procession of white-robed boys, singing as they came. Betty and Mary had never in all their lives heard such music before, and they were sorry when it stopped.

A man in a white robe began to speak, but they did not understand what he was talking about, so they looked at the flowers and the people, but the flowers most of all.

Their eyes rested longest on a great cross of blossoms in front of the altar rail, and they wished they could go near to it.

After a little chairs were brought in for the people near the entrance, and a kind man gave the children a seat, which they shared between them, their arms around each other.

It was a long service that Easter afternoon, but it was so beautiful to Betty and Mary that they never thought of going. Almost the last thing that took place made these two look on with very wistful eyes. It was the taking apart of the beautiful cross of flowers. The cross was composed of small bouquets, and these were distributed among the children of the Sunday school.

At last it was all over, the white-robed boys had gone as they came, and the people were going away.

"Let's stay an' see 'em go by!" whispered Betty.

Thus it happened that as Miss Barnard's class of six little girls were passing out of the church they saw two ragged, barefooted children shyly eying them and their flowers.

Sweet Lily Stone was ahead, and without an instant's hesitation she placed her own bouquet in Mary's hand. Tina Gray was close behind, and with a smile she tendered her flowers to Betty. The other four, not to be outdone by their leaders, gave their flowers to the little strangers, and when Miss Barnard came up she found Betty and Mary with flushed, beaming faces, hardly knowing what to do or what to say.

The young teacher gave her class one glance of loving approval, and then turned to the two children, who were still fingering their flowers with intense rapture.

She asked their names and where they lived; she found out that their mother was ill in bed, and that their father did little to make them happy, and when she left them she promised to go and see them soon.

This promise was more than fulfilled, and Betty and Mary found in Miss Barnard one of the best and kindest friends.

"Ain't you glad we went in that Sunday?" said Mary.

"Yes, I guess I am," said Betty; "and I do think, Mary, churches and church folks is luffly."

Early Matches.

The first phosphorus match was made in the penitentiary at Hohenasberg, Germany. The inventor was John Frederick Komerer, a political prisoner. Komerer was a chemist by profession, and was permitted to make scientific experiments by his unusually humane jailer. A year after he struck his first lucifer match Komerer was set free, only to find that he, a penniless man, had to fight capitalists who were interested in his discovery on which no patent was then obtainable. The German Government thought matches dangerous, and injured the inventor still further by prohibiting their use. This ruined Komerer, who died in extreme poverty.

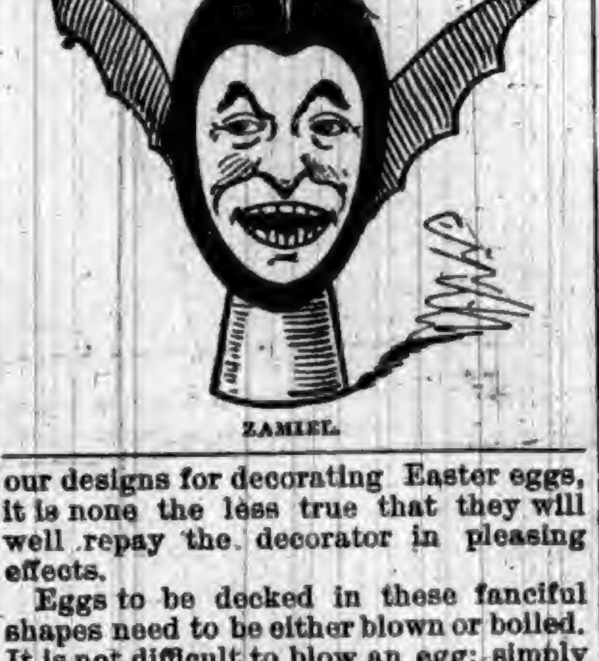
The Grip in Old Times.

According to the following extract, published by the London Truth, from an old historical work, not only was Edinburgh afflicted with the influenza in 1563, but the Queen of Scots herself had the disease: "In November Edinburgh was visited with a 'new dysease' called the 'new acquaintance,' which passed through the whole courte, neither sparing lorde, ladye, nor damoysell. Yt ys a paine in their headis that have yt, and a soreness in their stomachs, with a great coughe. The Queene keapte her bedde vi dayes. There was no appearance of danger, nor manie that die of the disease, excepte some olde folks."

EASTER EGGS.

Grotesque and Fanciful Methods of Decorating Them—Some Odd Designs.

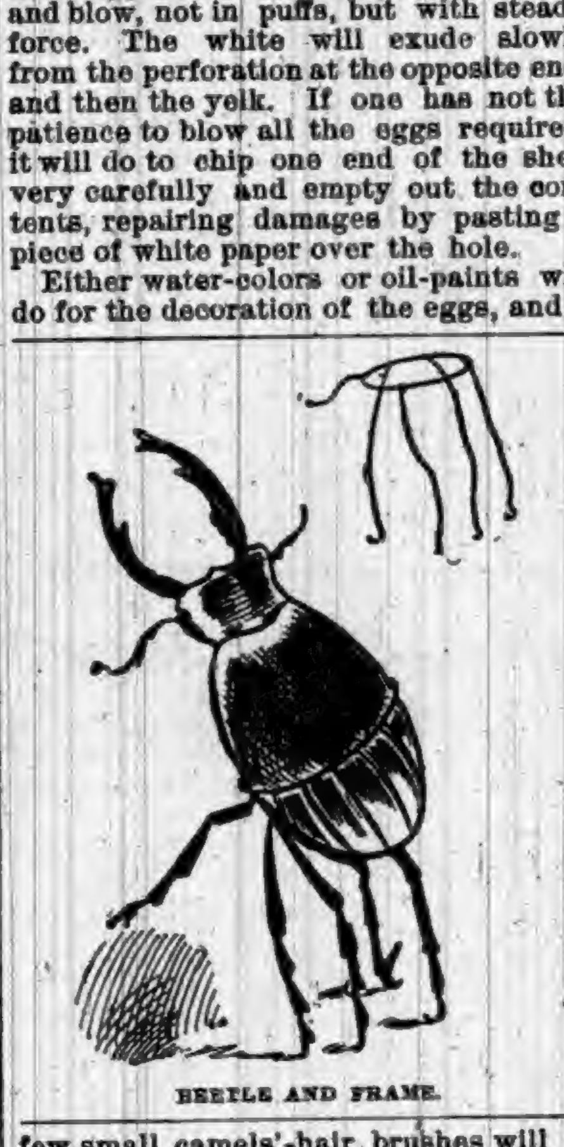
The grotesque and fanciful often please when mere prettiness has by frequent repetition become wearisome; so while beauty can hardly be claimed for our designs for decorating Easter eggs, it is none the less true that they will well repay the decorator in pleasing effects.



ZAMIEL.

Eggs to be decked in these fanciful shapes need to be either blown or boiled. It is not difficult to blow an egg; simply make two perforations, at opposite ends of the egg, that at the pointed end a trifle larger, if anything. A large pin or a darning-needle is the best instrument to use in making these perforations. Then apply the lips to the larger end and blow, not in puffs, but with steady force. The white will exude slowly from the perforation at the opposite end, and then the yolk. If one has not the patience to blow all the eggs required, it will do to chip one end of the shell very carefully and empty out the contents, repairing damages by pasting a piece of white paper over the hole.

Either water-colors or oil-paints will do for the decoration of the eggs, and a few small camels'-hair brushes will be required.



BEETLE AND FRAME.

For the head of the sinister "Zamiel," black all the egg except a small portion reserved for the face; outline the teeth on this and leave them white; paint all the rest of the face a fiery red and outline the features in black. For the bat's wings which serve as ears, and for the comb, cut out pieces of gold paper (doubled, so that both sides will be alike) and gum them on as shown in the illustration. The pedestal is a large cork hollowed in the center to accommodate the end of the egg, which must be glued to it.

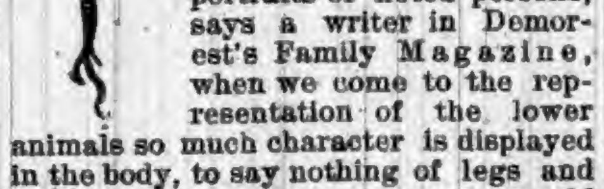
BARON MUNCHAUSEN.

While heads do well enough to represent the portraits of noted persons, says a writer in Demorest's Family Magazine, when we come to the representation of the lower animals so much character is displayed in the body, to say nothing of legs and tails, that it seems necessary to add these.

The "beetle" is mounted in a wire frame with legs. Cover the legs with wax, molding it into shape. Make the horns of wire, waxed like the legs, fasten them to a little collar of paper, and gum this to the larger end of the egg. Then paint all the egg brown, making outlines for the wings in black, and varnish legs, horns and all.

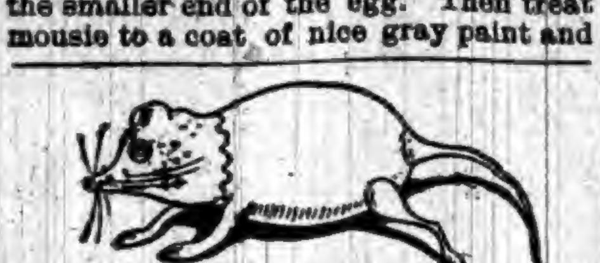
The "lobster" is an egg painted scarlet and decorated with claws, head and tail, cut out of paper and gummed on, and also painted a lively red.

The "gray mouse" must have a paper head, and feet also, and a strip of gray velvet or cloth for a tail. The head of the mouse, and the lobster's head and larger claws, are made of paper cut and pasted to the required shape before pasting upon the egg. For the claws, two pieces of paper are cut for each claw, in as close a resemblance to those shown in the illustration of the lobster as possible; the edges are then to be pasted together, leaving the middle of the claw slightly bulging in the well-known shape of a lobster's claw.



LOBSTER.

Then they can be gummed on, snipping little lappets of paper all around the ends of the claws, and gumming these fast to the egg. The paint will conceal the joinings and pasting. The mouse's head must also be cut in two parts, one for each side, and pasted together, using a narrow strip of paper to join the edges; or the edges may be pasted together, but this will leave a little ridge as a profile. Shape the head over the finger, snip little squares all around the neck, and paste these to the smaller end of the egg. Then treat mousie to a coat of nice gray paint and a pair of fine horse-hair whiskers, and he will look as roguish as any cupboard thief of his species.



GRAY MOUSE.

The nose of the noble "Baron Munchausen" is to be made on the same principle as the mouse's head, and the inexperienced nose-maker need not be afraid of exaggerating that member. Exaggeration is quite in keeping with the lamented Baron's traits.

HOW TO TELL IT.

A Simple Explanation of the Changing Easter Date.

PEOPLE that fully understand the religious significance of Easter know, of course, something about the changefulness of the date, but only a small percentage of them, perhaps, could satisfactorily explain the matter. If you should ask ten intelligent people how far the Easter date can vary, the chances are that not one would be able to answer you correctly without first consulting a book of reference.

The fact is that the date varies more than a month, though many years elapse between the widest variations. It is possible for Easter to come as early as the 22d of March, and it may come as late as the 25th of April. In 1886, Easter fell on the 25th of April, but it will not again come so late as that until the youngest reader of these lines shall be old enough to be grandparents—in 1943.

The moon's monthly journey around the earth is the foundation of the eccentric Easter dates, just as the earth's annual excursion around the sun causes the trouble that necessitates leap years.

Easter is simply a Christian adaptation of the Jewish Passover. The word Easter dates back farther than the time of the religious observances that now characterize it. The Anglo-Saxon name of April was Eastermonath, meaning the month of the spring morning, or the sun warmth, which awakened Nature from its winter torpidity. The early Christians adopted this idea of Nature's spring awakening to typify the resurrection of the Savior, just as the Jews used it to commemorate the events connected with the escape of their people from Egyptian bondage.

But the antipathy of the Christians toward the Jews in those early days led them to make an attempt to have the Easter observances always fall on dates other than those that commemorated the Passover. The system that we now have for fixing the Easter date is due to that attempt. After as much thought and calculation as was given to the tinkering of the calendar a complete plan was adopted, and here is an attempt to make it more intelligible in a few words:

It was determined, in the first place, that Easter must invariably fall on the first Sunday after the fourteenth day of the moon that happens to be reigning at vernal equinox time. Then it was declared that the date of the equinox should be arbitrarily made March 21, although the equinox really comes sometimes a little earlier or a little later than the 21st. For example, suppose the equinox moon is just fourteen days old on the 21st of March, and that this day falls on Saturday—then the next day, Sunday, would fill the condition noted above, and consequently be Easter.

Of course you can readily perceive that so early an Easter date can very rarely occur. The Christian Easter was originally a sort of thanksgiving service, lasting eight days. This conformed somewhat to the length of time devoted by pagans to their spring festivities, and approached the duration of the Jewish paschal observances. The eight-day period was afterward cut down to three days, after that to two, and finally it became as we have it now, a day commemorative of the resurrection.—New York Press.

HE UNDERSTOOD LOCKS.

Mr. Ensign Opens a Safe and Extracts Five Hundred Dollars.

"Do you see that tall, spare man leaning against the rail over there?" said James Vance, steward of the Athenian Club, to a San Francisco Examiner man. "Well, I'll tell you a little yarn in which he played an amusing part. Some years ago Haquette & Haggeman, of the Crystal Palace saloon, got in a big safe, all gorgeous with paint and glorious with impossible landscapes. Ernest Haquette was very proud of it, and in his bustling, eager way would show it to old patrons of the place, expatiating upon its merits.

"One evening he was engaged in showing a party of gentlemen the wonders of the safe, and ran on: 'No burglar could ever get into that, I tell you. He couldn't open it in a week. It's the safest safe in this town, for money.'

"'Oh, I don't know about that,' said that tall man, who was then leaning on the bar, just as he is now leaning on the rail. 'I don't think it's so safe.'

"This startled Haquette a little. No one had ever questioned that safe before in that offhand way. He flushed a little, while the stranger regarded him nonchalantly. Haquette felt nettled, and at last blurted out:

"'I'll put $500 in that safe, and if you can get it out in six hours you can have it. Axes, jimmies, and all tools are allowed, but dynamite is barred.'

"'I'll go you,' said our friend. 'We'll just make it half an hour and no tools, however.'

"Haquette dumped $500 into a bag, put the bag into the safe, and turned the combination. 'There you are,' he said, defiantly.

"The tall man got down on his knees, put an ear against the safe where the tumblers work, and began turning the knob of the combination. He didn't say a word, but steadily clicked away. Haquette began to sweat and step around.

"In twenty-three minutes the safe was open. Our friend over there took the bag of money, handed it to the dumfounded Haquette, and said, cynically: 'I don't want your money.' They salted me for a little job like that once. My name is Ensign.'"

Pleasures of Memory.

What a blessed thing is memory! How it brings up the pleasures of the past, and hides its unpleasantnesses! You recall your childhood days, do you not, and wish they would return? You remember the pleasant associations, while the unpleasant ones are forgotten. Perhaps to your mind comes the face of some friend. It was once a pale, sad face. It showed marks of pain, lines of care. It seemed to be looking into the hereafter, the unknown future. And then you recalled how it brightened, how it recovered its rosy hue, how it became a picture of happiness and joy. Do you remember these things? Many people do, and gladly tell how the health returned, how happiness came back, how the world seemed bright. They tell how they were once weak, nerveless, perhaps in pain, certainly unhappy. They tell of sleepless nights, restless days, untouched food, unstrung nerves. And then they tell how they became happy, healthy and strong once more. You have heard it often in the past, have you not? You have heard people describe how they were cured and kept in health? You certainly can remember what it is that has so helped people in America. If not, listen to what Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller, who is known universally as the great dress reformer, says: "Six years ago, when suffering from mental care and overwork, I received the most pronounced benefit from the use of that great medicine, Warner's Safe Cure." Ah, now you remember. Now you recall how many people you have heard say this same thing. Now you recollect how much you have heard of this great Cure. Now you are ready to admit that memory is usually pleasing, that the highest pleasure comes from perfect health, and that this great remedy has done more to produce and prolong health than any other discovery ever known in the entire history of the whole world.

The Beginning of the End.

"Now that we have become engaged, dearest," she murmured coyly, "I thought it best to order several new gowns, so that after we are married we shall be prepared."

"You could not have done better," replied the young man. "And now, darling, after this is over there is but one thing more to do."

"What is that?" replied the fair girl.

"That," he replied, with a hard, set look in his face, "is to discharge the the dress-maker."—Cloak Review.

Rev. DeWeese and family went Tuesday of this week to Bourbon, his new field of labor for the coming year. A Methodist minister can as a rule truly say "we are pilgrims and travelers through this vale of tears."

William Freeman, an old time school teacher in this county, who has been absent 26 years was in town calling on old acquaintences. He is a member of the 30th Regiment Ind. Vols., and is now a physician and resides at Madison, Indiana.

Friday morning a new flag-pole at the school house greeted our vision. The other was an eye sore; this is very tall, straight, and beautifully tapering to the top. The flag waves gaily and daily from a height far above the highest point of the school house.

Monday seven of the ladies of Auburn who were invited to the L. M. C. reception but who did not attend on account of the short time intervening between trains, came over on the cars, and scattered over the town, on their arrival, to call upon the ladies who had invited them and probably Mrs. Kennedy. The ladies were, Mesdames Ralston, Barns, Davis, Rose, Moss, Richards and Schaab.

One pleasant feature of the reception of the L. M. C. your correspondent, omitted last week. To each guest a souvenir in the form of a card was presented, bearing the letters L. M. C., and also an oak branch painted in oil with a cluster of acorns and a spray of leaves, also an owl perched on the branch. The owl is the emblem of Minerva, the goddess of wisdom, from whom the club take their name, the acorn is the Chautauqua emblem, and as the class are in their third year of that course, it was suitable to combine the two. A narrow red ribbon (the color for the evening) was attached to one corner of the card for conveniently fastening to a gentleman's buttonhole or a lady's corsage button.

Considerable of a fire scare took place last Saturday in the Frank Latson building on Broadway. It proved to be the soot burning in a long, horizontal stovepipe, passing through a narrow passage way.

Jeff. Boyle came near having his residence, the John Higgins' house, reduced to an ash heap one night last week. During the absence of the family, a lamp exploded and destroyed a dresser, burned the carpet and did other damage, and actually went out of its own accord, supposed to have been stopped by some bottles of medicine that were sitting upon the dresser and broke from the heat. Insured with J. A. Campbell.

Fifty Years Married

We referred recently to our friends, G. W. Reed and J. J. Latson, whose golden weddings were the 5th and 7th of April. Mr. Latson and wife called in all their children on the 7th and had a regular reunion. They have had nine children and all were present. There were three sons, Wil, Frank and Joel, and six daughters, Mrs. Emer Green, Mrs. Phil. Plum, Mrs. A. J. Baxter, Mrs. H Britton, Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Shaffer' They had a jolly meeting and a splendid dinner, and then, they nearly took the old folks' breath away by presenting them five half eagles in gold. Here Uncle Jimmy tried to make a speech to thank the donors, but he couldn't. It was harder work even than when he used to respond to a nomination for coroner, on which occasions he always got hearty cheers. Long may Mr. and Mrs. Latson enjoy the good things of this very good world of ours. We might add that besides, the gold pieces mentioned, they received several gold dollars, and many other valuable gifts. We have received a nicely written article by Mrs. Phil. Plum, that we would gladly have used instead of this, but the above was already in type.

Was It Modern?

Rumor has it, that, one night last week, a party was given in town, to which a number of our young ladies and gentlemen were invited. The program was to consist of innocent amusements, maple taffy and a surprise. The innocence of the amusement seemed to be conducive to the real enjoyment of all, and the rich taffy was immense, but when it came to the surprise, the gallant young knights of society's grange, were not so well pleased. They were informed, by the one whose duty it was to give that information, that each young man was expected to pay seventeen cents toward the expenses of this festive occasion. We have a very liberal kind of young men, who do not object to bearing any reasonable and understood expenses, but at this particular time, it seems the patience of some of them was tried, though they seek no retaliation. This modern age is a great age, but when young people are invited to a free entertainment they don't care to be made the subjects of an especially levied taxation, through an underhanded scheme to pay expenses.

Music.

How wondrously enchanting it is to the ear of mortal men, when the tide of his spirits is ebbing low on the sands of disconsolation, and the vicissitudes and adversities of this life darken the luster of his brightest hopes behind the murky clouds of obscurity, for him to be brought beneath the infinitely soothing and supremely inspiring influence of music. Oh, music, thou serene element of heaven born art, to thee poor, weak mortality owes its gladdest joy! Music, when rendered by a real artist, has the indescribable power of awakening a living interest in the dullest mind, and new emotions in the broken heart, when impenetrable gloom seems to swallow up every noble instinct through the gratification of its gluttonous greed and nothing else could possibly afford relief. The guitar, as a musical instrument, has a delicate attraction and when the tiny strings are struck by the impassioned—almost inspired fingers of the artist, the deep tones swell to richest melody, while the the tinkling sounds peal forth sweetly, rising in gentle waves of immensity to die away in rippling murmurings of broken loveliness, and echo back from the hallowed distance a greeting to the respondent chord in the human heart, whose throbbings keep time to the wooings of divine inspiration, and the imagination is carried away into the happy realm beyond this vale of shadowy mists, where the soul drinks deep at the fountain of heavenly delight and fancy mounts to lofty space where the silvery waves of love and absolute entirety wash the golden shores of supremacy, to disclose a scene so entrancing as to fix the eternal anticipations of the mind upon the glories of a celestial world, where the anthems of heaven are chanted by angel voices, whose rythm banishes pain and and sorrow and brings to consciousness an endless immortality. Billy Miller, the Seventh street barber, is an accomplished player and those who hear him play those sweetly harmonic Spanish airs are pleased.

An Important New Publication.

The issue of "King's United States of To-Day; a Handbook of all the States and Territories," marks the completion of a great enterprise. It is a marvelous summary of every fact covering the beginning, the growth and especially the present development and resources of each state and territory. Prof Greenwood, a prominent educator, says it is "the most complete, compact, solidified, instructive and useful mass of information of all the states and territories that has ever been published." It is commended in similar terms by such men as Pres. Dwight of Yale, Pres. Adams of Cornell, Pres Patton of Princeton, Wm. M Evarts, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Cardinal Gibbons and many others.

It contains complete maps of every state and territory, and about 3,000 fine engravings, showing the chief objects of interest, including grand scenery, chief cities, public buildings, educational institutions, manufactories, etc. These with the array of statistics and vivid, concise narrative, present a glowing picture with pen and pencil of the greatness and glory of our Republic, while the mass of information given is just what is needed for quick reference in every office, store, factory, shop and home in the land. It is sold by subscription, and as the price is only $2 50 it must meet with an immense sale. Agency may be secured by addressing C. B Beach & Co., Publishers, Lakeside Building, Chicago.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1861—Continued.

The procession marched to the grove where Rev. James Hadsell officiated as Chaplain, James Colgrove read the declaration of Independence and following the singing by the glee club of the Star Spangled Banner, and the Red, White and Blue, most appropriate and deservedly popular patriotic songs, the Hon. A. M. Latta, of Ligonier was introduced as the orator of the day.

In this connection, the following expression has been proved prophetic: "Within a few years there will be no honored silver hairs to remind us of this natal day. Great changes will take place and when this rebellion is put down, another day may be placed upon the national calendar for us to hold in grateful remembrance to awaken pure feelings of patriotism and freedom."

In October, Oliver P. Morton, Indiana's justly famous war governor thus addressed the people of the state. "Let personal and private interests submit to the overruling necessities of the hour and let us show to the world by the sacrifices we are willing to make in person and in property, that we are worthy of the trust bequeathed by our predecessors.

Upon those who remain at home, I would urge the solemn duty of making provision for the families of those who enter the army. The soldier in the field should have sweet assurance that his wife and children and all who are dependent upon his labors for a living would be provided with sufficient food and clothing. Such assurance would nerve his arm in the hour of battle and enable him to bear with cheerfulness the hardships and privations of a soldier's life. It would be a lasting disgrace to our people if the family of any soldier should want for bread or raiment, while our country is full of the necessaries of life. Town, township and neighborhood should take efficient and systematic steps to bring relief to those in the field and those depending on them at home."

This eloquent appeal met immediate general response. County, towns and neighborhoods, vied with each other in providing the relief suggested. Individual, organized and official provision was made for help and encouragement of the soldier.

Meetings were held in the M. E. church, stirring speeches were made and an enthusiastic Soldiers' Aid Society was formed. The ladies of Auburn nobly assisted by the patriotic women residing in the vicinity gave their heartiest endeavors for the good cause.

When the soldiers were on the eve of departure, a bounteous dinner was provided for them, and Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Case Mrs. Finney and Mrs. Chamberlain, were among the leaders of those who made the occasion memorable.

When the volunteers were in the field, the women labored earnestly preparing clothing and delicacies for the sick, and box followed box from homes and societies, on their way by express to Cincinnati and Louisville, where their contents were faithfully distributed to soldiers in the hospitals.

Nor were the county authorities behind hand but through the Commissioners, Messrs. Provines, Buchanan and Fusselman, authorized the allowance of small sums for furnishing families of volunteers with needed supplies of wood, food, medicine and clothing.

These allowances rapidly grew with the numbers leaving for the army till the aggregate became a large sum. Town and county, proved themselves, "Worthy of the trust bequeathed by our predecessors."

Meantime, professional, business and other societary interests followed a common routine.

The Press and the New Era found their work difficult. The former crippled for help, two employes, Kimsey and Baxter having volunteered, reduced the size of its sheet and the latter, aided for six months ending with the issue of July 26, by James Brinkerhoff as associate editor, after that date was continued by Mr. Loveland, alone.

Although Loveland claimed 800 in circulation and earnings of $1,500 a year, at $800 expenditure, he was wearied of the office and wished to rent to "a good printer, democrat and Union man, and would sell if he could," but he couldn't and so perforce continued.

A co-partnership in the practice of medicine was formed between Doctors Chamberlain and D. J. Swarts, both of whom after serving in the army as surgeons, returned to the county, and the one at Waterloo, the other at Auburn, hold high rank for experience and skill in the ranks of their profession.

The firm of Sherlock & Shaw had established marble works about the first of the year. Shaw soon retired and left his partner to continue a business which our enterprising friends Smith & Madden, have found lucrative and have in years brought to a high standard of quality and workmanship.

About the last of February, in consonance with the custom and necessity of store-keepers throughout the entire country, Auburn merchants made their several preparations for going East to purchase stock for the spring trade. Among those then taking the journey, which was something of an event, were Aaron Wolf and M. L. Rhodes, who in the wholesale houses of New York and Philadelphia, selected such goods as experience had shown, were desirable in this locality.

All this is now changed and the business man whatever his line, no longer seeks the wholesale dealer, but instead, the traveling or commercial man representing the house does Auburn, on his route at stated intervals and seeks him.

Our draymen are familiar with the sample trunk; the man with the valise patronizes the hack, and it is solely the fault of our merchant, grocer or manufacturer if he does not select at his leisure what he wants with saving of exertion, time and money.

When Mr. Dickinson removed to Waterloo, he was commissioned postmaster of that growing town, and in May, 1860, the Auburn postoffice had passed into the hands of Wyllys Griswold, who having been in turn superseded on Feb. 1, 1861, by Christopher S. Hare, that townsman appointed M. L. Rhodes, his deputy and the office was kept in the brick store.

On May 17, following, James W. Case, Esq., was commissioned postmaster at Auburn, and entered upon the light duties of the office. Patrons had only benefit of a tri-weekly mail, but the correspondence between soldiers and those at home materially augmented the mail as the former were inveterate writers and took every occasion to relate their experiences to parents, brothers and sisters.

(To be continued next week.)

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursionists, pleasure seekers and sportsmen should figure out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightfully cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill., Lake Villa, Ill., Mukwonago, Waukesha, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waupaca, Fifield, Butternut and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last five years become the center of attraction for more pleasure seekers, hunters and fisherman than in any other state in the union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the balsam fragrance that is a part of the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the colonnades of stately pines and hook the speckled beauties with a hand-made fly.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of Gov. Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere handful of bones. Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 6

The Century Magazine,

The Century will take up the campaign for good roads. The April number is to contain a suggestive article on "Our Common Roads," by Isaac B. Potter, editor of "Good Roads," and a practical engineer.

The author points out the enormous loss to this country through the present general condition of American roads, a loss which falls not only upon the farmer, but upon city people as well, who are compelled to pay unnecessary prices for having produce brought to them. An American consul in France reports that the road system of that country (the most perfect system in the world) "has been of greater value of to the country as a means of raising the value of lands than have the railways." In France every market-cart, with its broad tire, is a road maker. Mr. Potter's article is full of practical suggestion for the betterment of American roads, and it is fully illustrated.

Galveston, Tex., has raised $80,000 of the $150,000 which it pledged towards the state world's fair fund. The city is alive with enthusiasm over the fair and is holding public meetings, torch-light processions, etc.

She Committed Suicide.

You do not know what these long, wakeful, wretched nights are to me, and I am so tired, darling—the pain will never be better. It is not easy to take my own life, but I have been sick so long. Good bye, my husband, I love you—your wife.' This is but one of thousands that gives up, instead of using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and become speedily cured of their wretchedness. Go to F. E. The New Great South American Kidney Cure.

The acknowledged superior cure and immediate relief for all derangements, painfulness and decay of the kidneys or bladder, Bright's disease, diabetes or any complaint that hurts or despoils either of these delicate organs. This new remedy has been thoroughly tested by learned physicians and found far superior to any medicine yet discovered for quickly relieving all weaknesses, aches, pains and distresses arising from disease of any part of the urinary passages. It is a great relief for the old, middle aged and children, male or female. It relieves at once retention and pain in passing water, and it is very effective in relieving prostatic troubles in the old, and for nightly incontinence of water in children, or others, caused by weakness of the bladder. It may be worth to many a hundred times its cost. This is a remedy of great value to ladies, because they are very liable to weakness and pain peculiar to their sex. Outbreak on the Texas Border—The Anti-Lottery Democrats Carry Louisiana—Thousands of Boomers Racing for Lands in Oklahoma—Gas Explosion.

OVER THE BORDER.

Thousands of Boomers Racing for Lands in Oklahoma.

A special from El Reno, O. T., dated the 20th inst., says: Just at noon, as provided by the President's proclamation, the cannon thundered for the signal, carbines repeated it and nearly 30,000 men, on horseback, in wagons and on foot, rushed into the country of the Cheyennes and Arapahoes. Animals drawn from the Cherokee strip to the country of the Wichitas, and from Oklahoma to No Man's Land rush over flat and hollow, under whip and spur, madly racing for quarter sections and town sites.

A field piece had been hauled from the fortress stationed on a high knoll, and as the hour for the dash drew near, the word went down the line. Horsemen twisted to see that their saddles were tight and drivers looked to their harness. About 9 o'clock the boomers began to line up. In all places where there was any considerable crowd there were detachments of troops stationed about a half mile apart, where the country was level, and closer when necessary. Wherever the soldiers were not able to be present the people acted as a check upon one another, and there were very few men who drove an inch over the line before 12 o'clock.

By 11 o'clock everything was in readiness for the start. Just at noon the sharp report of the cannon followed by the crack of carbines sounded and the next second the horses were off. The horsemen sprang away as though they were riding a quarter dash. The wagoners put the whip to their beasts. There was a cloud of dust and the flood of pale faces swept into the country. The soldiers at the signal put spurs to their horses and flew to get away from the rush behind them. After a ride of a mile or two, they formed a line. Every man seemed to know just where he was going, and headed for his longed-for land without even bestowing a glance of attention at his brother rushers.

Outbreak on the Texas Border.

San Antonio (Texas) special: The following dispatch was received here from Rio Grande City, signed by United States Deputy Marshal Van Eyster: "On April 20, at Sunrise, at a point forty-five miles north of here, W. W. Shelly, Sheriff of Starr County, with seven men, suddenly came upon a detachment of thirty revolutionists. Both sides stood their ground and a fight ensued. After the first fire the Sheriff and J. B. Carlino were wounded. The revolutionists were too strong, and the officers, being unable to cope with them, successfully beat a retreat. Two of the revolutionists were killed, but none of them were captured alive. Troop "G," United States Third Cavalry, has left for the scene of the fight. The news of the outbreak has created much excitement along the border."

Larkin Lancaster Hanged.

Larkin Lancaster was hanged at Pulaski, Tenn., for the murder of Alonzo Dickson in November, 1888. Lancaster has been tried and convicted three times, the case having been twice reversed and remanded by the Supreme Court. The evidence was purely circumstantial. Lancaster denied his guilt to the last, but his son made a statement in which he declares that his father knocked Dickson on the head with a gun stock, making him unconscious. When he revived he begged for mercy. Lancaster then shot him in the head, and under threats of death compelled the son to help cut up the body, which they sunk in Richland Creek.

The Anti-Lottery Democrats Win.

New Orleans special: Foster, the anti-lottery Democrat, has apparently carried the State and Fitzpatrick is probably elected Mayor of New Orleans. There were five tickets in the field, one headed by McEnery (Dem.,) one by Foster (Dem.,) one by Breaux (Rep.,) one by Tannehill (People's party,) and one by Leonard (Rep.)

Canada May Annex Newfoundland.

Ottawa special: The Dominion Government has sent a communication to the Newfoundland Government proposing that each Government appoint two commissioners to settle all difficulties between the Dominion and the colony. If the proposal is accepted it is said that the ultimate result will lead to the anexation of Newfoundland to the Dominion.

Wrecked by a Gas Explosion.

The building at the corner of Second and Woodbridge streets, Detroit, occupied by Teuton, McWilliams & Co., wholesale grocers and marine outfitters, was wrecked by a gas explosion. John McBain was seriously hurt and three members of the firm were burned. The exact cause of the explosion is unknown.

DOWNFALL OF A SOCIETY MAN.

Copeland J. Snapp of St. Paul, Arrested for Having Stolen $4,000.

St. Paul (Minn.) special: Sheriff Bean and two of his deputies rounded up Copeland J. Snapp, one of the worst criminals in the country. He confessed his latest crime, that of robbing the Northern Pacific Railway Company of $4,788. One of the most remarkable things about it all is that he has for several years been a society leader in St. Paul, and less than two years ago he married Miss Sue Farrington, daughter of John Farrington, Collector of Customs during the Cleveland administration. The real sensation in the matter, however, came out when it was learned that, with two city officials of Louisville in 1880, Snapp robbed the Kentucky city of from $750,000 to $1,000,000; all the men were arrested and sentenced to long terms in the Kentucky State prison. His accomplices served their terms, but Snapp carried his case to the Supreme Court and escaped on a technicality.

RUSSIA FORTIFIES HERSELF

By Making Sebastopol the Most Formidable Stronghold on Her Borders!

Vienna special: Russia is said to be fortifying Sebastopol in a most formidable manner. Two new forts built to withstand the most formidable artillery of the day, with extensive surrounding outworks, are in a forward state. The Twelve Apostles, which has been built at Nicolaieaff and was launched seventeen months ago, leaves Nicolaieaff this month for Sebastopol where she will receive her guns. The new iron clad which was recently launched at Sebastopol, is now painting and equipping with great speed. Men were kept at work night and day. The Russian volunteer fleet has also been increased during the past two months by two fast cruisers, the Saratoff, from England, which cost upwards of £135,000, and the other, also from England, which cost upwards of £120,000. Two more cruisers have been ordered from England.

DARING ROBBERY!

An Illinois Central Train Held Up.

New Orleans special: The Chicago train of the Illinois Central was held up by four men at a point just below Independence, La. Two men boarded the train at Hammond Station and covering the engineer and fireman ordered them to go ahead and take the siding at Independence so that the down train could pass. After the down train had passed two other men who were standing on the track joined their confederates and ordered the train back to the seventy-seven mile post. The men, at the point of pistols, made the engineer and fireman go back and open the express door. They robbed the Southern Express Company's safe of several thousand dollars, estimated from $5,000 to $10,000, a lot of New York exchange and a package of lottery tickets. The authorities at Jackson have been notified, as well as those of adjoining towns, and bloodhounds will be placed on the track of the robbers.

Italy and the United States at Peace.

Washington special: The official correspondence closes the incident of diplomatic nature of the friendly relations which existed between the United States and Italy on account of the New Orleans massacre are published and confirm and earlier telegram. The United States pays the families of the massacred Italians 125,000 francs.

The money, which was paid to Marquis Imperiali, was taken from the fund which is usually appropriated for the State Department, to be used in emergencies, and for special and extraordinary purposes, such as the present. The fund for the current year amounted to $80,000 and has been drawn upon in addition to this $25,000 for expenses at Santiago and Valparaiso during the Chilian controversy and to meet the expenses connected with Behring Sea negotiation.

Dynamiter Arrested.

Indianapolis special: Some time ago a peculiar-looking German, a stranger in the city, was observed loitering in the wholesale district and around the public buildings and the detectives placed him under surveillance. He was traced to his room, where it was discovered that he frequently received calls from mysterious persons. The other night he was arrested. In his room was found a quantity of dynamite and fuses and several caps similar to those used by Lingg, the Anarchist, when he committed suicide. The stranger registered as Joseph A. Schadler. He claimed to be from Chicago, and afterward said he was in business in East St. Louis until he was robbed of $28,000 by employes. The authorities here ordered his detention for further examination.

Indiana Spring Races.

Indianapols special: A meeting of those interested in horses and races was held at the Grand Hotel, to arrange the purses and classes of the spring races in the Indiana circuit. Dates for the entire circuit were agreed upon as follows: Terre Haute, June 7-10; Kokomo, 14-17; Peru, June 21-24; Elkhart, June 28 to July 1; Fort Wayne, July 4-8; Richmond, July 12-15; Indianapolis, July 19-22; Rushville, July 26-29; Columbus, August 2-5. The purses aggregate $60,000. The classes and purses were arranged for the entire circuit. Indianapolis makes the largest offers ever hung at a spring circuit in this State. The Indianapolis Driving Club was admitted as a member, taking the place of Cambridge City.

Sensational Charge.

Lawyer R. L. Summerlin of San Antonio, Texas, is in Washington, and announces that he is seeking justice for the family of Garza, the revolutionist, and for a good many others on the Texas border who claim that they have been maltreated by the United States troops under Capt. John G. Bourke. Mr. Summerlin says he has over fifty affidavits with him charging the most wanton cruelty on the part of Capt. Bourke. Refusing people water to drink, striking an old gentleman in the face with his fist, dragging a mother from her 2-months-old babe and choking and beating a decrepit old man of 70, are some of the acts, Mr. Summerlin says, with which the Captain is charged.

A Persecuted Minister.

Attired in a striped prison suit at the Washington Work House and serving time as a prisoner on a charge of vagrancy is a regularly ordained minister of the gospel. He is from Ohio and has his credentials as a preacher and other documentary evidence. He says that were Christ upon earth now, and in the city of Washington, and attired in purple robes, he would no doubt be arrested and sent down on a charge of vagrancy. Christ was lowly and went about preaching the gospel on the highways and byways, and that was the only offence he (the preacher) had committed.

Dreadful Accident at London.

London special: Thousands of excursionists visited Hampstead Heath. On their return a great rush was made for the trains. In the crush some one fell at the foot of a staircase of the railway station and in a moment hundreds of persons above were thrown into a struggling heap. Two women and six children were killed and thirteen others were seriously injured.

A Double Tragedy.

A double tragedy occurred at Dayton, Ohio, in which John E. Geist killed his wife, Alice, and then shot himself. They have been married about nineteen years, and have a son, Samuel, aged 17, at the Ohio Reform Farm, and have not lived happily together of late years. Geist has been jealous of his wife, and he, being under the influence of liquor, accused her of harboring other men. He became excited, and as he drew a revolver Mrs. Geist screamed and started to run, when he shot her in the head, killing her instantly. He then fired a bullet into his own heart and dropped dead. Geist was an industrious carpenter, and married at Middletown, Ohio.

Why He Shot Van Fleet.

Governor Boyd has issued a pardon to Captain A. D. Yocum, who was sentenced recently to one year's imprisonment by the District Court at Hastings, Neb., for the killing of Myron Van Fleet, correspondent of a sensational sheet at Lincoln. Van Fleet, it was alleged, had written a scurrilious article attacking the chastity of the Captain's daughter, who, the article alleged, had eloped with a negro coachman. Captain Yocum was absent when the article appeared, but when he returned he investigated the matter, and, claiming to have discovered that Van Fleet was its author, he shot him down in the street.

Retaliation.

Ottawa (Ont.) special: It now appears that the dominion government has abandoned all hope of effecting a reconciliation with New Foundland, and in order to enable them to retaliate against the aggressive policy which the New Foundland Government has directed against Canadian fishing vessels, Minister of Marine Tupper has introduced a bill which gives the Government the power to retaliate against New Foundland vessels entering Canadian waters in the same way that Canadian vessels in the waters of the colony are dealt with.

No Revelation.

The conference of Mormons at Independence, Mo., is a thing of the past and the faithful are disappointed in that there was no revelation by President Smith, filling the vacancy in the presidency. This vacancy has not been filled since 1888, when the brother of President Smith was removed from the position on account of his insanity. The last day was spent in bidding god speed to the missionaries who were ready to depart for their fields. The meeting adjourned to April 6, 1893, when the conference will meet at Raymond, Iowa.

Fifty Thousand Dollars in Horse Flesh Consumed by the Flames.

The large stock barn of Elisha Carr, near Charlestown, Ind., was struck by lightning and entirely destroyed. In the barn were nine blooded horses, which were burned to death. Among them was the trotter "Kentucky Ruler," which was valued at $25,000. The rest of the horses were worth about the same amount. There was no insurance.

Trouble Feared.

London special: Apprehensions of trouble on May Day have been revived by an article in the Times which estimates that 2,000,000 Socialists will parade. The news from other countries is not so reassuring as it is from France, and should trouble occur it would occasion no surprise.

Accidentally Killed His Friend.

At Bloomington, Ind., while John Chambers and William Doub were handling a rifle, it was accidentally discharged in the hands of Doub. The ball pierced Chambers' brain and he died almost instantly. Both were sons of prominent Harrodsburg citizens.

A Father's Crime.

At Niles, Ohio, Samuel Williams, an employe of the Falcon rolling mill, returned from work crazed with liquor and attempted to drive his entire family from the house. He fractured his daughter's skull and then cut his own throat, dying soon after.

$1,500,000 for the Anaconda Mines.

A controlling interest in the Anaconda Mines, at Cripple Creek, Cal., has been sold for $1,500,000 to a local capitalist and agents. The property includes the Great View Mines, said to be the richest gold mine in the United States.

Thinks It Must Be True.

Senator Gorman, when asked concerning the story that he intended to give up the chairmanship of the National Democratic Executive Committee, said: "I don't know where the story came from, but I think it must be true."

Murder at East Liverpool.

At East Liverpool, Ohio, William Cessassa, a restaurant keeper, in a religious rage shot W. H. Spencer, a leading attorney, and probably fatally wounded Frank Spencer, his brother, whom it is thought will die.

Fierce Prairie Fires.

A tremendous and disastrous prairie fire is raging in the northwestern part of Kit Carson County, Colorado. The region is thickly settled with ranchmen and the damage will be very heavy.

WILD RACE FOR HOMES.

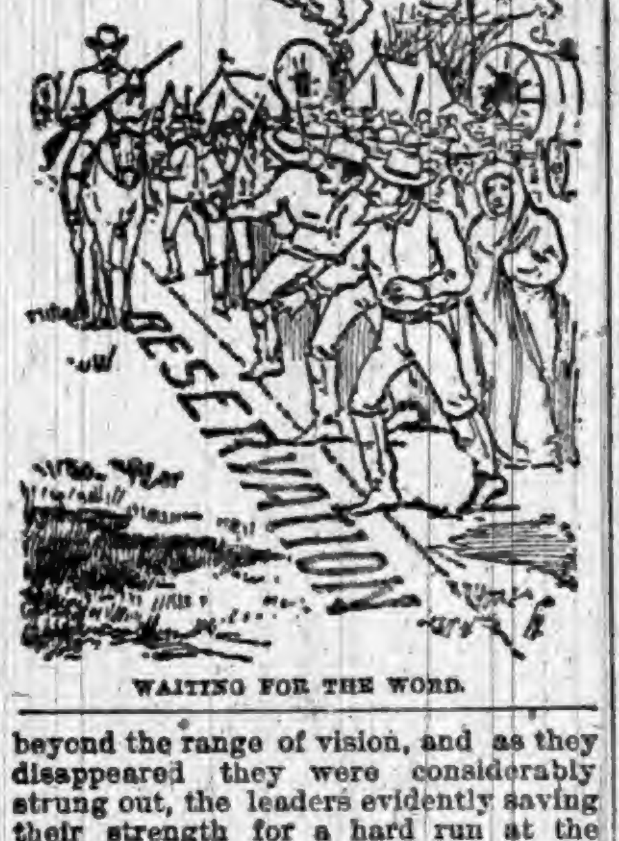
SCRAMBLE OF HUNDREDS OF BOOMERS FOR CLAIMS.

Scenes Attending the Race Across the Line—A Good Deal of the Land Still Left for Settlers—The Situation in Oklahoma.

Opening of Sisseton Sections.

Says a dispatch from Brown's Valley, Minn.: The sharp, clear note of a bugle at noon Friday, the almost simultaneous crack of a carbine, then a volley from the whole far-reaching line of cavalry as the signal was taken up and carried in a reverberating report to thousands of waiting ears, a few more halting shots, becoming fainter as the distance increased, and the Sisseton reservation was at last open. The military withdrew from the border and rejoined their companies. From the brush along the shore of the Minnesota River, from ravines hitherto held to be unpopulated, from every conceivable spot bordering on the reservation that could shelter a man, horse or wagon there sprung hordes of home-seekers. There were all sorts and conditions of men. Some who had never passed a night out of doors in their lives slept on the damp ground with naught but the starry sky above them. The west shore of Lake Traverse is the border line of the reservation for almost its entire length. A fleet of rafts and other hastily improvised craft laden with household goods so that their gunwales came within a few inches of the water lay along the shore awaiting the stroke of 12. Many of their occupants had not tasted food for twenty hours. Hundreds lined the way all along the border from Hankinson south. At Wheaton was the greatest crowd, for it was the nearest point to the desirable lands.

It was a spectacle not easy to forget. With the crack of the carbines horses dashed madly forward, urged to desperate speed by their excited riders. Struggling along to the rear came loaded wagons, with from two to six horses on each. They were lashed unmercifully by their drivers. The cracking of whips, the dull thunder of hoofs in the damp sod and the yells of the drivers as they struggled for the lead filled the air with an unwonted din. Still farther to the rear came those without conveyances, struggling forward with their kits of tools until the reserve was dotted with them. The mounted crowd was soon beyond the range of vision, and as they disappeared they were considerably strung out, the leaders evidently saving their strength for a hard run at the finish.



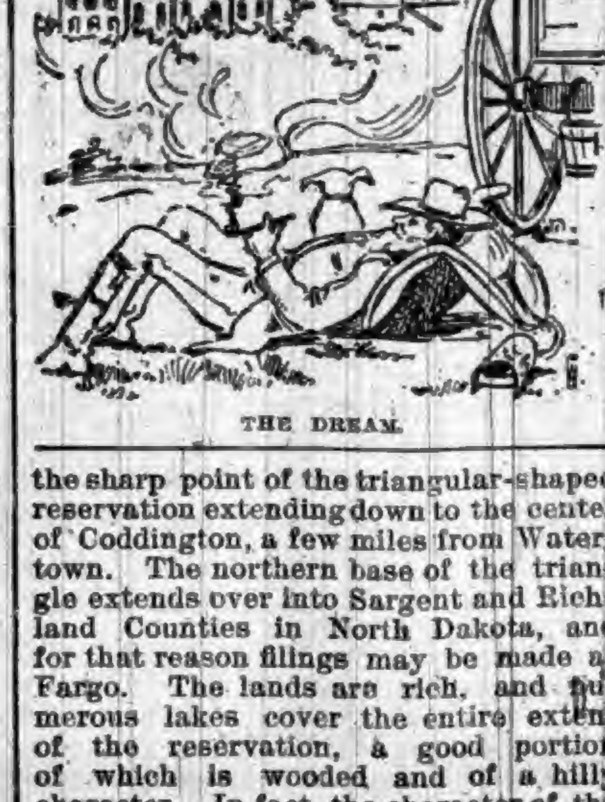
WAITING FOR THE WORD.

Ida Burnett, graduate of the University of Minnesota, a strikingly handsome girl, is possibly the possessor of the choicest quarter-section about the town site to the northwest. She has just a suspicion of Indian blood in her veins, and is a descendant of the Sioux race. She has been allotted land on the reserve. Behind the fastest team obtainable she was drawn to the town site from the agency. The start was made at gun-fire and the girl was first on the field. She staked out her claim and straighway went to work on the erection of a shanty, assisted by her driver.

Governor Mellette had 250 deputy sheriffs on the reserve, heavily armed and instructed to maintain order, peaceably if possible, forcibly if necessary. They checked several rows before serious results ensued.

The Sisseton Reservation.

The Sisseton Indian Reservation surplus lands that have been opened to settlement are located in the northeast corner of South Dakota, covering most of Roberts County, lapping over on the edge of Marshall and Day Counties, crossing the pan-handle of Grant, and the sharp point of the triangular-shaped reservation extending down to the center of Coddington, a few miles from Watertown. The northern base of the triangle extends over into Sargent and Richland Counties in North Dakota, and for that reason filings may be made at Fargo. The lands are rich, and numerous lakes cover the entire extent of the reservation, a good portion of which is wooded and of a hilly character. In fact, the character of the lands reflects much credit on the judgment of the Sisseton Indians, who chose this land as their reward for their help to the settlers in the Indian war of 1862. For nearly thirty years they held the reservation intact, but finally concluded they would prefer to have their lands in severalty and live like whites, so the matter was soon arranged, with the aid of a commission, and a scramble for lands was the result. The Indians have selected many of the best lands on the reservation, but it is estimated that enough for about four thousand claims of 160 acres each still remained up to the hour of opening.



THE DREAM.

On the Oklahoma Border.

The excitement over the Cheyenne and Arapahoe lands is quieting down, due principally to the fact that new arrivals are materially decreasing. The boomers in their wagons continue to pour in all along the border, but the crowd coming in by rail is not as large as that which moved on the Oklahoma country three years ago, and as the time for the opening draws near it begins to look as though the crowd that will go in will not be nearly as great as that which entered Oklahoma. This is due to the fact that three years ago thousands of people who were not farmers rushed to Guthrie, Oklahoma City, and the other towns, thinking that they would secure town lots that in a few years would make them rich, while the new towns in the Arapahoe and Cheyenne country will all be miles from any railroad, and do not invite this kind of immigration.

Many of the boomers, even those who have horses and wagons, do not seem to have any cash, though most of them have flour and bacon. The soldiers stationed along the northern border estimate that there are 3,500 people on that line east of Cantonment and about 1,000 west. There are perhaps 12,000 people ready to go in from the east and 7,000 or 8,000 in the Washita country, while about 3,000 Texans are drawn up along the south line. There are not many people on the west line.

THE AWAKENING.

On the north line, about ten miles east of Cantonment, there are 1,500 people from western Kansas camped in one bunch.

A Boy Reporter.

The reporter's pencil has trained many a hand for the novelist's pen. It trained Charles Dickens, who, at the age of nineteen years, did reporter's work of such excellent quality as to draw from the late Earl of Derby, then Lord Stanley, a prediction that the stripling reporter was destined for a great career.

Young Dickens had reported the last part of Lord Stanley's speech in the House of Commons against O'Connell. When the proofs of the speech were sent to Lord Stanley that gentleman returned them with the remark that the first two-thirds of it were so badly reported as to be unintelligible; but that if the gentleman who had reported the last part of it so admirably would call upon him he would repeat his speech and have it reported again.

Young Dickens, note-book in hand, made his appearance at Mr. Stanley's, and was reluctantly shown by the servant into the library. When the master of the house came in he expressed astonishment with his eyes as well as by his words.

"I beg pardon," said he, "but I had hoped to see the gentleman who had reported the last part of my speech."

"I am that gentleman," answered Dickens, turning red in the face.

"Oh, indeed!" said Stanley, turning to conceal a smile.

Sir James Graham then came in, and Stanley began his speech. At first he stood still, addressing one of the window-curtains as "Mr. Speaker." Then he walked up and down the room, gesticulating and declaiming with all the fire he had shown in the House of Commons.

Sir James, with a newspaper report before him, followed, and occasionally corrected Stanley. When the proof of the speech had been read by the orator, he returned it to the editor with a note predicting the future success of his young reporter.

Many years afterward Charles Dickens, the popular novelist, was invited to dine with Lord Derby. The guests were shown into the library, and Dickens, though he had forgotten the incident of the speech, felt a strange sensation, as if he had been there before.

At last something recalled the reporting adventure, and he reminded his host of it. Lord Derby was delighted to recognize in the popular novelist his boy reporter.—Youth's Companion.

Is Darwinism a Failure?

Since the Darwinian theory of the origin of man made its first victorious mark, twenty years ago, we have sought for the intermediate stages which were supposed to connect man with the apes; the proto man, the pro anthropos, is not yet discovered. For anthropological science the pro anthropos is even a subject of discussion. At that time in Innspruck the prospect was, apparently, that the course of descent from ape to man would be reconstructed all at once; but now we cannot even prove the descent of the separate races from one another. At this moment we are able to say that among the peoples of antiquity no single one was any nearer to the apes than we are.

At this moment I can affirm that there is not upon earth any absolutely unknown race of men. The least known of all are the people of the central mountainous district of the Malay Peninsula, but otherwise we know that the people of Terra del Fuego quite as well as the Esquimaux, Bashkirs, Polynesians, and Lapps. Nay, we know more of many of these races than we do of certain European tribes; I need only mention the Albanians. Every living race is still human; no single one has yet been found that we can designate as simian or quasi-simian. Even when in certain ones phenomena appear which are characteristic of the apes—e. g., the peculiar ape-like projections of the skull in certain races—still we cannot say that these men are ape-like.—Prof. Virchow, before the late Anthropological Congress in Vienna.

Bees.

There is a question in the minds of most beekeepers whether or not the acts of the bee are governed by instinct or reason. On this subject some take the position that the acts of the bees are governed by intelligent thought. To prove this they cite the fact that bees gather honey only in climates subject to winter weather. If our bees are taken to Australia, where the summers are perennial, they learn in a few years to store up no honey, gathering it only as they need it for sustaining life. The only way the Australian can get honey is to import queens from cold countries every few years, they not having learned that the storing up of honey is unnecessary.

THE old "Governor's mansion" in Corydon, which was occupied by the first Governor of Indiana, is being torn down. The building is a two-story brick and is now the property of Dr. A. E. L. Smith.

ALLAN VAUGHT, a youth residing near Solon, in Clark County, while playing in his father's barn, fell to his ground, a distance of fifteen feet, striking on his head and causing almost instant death.

AS EXECUTORS of the vast estate of Adam Wolfe, Jason Wilson, of Marion, and Mayor Arthur W. Brady of Muncie, gave the largest bond ever filed in Delaware County. The amount being $600,000.

EARL K. GLASS, Assistant City Engineer of Richmond, was found in his room recently, dead of apoplexy. He was 28 years old, and a leader in young people's religious circles. His remains will be shipped to his home at Knightstown, where his parents reside.

THE determination of the congregation of the Evangelical Church at Brazil to hold Sunday-school in spite of minister Winters, who refused to give up the key to the church, caused something of a sensation. The members of the church broke in and had services held a song and prayer-meeting in the evening, while the minister remained at home, refusing to come and preach to his flock. There is trouble between Mr. Winters and the congregation over the famous Dubbs-Bowman case, the minister having expelled the entire church, recently. The members bought a new lock, and now the minister is locked out. The preacher will resort to the courts.

WHEN the farm bell rang for supper at the home of Irvine Love, four miles east of Marion, the other night, Orville, the 15-year-old son, did not respond. The father called for the boy, who was finishing his evening work, and, receiving no answer, started in search of the tardy one. He found him lying on the ground in the barn-yard. He was unconscious and was bleeding from a wound in the head. They took him to the house, but the skull was crushed so as to lay bare the brains, and he died in thirty minutes. There were no witnesses to the accident, and how the boy was struck will probably never be known. It is supposed, however, that the colt which he had been watering struck him with its fore-foot.

THE Western Improvement Company is now building a fine hotel on its land near Yorktown, its dimensions being 100 feet long by sixty wide, and three stories high. The new flouring-mill, of 200 barrels capacity, at the head of the lake, has already been commenced. The aluminium works, from Bucyrus, O., are now at Yorktown, awaiting switching facilities which are being put in by the Big Four, that the machinery may be unloaded from the cars, and the building of the furnaces commenced. The brass and novelty works will be opened out with a full force of hands next week. The Yorktown brick factories are to furnish material for these buildings, which, with those yet to to be erected in the near future, will create a big demand for laborers. A car-load of carpenters had to be sent for last week.

ELMER WILLARD, desperado and highwayman, badly wanted in Logansport, was located at a farm house. The police and detective force attempted to capture him when he escaped under a hot fire.

THADDEUS HAYS, an 11-year-old boy, had his right arm cut off at the shoulder by a train he was attempting to board at Richmond. This family seems to be a very unlucky one. Two years ago another son was killed by the cars, and three years ago the father became insane, afterwards dying in the asylum.

FOOTY EGAN and James Ellis, each over 60 years old, "fell out" at Scot Hedrick's stable, in Marengo over the size of a jack, which Egan claimed was sixteen feet high. "Sixteen hands you mean," said Ellis, at which Egan grew angry, threw a pitch fork and struck Ellis in the neck. A fist and skull fight ensued and Ellis is badly injured.

Contrary to this devout wish, Beverly was again disturbed a few mornings later by a somewhat timid knock at his door.

"Who's there?" he called, not with the best grace in the world.

"Me, sir," came ungrammatically from his landlady.

"Will you be kind enough to wait a few moments, Mrs. Shrimp? I am not yet dressed."

"I'm sorry, sir. Don't wish to interfere with your arrangements for dressing. But there's a man down stairs, and there ain't no getting clear of him. Says he's in a hurry, and wants to see you, sir. I couldn't get him to state his business."

"I commend his good sense in that particular," muttered Beverly, sotto voce. "Just send him up, Mrs. Shrimp, and mildly inform him that this is not a fashionable calling hour. I'd be forever grateful if that woman would get a decent pair of shoes," he continued, as the sound of Mrs. Shrimp's slipshod feet echoed down the hall. After a few moments they returned, accompanied by a firm, heavy tread.

Beverly had gotten into his coat, and smoothed his hair into something like order, and, thus arrayed, he opened the door to his unexpected guest.

If his intellect shines as brilliantly as his trousers, he thought, with a glance at his portly visitor, "he is certainly an accomplished old gentleman.

"I believe I have not the pleasure of your acquaintance," he added aloud, closing the door.

"You will find my name there, sir."

"Ah! Mr. James Cox, solicitor," read Beverly from the somewhat crumpled card. "You are in good company, Mr. James Cox. I am a solicitor, too. A pair of rogues together, as it were. Excuse my spirits, please. Force of association, no doubt. The case before the court is Business vs. Pleasure. I don't know your opinion, but my verdict is in favor of the plaintiff. Curiosity is a quality, which, in our profession, at least, frequently leads to great results. By all means, then, let mine be gratified. Have I your permission to continue my toilet? I can listen with earnest attention, I assure you."

"My business is soon stated," was the quiet reply. "As a member of the bar, let me hope you will the more readily agree to an amicable settlement of our difficulty. May I sit down?"

"By all means. Difficulty, you say? Is it possible that—— But no matter. Sit down, I beg. Take your choice of chairs. That one by you has a weak back but a steady bottom, I believe. That old rocker there, looks innocent and comfortable. Don't trust it. This thing is ornamental, but apt to lose a leg on slight provocation. Perhaps the bed's the safest. Once more excuse my spirits. So delighted to have you with me."

Mr. Cox regarded Beverly with a slightly dubious air. Such lightness was not, in his estimation, in keeping with legal dignity.

"I am not here to trifle, sir," was his reply, as with some hesitation he took possession of the steady-bottomed chair, sitting bolt upright as a precaution against its weak back.

"I am here," he continued, in the same dignified tones, "on behalf of my client, Mr. Bailly, whose bill you——"

"That bill again," groaned Beverly, pausing in the tying of his cravat. "What under heaven possesses the man to keep at me in this way? I never bought a pin's worth from him in my life, and I certainly will not pay what I do not owe. Charity begins at home, and I have no money to throw away, I I assure you. You may tell Mr. Bailly so."

Mr. Cox appeared slightly surprised.

"I don't understand your denial of this claim. Mr. Bailly declares that he himself measured you for the articles mentioned, and that you offered to settle at the time, but that he, in view of your standing and prospects generally, preferred to keep the account open."

"Mr. Bailly is mistaken, and under the circumstance, I refuse to pay this bill. Good morning, sir."

Mr. Cox frowned at this cold dismissal.

"If this is your last words," he said quite calmly, "I have to inform you that my client will not receive it. He is not anxious to be involved in the trouble and expense of a lawsuit. Yet, if other means fail, he will not hesitate at extreme measures. Good morning, sir."

"Good morning, and good riddance," added Beverly, under his breath.

"Nothing but a swindling outrage," he continued, when his visitor had departed. "Of course, Mr. Bailly cannot get this $60 out of me, but he can give me no end of trouble, just at this particular time too, when I want to be free and easy. Upon the whole, it will be bettter to call upon him personally. Perhaps I shall get to the bottom of this business."

The same afternoon saw him in confidential conversation with Mr. Bailly.

"I cannot understand the mistake," that gentleman was saying. "The Mr. Beverly I have in my mind is about your size, though different in general appearance. He left his order last April, and it being the first time he had patronized my house, I was anxious to do my best. Several weeks after he dropped me a card with his address, and the information that he would be out of town for a month or so. Under the circumstances, your answer to my letter decidedly puzzled me. I felt there might be something behind it, and for that reason I sent Mr. Cox to you. I regret having given you this annoyance and trouble, and I really don't know what to make of the matter.

Beverly was also puzzled.

"The man tells the truth," he reflected. "Not the slightest doubt of that. But what of this other Jack Beverly? Does he really exist, or has some clever scoundrel imposed on Mr. Bailly? I should like to get at the bottom of the whole thing. And, by-the-way, those letters might possibly be explained. 'Pon my word, there's some mystery here. I wonder if I'm the man the Millards take me to be. Positively I don't know, and I don't believe I'll try to find out at this stage of the proceedings."

CHAPTER VIII.

"Grandpa, you have not admired my new hat. I have been here five minutes, and you have not noticed it."

"Haven't I, my dear? I find the face beneath it so much prettier that I must spend all my time on that."

"Oh, grandpa, what a flatterer you are!"

Mary's arms were about the old gentleman's neck, and a bear-like hug was the recompense for his compliment.

"But to return to my hat, because I must be going in a minute. Do you like it?"

"Very much. Is it your selection?"

He pretended to examine it critically.

"No; I really had nothing to do with it. Jeannette took upon herself to buy it; and what do you suppose she did with my old one?"

"I really cannot pretend to guess."

"Well, she burned it; actually put it in the kitchen stove. I was so mad. I did not care for the old thing, but her impudence was more than I could stand."

"She thought it had outlived its usefulness, Mary. Certainly this one is an improvement. Where are you off to now?"

"To drive with Mr. Beverly. I should have been ready a half hour ago, but life's too short to hurry."

"Better late than never," declared Jack when Mary found him two minutes later. "I've been practicing patience for the last quarter of an hour.

"A good thing to practice," commented Mary, as they drove off. "What did you think about while you waited?"

"Well, I thought it about time for me to be leaving, for one thing. I've staid an unconscionable time. Do you want me to go?"

"What a strange question. Do you doubt grandpa's sincerity?"

"By no means. I wish I were equally sure of your feelings."

"I have no feelings to be sure of," she rejoined, with some haste, and the consciousness of a new strange sensation at her heart.

"I fear Frank has proved himself a poor student of human nature. May I tell you what he said of you?"

"You may, but I shall not feel greatly interested, as I have not the slightest idea who Frank is."

"Not know who Frank is," he repeated, turning a surprised look upon her. "Of course you do."

"Of couse I don't."

"But you must," insisted Jack. "You've forgotten him. He's a fine fellow, but rather light. He likes you immensely, and admires Mr. Millard more than any man he knows, he told me."

"Does he? He is an appreciative youth. I begin to like him."

"Then please watch this growing attachment, or I shall become jealous. There's a fine view, but to appreciate it, we should be out of this carriage."

"Let us get out then. I'm tired of sitting, anyway. Aren't you?"

"Slightly. You never tire of sitting on a horse, though. Do you? Who taught you to ride, Miss May?"

"Toby. When I was a baby he used to take me to the fields and tie me on the horse's back. I loved it even then."

"I certainly congratulate your teacher. He should go to New York and go in the business."

"You forget his style is not New York style."

"True, we must consult fashion and not taste."

"I don't see why. I have no respect for people who think only of fashion. Besides, I don't like the New York style of riding. I prefer even mine."

"Do you?" he asked quizzically, and then with a daring he regretted immediately, he added, "Which style? You know you have two."

"Which?" she repeated, unable for one brief second to comprehend his meaning. "Ah," she added, with lips quivering, and eyes filled with passionate reproach, "You are generous."

"I am a brute," he answered penitently. "Forgive me, Mary, I am so sorry."

He approached her as he spoke, but with a gesture of abhorence she moved away from him.

"Don't come near me," she cried in a half smothered voice. "Don't dare to come near me. I won't believe you are sorry. You—you are only too glad to pain and embarrass me. You—— Don't interrupt me; I will have my say. You talk to me as you wouldn't dare to talk to those other girls you think so much of. They are not a bit better than I am—not one bit. I hate every one of them. I hate you, too. I hate you so much it almost suffocates me."

And as if to verify her words Mary sat flat on the grass and gave way to an angry burst of weeping.

"Mary," pleaded Jack, somewhat unsteadily, "you are making me feel awfully bad."

"I wish I could make you feel a thousand times worse," she returned indignantly, dashing the tears from her eyes. "I am a little fool to care. I don't care for what you said, but it is because you dared to say it that I feel ready to kill you."

"Mary——" he began again.

"Don't call me Mary," she interrupted with passionate emphasis, "I will never be Mary to you!"

"I have hoped to call you by a dearer name," he answered in a voice whose tenderness thrilled her, despite her determination not to be moved.

He came closer to her, and took one of her trembling hands.

She snatched it quickly away.

"I told you not to touch me," she said, but her voice was not as firm as she tried to make it.

Evidently Jack found some slight encouragement in this fact, for he did not retire immediately.

"You are not fair to me," he said, in some reproach: "I wish you could see the state of my mind."

"It was so ungenerous of you," was her rather weak rejoinder, as she turned her face aside.

"It was, indeed," he agreed, getting hold of her hand for the second time and managing to retain his advantage.

"It is so cold," he continued, referring to the hand, which he proceeded to stroke tenderly. "I wonder which is dearer to you, Mary, my love or your pride? Do you know that while you have been imagining my desperate admiration for those city girls, I have all the while been thinking of a little country girl infinitely more lovely and lovable."

"It is hard to believe," she protested, feeling her anger melt before Jack's pleasant way of expressing his sentiments, "and I do wish you would forget that dreadful thing. I know I should rather die than do it again. Don't look at me, please."

"I can't help it, Mary. So you don't take to unladylike actions naturally, do you?"

And Jack, growing momentarily bolder, slipped his arm about Mary's waist, and despite her resistance lifted her blushing face to view.

"Haven't you a word to say to me, darling?"

"I don't know what to say," she returned in a slightly smothered voice.

"You might say 'Jack, I love you,'" he suggested.

"Well, I do," was the low, half-audible answer.

"Oh, Mary," he cried, drawing her into a long, tender embrace, "I have all I desire."

Twenty minutes later Mary's healthy appetite began to assert itself, and with sudden remembrance the two lovers remembered Maje and the waiting carriage.

The independent Maje, however, growing tired of a performance in which he played so unimportant a part, had unceremoniously departed for home, taking the carriage with him.

"The old reprobate," said Jack, as they set out upon their two-mile walk. "I should like to thrash him."

CHAPTER IX.

All next day Mary felt really lonely. Jack had gone to New York by an early train on what he called a matter of business, and she did not expect him to return before the next day.

Meantime she decidedly missed him, though the suggestion of such a possibility would have been rejected with scorn a few days before.

Now it came to her quite suddenly, and with an intensity that was equal pain and pleasure, all that Jack had become to her.

A dozen times during the night she had started with a sweet thrill of pleasure, to find herself thinking of him. In a brief space the whole complexion of her life appeared changed. Her horizons grew broader; new hopes and ambitions came to fill her heart. Jack's wife might have many things to learn, she told herself, but she should not be found wanting. She had not confided her secret to her grandfather yet, though she knew he would be so pleased to hear it. She had determined to wait until Jack should return and they could tell him together. In the meanwhile she would hug it to her own heart with the happy sense of sole proprietorship.

Several times, however, in spite of her resolve, she was on the point of breaking out with her news, but she managed to control herself in time, and without awaking the suspicions of her grandfather or the more observing Jeannette. After dinner, feeling the necessity for active employment, she started for a walk. It was a cool afternoon, and she moved along briskly, her busy mind quite heedless of her surroundings, until after a long time she glanced up with a decided start.

"What a walk I've had," she said in surprise. "I do believe I can see Weston, and I am positive that is Mrs. Thomson's cottage just ahead. I think I must go in and ask for a glass of milk. I wonder if she'll remember me?

A few steps brought Mary to the little gate, which she opened, and passing up the narrow walk she knocked, half timidly, upon the unpretentious door.

"Don't you know me, Mrs. Thomson?" she asked, with a bright smile, of the pleasant-faced woman who answered her summons.

"Know you?" repeated the woman, with some hesitation; then with ready recognition she added: "To be sure I do, Miss Mary, though I ain't seen you in an age. Come in, miss, and rest. You must be tired with walking."

"Only a little. I had no idea of coming so far when I started. Indeed, I was quite surprised when I found myself so near your house. But under the circumstances I thought I'd come in for a chat, and—well, I must tell the truth—a glass of milk."

"You shall have one right off," responded the hospitable Mrs. Thomson, as Mary made her laughing admission. "I have some gingerbread, too," she added. "Baked this morning. Would you like——"

"Oh, wouldn't I," responded Mary enthusiastically. "You know my weakness, Mrs. Thomson."

MICHEL ANGELO.

The American Engraver Cole on the Great Artist.

I remember a picture by Gerome that represents Raphael in his first visit to the Sistine Chapel—that stolen visit recorded by Vasari, and in which Raphael is shown to be shrinking to the ground as he steals along with his head raised to the stupendous creations above him. Something of this feeling of shrinking always comes over me when I go into the Sistine Chapel. I have been much impressed, while engraving the "Cumæan Sibyl," with the incessant movement of Michel Angelo. It is endless, but most subtle. All is form with him—grandeur of form. Yet he has grand repose—the repose of the ocean—never at rest. If he should give way to the terrible within him. But he is always contained, and they are, to my thinking, mistaken in him who say he always "lets himself out." Where is there any such excess about him? It would be the height of all absurdity and weakness, found, no doubt, among his followers, with whom let those compare him who think he is "all blow," and they may then, perhaps, see or feel the profound depth and grandeur and forbearance he is possessed of, and the terrible inward power he suggests. Note the marvelous finish of his things, even to the minutest portions. His flesh is so highly finished that you feel its softness, and, when he sets his hand to finish, he slights nothing, and it is amazing what delicacy he can give. He paints the twisted thread in his "Three Fates" with the utmost fidelity; you note its twisted character throughout, and the light upon it, relieving it from the drapery here and there, and then the bunch of flax in its sheaf, most remarkable for lightness and delicacy of touch. I could not reproduce, should I engrave never so fine, the amazing quantity of work he puts in, and the finish and delicacy he gives to everything.

Michel Angelo's coloring is not what is generally known as rich, but it is perfection in the harmony and softness of tints. The frescos of the Vatican have darkened from dampness and smoke of incense, but it is easy to see that they must have been light in coloring—painted in a very high key. The highest lights even now approach pure white, while the darkest portions are gray and soft. The scheme of coloring in the whole is very refined; nothing is pronounced or positive. The tints are laid in broadly, and float tenderly into one another. The backgrounds to the figures and the skies are gray, the lightest portions nearly pure white, while the coloring of the robes is sometimes blue of a fresh, pure, delicate tint, red of a fine, soft, grayish tone, yellow inclining to old gold, and green of a most delicate soft gray tone; and then there are mixtures of these tones of fine subtle hues impossible to describe, but darkish and gray in tone. His flesh tints are finely worked, of a darkish warm gray tone. It is a grandeur and depth of coloring quite befitting the nobleness of the theme and execution.—The Century.

No Use for Them All.

The asteroids that lie between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter have become so difficult to keep track of, since they have been discovered at the rate of about twenty a year, that astronomers have recently decided to reject them, excepting the nearest and the most distant. The latter are important in observations of Jupiter, while the nearer ones are useful in more accurate calculations of the earth's distance from the sun.

Trust Should Be Mutual.

"Boss," said an aged colored man to a former employer of his, a Jefferson avenue merchant, Saturday, "I wish you'd lend me fo' dollars. We hain't got no coal nor nuffin' to eat."

"Why should I lend you $4?" was the reply: "how do I know you will ever pay it?"

"I'll pay it suah, boss, jest as suah as yer bawn, when I gets it."

"But how do I know you'll ever get it, Sam?" said the merchant; "I don't believe I ought to trust you."

"Hadn't ought to trus me, boss," said the old negro, reproachfully, "why, boss, if I had a thousand dollars I'd trus you wid every cent of it."

The argument was irresistible and brought the "fo' dollars."—Detroit Free Press.

A Narrow Escape.

"Don't be afraid to eat some of this angel food, Mr. Smith. I made it with my own hands."

"Miss Daisy, I don't think there's a man living worthy to eat angel food—especially when it is made by one so angelic as yourself. Please pass the bread;" and the perfidious wretch got away and lived to eat another day.—Detroit Free Press.

Thousands of dollars worth of chickens are destroyed by Cholera every year. It is more fatal to them than all other diseases combined. A 50-cent bottle is enough for 100 chickens. It is guaranteed. THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC —AND— Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Mr. Truit himself has been in poor health all the winter, but is now improving somewhat.

Musical Instruction.

A musical education in its technical and general sense, is one of the most genteel and commendable accomplishments a young lady or gentlemen can have. The finished musician can always find opportunities to delight and please all who may come within the hearing of those sweet, enrapturing tones, which peal forth so gently in harmonious perfectness, beneath the delicate touch of the fingers upon the silent ivories of a master of the heavenly art. About the first question that is asked, after being introduced to a circle of friends when there is an instrument, is, "Can you play?" If one can play, he or she is at once introduced to the most delicate and alluring sentiments of the hearers and in most cases gain their best regards, so far as accomplishments can go in that line. The time to get a musical education is while you are young. But in doing this it is very important, in this, as well as in a classical education, that you place yourself under the tuition of a competent instructor, who by long experience and earnest application to the art, has gained proficiency. Some teachers, sometimes, teach for the money there is in it, regardless of the pupils, while others are conscientious, and attempt to give an equivalent for value received. It is not presumed that any young person would care to spend their time and money for something and then not get it. Everyone wants the best, and it is the best they should have. As a musical instructor, Prof. J. I. Chaney stands among the first in this part of the country. He has attended some of the best schools of music and has fully fitted himself for the work, as his numerous pupils all over the country can testify, and his ability has gained for him golden opinions from such men as S. W. Straub and others. The following is what Mr. Straub has to say of him:

CHICAGO, Ill.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I consider J. I. Chaney a well qualified teacher of vocal music. He has attended several terms of the A. N. M. I., and made himself conversant with the best methods of imparting instruction. He has also had sufficient experience to make the theory of teaching practical. I cheerfully recommend him to any who wish to engage a thorough and conscientious teacher.

SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

The delegates to the joint-Senatorial Convention for Noble and DeKalb counties, will meet at Kendallville, the same day as the Congressional Convention, April 26, for the purpose of nominating a joint senator for the two counties.

PORT HURON, Mich., has a pulp factory that makes fabrics strong enough for clothing, such as the ordinary pieces of men's underwear.

CONGRESSIONAL convention next Tuesday at Kendallville, will be a close one, between McNagny and Robinson. The drift of sentiment in this county favors McNagny, and the same in Noble, while Steuben and Lagrange are solid for him. But no one can predict the result.

REPUBLICAN papers are saying we must have a duty on tin plate so our workmen will not have to make their wives help them make the plates as is done in Wales. Then they go on to say that the duty makes tin plate cheaper. In which case are they right? Don't all speak at once, now.

BLAINE last week sent the Italian government word that he and Harrison would pay $25,000 for the Italian murderers and cutthroats lynched at New Orleans. The Italians took the money too quick. We suppose now, republican editors will be calling this another triumph of the present administration over a foreign country.

THE recent census shows that the entire labor cost in woolen goods is but 23 per cent. If we compare this with the per cent of labor cost in Europe, it will be found that the labor cost here is not more than 5 to 14 per cent., higher. If a protective tariff is so adjusted as to pay this difference in labor, then 5 to 11 per cent., is ample. But the McKinley bill charges 35 to 60 per cent., and sometimes higher.

Republican Caucus.

The republicans met Friday evening at the Gandy & Nicky hall, the headquarters of the county Alliance. They were called to order by the Committeeman, Smith, and on motion E. D. Hartman was made chairman and W. B Campbell secretary. A motion prevailed that nominations are now in order. J. L. Davis announced H. E. Trout for councilman in the first ward, and G. A. Porter was also named by John Otto, but he declined and announced Otto, who also declined, and later on, D. S Ober was announced. G. H. Forkner having refused to run in the third ward, Joseph McKay and Ed. Weeks were announced, McKay was withdrawn and Reuben Lockwood put on. In the fourth Isaac Hague was named, but he replied he hoped some one else would be chosen, as he had held all the offices he cared to hold. For clerk, Ulysses Raut was named; for treasurer, H. B McCord and C. B. Weaver; for marshal, James Pearce and James McDowell, were named. A. J. Burk was announced, but declined. Hague for the fourth ward, and Raut were then nominated by acclamation there being no opposition. Voting then began. For trustee in first ward the first vote stood: Trout 37; Ober 36, with one "scattering," and as 38 was needed, there was no choice. The second vote gave Trout 46, and Ober 39 and Trout got it. For the third ward, the vote stood: Lockwood 45; Weeks 36 nominating Lockwood. For treasurer, the vote was: Weaver, 43, and McCord 38, giving it to Weaver. The first vote for marshal stood: McDowell, 31; Pearce, 39; Byron Rainier, 8; James Buss, 2. No choice. The votes for Buss were evidently meant for Pearce. A motion was offered by Emanuel, and carried, that votes for a person not known, or not a resident, should not be counted in any way, not even in making up the total. The second ballot showed: McDowell, 32; Pearce, 31; Rainier, 12. No choice. The third ballot was: McDowell, 33; Pearce, 23; Rainier, 13. No choice. Here Mr. Pearce withdrew. As Rainier's name had not been announced, J. L. Davis made a motion that this be done, and he was formally announced. Then the final vote was taken, being; McDowell, 54; Rainier, 27. The meeting then adjourned. On Monday, Lin Kahlman was put on the ticket for treasurer, as Weaver would not run.

THEIR TENTH REUNION.

The annual reunions of the L. L. C., are always delightful, and none more so than this, their tenth. At eight o'clock last evening, they and their fortunate guests, gathered at the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McCord, where the first and regular literary and social exercises were to be held.

The club was called to order by the president, Mrs. Emanuel, and at roll call each responded by a verse from an original poem by Mrs. Hodge—one very appropriate to the occasion. Then came the address of welcome by the president a neat and able speech, delivered with grace and dignity. Mrs. Garwood sang a solo, "When the Tide Comes in," a sweet song, and given with her usual good taste and ability.

"The Ruggles Family," a recitation by Mabel Hartman enlivened the company to the highest state of enthusiasm. It was one of the best of the many excellent recitations she has given. A nicely executed piano solo, "Galop di Bravura," by Mrs Tanberg came next, followed by Mr. Hanna, who sang a very fine solo, entitled, "Answered," both being heartily applauded. A brief season of social enjoyment followed.

At 10, the company repaired to the Hotel Hollister, where a splendid banquet awaited them, as will be seen by the

To this fight, let him depart.

After this had been fully discussed the toast mistress, Mrs. Emanuel took charge and called up each of the speakers in the order named, excepting Mr. Healy, whose place was taken by Mr. Wooton, Mr. Healy being engaged in the meetings now in progress at the Presbyterian church. The responses were in excellent taste, and to the point, showing careful preparation and ability. Each spoke to a "sentiment" as a text, Miss Hodge's sentiment being original. The following will show the character of the speeches:

THE COMING WOMAN.

Response by W. B. Campbell.

"The stars of midnight shall be dear
To her; and she shall lean her ear
In many a secret place,
Where rivulets dance their wayward round,
And beauty, born of murmuring sound,
Shall pass into her face."

THE POCKET BOOK.

Response by Dr. Lida Leasure.

"Whereunto is money good?
Who has it not wants hardihood,
Who has it has much trouble and care,
Who once has had it, has despair."

THE CHARACTER OF MACAULAY.

Response by Rev. A. S. Wooton.

"His life was gentle; and the elements so mixed in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world—This was a man."

THE COMING MAN.

Response by Julia Mott Hodge.

Are we, we women, quite content,
With what our fates have gi'en us,
Or would we fain another sort
Of men, there were, to win us.

These speeches were not only thoughtful, but witty and everybody was in a condition to enjoy them to the fullest, and they did, but we cannot mention all the bright things they said. Mr. Campbell's was thoughtful, scholarly and well delivered; that of Mrs. Leasure was witty, and yet full of sound sense; she is always able; Mr. Wooton's full of good thoughts, of information, well given and interesting. Julia Hodge's speech was brimful of bright thoughts, sparkling with wit, and delivered with an ease and grace most admirable in one so young. We repeat, it is impossible to give a description of these bright, happy, little speeches, They were gems.

The banquet room was tastefully decorated, and the tables were lovely in their arrangement and in every way did great credit to Mr. Hollister and wife and all their assistants. Everything on the list was there and much more; the waiters were perfect in their duties, and no one of the 98 guests was neglected or overlooked.

At Mrs. McCord's, were some fine flowers sent by Mrs. Ensley at Indianapolis, accompanied by a sisterly letter. She also directed that after the meeting, the flowers should be given to Mrs Johnston and Mrs. Craig, two of her former friends now languishing on beds of sickness. Some wild hyacinths from California, sent by Mrs. Lottie Cochran, were also received and it is needless to say all these flowers received abundance of attention. We have often said, any written description must necessarily fall far short of the reality. These meetings, and Auburn's literary ladies are Auburn's pride, and the only regret that can be conjured up is that more could not enjoy them, for the 100 guests form quite a company, and to receive more would be impossible. But invitations would command a high premium if put on the market. As a representative of the press, we thank the L. L. C. for this most delightful evening.

A new lot of Ladies' $3 Turn Shoes just in; fine style and good wearers.

Our $2.50 Ladies Patent Calf Tip is selling like hot cakes. If you want a good shoe at medium price, come and get a pair.

Slippers! Slippers! Our stock is just coming in from the factories.

While we do not carry many novelties in the Slipper and Oxford line, we do carry a line that is hard to beat for style, wear and general make-up.

A WORD
to those who buy Oxford Ties:

It is the prevailing idea now-a-days to wear slippers nearly all the time, whether at the home or on the street. We have customers who buy $4 or $5 Turn Shoes and ask for a $1.25 Turn Slipper. We take this means to inform all readers of this "ad." that if they wish to buy a slipper for STREET WEAR buy one with a HEAVY sole, especially if you buy cheap slippers at $1.00, $1.25, or $1.50.

It costs nearly as much to make a Slipper as a Shoe. Bear this in mind please when you go to buy your Walking Shoes.
